NEW ORLEANS, April 10—Despite the fact that the ku klux klan is supposed to be outlawed in Louisiana regular meetings are held by "visitors," weekly, an imperial representative installed in a downtown office, and a regular campaign waged by the appointment of ward captains and precinct leaders in each of the seventeen wards of the city against the so-called "enemies" of the hooded band.

A "Deserving" Republican

WASHINGTON, April 10.—President Coolidge today appointed Frederick C. Hicks, ex-member of Congress from Port Washington, Long Island, as Alien Property Custodian, succeeding Colonel Thomas W. Miller, resigned. Hicks' appointment was recommended by Charles D. Hilles, New York, republican national committeeman.

Better Than a Circus.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—So great was the crowd of Easter tourists at the white house today that a McKeesport, Pa., high school boy collapsed in the jam. More than 4,000 persons were crowded into the lobby of the executive office, waiting to shake hands with President Coolidge.

Search For Exploring Steamer.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Radio search for the steamer Arcturus continued today in an effort to end the twelve-day silence obtaining since the vessel and its scientific exploration party reported from 200 miles south of Panama March 29.

Bomb Injures Three.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 10.—Three men were injured, one perhaps fatally by the explosion today of a time bomb in their automobile. The explosion shattered the automobile and hurled its occupants in the air.

Monkey With the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—President Coolidge was requested today to leave unchanged the present tariff duty on beet sugar but to increase the rates on chlorate potassium.

OIL TRUST PLANS TO GRAB WATERWAYS TO INCREASE PROFITS

Plans to divert the nation's oil shipments from the railroads to inland water ways as a means of cutting down expenses and increasing profits were discussed here today by leaders of the oil industry attending the annual conference of the national petroleum marketers' association. The larger oil companies, it was said, already have taken steps in this direction by acquiring storage space along various canals and rivers and the prediction was made that the completion of an adequate inland waterways system would see virtually all oil and its products freighted by water.

As this forecast was being made, however, Charles Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, was telling the purchasing agents' association of Chicago that the proposed gulf waterway from Chicago to New Orleans was "impractical and doomed to failure."

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED - BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

CHICAGO Y. W. L. CITY CENTRAL DEVOTES LAST SESSION TO TASKS OF MEMBERS IN SHOP NUCLEI WORK

At the last meeting of the city central committee of the Young Workers League held Wednesday, April 8, the main topic of discussion was the shop nuclei.

The other business of the league such as the distribution of the 1,000 copies of the Negro edition of the Young Worker to be distributed and sold, the clothing workers meeting to be held Saturday and the hike which will take place on Sunday, April 19, to the Harlem Forest Preserve, were speedily and efficiently disposed of.

In discussion many experiences in our nuclei work were cited and lessons drawn therefrom. It was pointed out in the discussion that comrades in the various nuclei should become more active in their shops and should not rely upon the working area branch to do the work of a nucleus. The branch of course, should organize and perform all the outside activity, but that should be only secondary and supplementary to the work of the nuclei members inside.

The intensication of the activity within the shop and the getting of new members thru the efforts of the nucleus there rather than thru outside activity would avoid to a very great measure getting stool pigeons into our organization.

Definite Organizational Measures

It was stressed also that as soon as a nucleus is organized it should set a definite date and place of its meeting, elect its officers, even though it may be only two officers at the start and work out a plan of work and follow it religiously.

The nucleus must meet every week and have one business meeting, two educational and one social meeting. Of course any immediate business may be transacted at any nucleus meetinb or special nucleus meeting called whenever the situation in the shop demands it. The nucleus should participate more also in the general league activity, it was reported and not confine itself solely to the discussion of shop problems.

All the communications sent out by the league and the city central minutes of the league should be read and discussed and all instructions contained therein followed out by the nucleus. The nuclei members, too, should be drawn more into all the big affairs of the league.

They should be present at all the league membership meetings, at joint league and party affairs, at our hikes and at our social affairs. They should co-operate in arranging the open propaganda meetings of the branch and attend these meetings in a body.

Bulletins Should Be More Political

The bulletins of the various nuclei should become more political in nature, they should endeavor to acquaint the young workers in the shops with the Young Workers League, its program, its various activities and its goal, and should not merely week after week make exposes of the conditions in the shops. That of course must be contained in every bulletin accompanied by a few paragraphs on the general activities of the league and some educational material.

It was also remarked that the nucleus should consistently and systematically with the assistance of a factory campaign and outside activity build itself in size and inuence and only when it is sufficiently established should it set itself the big tasks such as the calling for organization of a shop committee.

In its program, it should of course, carry the demand for the organization of a shop committee and in its activity it should work towards that end.

It should guard however, against taking premature steps in that direction as these premature steps weaken and demoralize a nucleus rather than strengthen it.

The nuclei members also should at all times carry on their work as a unit. No individual actions should be permitted. No walkouts or calling of shop committee meetings, etc., without thorough discussion and preparation of the whole nucleus with its area branch representatives. The delay in waiting for such a meeting is no excuse, inasmuch as the nucleus can meet in an emergency almost immediately.

On Way to Full Reorganization.

All in the report and in the discussion that followed the report and in the report of the activities of every nucleus it was brought out that the Chicago was well on the way to a complete reorganization on the shop nucleus basis.

One evening was not sufficient to discuss the many problems and the achievements of the various nuclei. We are gaining invaluable experience thru our activity, we are learning many valuable lessons thru our mistakes which will aid us in the future work.

It is now when we have stepped from the propaganda stage into the midst of practical everyday activity in this line that our members and the league as a whole are driving benefits from the shop nucleus organization, this is evidenced by the twenty new members gotten in during the last month, most of them thru the nuclei and the lively and practical discussion held at our city central committee meeting.

LADY CUSTOMERS MEAN BIGGER EXPENSES FOR JOURNEYMEN BARBERS

The high prices paid for bobs and shingles is pocketed by the master barbers (bosses). The journeymen not only do not get any more money, but are working at a loss. The men have got to primp up—change their uniforms oftener, which means larger laundry bills, and they have to buy special heavy shears and curling irons.

Thus, the high cost of women customers to journeymen barbers was explained by W. S. Leidlig, president of the Journeymen Barbers' Union of Chicago, to Charles Bendheim, United States conciliator, sent by the department of labor to settle the controversy in the barbers' new wage contract.

The hearing at which Herman Linneman represents the master barbers and Leidig, the journeymen barbers, is held at the Great Northern Hotel. The decision of the conciliator will be made next week.

FRENCH PLUTES EXPORT CAPITAL IN BIG CRISIS

Herriot Blames Chaos on Poincare

PARIS, April 10.—Premier Herriot faced with the certainty of having to quit office in the near future, made savage attacks on the leaders of the opposition yesterday, charging preceding governments with shady bookkeeping and with having deceived the country as to the financial condition of the treasury.

The premier went before the senate this afternoon and denied that his government had ever exceeded the inflation limit of the Bank of France.

Blowing Bubbles.

The Bank of France, however, recorded an increase of 2,100,896,000 in circulation, which brings the total circulation up to 43,000,000,000 francs, while the legal limit is 41,000,000,000.

The chamber voted confidence in the government by 291 to 242. During the discussion Marcel Cachin, Communist deputy created a sensation when he asked if it was not true that several billions of francs were exported out of the country to Italy recently to avoid the consequences of the financial crisis. Herriot admitted this was true.

Francois-Marsal was sharp and critical for the Herriot ministry. Terminating his interpellation of Herriot he said:

"Neither the capital tax nor a forced loan is capable of restoring confidence in the present government."

Herriot rose from the minister's bench immediately and mounted the tribune to reply.

Herriot again laid responsibility for the nation's financial chaos on the nationalist government of Premier Poincare. He said:

"Unsuccessful loans made under the nationalist government showed there was no more confidence then under the nationalists than now under us. But the nationalists increased the internal debt heavily and it now is 278 billion francs."

The opposition senators interrupted with loud shouts: "Make Germany pay it."

CALL TO THE TEXTILE WORKERS

out any organization at all or to have a few small unions eke out a miserable existence fighting among themselves. All of the small unions must come together. The United Textile Workers, the American Federation of Textile Operatives, the Amalgamated Textile Council and the other textile organizations must form a united front against the bosses. There must be one union in the textile industry embracing skilled, semi-skilled, and unskilled workers in one powerful organization.

Form Real Mill Committees

"For the purpose of amalgamating all existing unions in the textile industry and organizing the unorganized, the United Front Committees of Textile Workers have been formed in Lawrence and elsewhere. Everywhere in Lawrence we are trying to form true rank and file mill committees that will become part and parcel of our United Front Committee. We have distributed thousands of leaflets, we have held mill gate rallies and indoor mass meetings.

"Already the police have begun their notorious work for the textile bosses. Commissioner of public safety, Marshall, although chosen by the workers of Lawrence, has kicked them repeatedly in the face. He has refused to grant permits to hold open-air rallies and Albert Weisbord of Boston, speaking for the United Front Committee, was arrested because Mr. Marshall would not give him a permit, and was fined by the district court. This case has been appealed and the decision must be fought out in the upper court. Shall Mr. Marshall be the dictator of Lawrence? Shall the textile barons use the machinery of the government in Lawrence to prevent the exploited textile workers from organizing to establish and maintain American standards of living?

Must Unite to Aid Strikes

"Sparodic strikes have broken out in Fall River, New Bedford in the Blackstone and Pawtuxet vallies and in Connecticut. Organized labor must come to the assistance of these struggling textile workers.

"The United Front Committee of Textile Workers invites your organization to send one or more delegates to a conference to be held, April 15 at Ideal Hall, 180 Essex street for the purpose of forming a textile workers defense and relief committee. Such committee will give aid and defense to the textile workers without discrimination.

"MONEY IS NEEDED FOR DEFENSE AND RELIEF. Your organization is rquested to send a substantial sum to the defense and relief fund. Make all checks payable to Fred E. Beal of 85 Jackson St., Lawrence.

Fraternally yours, F. E. BEAL, Sec'y.
United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence.

To All Textile Unions

"The United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence has begun an intensive campaign among the textile workers to stiffen their resistance against the dastardly wage cuts and inhuman speeding up and doubling up of work that the textile bosses have forced. The workers must fight the fake shop and mill committees of the mill owners and organize militant rank and file mill committees of their own.

"In order to carry out this campaign the textile workers must organize and amalgamate all of their forces for the fight. We must not allow the three hundred and fifty thousand textile workers in this district to be without any organization at all or to have a few small unions eke out a miserable existence fighting among themselves.

"Al of the small unions must come together. The United Textile Workers' of America, the American Federation of Textile Operatives, the Amalgamated Textile Councils and the other textile organizations must form a united front against the bosses. There must be one union in the textile industry that will embrace skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers in one powerful organization!

"For the purpose of amalgamating all existing unions and organizing the unorganized, United Front Committees of Textile Workers have been forced in Lawrence and elsewhere. We have already done some good work such as organizing some rank and file mill committees, distributing thousands of leaflets and holding indoor mass meetings and mill gate rallies. But to really succeed we must have the cooperation of every textile workers' organization.

"We invite your organization, therefore, to send one or more delegates to sit with us on the United Front Committee. The struggle of the textile workers must not be abandoned and it can be carried on successfully only by way of a united front of all textile workers organizations.

"Our committee sincerely hopes that your organization will join our united front. Address all mail to the secretary pro. tem. Fred E. Beal, 85 Jackson street, Lawrence, Mass.

"Fraternally yours,
United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence per
FRED E. BEAL,
Secretary, pro. tem.

The above letter was sent to the following textile organizations:

Dyers and Finishers, United Textile Workers; Wool Sorters, United Textile Workers; Mule Spinners, International Textile Workers; Loom Fixers, American Federation of Textile Operatives; and the One Big Union organization.

The German Election and the Communist Party

By ERNST THAELMANN.

ERNST THAELMANN

Communist Candidate for President of Germany.

THERE existed no two opinions in the Communist Party of Germany with regard to the questions of participation in the presidential election. It was clear to us right from the outset that we must participate in this election, just as in every parliamentary election, with a candidate of our own. We were the first of all the parties to announce a candidate. The bourgeois parties had begun to discuss this question weeks before Ebert's death, and up to the time of writing have not yet come to an agreement. For the C. P. of Germany the question was decided in a few minutes.

How correct this speedy decision and its prompt announcement was, is shown by the confusion which this news created in the camp of the social-democratic party. There the news that we had come forward with a worker's candidate, the only possible workers' candidate in the presidential election, had the effect of a bomb-shell.

IT is an open secret that the social-democratic party executive was determined to bring about an agreement with the other reichsbanner parties as to a so-called "republican" candidate, and in this connection the former reich-chancellor, Marx was mentioned. But the Barmat executive did not manage to carry thru this proposal at the session of the national council of the party. The district representatives, it appears, pointed out the difficulty there would be in convincing the social-democratic workers that they should not vote for a workers' candidate but for a bourgeois candidate.

It was in view of the competition of the Communist candidate that it was decided to put forward Otto Braun, the former Prussian premier, as a candidate of the social-democratic party.

THIS decision has created the greatest excitement in the ranks of the black-red-yellow republicans. The national president of the reichsbanner, the socialdemocrat Horsing, was dispatched to Berlin by the national executive in order to bring his social colleagues to reason. Haenisch, another social democrat, regretfully admitted in an appeal of the republican reichbund, that the splitting of the republican parties would render possible the victory of the monarchist candidate.

The stupid demagogy which the socialist party of Germany has used against the Communists is now recoiling on its own head. They called us "stirrup-holders of reaction," because we have not prepared to unite with the republican bourgeoisie against the monarchist bourgeois.

They are now being paid back in their own coin. But the leaders of the Barmat party will be mistaken if they believe that by means of an independent candidate they will be able to persuade the class conscious workers that the candidate of the Barmat executive, the former prime minister of the great coalition in Prussia whose merits the Stinnes party praised to the skies, is a workers' candidate.

The workers will not fail to use every opportunity to put forward the question, what workers' demand this so-called "workers' candidate," Otto Braun, really represents. The Barmat candidate will be unable to furnish an answer.

THE Communists will make use of the election campaign as a means of agitation and propaganda for their demands among the broadest masses.

We shall not tell the workers that any worker, if he is elected as president, will be able to do anything, within this state and with this state apparatus, in the interest of the workers. We shall remind them how miserably such an attempt was wrecked in Saxony and Thuringia in 1923 by the armed force of the bourgeoisie. For the bourgeoisie snaps its fingers at the Weimar constitution when its class interests are in danger.

WE will connect our election campaign with our campaign against the monarchist Luther government, with our campaign for an amnesty, for the eight-hour day, for adequate wages, and for trade union unity.

We shall demonstrate to the workers that they cannot get anything they want as a gift from any president, but they must fight for it by forming a red class front, by breaking with the black-red-yellow Barmat agents and taking up the struggle against the Dawes plan, for the overthrow of the Luther government, for a proletarian government.

THE Communist Party is fully conscious of the serious importance of the election campaign. It will throw the whole power of its organization into this fight. It is not afraid that this will mean being diverted from the immediate tasks of the class struggle, but on the contrary it will involve the concentration of all the forces of the revolutionary proletariat for this fight.

THE bourgeoisie has realized in an equal degree the importance of our election fight. It made use of an appeal of the central committee of the C. P. of Germany on the death of Ebert as an occasion for prohibiting the Rote Fahne and a whole number of our provincial newspapers. It was intended by this means to suppress the voice of the proletarian party in the approaching struggle. This measure created the greatest indignation and bitterness among the working class.

The Berlin workers sent such a number of factory delegations to plague the social democratic police minister, Severing, that after a few days he was compelled to withdraw the prohibition of the Rote Fahne.

WE regard this as a favorable augury for our fight. It is an indication as to how firmly the Communist Party is rooted in the factories. And it will be in order to increase our influence in the factories—not in the Wilhelmstrasse—that we shall conduct our election campaign with all our energies.

On Poverty and Its Cure - -

By Moritz J. Loeb

A PARTY that has not learned is poor. A party that will not learn is bankrupt.

The Workers Party is one of the youngest Communist parties. Because of its youth it naturally is lacking in experience. But because it has always had the leadership and guidance of the Communist International it has avoided many of the pitfalls of erroneous theory into which it might have from time to time fallen. As a party we have not deviated from the line of true Communist theory. Our greatest weaknesses have been in organization, in our inability to put into full practice our theories because of our inexperience in reaching, influencing and leading the working class.

STRANGELY enough, this analysis does not apply very well to the individual party members. While our party is not overburdened with capable organizers, still for its size it has a great number, comrades who are able to grasp opportunities and make the most of them. On the other hand it is particularly in theoretical understanding that most of the party members are lacking.

A PARTY strong in theory, comparatively weak organizationally; a membership long on action, short on understanding! Strange paradox! Yet after all, it is not so strange. The Workers Party is made up of class conscious militants. Basically it is composed of the left wingers of the old S. P., the militants of the I. W. W. and the fighting trade unionists with revolutionary understanding. We came into existence as a party of action, a party of fighters and a party of organizers. We brought with us a heritage of class struggle. And we brought along too, much of the understanding and misunderstanding which we secured in our old environment.

ONE needs only to cite the history of the party's trade union policy to prove this point. Both the Communist Party and the United Communist Party in the pre-unity days had a 100 per cent dual union policies. It was only at the time of the unity that this error was corrected in the program and then only after we had been taken to task by the C. I. And it was not until some time later after the Workers Party had been established that we began to put this policy into actual practice. It was a complete about-face for most of us.

WHAT it true about trade union policies is true for us about other instances. It has been because of the loyalty and discipline of our membership and not entirely thru our mass understanding that the party has often passed safely thru serious crises of party tactic. Even so there have been dangers not entirely overcome. Witness the partial split over the issue of the underground and the legal party in which many remained for some time outside the party and in which some very good proletarian elements have been altogether lost to us.

A PARTY that has not learned is poor. A party that will not learn is bankrupt. Our party was poor. It went to school and learned. The party went to school to the Communist International. Because of its adherence to the guidance and leadership of the

Letters From Soviet Russia

DEAR FELLOW WORKERS: From newspapers we frequently learn that our conditions of life here in the U. S. S. R. are distorted and misrepresented.

I, a non-party worekr and stoker in the "Red Naftianik," would like to share with you my impression of the rest homes in the Kameny Ostrov in Leningrad.

By the way the "Red Neftianik" are stores which formerly belonged to the capitalist Nobel.

Where is the "dear fellow" now? Probably he is hanging about around your way. I fancy that he has not yet got over the losses he suffered thru our revolution. Tell him that his former workers are quite alright and do not intend to pay him back a single penny.

But I am digressing.

ON the strength of the collective agreement, thirty-five of our workers were able to spend some time in rest homes in the course of the year.

I had a fortnight's leave of absence and expressed the wish to spend this fortnight in a rest home.

First of all, I was sent to an examining center. There I was medically examined to ascertain if I was suffering from an infectious disease. I was weighed, registered and sent to Home No. 2.

For the first time in my life I came into such a beautiful villa as Home No. 2 which formerly belonged to the director of the Red Triogolnik (Rubber Works.)

THERE are large mirrors and beautiful pictures on the walls as well as China statuettes on brackets, the floor is of variegated parquet. One of the halls is a conservatory with a fountain, and the ceiling is beautifully painted. Cleanliness and comfort everywhere.

I was registered and assigned my place in the bedroom and dining hall. There are six beds in the bedroom. The bed linen is clean, and every bedstead has a spring mattress and a horsehair overlay and two blankets. There is a little table beside each bedstead. It is cozy, warm and in fact A. 1.

EVERY morning we were wakened by a gong at 9:30 a. m. At 10 we filed into the dining room. In this magnificent room our morning coffe was served. The rest home where I was accommodated 200 workers, and at that time 18 such rest homes were opened on this island.

After the morning coffee, we could get all sorts of papers, magazines and books from the library. Those who felt inclined read, and others played billiards, draughts, chess or played the piano or the harmonium.

The younger ones went for walks, there was also boating and various games and such-like amusement.

AT one o'clock we had dinner, which consisted of three courses including sweet dishes of the finest quality. At 4 p. m. there was tea and white bread. At 6 p. m. there were lectures in the club on scientific subjects, and in the evening there were cinema performances, or concerts three times a week in which artists from the state theaters took part.

In the evening—supper of two courses and again tea with white bread and various savories.

We had to be in bed not later than one o'clock after midnight. After a fortnight in this rest home, I gained three pounds in weight, in spite of the fact that being young (25 years) I took a great deal of exercise.

Older workers gained from 8 to 10 pounds in weight. The fortnight was gone all too soon.

All thru my life I will remember this fortnight in the rest home.

WELL, comrades, this is how I spent my time in the rest home where under czarism fat capitalism lived their voluptuous and parasitic life.

Our Soviet government which is a workers' and peasants' government enables ordinary factory workers to take their rest in palaces.

How are things in Great Britain in this respect?

How can workers get into rest homes in your country?

Letters From Our Readers

The Negro.

To the DAILY WORKER:—In slavery days the Negro was declared intellectually inferior and weak morally as an excuse for slavery, and the supreme court in the Dred Scott decision stated that "The Negro has no rights that the white man is bound to respect."

In the civil war, when the whites were away in the army, the Negro was trusted, depended upon, and proved faithful to the trust in taking care of the white families and their estates.

After the war the Negroes were the real industrial reconstructors of the South, except in some cases of white carpet-bag control.

Then the Negro was lied against to justify his disfranchisement, and his oppression by the white master class. And still is lied against by the ku klux klan as an excuse for its own existence, and for the purpose of keeping alive racial prejudices to prevent a unite front of white and Negro workers against the capitalist masters.

In effect the klan affirms that 200 years of the white brand of southern culture has failed to humanize the Negro. But if so, then it is time to try Black culture on the white man's brutality.

So long as the Negro was personal property he had a place in the master's affections just as any other high-priced commodity. When he ceased to be slave-property, he was made a slave at his own self-support, and often in conditions that forced him to appropriate unobserved some of the products of his own toil.

For 50 years the whole South has been in revolt against that feature of the constitution which made the Negro a citizen with citizenship rights, and both the republican and democratic parties in the North have acquiesced in the revolt. It is time the Negroes in the North had revolted against that condition by joining forces with the Communists in a united front of all workers, Negro and white, both North and South, against the capitalist system which is the basis, and always has been the basis, of racial discriminations in this country.

Kuzbas Comrades Thank Us.

To the DAILY WORKER: The report sent by the Kuzbas workers to Tom Barker in New York telling about conditions here and which was printed in the DAILY WORKER has brot us mail from workers everywhere—from Canada to Texas and from New York to the state of Washington. We have written many individual comrades thanking them, but the mail keeps piling up and we can hardly find time to answer them. So we use this method of sending over best wishes and hearty thanks to them all.

We also wish to announce that comrades wishing to send literary contributions to Kuzbas-Kemerovo will please address all packages and mail to Comrade R. Winkler, Kuzbas-Kemerova.

About once a month we received a few copies of the DAILY WORKER. It would be fine if we could get our valuable paper every day, but alas, it is a dream too good to come true.

Graft in Veteran's Bureau

To the DAILY WORKER:

The United States veteran's bureau officials recently presented their chief director Hines, with an engraved resolution stating that he gave justice and fairness to all and set a high standard of efficiency.

What a mockery! What hypocrisy! The words of Hines' butlers are honeyed poison.

Inefficiency, graft, and indifference are still rampant in the United States veteran's bureau. Thousands of disable ex-soldiers are being mistreated in the hospitals and vocational training school, and still more disabled ex-soldiers were declared "rehabilitated" and driven out to face unemployment and starvation.

If Hines brought fairness to all, then the name "all" does not include the several thousand disabled world war veterans. It includes only the obedient, grafting, indifferent, inefficient and well paid officialdom.

Skopp Recital at Kimball Hall.

Charles Skopp, violinist and teacher of many of the members of the Chicago Young Workers League orchestra, will give a recital at Kimball Hall next Sunday afternoon, April 12. His program includes the first movement of the Paganini concerto, a Bach sonata unaccompanied, a group of short works by Achron, Schubert, Porpora and Beethoven, winding up with a fantasia on Hungarian airs by Ernst. Skopp's pupils say he is a wonder.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

From a Rank and Filer.

I am in the dressmaker needle trade and want to voice my feelings on the conditions in the shop I am working.

The boss is one of those little cockroaches, once also a socialist. He can neither read or write, but has learned to scribble his name on checks which were returned two times in the four weeks I have been working there.

I want to mention that this is a union shop which is running on a piece work basis. The shop chairman was only a chairman to sit on a chair, and now he is gone. The dresses were alloted so that nobody could make more than $6 a day by hard labor.

Conditions are getting a little clearer now as we are at work on resettling some old prices, over which I came in sharp conflict with the boss. For instance:

We are five dressmakers so I asked him to divide a certain style of dresses, which he refused. Knowing I am a Communist he went into a temper with speeches that had neither head nor tail. My name was Bolshevik, for which he has no use, and therefore I could go, he shouted. But I did not go out. I am still working there and he is now dividing the work as I demanded until we get a new chairman.

I fought a stiff battle with this little cockroach of a boss, and I have also sent a letter to our local union for better control of the shop and also cash money instead of bad checks, and I believe we will get what we ask for.

I have made good friends in this place as we have some intelligent workers employed there who have been taking my part (except one woman operator).

If we can get work in (at present it is very dull), then, comrades, I am sure of one more shop nucleus in the down town district of New York. I have not been able to attend to this organization work yet, but it won't take long now till it will appear. All you comrades who are in the needle trades, get onto your job and make it your duty to help the spread of the shop nuclei to protect us from the exploitation of the bourgeoisie.

I chanced to get into conversation with a member of the Yorkville German branch and he was somewhat downhearted and thought it was very hard to wake the American workers up, which is true. Therefore we must make good friends with them before we start to teach them Communism. So down with the pessimistic ideas, comrades, and don't let them overwhelm your bright and energetic power. We are Communists and we must remember that a Communist must be an optimist, for no power, comrades, will ever be able to resist our army.

Therefore, hail to our growing Communst Party in the United States of America.

Session of the Enlarged Executive of the C.I.

THE perspective drawn by the Fifth World Congress was correct. Radek was of the opinion that fascism had defeated the social-democracy. Trotsky characterized fascism as the weapon of the bourgeoisie during the period of civil war. Liebknecht was defeated by the bourgeoisie, because he was murdered in the rebellion; in the eighties, the ex-revolutionary Tichomirov went over into the czarist camp, and was thus also "defeated."

The bourgeoisie and fascism have defeated the social-democracy not in the sense of Liebknecht, but in that of Tichomirov. The social-democracy has gone over to the bourgeoisie and has become a wing-party of the bourgeoisie. That explains the temporary strengthening of the social-democracy in certain places. Just as the bourgeoisie has temporarily convalesced, so its twin brother—the social-democracy—has temporarily revived.

THE Barmat case, the pact concluded by the Hungarian social-democracy with Horthy, the last bureau-session of the London International, the funerals of Ebert, Gompers and Branting, the obituaries of the bourgeoisie—all this shows that the social-democracy, like fascism, is an auxiliary force of the bourgeoisie, The social-democracy is defeated only in the sense that it is serving the bourgeoisie.

The Leninist analysis of this question by the Fifth Congress has also been proven correct.

THE Fifth Congress also adopted the right policy in the trade union question. It is now our task to adapt this policy to the particular conditions of each country. In this there are two dangers, as we have seen in France and Czecho-Slovakia. Firstly, some comrades consider the unity campaign as merely a maneuver; second, other comrades, in Czecho-Slovakia for instance, are inclined to neglect the revolutionary trade unions. We shall not simply give up our organizations.

THE Amsterdamers are now worried over the intention of the British unions to hold a special conference with the Russian trade unions. They have therefore convened an extraordinary session of the Amsterdam bureau. We shall continue our old policy, without considering the unity campaign a mere petty maneuver, and without the unconditional surrender of our own organizations—wherever we have strong revolutionary unions.

OUR trade union campaign is so vital because we have linked it up with the change now in process in the British labor movement. England has lost its dominating monopolistic position; its colonial position is shaken. That is why the class struggle is becoming more intense in England, and the position of the labor aristocracy has been weakened. Events have proved the failure of the old British trade union tactics as well as of the old labor party policy.

Hence the origin and growth of the minority movement which has a great future before it. The labor party which is at present a party of the city proletariat, will gradually decline, but it will attempt to get a foothold on the land. That will be a progressive step.

OUR trade union campaign has a great future before it because it takes into account the changes taking place in the British trade union movement. Engels and Lenin have both searched for the key to the English situation. On the basis of Engels and Lenin the Comintern has found this key. Since the situation is objectively favorable we may expect the C. P. G. B. to become a mass party. Young British Communism is marching on.

PASSING to the question of Bolshevization, Comrade Zinoviev states that as regards Bolshevization the questions of policy and organization are of equal importance. The organizational conference was of great importance. Bolshevization of the Communist Party does not consist in the reorganization on a nuclei basis. The campaigns must, however, be transferred to the shop nuclei.

The most important principle of Bolshevization is, that the Bolshevization process must go on continually. An artificial transfer of Russian experience is wrong, because the bourgeoisie has also learned its lesson from our October. Hamburg and Reval show that a Kerensky period is no longer possible.

THE most important thing in Bolshevization is a correct analysis of the social components of the population.

In the present period the Communist parties must in the first place study the prewar history of Bolshevism. The tendencies towards the peasant movement are of great importance. The French and Italian parties have convened peasant conferences. The German so-called land-Sundays are also of great importance.

THE slogan of workers' and peasants' government must be retained in spite of the fact that Brandler has discredited it.

The united front tactic remains the prerequisite for Bolshevization. The Bolshevik is above all a mass-individual. In this connection the partial demands are very important. Partial demands constitute no reformism. In the present period, reforms are impossible. The slowing up of the revolution does not mean reformism. Partial demands must receive our attention, since we must take part in the daily struggle of the working masses.

ZINOVIEV foresees attempts at formulating a right tactic within the Comintern.

The Brunn organization has published an account of the conflict in the Czech party. The Brunn organization appeals to the great past of the Brunn labor movement. The speaker agrees, but points out that the workers of Brunn would do well to give back some of its leaders to the social-democracy, and to discard some others. These leaders consider themselves theoreticians; but they confuse the revolution with a heap of broken window panes. (Great laughter). The Comintern has no use for such theoreticians.

BORDIGA has already moved from the extreme left to the right. The more such tendencies there are—the more irreconcilable must our Bolshevism be.

Passing to the question of party leadership, Comrade Zinoviev mentioned two hitherto unpublished articles of Thalheimer and Kreibich in which they criticize the policy of the Fifth World Congress. They argue that the executive has helped new leaders to the fore. Without constant change—leadership is impossible.

No one wishes to drop the old leaders and to flatter the young leaders. The young leaders must learn from their own mistakes and be Bolshevized.

WE introduced a mixture of the two generations, so that Kribich's reproach that we have frivolously discarded our old leaders, is unfounded. It is not a question of persecution, but merely one of sincerely admitting the mistakes made. What we want is a centralized, disciplined leadership, steadily pursuing its aim; we want the normalization of the parties, democracy and the right of free criticism for the membership—not for the pleasure of the bourgeoisie, but for the Bolshevization of the parties on the basis of Leninism.

RAPPAPORT claims that we have placed Leninism above Marxism; but Friedrich Adler is of the same opinion. This view is erroneous, for without Marxism there is no Leninism. We wish to preserve the good traditions of the First International, and even some of the good traditions of the Second International.

Communism is not of yesterday. We must learn the good sides of Guesde, Bebel, Plekhanov, of the Polish social democracy, the Spartacus League, etc.

IN general: the present breathing space must be taken advantage of for studying purposes. To learn in itself means to work. We must realize Leninism is a hard struggle against all right tendencies as displayed by the Brunn example. 73 per cent of the German and Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party are former social-democratic workers. We must win over still more social-democratic workers; but we must Bolshevize them. The workers want to become good Bolsheviks. In Brunn nine-tenths of the workers are good revolutionaries, in spite of the fact that their leaders are half social-democrats.

OUR policy remains the same. We must adapt ourselves to existing conditions without for a moment losing sight of our goal or rudder. The path of the world revolution is more difficult and contains more obstacles and barriers than we at first believed. But we will march on, tho at a slower pace than we thot, and lead Communism to victory.

The Shanghai Textile Strike

By TANG SHIN SHE.

SHANGHAI is not only an important harbor town but also a great industrial center, especially of the textile industry. In this town alone there are 58 cotton factories with nearly 2,000,000 spindles, in which 113,000 working men and women are employed. In the whole of Shanghai there are over 500,000 proletarians.

Altho this town contains such a great number of workers and altho thruout the whole of China in the last years great strikes have broken out—strikes directed against native militarism and foreign imperialism, bloody strikes where many workers have been killed—Shanghai apart from a few small strikes, has remained relatively peaceful.

In Shanghai there are numerous yellow trade unions for the proletariat in which any Communist propaganda is out of the question. This has greatly pleased the labor office in Geneva, which last year sent a representative, Pierre Herri, to Shanghai in order to view the great progress made in China.

WHY are the Shanghai workers so badly off? Because Shanghai is an international town and because the administration lies in the hands of the imperialists. The modern industrial works are for the greater part in the hands of foreigners, chiefly Japanese and English. These brought with them great experiences from their own countries and handled the young Chinese working class according to their cleverest methods.

In addition to this there are in Shanghai numerous vagabonds, who are organized in secret organizations and who are connected with the foreign police and spies. Such vagabond organizations are nothing else but white guards of the imperialists; they constitute a direct tool of the capitalists for suppressing the working class.

They have already on several occasions appeared in Shanghai as strike breakers, or sowed dissension among the strikers, so that the strike collapsed, or on the order of the police they brutally attacked the strikers. Thus it happened that the strike of the 4,000 workers of the South Ocean Tobacco factory in October last year was throttled and 200 workers were discharged who are still without employment.

NOW a huge strike has begun in Shanghai in the Japanese undertakings. It is worth noting that the strike leadership is in the hands of our Communists. The strike began already on February 9, and grew every day. According to the latest reports—end of February—22 factories, all Japanese, with 404,000 workers are involved in the strike. The rest of the workers of Shanghai and the workers of many other towns are sympathizing with the strikers and arranging collections for them.

The international working class is also practicing solidarity. Thus the Red International of Labor Unions sent 30,000 roubles to the strike committee. The origin or the strike was the dismissal without notice of numerous workers. On February 11, the strikers put forward the following demands:

1. Reinstatement of the discharged workers.
2. Liberation of the workers arrested by the English police (up to Feb. 11, 40 strike leaders had already been arrested).
3. Abolition of corporal punishment and other means of torture.
4. Reduction of work to eight hours a day.
5. Increase of wages.

THE employers rejected the demands and caused further numerous strike leaders to be arrested. Two workers were shot by the police.

This strike is playing a great role in the policy of Japan towards China. The Japanese embassy in Pekin on February 19 dispatched the following note to the Pekin government:

"The Chinese government must immediately arrest those who are behind the strike, otherwise great unrest could finally break out."

ON the same day, February 19, the Japanese foreign minister declared in the upper house: "All foreign powers must meet in Shanghai in order to put an end to this strike. The Chinese government must also take drastic measures against the strikers."

The press in Japan is strongly denouncing the strike.

We therefore see that the imperialists are apprehensive as to how the thing will end. No means are too sharp for them to use against the workers. We Communists however have a great victory to record. We have now succeeded in achieving in Shanghai what up to now has been impossible, i. e., to get into close touch with the working masses.

Fiction and the Bourgeoisie

By MORD WILGUS.

IN a recent issue of the Times Book Review, we found the total number of books prominently advertised to be 293. This enormous amount of reading matter is not, as the reader may infer, advertisements of old classics, but is, on the contrary, the current output from the pens of bourgeois authors. Of course, here and there a bookseller may throw in a reprint of an old master, for the simple reason, no doubt, to embellish and make more attractive the rubbish for which he asks good money in exchange. But in the main, the crop is new.

SEVERAL questions automatically suggest themselves. Who reads these books? And what are their contents? We shall answer the second question first. Out of the total of 293, we counted no less than 183 as fiction. The remaining 110 comprise everything from autobiography to travel and science. However, since autobiography and travel are but another form of fiction, it would be safe to add another 25 to the fiction division so that the ratio would be 208:85 or 70 per cent fiction to 30 per cent non-fiction.

NOW who reads these works? As a class, the proletariat has not the means to afford books. Then, there are, in round numbers, five million proletarians and poor farmers in this country who cannot read and write. The workday, if one includes the traveling in crowded trains to and from work, does not allow the worker much time for reading except when he is out of work; but then his mind is so occupied with finding a job that he can not put himself in the frame of mind which makes reading enjoyable.

THE vanguard of the workers buys books, and plenty of them, but obviously they are not of the vintage which appears in the sections of the Times Book Review—with exceptions, of course. For this organ of the bourgeoisie, in its hollow efforts to appear learned and well-informed, is compelled to review in its columns the economic, sociological and political works from the pens of proletarian writers—especially since the momentous Bolshbvist revolution in Russia. It does so, however, with great pain casting abuse, ridicule and downright misrepresentation at the heads of the worker theoreticians.

SINCE the books to the tune of 293 in one season are not read by the proletariat, we must conclude that either the middle class or the bourgeoisie proper devour this great crop. As a matter of fact, it is both. The middle class, as Marx pointed out, are constantly aping their brethren of the four hundred. The middle class being by far the greater of the two in numbers, is the greatest consumer of this literary trash which is called fiction. Their homes are just littered with two-dollar sellers.

THE publishers, like efficient business men that they are, have studied the wants of their customers, and accordingly they feed them abundantly with the romantic moonshine, inflated hopes, corrugated love affairs that is the dominant mental composition of the petty bourgeoisie. It is a rarity to find a proletarian as the hero or leading character in these novels. Indeed I have yet to hear of one. The trashy romance invariably centers on some young medico, struggling bourgeoisie writer, a parson spreading the gifts of chirstianity in backward Zululand or a millionaire who takes pity on a poor "woiking goil" and then marries her just for sheer romance.

WHY wonder then, that the middle class is so proverbially stupid? It is not by accident that the professor has been pictured on the vaudeville stage as a dreamy, stupid saphead writing poetry under a tree. The image of the stupid professor is universal, for in him is brilliantly focused the dullest virtues and prejudices of the middle class. The professor carries himself with pompous dignity and at the same time obsequiously truckles to the capitalist class which pays him and feeds him. The professor is an expert in his particular branch of knowledge but outside of it, he is lost. This is proven by the fact that the social revolution in Russia, which is unquestionably the most stupendous event since the great French upheaval, has made little or no impression on them as a class.

WE happen to be acquainted with a few typical members of the middle class, and sad to relate, it is impossible to engage these learned men in a serious conversation on Russia. They have no interest in, and are incapable of, a sustained discussion on the subject. They are quickly bored. To them, that is, as a class, the erection of the first workers' and peasants' government in the world is of no more significance than a palace revolution in the South Sea Islands

What can one expect from such a decadent element? Romance!—and the publishers see to it that they get it.

LET us now pass in review some of the titles taken at random and the verbal dresses with which they are embellished.

Here is a full page display of Elbert Hubbard's Scrap Book. Scrap book is right! The publisher of this opus stops to inform us that the author is "the great, many-sided genius" who has produced a "great storehouse of beautiful thots and sound wisdom"—all for $2.90 cash.

"A gale of laughter, a paroxysm of mirth," is the story of Bill the Conqueror. Believe it if you wish.

"A brillian novel of manners and morals" is Those Barren Leaves.

HERE is one that's a knockout. It is entitled: Private Memoirs of a Justified Sinner—"a book of genius." These memoirs have "nothing in common with anything else that has ever been written" so says the publisher. Whenever a publisher is short of cash, he is sure to find a handy "genius" to help him out.

Windows Facing West is described as "ruthless in its veracity, so illuminating in its ruthlessness."

The Cactus, "a mysterious double tragedy, in Greenwich Village, the tangled skeins of intrigue, mystery, adventure, and romance"—in fact, it is anything you want. Two dollars cash.

YOU should read the Life of Christ "because it is the outburst (sic) of a prophetic soul who has felt the transforming power of Christ"—and because " it is such books as these that open the prison door and let Jesus into his world and because it may become one of the masterpieces of all literature" if you wish to believe the scribe in the Chicago Tribune who wrote the last "because."

This is the mental refuse that the middle class and the big bourgeoisie nourish their minds with. And it is these two dedacedent and moribund classes that are held up to the proletariat as paragons of virtue, pillars of society, the brains of industry and the incarnation of self-respect.

The bourgeoisie as a class, is economically on the decline. Its literature which is its mouthpiece cannot avoid expressing this decline be it in life, science or art.

Unity Without Victors or Vanquished

Some days ago Edo Fimmen, secretary of the International Transport Workers' Federation, delivered a great speech at a workers' meeting in Leeurwarden, from which we give below the most important passages.

IN all countries the workers are exposed to the most brutal reaction: white terror in the Balkans, in Poland and in the Baltic countries, military dictatorship in Hungary and in Spain, fascism in Italy.

Is the fate of the workers under "democracy" any better?

In Germany in 1918 there was welcomed the dawn of a new era. Today, however, the working class has fewer rights under the republic than under the kaiser. The regime which prevails today is the most pitiless that history has ever known. The nationalists have nothing to fear, but the workers are skinned and 7,000 to 8,000 of them are languishing in prison.

ENGLAND has had a labor government. It is now under the rule of the conservatives, who are preparing to deliver a severe blow to the trade unions.

There is a lot of talk about "nationalizing production." But in spite of the fact that there are factory councils in Germany and Austria, the workers have less to say in the matter than before the war.

Wages rose during the war. Since then they have only been reduced. The cost of living is not falling to the same extent. After wages, the eight-hour day is being attacked. Bit by bit everything is being taken away from the working class.

I SHALL be accused of pessimism. But it is a long time since I sounded the toscin and demanded that trade union activity should adopt a new course. I challenge anybody to prove that I painted things too black. We must see the practical results of the situation. There are leaders who wish to return to the old pre-war tactics, to the policy of letting things drift.

After the war, conections were finally re-established in the International Trade Union Federation. At the Washington Congress one witnessed to a certain extent a new spirit. At no time previously had the International Trade Union Federation dealt with political questions. This time protest was made against the blockade against Soviet Russia by the allies. But in spite of everything collaboration with the bourgeoisie was continued. If one wishes to fight effectively against war, one must ruthlessly break with the bourgeoisie. No compromise with capitalism!

THINGS would undoubtedly have made better progress if we had not gone to Washington in order to deal with the German reparations. What does it matter to us from whom the entente takes money, if it only does not take it from the pockets of the workers? At this congress we were an instrument in the hands of capitalism. The proletariat will not emancipate itself so long as we get our orders from government offices.

WHEN the International Federation of Trade Unions had the opportunity of making a powerful protest against the occupation of the Ruhr, several delegates refused to do this. There is no doubt this was because it would have displeased their governments. I believe that, the working class is farther from its goal than it was before the war. All "socialist" governments, in Germany, in England, in Belgium, etc., may they be entirely three-quarters or half socialist, are nothing else than screens behind which capitalism exploits the working class.

Whether the ministers are socialists or conservatives is a matter of indifference to the capitalists, if they only continue to receive their coupons and retain possession of the factories. So long as there is any dirty work to be done they gladly make use of social democracy; when however the job has been finished, they give it the kick-out. I repeat once more: we are weaker than before the war.

IF the proletariat is at present an easy object of exploitation, the reason for this is the splitting of the ranks of the workers. Both sides reproach each other with betrayal. We have lost sight of our class interests, of the irreconcilable fight against capitalism. Our movement experienced how much weaker its real social action has become. Then there took place the founding of the Red International of Labor Unions in Moscow. Since then there has developed a real fight between two proletarian groups. In all countries one group has sided with Amsterdam, another group has turned to Moscow. Thus we have helped the capitalists who acquired greater freedom to exploit the workers.

ALREADY before the war capitalism was internationally united. And it remained so during the great slaughter.

Where however is our unity? We have not even yet built the bridge which unite us, but we must do so. It seems as if our hate is greater against those workers who are not of the same political opinion as us than it is against our common exploiters. And this situation will become even worse if we do not find the way to greater unity on a national and an international scale.

IN various countries two groups of workers of equal importance confront each other. This leads to the weakening of the one as much as of the other.

For the workers it is of enormous importance that unity be realized. The first attempt which was made at the time of the conference at Berlin failed. The differences were still too great.

The International Federation of Trade Unions has now, after an exchange of letters, adopted a resolution of Stenhuis. It declares that we are ready to admit the Russians, if they express the desire to be admitted; then negotiations will be entered into. Personally I was against this: negotiations should be entered into first in order then to determine our attitude.

IN my opinion, in the struggle between Amsterdam and Moscow there must be neither victors nor vanquished. There must no longer be any talk of Amsterdam or Moscow, but only of a united international which shall embrace all peoples and all countries, of a great trade union movement which must stand on the basis of irreconcilable class war.

IN our ranks it is thought that the Russians did not play an open game. Of course the Russians place the revolutionary class struggle in the foreground, and I entirely agree with them. There is a lot of talk about Russia; but I who had the good sense to go to Russia in order to see things myself, am profoundly convinced that the Russians sincerely desire unity.

On this basis a way can be found for a new advance by the proletariat and for the victory over the exploiters. I am therefore not pessimistic. I firmly believe in the power of the oppressed proletariat.

The Militarization of the Transport Workers in England

By LOUIS ZOOBOCK.

THERE is no doubt that this year is going to be marked by great trade union activity of the English workers. Hundreds of thousands of workers are at present engaged in struggles to raise their wages and improve the standard of living. The railwaymen, the miners, metal workers, post office workers, shipyard workers, and the workers of all other important industries are all negotiating with the employers' new conditions. The rank and file in the trade unions are pressing upon their leaders to unify the forces for a joint attack against capitalism.

TO counteract this growing movement among the working class, the capitalist class of England, supported by the conservative government, have started an offensive against wages, hours and conditions of labor. The demands of the railroad workers have not only been turned down, but still more the employers are demanding a reduction in wages of six shillings per week. The same is taking place in other industries. But the employers do not stop at this; they are working out definite plans to assure themselves of a reserve army of strike breakers in case of a struggle. This is clearly seen in the scheme of the employers to militarize the railroad workers.

WHAT is the substance of this scheme? The railroad companies, in conjunction with the war office, decided to form a railway reserve, to be known as the army supplementary reserve (transportation branch). The companies are to use all their influence in order to enlist the 3,000 men for this reserve, who are to be called out in any grave national emergency.

The railroad workers of England grasped the real meaning of this plan, which is the formation of an army of strikebreakers as a preliminary to an attack on trade unionism all along the line. It is another step in the attempt to force down the standard of living for all workers.

THIS attempt of the English capitalists is not without precedents as to how the capitalists organize workers against themselves. In 1910 in France the railway workers were on strike. Briand, the premier at that time, mobilized the strikers into the army, and forced them to work the railways they had just quitted as railwaymen, in the capacity of soldiers. The British railway workers, if they will join such a reserve force, place themselves at the disposal of the officers and army officials who are their employers, who make no secret of the fact that the supplementary force is to be used as a strikebreaking instrument.

NOT is it without significance that this scheme of militarization should find expression in transport. Railwaymen are pivotal not only in times of peace. A railway strike is the most formidable of weapons. The railway strike of 1919 demonstrated the extent to which the perfected transport system of Britain could be disrupted by a strike. All the voluntary corps of blacklegs recruited from the middle class were incapable to manage the situation. This is still remembered by the railroad companies and by the conservative government. They are preparing for a similar situation: a perfected, disciplined and trained army reserve of railroaders would simply mean 3,000 organized blacklegs at the disposal of the government, to be used to break the solidarity of the workers engaged in any conflict.

THE National Union of Railwaymen recently adopted an all-grades program which is going to necessitate a heavy period of struggle before it can be realized. The railwaymen are one of the few industrial groups that have not yet suffered the full impact of the capitalist offensive like the metal and mining industries. They owe this to their sheltered position as an industry, and to nothing more.

The masters have been carrying on for a long time a campaign for the reduction of the railwaymen's wages. At present this campaign culminated: (1) In an open demand for a reduction in their wages of six shilling per week, and (2), in the desire to form an army of strikebreakers. The employers wish to break the back of the strongest trade union, and then they can deal with the other unions later.

THE enlistment of the railwaymen is the attempt of the employers and the government to militarize the trade unions so that they should be thoroly under the control of the masters. But the revolutionization which is going on at present in the ranks of trade union workers in England is the best guarantee that this attempt of the ruling class will end in the greatest fiasco.

How the Russian Press Views the Activities of the British Fascists

Moscow vs. Vienna

By M. Chilofsky

IN the preface to the Communist Manifesto, Engels writes: "Yet when it was written, we could not have called it a socialist manifesto. By socialists, in 1847, we understood on the one hand, the adherents of the various Utopian systems: Owenites in England, Fourierists in France, both of them already reduced to the position of mere sects, and gradually dying out; on the other hand, the most multifarious social quacks, who, by all manners of tinkering, professed to redress, without any danger to capital and profit, all sorts of social grievances, in both cases men outside the working class movement, and looking rather to the 'educated' classes for support.

"Whatever portion of the working class had become convinced of the insufficiency of mere political revolutions, and had proclaimed the necessity of a total change, that portion then, called itself Communist. It was a crude, roughhewn, purely instinctive sort of Communism; still it touched the cadinal point and was powerful enough amongst the working class to produce the Utopian Communism in France of Cabet and in Germany of Weitling.

"Thus socialism was, in 1847, a middle class movement. Socialism was, on the continent at least 'respectable,' Communism was the very opposite. And as our notion from the very beginning was that 'the emancipation of the working class must be the act of the working class itself,' there could be no doubt as to which of the two names we must take. Moreover, we have ever since, been far from repudiating it."

IT was the paradox of history to put the proletarian movement all over the world, after the imperialistic war, in the same position. The social patriots of the Second International still calling themselves "socialists," and the revolutionary Marxists calling themselves Communists.

By their deeds and continuous betrayals the social democrats have shown the proletariat of the world, the real meaning of the "yellow" hand of "socialism," as represented by Ebert, Noske, and MacDonald, and Berger in this country. The Russian revolution, on the other hand, has demonstrated to the working masses the meaning of revolutionary socialism.

THE Jewish Forward, organ of "yellow socialism," in this country, printed an article by a renegade whose name is S. Ivanovitch. He titles it "Vienna or Moscow." He wishes to bring out the difference between the socialism of Moscow and the 'socialism of Vienna," or as he calls it, "The socialism without the shedding of a drop of blood, without the arrest of one person or the abolition of freedom, without a cheka, and without placing anyone against the wall."

IN speaking of the great accomplishments of "socialism in Vienna," the accomplishments of course being nothing but doles handed out to the starved workers to keep them from revolting, Ivanovitch has created a new definition of "socialism": "Socialism is a substantial thing. It means labor, devotion, creation, reason and honesty," yes, "unlike the socialism of Moscow, this socialism of Vienna is wiser and more practical."

IVANOVITCH has found also the personified representative of "Vienna socialism," a banker by the name of Hugo Bratner, who joined the social democrats and was elected treasurer of Vienna.

This Bratner is such a great financial wizard that he always has a surplus in the treasury to be able to throw sops to the discontented workers.

BRATNER has a method all of his own, "Tax the bourgeoisie out of existence." He says to the bourgeoisie, "If you want to exploit, go to it. If you want pleasure take it. It is no one's business, but you will be taxed for it. If you, Baron Rothchild, want to have 47 domestic slaves, alright, but you will have to pay for them." This is the "socialism of Vienna." The exploiters do not need to worry, a little intensification of labor, on the part of the workers, will pay the tax, and Bratner's treasury will be filled.

YES, the "socialism of Vienna" is different than that of Moscow. The Austrian capitalists are still in power, they still control the means of production, even tho they do let the social democrats play in parliament. Austria is still a tributary of Morgan's league of nations and Austria's working masses are being driven into submission in order to pay. The social democrats are good servants of the bourgeoisie and see to it that the workers are "devoted" (to capitalism) and behave.

MOSCOW and Vienna cannot be compared as two poles of socialism. In Russia the proletariat has driven out its landlords and capitalists. Not so in Austria.

In Moscow there are no hunger demonstrations with workers demanding the right to live. In Moscow they have that right. The working masses of Moscow instead demonstrate and celebrate their victory and solidarity. The proletariat of Moscow is its own master.

Moscow is the beacon light of the world revolution and gives inspiration to the subject classes of all races and nations.

In spite of their socialist betrayers and lackeys of the bourgeoisie the Austrian working class is rising and demanding real Communism; a society without barons and exploiters, even tho that society is to be gotten with the shedding of "drops of blood."

THE revolutionary and oppressed proletariat of the world prefer Moscow to Vienna. Moscow and Vienna are far apart. Moscow, the citadel of the rising proletariat; Vienna, example of decaying capitalism.

Lenin's Mausoleum - -

By Michael Gold

LENIN'S mausoleum is a futuristic structure of dark red cedar wood. It stands in the Red Square before the Kremlin wall, only a few yards away from the roughly-hewn stone that marks the grave of our beloved John Reed. An iron fence surrounds the mausoleum, and two Red soldiers with naked bayonets stand on guard before it night and day.

THE pageantry of the whole revolution is enacted week after week in this Red Square in Moscow. All the new life of Russia is concentrated here; one can read, as in a book, the story of the past seven years by standing day after day in the Red Square. Parades of the Red Army, and maneuvers and cavalry reviews take place here. Here all the great demonstrations come, on November 7, and other holidays, and on special occasions, such as when all Moscow demonstrated against British intervention in China.

MILLIONS of factory workers have poured thru the Red Square, with their red banners; armies of singing young men and women, armies of proletarian children. When a great joyous revolutionary event is celebrated it is here; and when a great crisis arrives, it is here that the masses rally to meet it. It is the heart, the core of Russia. And Lenin's mausoleum stands thru all these events like an eternal silent witness in the Red Square, to inspire and help even in death the people he loved.

EVERYWHERE in Moscow, in store windows, in government offices, in schools and army barracks and factories and workers' homes, one sees pictures of Lenin. And everywhere one hears talk about him, as if he were still a living force. And every day, on the Tverskaya, one sees little companies of factory workers with their banners, or whole schools of children with their teachers, marching over the cobblestones on their way to Lenin's mausoleum.

A school or a factory will take an afternoon off for this purpose; some go every few months, as if to pledge their revolutionary faith anew at the most sacred revolutionary shrine in Russia.

PEASANTS come by train from the countryside for hundreds of miles around to see Lenin. Workers from distant cities, on some mission to the capital, never fail to visit Lenin and to store up their impressions for their comrades at home. When Lenin died, there were nearly two million people at his funeral. For three days and three nights there was an endless line of sobbing, awe-struck men and women passing before his bier. The whole city was there, but in every other city there were millions who wanted to be there, but who could not come. It is for them that Lenin's body is still on view, and for those of Moscow who find an inspiration in viewing it again. It will be years before this interest is exhausted. The Russian masses cannot forget Lenin; he was their dear father, they are the children of his loins.

I MARCHED one day with a factory group to visit Lenin. Down the long Tverskaya we went, several hundred of us—men and women workers, in leather jackets and blouses and boots, with the factory band playing in front. Many of the workers carried children in their arms; and some bore huge red banners and pennants. We sang revolutionary songs as we marched, and the people on the sidewalks looked at us as we went by, tho it is as familiar a sight as the cars, people always stop to look at processions in Moscow.

WHEN we came to the Red Square the band played the revolutionary funeral hymn, and we slowed in our march and took off our hats. Then we entered in single file and went down a few steps and passed slowly by Lenin's body. In a tall glass case it lay, surrounded by red floral wreaths and red flags—no touch of funereal black in the whole room, but the red colors of life.

LENIN'S face was the familiar face we have all seen in the pictures; not laughing and vital as I have seen it in the movies, not pouring forth a great tide of eloquence and logic, but calm and passive at last. His work was done, as no other man's in history had been done before, completely and greatly, and now he was resting after the labors. The face was waxen in hue, and undoubtedly it had shrunken somewhat, like the face of every dead man, it was not the living, laughing spirit we had known; it was mere clay. It was not Lenin, but a handful of mortal dust that had served the uses of the great mind and then had been cast aside.

BUT the workers who walked by slowly were thinking of that beautiful fearless mind, and not of the clay. Some of them had tears in their eyes, and one young girl nearly fainted and had to be helped out by her friends. The workers were thinking of the strong man who year after year thru a long life-time had believed in them and their hopes of freedom. He had never despaired, he had never wearied, and when the test came, he had met the final test. He has been a father, and his children had known that his love would never fail, nor his forgiveness for their weaknesses falter or change. Fathers never desert their children and children never forget their fathers. That is why the Russian workers weep as they visit the mausoleum of Lenin.

WE came out, after a minute, back into the Red Square. Around the mauseoleum there were many peddlers of small rosettes of red ribbon and button pictures of Lenin, Marx, Trotsky and other revolutionaries. At the foot of Red Square stood the gorgeous Pineapple church, with its wild colored bulbs and domes. Across the enormous square was the huge rambling building of Goom, the government department store. Red flags were waving everywhere; new processions of workers were marching thru the Red Square gates to view Lenin; deep voices were singing and from the old czarist church in the Kremlin the bells were chiming the International.

LENIN was dead, but a whole city, a whole immense nation, was still living under his influence. Perhaps I am a barbarian too, but as I stood blinking in the sunlight of the Red Square I felt as if the sight of Lenin's dead face had stabbed me like a knife with sudden sharp new realization that the proletarian revolution was the hope of the world.

Leninism vs. Trotskyism

By G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and L. Kamenev.

Three world known Communist leaders contribute in this single volume of 76 pages on an important discussion, making it a book of permanent value.

A rare and exhaustive treatment of a subject that will lead to a thoro Communist understanding.

BUILDERS AT WORK

SOME BUILDERS HAVE SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Here's How New York Can Solve Theirs

By L. E. KATTERFELD.
(Daily Worker Agent for Greater New York)

The most essential immediate task for the DAILY WORKER Builders in New York is to secure renewals from the more than four thousand short time subscribers secured through the recent Press Pageant. Every one from whom a renewal is secured will probably become a permanent subscriber for the DAILY WORKER, and that means in due course of time a member of the Workers Party.

Every subscriber should of course renew his own subscription. Note the date on the address label and send in the renewal about ten days before the expiration date.

But we know that many will not remember to do this, and it is necessary for some one to see the subscriber and get the renewal. The logical person to do this is the one that secured the original subscription. Every Comrade that sold subscription tickets for the Press Pageant should now visit the same people to whom he sold before and urge them to renew at once. If you have not their names and addresses, then come to the Daily Worker New York Agency, 108 East 14th Street, where a complete list of all subscribers is on file and pick out the ones you will visit.

Every Branch DAILY WORKER Agent is instructed to come to the New York DAILY WORKER Office as soon as possible and get the names of expiring subscribers for his section in order to follow this work up systematically.

SUNDAY N. Y. WORKERS PARTY WILL JOIN SUN YAT SEN MEMORIAL PARADE AND MEETING BY ORIENTAL BRANCH

NEW YORK, April 10.—Upon invitation from the Kuomintang Party, of which Sun Yat Sen was the leader, the Oriental Branch of the Workers Party is participating in the arrangements for a great parade and memorial meeting in his honor to be held Sunday, April 12.

The parade will start at 12 o'clock from the meeting hall at 16 Pell street, and all comrades intending to participate must gather there before 12.

Chinese flag bearers, bearers of the picture of Sun Yat Sen, and of flower wreaths, as well as party members and guests will be in the parade. Workers Party members are invited to take part in this.

The memorial meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in the Chinese Theater, 235 Bowery. Members of the Oriental Branch of the Workers Party will be among the speakers.

NIGHT WORK

By BONCHI FRIDMAN.

SIX o'clock in the evening.

The sky is gray and dirty like the earth.

Clouds—moving, rolling themselves one over another.

We are running to the factory for the night-shift to work until seven in the morning.

Factory gate.

Watchman, with badge and night-stick staring at every passer's badge number with suspicion.

We are rushing up the stairways. Two-hundred stairs must we jump up and down every day. The company in refusing to install an elevator, it would cost $1,000 and "these specimens can walk."

Here is a man with a pale face and extinguished eyes, crouching on the fifth floor with broken legs. He was a striker in the coal industry so the company's agents drove a motor truck into the picketing crowd and crippled him.

Bell is ringing.

Department 86.

We work. Every one of us is dumb. as if striken by a pestilence.

The spy is on the floor.

"What did you say, Mike? Where?"

"He is here for the first time, I am telling you. I think he is Slavish or Finnish and he has a Worker in his pocket. How can I tell him to hide it? The spy is on the floor and he knows every paper; he may fire him any moment."

"Look, Mike, that window near him is open; go over, close it and then tell him to hide the Worker.

Eight P. M.

The clock is moving so slow that it seems as if an eternity had passed since we started to work.

Foreman.

"Say Duck, you show this fellow how to work. He is going to work with you here nights."

"My name is Rudolph."

"Me? they call me Duck, here."

Men—shadows, walking, working, running, trucking, signaling as if driven by an unseen force.

Here is the old good-natured Italian He looks so downtrodden for the last two weeks.

His wife Josephine is sick and there is no one to take care of her. He had one son but he was deported to Italy because he was active in the great steel strike, and there he was killed by the fascisti.

But the old Italian cannot stay from work because the foreman warned him that he will lose his job.

"What are they running for? It must be an accident again."

Frightful groaning.

Ambulance bell.

His badge number is 1298.

The right arm is demolished entirely.

This machine has crippled four people within four weeks.

Curse this night work! Four accidents and all of them occurred during the night shift.

"Dog."

"Get to work, fellows!"

"I'll get another one tomorrow. Them guys come here to sleep and not to work. Good for him."

One o'clock.

"Coffee time."

"Keep your Worker hidden, because if that 'dog' will notice it you will be fired."

Four o'clock.

The small lamps are throwing dim lights on the shadows in torn overalls.

A tubercular polisher with a yellow skin—his face—and watery eyes. He is working and coughing. He is a good fellow, a Polish Communist, but the constant work on metal polishing has ruined his health.

The "Flyer is running excitedly:

"Do you know, Duck, the dog has just fired Tony. He caught him fixing the bandage on his hand."

"By God! I could kill him now!"

"You would kill? And what about god? Won't he punish you?"

"Never mind that stuff. I am not the fool of last year. You know when I left this joint last year I went hoboing and met all kinds of people. There is no god—all tales—super— sup-e—, I got it—superstition."

Dawn.

The day is struggling hard against the night's darkness.

A glaring sun is trying to peep into the windows of Department 86.

Weary hands. Gray, wrinkled faces—shadows of men, clad in torn coats, blue shirts—lunch boxes accompanying them to their shacks.

"THE WEALTHY WISCONSIN FARMER"

JUST having the opportunity to visit the farmers in the state of Wisconsin, and after a thoro investigation of their actual conditions, we now can describe the life of our so-called "independent farmer."

The first thing we learned, was an all-around song, entitled: "We would like to sell our farm, but who wants to buy?"

In general, a deeply rooted, discontent exists, even among those who on the surface seems to live in fairly good surroundings, but when their confidence was gained they pictured their conditions in reality with sad stories of mortgages, auction sales, etc. But we also found some in a heart breaking, frightful stage, that it is hard to imagine under civilization. The houses in which those human beings live would undoubtedly be objectionable to the rich man's dog.

A MOTHER with tears in her eyes, told us that the last winter she could not send her dear children to school, because of not having shoes for them.

A father tragically and openly said that his friends recently helped his family with a sack of flour, but was puzzled where to get the next sack.

One sorrowfully complained of her struggle in raising a hundred of the finest fat chickens, and was forced to sell, at the lowest prices.

Another made the identical complaint in regard to his potatoes.

One said that in the winter when chickens do not lay much the prices on eggs were high, but during the summer when we have more eggs then the prices are very low.

STILL another sarcastically remarked that it cost him a fortune to feed the cows and when milk was brot to town, he got little for it and would rather send his cows to town and let the people in town do the feeding, milking and cleaning for him.

Some earnestly discussed the hard job of clearing land, and some of other difficult farm activities.

Yes, from all, came the outcry that all we get on the farm, is nothing but dirty hard work.

Fellow farm workers, the cause of your critical affairs, lies within the system of capitalism; just think it over and you will soon realize that you are not working for yourselves, but for many exploiters of various kinds, and before your products reach the consumers they all reap their harvest.

IT is clear, the companies are selling milk separators to you, that when separated you get the skimmed milk, and the capitalists get the cream.

Your case will be helpless, as long as you will be separated from your fellow city workers, who are also suffering from the same brutal system; and the only remedy is to unite yourself with them, then, together give a death blow to the poisoned heart of your common enemy—capitalism.

San Carlo Opera Company Uncovers Much Good Talent

By ALFRED FRANKENSTEIN.

The Siamese twins of opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" were the offerings of the San Carlo company last Thursday. The performance brought out one wonder, and several other excellent singing actors. The wonder is Mario Basiola, a young baritone who sang Tonia in "Pagliacci." Hhis rendition of the prolag was so stirring and fine that he had to encore it.

The "Cavalleria" cast featured Manuel Salazar as Turiddu. Salazar can act and he can sing, his singing of the "Brindisi" goes over, but unfortunately he has the build of a waiter on an ocean liner and so is not exactly an ideal hero.

Gladys Axman as Santuzza was a joy to behold, but not such a great joy to hear. Joseph Interrante as Alfio made a much better impression than he did at the toreador in "Carmen." He bears an astonishing resemblance in features and manner to the holy of holies—Douglas Fairbanks.

The "Pagliacci" cast, outside of Basiola featured the excellent Anna Roselle as Nedda. Gaetano Tomasini as Canio was quite pepless.

I don't know the customs of the Italian theater, nevertheless the sign which was part of the setting for "Pagliacci" seemed to me to have on it an extreme statement. That was that the strolling players' "Grande Spettacolo" would take place at 11 o'clock at night. How come?

tIhas been scarcely thirty years since these little hot-blooded dramas of Italian village life were brought out.

Few operas have become so popular so quickly and retained their popularity. Few deserve it more. But there is one place in "Cavalleria," where, to the writer, Mascagni fell down. At the very end, when Alfio knifes Turiddu offstage there is heard a grand series of screams, the chorus rushes on, the orchestra plays a theme similar to the theme played by circus bands when the Chinese acrobat slides down from the top of the tent by his hair.

Compare to that the effect got by Musorgski in "Khovanchina"; the curtain descends slowly accompanied by silence. Magnificent!

Every composer about to write an opera should be forced to study the scores of "Boris Godunov" and "Khovanchina" for two years before writing a note.

Matzenauer Is One of the Greatest Singing Actresses of the Day

Frederick Stock and Margaret Matzenauer conspired to put on a program of sure-fire hits at Orchestra Hall last Friday and Saturday. In the first half Mr. Stock went exploring in unfamiliar Beethoven. He played the "Prometheus" overture and the first three movements of the ninth symphony.

The overture can best be described as typical Beethoven overture, and those who know the preludes that Beethoven wrote for "Egmont," "Coriolanus," and the four prologs to "Leonore" will know what we mean.

The symphony lays itself open to a charge of which none of the other symphonies of Beethoven can be accused. It is redundant, overlong. There was material for a work fifteen minutes in length, and the composer strung it out over very nearly three-quarters of an hour. There is no over-development of the material, there is merely constant repetition of it. This is especially true of the third movement. There is however nothing in Beethoven lovelier than the tiny theme enunciated by the first violins over a tremolo in the 'celli at the beginning, and nothing more recklessly spirited in all his works than the theme of the scherzo.

It is a great pity that the finale was not played too. But the last movement calls for a large chorus and solo singers, and to get them for so short a time would have been impracticable.

After the intermission we had two excerpts from "Tristan and Isolde," the prelude, and an aria in the first act, sung by Mme. Matzenauer; "The Ride of the Valkyries," the funeral march of Seigfried, and the finale, or "Immolation Scene" of "The Dusk of the Gods," in which Mme. Matzenauer again joined forces with the orchestra. All these Wagner excerpts may be bunched under one description—noble music, perhaps the most noble ever conceived, done by a great singer and a great orchestra. I have heard "The Ride of the Valkyries" in many places, even at Bayreuth, the Wagnerian holy of holies, and yet it seems to me that at Orchestra Hall is to be heard its finest interpretation.

When Mme. Matzenauer did the "Immolation Scene" one forgot for the moment the conventional white gown of the concert stage and saw her in the winged helmet and coat of mail. And that means that Margaret Matzenauer is one of the greatest singing actresses of the day.

MOISSAYE OLGIN TO SPEAK IN RUSSIAN IN CHICAGO, APRIL 17

What promises to be one of the most interesting lectures given in Chicago in the Russian language is the lecture to be given by Comrade Moissaye Olgin, co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. He will speak at the Workers' Home (formerly the Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St., on Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m., on "What did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants?"

Comrade Olgin was in Russia a few times during the revolution as delegate to the Comintern. He is the author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and other works about the revolution. He is an excellent speaker and it is expected that he will draw a big crowd of those who understand the Russian language. Admission is only 25 cents.

C. I. if retains its clarity of vision as well as its militancy of spirit.

A WORKER who has not learned is poor. A worker who will not learn is bankrupt. This is particlarly true of one who calls himself a Communist.

The party learns from the C. I. The C. I. gives to each of its sections collective and individual instructions. But this painstaking education cannot be given to every member of each of the parties. Here in the United States that is a task for the Workers Party, but the party has not always had as yet adequate means for its performance.

BUT the teachings of the Communist International and of its foremost leaders are available to everyone who is willing to study them. Now more than ever the literature of the world Communist movement is at the hand of every worker who will but reach out to grasp them. The party has established a tremendous publishing plant which is dedicated to the one task of publishing the best work of the ablest American and international working class writers.

EVERY effort has been made in the selection of materials and equipment so that the party's publications could be produced at the lowest possible cost. The DAILY WORKER, The Workers Monthly are sold at a price so as to be available to the poorest workers. The most stringent economy has prevailed for just one reason, so that the financial obstacle which might prevent many workers from buying might be removed.

NOW in addition to the party periodicals, a vast program for the publication of books and pamphlets has been prepared, which will be carried out with all possible speed. The Little Red Library has been established to publish in uniform manner and at a low price, reprints of the Communist classics and important new works. Two volumes of this invaluable addition to the party press are already published and twelve more are being prepared. "Leninism or Trotskyism," world famous and vastly important, has been made available in pamphlet form. A new book by Stalin on "The Theory and Practice of Leninism" is now completed and ready for distribution. A new and extremely important text book on Communist Political Education, recommended by the C. I. to all of its sections is now being translated for publication here. The complete works of Lenin are on the program and will be undertaken as soon as possible. A whole wealth of knowledge is being opened to the American Communists.

THE Workers Party has made great strides forward because of its correct Communist program. How much more rapidly would we move if the mass of the party membership could keep step with the party leadership in understanding. We have been talking a great deal of a "monolithic party." Until the party has a deep and widespread Communist understanding it is nonsense to speak of it as a Bolshevized party. "Without Communist clarity there cannot be correct Communist activity." To be a Communist one must not only be militant but also have a clear Communist understanding. It is by participation both in the class struggle and also in the study class and in self-education that Communists are developed.

THE party is making every effort, by means of study classes, and more particularly by means of its publications to bring Communist education to every party member. Let those who remain untaught answer to themselves.

FRENCH CRISIS MAY WRECK MORGAN-DAWES PLAN AND SPOIL PLANS FOR DEBT COLLECTING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—No matter who is selected to succeed the fallen premier, Herriot, it is felt here that the danger to the continued operation of the Morgan-Dawes plan will remain.

Administration circles are timidly admitting that no matter what government succeeds Herriot's rule, the chances are not good for the collection of the $7,000,000,000.00 owing to the United States by European powers.

The Morgan-Dawes scheme was planned to collect reparations from Germany so that "the victorious nations" could pay their debts to the United States, more especially to Morgan and his friends in Wall Street, rather than to the government at Washington.

Sees Reparation Stopped

Any interruption of the collection of reparations from Germany under this system, it is realized, would interfere seriously with collection of the $7,000,000,000 owed to the United States by European powers. This interference would come just as this government is planning to press anew for settlement.

The pessimistic view entertained here with regard to debt adjustment was heightened by the belief that Herriot's successor, whoever he may be, will be of strong nationalistic tendencies, and this school of French thought, headed by ex-Premier Poincare, has always been more or less openly antagonistic to funding negotiations.

Much of the propaganda for cancellation of war debts, which has been pursued assiduously since the war, is attributed here to Poincare and his associates. Now, it was pointed out, they have accomplished the defeat of the Herriot government at a time when chances appeared brightening

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Milwaukee socialists are not looking for trouble. This may be a surprise to many people who think socialists want to get rid of the capitalist system quickly. They don't. They simply want to help it along so that it may quietly pass away, sometime in the distant future, the more distant the better. There was an election in Milwaukee recently and one of the propositions to be voted on was a traction scheme, which the company favored. So did the socialists.

HERE is where the surprise came in. Many workers cannot understand what class collaboration means, but when they see socialists and a traction trust battling side by side they begin to develop a suspicion that there is something wrong. The Milwaukee Leader evidently heard the murmurs of surprise and attempts to lay the ghost with the following editorial comment: "Some folks may think it strange that socialists should be on the side of peace with the company. A good many people think we socialists like fighting so well that we do not want peace. But that is not true." It is not surprising that the Chicago Tribune should endorse the socialism of Victor Berger.

[illegible] HABERMAN, hiking representative of the Mexican government, in passing thru Washington a few days ago on his way to his pay-roll port, attempted to explain the recent troubles of the Mexican government with the trade unions. Calles is a socialist but he has been making war on the radical agrarians and on the radical trade unionists since he got into office. Haberman says that Calles stands on the platform of the class struggle, but of course, if the workers continue to embarrass him by struggling with the capitalists, they cannot expect Calles to stand very steadily.

WHEN MacDonald came into office, thru the good will of the tories and liberals, millions of British workers thot their day had come. They gleefully went on strike expecting the armed power of the British government, which, under tory and liberal rule, was used against them, would now, under labor party rule, be used in their behalf. But they were mistaken. Ramsay MacDonald had the same excuse that Calles has. His government must not be embarrassed. He must be given a chance to make good. He did make good, but not for the workers.

LAST Saturday's issue of the Chicago Daily News had two interesting articles on the relations that should exist between "capital and labor." One was by Roger Babson, leading statistician and theoretician for the capitalists. The other one was an interview with Warren E. Stone, leading labor faker, labor banker and scab coal operator.

BABSON was somewhat pessimistic over the trade prospects of the next ten years. The belt must be tightened up and of course, it is up to Labor to pull in the slack. During the war, says Babson, we (the owners of this country) increased our capacity for producing goods to such an extent that now, 60 per cent more goods can be turned out in any one year than can be consumed in the home market. It will be some years before our consuming capacity catches up with our producing capacity.

I. W. W. STRIKE TIES UP SIX STEAMER LINES

1,200 Philadelphia Longshoremen Out

By R. BAKER

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, April 12. — The class war is raging along the Philadelphia docks where 1,200 I. W. W. longshoremen of the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union No. 510 are fighting the Jarka Stevedore corporation of New York for recognition of the union.

Speed and Fletcher Direct Strike.

The fight involves six steamship lines and would have reached an early settlement except for the action of the American-Hawaiian line refusing to settle. The M. T. W. refuses to work on any struck line until all six settle.

The strike is being led by some of the ablest organizers of the I. W. W., among them George Speed, Ben Fletcher and Bob Chestnut. These claim that among the 200 scabs attempting to break the strike are some members of the Intrenational Longshoremen's Association connected with the A. F. of L.

I. W. W. Controls Waterfront.

The port of Philadelphia is an old stronghold of the I. W. W. marine workers, and the local stevedore companies which employ 3,500 men already recognize the I. W. W. button and are a closed shop for the M. T. W. which is growing rapidly, having membership now reckoned at 5,000 along the waterfront.

SOCIALISTS AID POLICE IN WAR ON COMMUNISTS

Try to Block Unity of Textile Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 12.—The textile workers of Lawrence and all New England are engaged in a tragic struggle for existence in a fight against wage cuts. The honest members of the socialist party in the district, seeing at last that the socialists make no attempt to aid these workers, and that the Workers (Communist) Party is actively engaged in uniting the workers for struggle, left the socialists and joined the Workers Party.

As a result the following item of socialist party stool-pigeon informing appeared in the Lawrence, Massachusetts daily capitalist newspapers:

"Two Quit the Socialist Party"

"City Marshal Fred A. Hilton received a letter from the head of the socialist party in the New England district this morning to the effect that Fred Beals of this city and Albert Weisbord of Boston are no longer connected with the organization and the party does not wish to be held responsible for their actions in this city. Both men have been active in the past, according to the police, 'in addressing different local labor bodies.'"

This announcement that the socialist party was "no longer responsible" for two workers, in a letter sent to the capitalist police, clearly brands the socialist party as police informers seeking to set the police upon the workers thus denounced. In reply to this action Fred E. Beal of Lawrence sent the following letter to W. E. Fitzgerald, head of the socialist party in Boston:

The Reply

"Dear Sir:—I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for your kindness in informing the local police of the departure of Comrade Weisbord and myself from the socialist party. I am sure that the intelligent workers will receive this with satisfaction, since they are acquainted with the yellow socialist party tactics. It would of been very hard for me to get this piece of news into the newspapers. Of course the class collaboration principals, of what is left of the socialist party, makes it easy for you to work in harmony with the capitalist police and press.

"Your haste to inform the police that the socialist party had nothing to do with the naughty boy Comrade Albert Weisbord, arrested at a local mill gate while denouncing the mill barons for crushing the workers, was a waste of energy on your part. Comrade Weisbord had already told the police that he was a Bolshevik and was fighting for the workers.

Socialists Prevent Unity

"I am aware of the fact that the socialist party will do its utmost to prevent a united front of the workers in the textile industry; even to the extent of working hand in hand wih the bosses to crush it. You need not fear Mr. Fitzgerald of my trying in any way to use the socialist party name; to the contrary. I will use every effort to undo the harm I formerly done, unwittingly, to the labor movement, while in the socialist party, by taking an active part in the class struggle under the banner of the Workers' (Communist) Party. Hoping you see the light.

"Yours truly, Fred E. Beal

BLACKSBURG, Va., April 12.—New forest fires broke out today over the Blue Ridge mountain region near here, which for more than a week has been swept by flames that have destroyed valuable timberlands.

Coop Farmers Lose Tax Favor

JEFFERSON, CITY, Mo.—Gov. Baker has vetoed a bill sponsored by the Missouri farm bloc exempting Farmer Co-operative associations from taxation other than an annual license fee of $10.

DETROIT, April 12—Edsel B. Ford confirmed reports from Paris that the Ford Motor company has acquired sixteen acres about five miles from the heard of Paris for an assembly plant.

WOMAN CONDUCTS BABY MARKET HOME; SELLS THEM FOR $50 AND UP

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—District Attorney Asa Keyes today launched an investigation into an alleged "public market for babies" where infants were said to have been sold from $50 to $500 each.

The investigation, it was said, will center around the birth of a child to a 14 year old Los Angeles school girl in the "baby market" home operated, according to the police, by Mrs. Hazel Sims.

The child, it was declared, was sold for $178.50 to Mrs. Ella G. Williams of Hawthorne.

James Sudesberry, 52, charged with attacking the high school girl, was said today to be in an eastern city, where his arrest was expected.

HIGH OFFICIAL OF MACHINISTS EXPOSES GRAFT

Board Member Lists Johnston,s Crimes

That the corruption and betrayal of the Machinists' Union by the machine of "B. & O." Johnston, is enough to sicken any member, is attested by the following letter written by M. J. McMahon, member of the general executive board to a friend.

The letter is written on the letterhead of the Washington office of McMahon, but is dated from Scranton, Pa., on March 20, 1925. It runs in full, as follows:

"I guess you think that I have forgotten you, but not so, as I have been trying to write to you but have so many letters to write since the campaign started that I have had my own troubles trying to keep up with the procession.

"Regarding the campaign, will say that Johnston's lodges representing a voting strength of about 35,000 and Anderson's and Emme's have a voting strength combined of about 31,000 and lodges with a membership of 10,000 did not nominate any one.

"The lodges which nominated me, represent about 30,000 and Lauderman Fechner's and Brown's strength is about the same as mine. I have the membership of every local in our organization and have checked them up.

"Since the nominations were made we have invaded the New England states and will make a very decided gain in that section, in fact, we will cut their vote in two over there. We have a hard fight on our hands however, and you must write to all your friends if you want us to win.

"The following are some real honest arkuments that you can use if you desire and I will stand back of them.

First.

"There was a secret convention held in Detroit to which only a small number of delegates were invited. This secret convention by secret ballot nominated officers for the grand lodge and the men so nominated constitute the present administration slate. Then 900 Strike in Alabama School.

BESSEMER, Ala., April 12—Nine hundred high school students, or practically the entire student body, walked out of classes here today and declared they would "remain out" until the board of education rescinded its action in electing a new superintendent of schools to replace Dr. L. L. Vann.

PAPER TO GIVE SOVIET RUSSIAN INFORMATION IS STARTED IN PARIS

PARIS, April 12.—The Soviet embassy at Paris has opened credit for $30,000 in order to bring out a Bolshevist newspaper in Paris. The first issue will appear April 15.

The political editorship will be in the hands of S. S. Loukianoff, who recently joined the Soviet camp, while the business manager will be M. Romoff, an emigre who has resided in Paris since the czarist times.

Information for political and other news will be furnished from Moscow under the direction of M. Naschatyr, official press agent for the Soviet embassy here.

JOHN WATT JOINS WITH FREEMAN THOMPSON IN REFUSAL TO YIELD OFFICE TO ILLEGAL APPOINTEES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 12.—Frank Farrington, holding the office of president of District 12, U. M. W. of A., by brazen stealing of the lelection last December from his progressive opponent, John Hindmarsh is continuing his effort to steal all the rest of the offices thruout the district for his machine.

His first assault on Sub-District 4 was the illegal removal of Freeman Thompson, president of the Sub-District, and yesterday the Sub-District secretary-treasurer, John J. Watt, was also illegally removed.

Refuse to Recognize Illegal Action.

However, this "removal" is hardly effective in view of the fact that both officers, backed by the great mass of miners of their jurisdiction, refuse to recognize the illegal and outrageous action of Farrington and his agent John A. Walker, as having any validity and both officers refuse to turn over their offices and records to the creatures appointed by Farrington.

Intense indignation prevails thruout the sub-district and is spreading into other sub-districts of District 12. The progressive miners are responding splendidly to the challenge of the corrupt machine. Mass meetings are being arranged at which the rightful officers of the union, Thompson and Watt, are to speak at Zeigler, West Frankfurt, Christopher and Harrisburg.

Shymansky "Shy" of Principles.

The disruptive efforts of Farrington in appointing Walker to illegally take over the office of Thompson, is seconded by Walker in appointing another flunkey of Farrington's, Anthony Shymansky, to take over the office of John J. Watt. Shymansky, known as "Shy," is a scoundrel of the first water, an election stealer for the machine and an acquaintance with various jails on charges not connected with the class struggle.

This is the character picked by the Farrington machine to be custodian of the sub-district funds. Farrington, in a long letter to local unions published in the capitalist press, asks that all per capita tax and moneys be sent to "Shy" in the dual office the machine has set up in the sub-district against the regularly established sub-district office and the elected officers in charge.

Local Unions Back Thompson.

BOSTON FACES BIG TIEUP IN BUILDING WORK

Several Strikes Going; Bosses Refuse Raise

BOSTON, April 12.— Strikes and rumors of strikes fill the air in this city. The building trades' unions and the master builders are at loggerheads. The mayor is expected to step into the breach and hammer out an agreement. But the mayor, being an astute politician does not want to step in until he is assured by both sides that his findings will be accepted.

If the mayor refuses to act, the state board of conciliation and arbitration will offer its services to avert a tieup. But the workers are auspicious of the state board, and with good reason too. It has always decided in favor of the employers. Neither have the rank and file of the workers any confidence in the mayor or the other capitalist politicians.

The bosses are talking of establishing the open shop in the building trades in the near future, but this is considered a threat to scare the workers into making concessions. This dodge is not expected to work however. Boston was at one time one of the best unionized cities in the country and the workers can put up a fine battle.

Demanding Raise.

The building trades workers are demanding a raise in wages, while the bosses are sticking out for the three year contract under the old scale.

Members of the electrical workers' union are on strike on 38 different construction jobs. The plumbers are also on strike. 2,200 house painters are striking and are now picketing the struck shops. The district committee of the laborers' union representing 5,000 men met to discuss action to be taken by them in the enforcement of their demands for 80 and 90 cents an hour.

RUSSIAN AND BRITISH UNIONS ACHIEVE UNITY

Pave Way for Unified International

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

Berlin, April 12.—The negotiations carried on between the representatives of the Russian and British trade unions, here, ended in an agreement, which bids fair to bring about the establishment of a unified international labor movement in the near future.

The delegates from both countries decided to submit their recommendations to their respective central bodies. The Amsterdam International dominated by the yellow socialists and the dollars of the Dawes Plan spurned unity with the Red International of Labor Unions and put thru a fake resolution which would make unity impossible.

British Leaders Roiled.

This angered the British trade union leaders who were at first inclined to take it in good faith. When the yellow socialist leaders of Amsterdam began to gloat about their treachery in the capitalist press, the British trade unionists decided to deal directly with Moscow and the London conference was the result.

Leaders of the Minority Movement here, which is the British counterpart to the Trade Union Educational League in the United States, believe that the present development in the relations between the Russian and British unions, will have worldwide effects and particularly on the psychology of the trade unionists in the United States, whose leaders spurn all suggestions of internationalism for labor tho perfectly willing to play the game of the capitalist internationalists.

Farm Labor Is More Plentiful

The supply of farm labor on April 1, according to the U. S. department of agriculture, was 7 per cent above 1924 or 1923 while the demand was about the same as on April 1, 1924 and 4 per cent below 1923. Monthly farm wages are reported as: with board $33.97 compared with $33.71 a year ago and $30.98 in 1923; without board $47.58 compared with 47[illegible] a year ago and $44.47 in 1923.

Have You Your $41.99?

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Every man, woman and child in the United States should have $41.99 in their pockets if they had their share of the total $4,776,167,000 in circulation April 1, the treasury announced today.

WAGES OF 4,000 MINERS SLASHED IN WESTERN PA. BITUMINOUS COAL FIELD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JOHNSTON, Pa., April 12.—The wages of four thousand coal miners in the Western Pennsylvania coal field were slashed twenty per cent today.

The wage cut, which brings the coal miners' pay down almost to the 1917 scale, was instituted by the Berwind-White coal company, operating in the Cambria-Somerset countries field. The reduced wages were in effect today.

The wholesale wage slashing is in line with the declared intention of the coal operators to break the Jacksonville agreement and destroy the power of the miners' union.

AMERICAN DELEGATES IN MOSCOW PLEDGE SUPPORT TO LANZUTSKY IN WIRE TO POLISH COMMUNISTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, March 27.—By Mail.)—The enlarged executive of the Communist International sent a special telegram to the Polish Communist Party congratulating it on the acquittal of Comrade Lanzutsky. The acquittal was due to the energetic agitational activities of all sections of the Communist International.

Referring to the fact that Polish fascism is still keeping Lanzutsky in prison in the hope of sentencing him on some other charge, the Comintern calls upon the Polish proletariat and upon all its parties to continue unabated the campaign against the white terror in Poland.

The delegations from France, America and from the border states, sent special telegrams to the Communist Party of Poland pledging further support.

The Communist sejm-fraction sent to the Communist International a telegram of thanks, expressing the hope that the further campaigns of the workers and peasants of all countries may finally free Comrade Lanzutsky.

OPEN SHOPPERS CALL FOR SCAB PAINTERS IN CAL'S CAPITAL CITY

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 12—(FP)—Master painters in Washington have abandoned hope of inducing the 800 painters and paperhangers, now on strike for a $10 wage, to return to work at the old rate of $9. They have advertised for local strikebreakers and have declared for the open shop. Of the 20 firms belonging to the association of master painters, two were reported signed up with the union on the third day of the contest.

"WE CAN ALL BE EXPLOITERS" DAVIS SHOUTS IN HORATIO ALGER FAIRY TALE BUT FORGETS JOBLESS ARMY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 12—Secretary of Labor Davis, banker and Moose lodge magnate, has contributed to Lockwood's new publication, the National Republic, an answer to the question, "Why is the American worker not a red radical?"

In the first place, says Davis, "The American worker has always before him the opportunity to remove himself by his industry, ingenuity and thrift from the ranks of the workers and to take a higher place in the economic life of the country. CHICHERIN DEMANDS SLAYING OF POLISH REVOLUTIONARIES STOP

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

Chitcherin replied, agreeing to exchange Communist prisoners held in Poland, it was announced today.

HEAVY GUARDS ARE THROWN ABOUT BALFOUR'S STEAMER AT BEIRUT

BEIRUT, Syria, April 12.—Heavy guards were maintained today around the steamer Sphinx, aboard which Lord Balfour waited to sail for Alexandria. The latter part of his visit to Syria was marked by frequent outbursts of Arab feeling against him, culminating in a demonstration at Damascus in which a throng of ten thousand menaced his hotel.

Arab sentiment against the British leader was the result of his policy favoring Jewish colonization in the Palestine and his authorship of the Balfour proclamation in which Great Britain announced his approval of the Zionist policy.

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER?

MANEUVERS OF AMERICAN FLEET GRABS AT ASIA

Is Jealous of Soviet Prestige in Pacific

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 12.—The Public Ledger (morning edition) organ par excellence of "big business" in this city, in an editorial—"What is the Grand Fleet Doing?" draws back the curtain and discloses significant and sinister plutocratic exhibits to those who read and think.

Exhibit A.—"Twenty-five miles of ships, gray in their fighting paint, 107 vessels of all kinds are carrying 2,500 officers and 34,000 men."

Make Pacific Battleground.

"What are they doing in the Pacific? What is the reason for this concentration in force?"

"Maneuvers is an obvious and official answer."

Exhibit B.—"A part of the grand fleet will throw itself against the islands' defensive screen (Hawaii). Searchlights will stab the soft Hawaiian night skies. Gunfire will drum, planes purr in the sun washed skies and admirals flit about in swift heeled cruisers."

But why this maneuvering in the Pacific with Hawaii as the point of "attack"?

East Wakes Up.

Exhibit C.—"Because the Pacific has become the most important of the two great oceans. Its shores wash a reviving Asia. The unchanging East is changing. India, Bolshevia, China are factors now . . . Asian eyes are peering over the rim of the world . . . It is the Pacific that is now called the ocean of decision."

To the class conscious revolutionary Communist these exhibits are significant and sinister facts of tremendous import, revealing as they do the deliberate, planned, organized purposes of the blood-thirsty, profit-hungry wolves of the pack of Morgan & Co. Wall Street, U. S. A.

America After World Loot.

In this editorial, the Public Ledger screams to the world, American plutocracies challenge to its various rivals in the imperialist game of world loot, enslavement, and oppression.

It is a threat, likewise to Soviet Russia—to "Bolshevia" whose "eyes are peering over that rim of the world."

Threat Against Soviets.

It is a hint that American plutocracy is planning and organizing to attack the workers' republic with gunfire, planes and poison gas.

"What is the Grand Fleet Doing?" Preparing for the next world war of course.

Digging the grave of the monster capitalism on a world scale, by the enraged and revolutionary proletariat of all countries, just as the last world war dug the grave of czarism and its evil twin capitalism in Russia and wrote upon their ruins—Sic sempter tyranny.

Davis Claims There Is Chance for All to Bob Everybody

very top of our industrial and financial structure."

Let's All Be Capitalists.

Warming to his subject, the secretary of labor then speaks of the withering "effect which Communism would have" upon these opportunities, and points to "the tendency of the worker to put his savings into industry, providing capital thru investments in industrial and commercial securities," and announces that the little fellows are rapidly becoming the owners of our industrial corporations. He quotes figures on the increased number of stockholders in public utility companies, and on the growth of savings.

Forgets Unemployed.

"These evidences that the American worker generally is accumulating capital in all directions should make it clear," he concludes, "why the fantastic preachings of false economic and political doctrines which would abolish capital do not appeal to him."

Davis makes no reference to the 150,000 coal miners now being starved out of that industry thru chronic unemployment, nor to the condition of hundreds of thousands of textile operatives, north and south. He plays safe by using the word "generally" in describing the happy lot of the worker who is getting rich.

French Crisis May Wreck Dawes Plan

for early settlement negotiations.

Herriot Tried to Stall

The Herriot ministry, while evasive on the subject of payment, at least was the first French government since the war formally to acknowledge the obligation, and liability to pay.

The situation is of peculiar interest to the administration at this time because Garrard B. Winston, under secretary of the treasury, in on the sea, bound for Paris and London on a mission closely allied with the debt controversy.

While the exact purpose of his trip has never been officially revealed, it is known that he left the United States under instructions to see a number of leading French and English bankers.

What effect of the French governmental turnover will be on Winston's mission was a subject today on which the treasury observed silence.

There is no doubt even a temporary breakdown of the Dawes plan would be advanced as an excuse by France in particular for further deferring of funding negotiations.

Washington fears a reactionary ministry, similar to that headed by Poincare, will come into power. Such a ministry, it is felt, would adopt a militaristic policy and take aggressive steps against Germany that would possibly provoke Berlin to let down in its efforts to carry out the Dawes scheme.

Anything May Happen

Disquiet over the European situation here is further aggravated by the candidacy of Von Hindenburg for the presidency of Germany. Should Von Hindenburg be elected April 26 and in the meantime a reactionary, militaristic ministry shall have been set up in France, it is suggested, the possible eventualities are limitless.

Loucheur to the Front

PARIS, April 12.—Louis Loucheur, the big French capitalist, ally of the late German multi-millionaire Hugo Stinnes, in the joint exploitation of the German workers in the Ruhr, and who said France would not pay her war debt, looms at this hour as the possible next premier of France, to succeed Herriot.

The post at which this astute politician financier has been aiming is almost within his grasp, according to experienced observers.

Compromise Seems Sure

Even if Loucheur should refuse the post, it would only be a postponement of the time when such a compromise as his premiership would offer would have to be made.

For it is not believed that any one else, except possibly Briand, whose refusal is almost certain, can govern a month.

Asks Painleve to Have Try.

One of the developments was the request by President Doumergue to Paul Painleve, president of the chamber of deputies, to form a cabinet. One of his stipulations was that he shall have in his proposed cabinet four members of the unified (Second International) socialists, on the ground that they should share in the responsibility.

The unified socialists have called a meeting of the national committee to rule whether the party should desert its principle of not taking ministries unless they have the whole government.

Blow at British Hopes.

LONDON, April 12.—Premier Herriot's downfall strikes a blow at the hopes of the British for early settlement of the European situation, it was pointed out in official circles here today. England fears that France will not have a stable government for some time.

Vatican Happy Over Fall.

ROME, April 12.—The vatican was extremely reserved today regarding the French situation, but the pleasure reflected in Herriot's overthrow was in evidence. It was intimated that his downfall was an instance of the instability of an anti-church movement.

of the machine has already been answered by four local unions of the sub-district, by their regular meetings deciding to recognize Freeman Thompson as sub-district president regularly elected, and to recognize no one else. Thye also decided to retain union funds until such time as the controversy was, to their view, settled.

Farrington, in his publicity given to the capitalist press, strangely resents the legal officials of the sub-district, Thompson and Watt, using the same means of representing their case to the miners and the public. He claims that they are "using the press" to defy officials of the union. But the same thing can be said of himself. The capitalist press, indeed, is the place where Farrington is the strongest since he dare not appear before a meeting of miners to debate the issue with Thompson, tho repeatedly invited to do so.

Legal Officials Stand Pat.

That Thompson and Watt are standing pat on their legal right to retain the offices of the sub-district, is shown by the fulmination of Walker, who says:

"Under date of April 7, I wrote John J. Watt, secretary of Sub-District 4, as follows: 'Because of the refusal of former sub-district President Thompson to vacate the headquarters of Sub-District No. 4, it has been necessary for me to temporarily establish new sub-district headquarters . . . . and I direct that you bring the records and all property to the above headquarters.'

"To date Secretary Watt has not complied with my instructions, neither has he signified his willingness to do so, consequently I have removed him from office . . . .and have appointed Anthony Shymansky to act to fill the vacancy."

The information that Farrington and Walker had issued a decree against him did not seem to impress Watt, who when informed of it only remarked genially, "I will give my answer to the miners of the sub-district at Sunday's mass meeting at Reservoir Park."

It is known that the action of Farrington is particularly obnoxious to the miners, in view of repeated rulings by Farrington that the district officials have no legal power to act in such sub-district affairs as he now is interfering in.

OKLAHOMA NEWSPAPER MAN LEARNS NEED OF REPORTERS' UNION AFTER BEING FIRED FOR TELLING TRUTH

(By a Traveling Reporter.)

ENID, April 12.—Ray Higgins, a young Colorado reporter who accepted a job on the Enid News staff several weeks ago, on April 1 was separated from the News payroll, he charges for no other offense than simply telling the truth.

Owned by Politicians.

This paper, a morning daily and the Enid Eagle, published in the afternoon, are controlled by Congressman Milton C. Garber and W. M. Taylor. Garber is a reactionary republican politician said to be one of Enid's two millionaires with fingers in various lines of business. At present he has an interest in the Hyde Construction company, or at least is reported to have shared in its profits. The Hyde company specializes in highway construction, one of its jobs being a new pavement to the north of Enid.

Young Higgins while covering his courthouse beat recently overheard a conversation between S. E. Garrier and Jesse T. Butts, both county commissioners, in which they found fault with the new pavement laid by the Hyde company, declaring it was much below specifications. Higgins spread the story on the first page not realizing he was tramping on the toes of paving contractors and attorneys who were close to his employer.

Denies Story.

Whether true or false, Carrier and Butts both brand the story as a fake. Other persons within earshot when they were alleged to have made the statement sided with Higgins, but notwithstanding this, the News publicly repudiated its reporter and tied the "can" to him.

Higgins was only one helpless reporter faced by his natural enemy the capitalist newspaper plant which had exploited him until he excited the wrath of men who were well-connected around town.

There was no union of journalists to come to Higgins' aid and demand justice.

Divided from Meal Ticket.

Higgins was the fourth reporter imported by the News and Eagle in less than two years. One by one his predecessors were divorced from their meal tickets ruthlesssly because they could not render $75 worth of service weekly for a wage ranging between $30 and $35. A fifth stranger succeeded Higgins not long ago.

Reporters Need Union.

The News and Eagle management would not dare "can" its printers in such cold-blooded fashion because they are organized so solidly they could tie up the shop and compel W. M. Taylor, the business manager, to recognize their control. But the conventional-minded, un-class conscious hacks who compose the editorial force must slink out like rats when perchance they displease their czar-like employer.

ARCHDUKE EMPLOYED AS MOVIE HOUSE FILM HUSTLER LET OFF WITH LIGHT FINE IN VIENNA

VIENNA, April 12.—"I am an unskilled laborer and must provide for my wife and two children," pleaded the Archduke Leopold when arraigned for speeding his motorcycle and knocking down a man. The archduke explained that he was employed nightly to rush motion picture films from one theater to another and had no time to lose.

The victim of the motorcycle, a working man, said in court: "I don't want any compensation. In fact I would willingly pay the fine. This is the first time I have ever seen an archduke in such a position. It is worth money." The magistrate fined the archduke 20 shillings.

FREEDOM OF RED SOLDIERS ASKED BY CIVIL UNION

Arrests Were Illegal, Washington Told

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 12.—Another appeal for an inquiry by the war department at Washington into the cases of ten soldiers arrested at Schofield barracks, Honolulu, for alleged Communist agitation in the army is being made by the American Civil Liberties Union on the ground that "these men are being improperly tried for their political views."

The union, which took up the case upon the men's arrest, is instructing its Washington representative, Howard B. Gill, to file a formal protest with the adjutant general against the court martial of eight of the men following the conviction of Paul Crouch (given 40 years' imprisonment) and Walter Trumbull (given 20).

The union claims that the soldiers did nothing forbidden, so far as their information goes, but gave a legitimate expression of opinion against the Honolulu Advertisers' anti-Soviet policies.

The union claims that the "grossly excessive" sentences were given to intimidate other soldiers, altho all soldiers have the legal right to belong to the Workers Party or to believe in the Soviet government of Russia.

Awaiting Trial Records.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—War department officials have cabled to Honolulu for detailed information as to the charges and evidence on which the first two of the ten soldiers arrested for having engaged in alleged Communist activities, were sentenced to 40 and 20 years imprisonment, respectively.

The Washington Post's daily columnist has suggested that the army must be weak in a sense of humor—judging by these harsh sentences—as it is in aircraft.

Teachers Undertake to Educate Mayor on School Problems

The Chicago Teachers' Federation calls upon Mayor Dever, thru its standing committee, to take into consideration questions set forth in its communication to the board of education before he makes appointments of new trustees and the new president of the board of education.

The same request will be made by its standing committee of the city council who concurs in the appointments of the mayor.

The communication in question was drawn up at the recent Studebaker Theater meeting. In it the teachers demand precise information on "what maximum salary is to be paid for the years 1925, 1926, 1927 to elementary teachers, junior high school teachers, high school teachers, head assistants, elementary principals, how many persons in each group are eligible to and will be paid the maximum."

They also put the following questions to the board:

2. How much addition money will be required in the educational fund to pay the proposed salary increase to the above named groups of teachers this year?
3. How much additional money next year, 1926?
4. How much additional money for 1927?
5. Where is the money to come from?
6. How does the board expect to increase the revenue in the educational fund?
7. Is it the intention of the board to submit to the people or to the legislature the proposition to raise the tax levy?

The teachers explain that past experience with promises of increases in salary has taught them that these promises can be interpreted in various ways. About 26 years ago they were promised a raise by the superintendent, but it was never received. The raise they did get was the one they fought for.

Cotton Kings Are Pleased That Child Slavery Flourishes

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—Jas. M. Emery, counsel at Washington for the Natl. Ass'n of Manufacturers, told the American Cotton Manufacturers' Ass'n convention, in session here April 10, that the refusal of a majority of the state legislatures to accept the child labor amendment to the federal constitution was a triumph for states' rights and for "the responsibilities of industrial management."

"We need," he said, "to make industry the helpful companion, the sympathetic support and mentor that prepares the young, thru the acquisition of training in habits of industry, to meet the practical responsibilities of approaching manhood."

No reference was made to the girls in the cotton mills, but this reference to employment of male children as an educational kindness was accepted as covering the entire subject.

Discuss Amalgamation But Oppose Attempt to Make It Living Reality

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the current issue of the Locomotive Engineers' Journal energetically criticizes the situations giving rise to the jurisdictional squabbles raging within and between many prominent unions in the American Federation of Labor. But the same issue confesses that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which it is the official organ, lives within a tender glass house of its own, with very poor quality of glass at that.

Warren S. Stone, chief of the brotherhood, has a "President's Page," covering two pages, in which "The European Trip" offered the engineers this summer,—those who have saved up $725 and can afford to spend it,—gets twenty-three lines and comes ahead of his report on "The Amalgamation," that gets only an unlucky thirteen lines.

President Stone has bad news for the 90,000 rank and file members of his organization, working on 2,768 railroads, and he doesn't intend to display it in large type and at any great length. Here it is:

> "The conference between the two committees selected for the working out of the Chicago Joint Agreement and the amalgamation of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen met in Cleveland, and it was decided to postpone any further action until after the convention of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen. There are certain insurmountable difficulties in the way at the present time, and unless solution can be found for them it is not possible for the plan of amalgamation to go thru. At the request of the officers of the B. of L. F. and E., the question of the Chicago Joint Agreement was held in abeyance until after the meeting of their convention in June."

President Stone doesn't inform the engineers what "the insurmountable difficulties" are, or what attempt is being made to overcome them. These are left gathering dust in the secrecy of the conference room. It might be dangerous to bring them into the sunlight where the workers could get a good look at them. They might find that "the insurmountable obstacles" are the "chiefs" in both organizations with the result that they might sweep them aside in order to effect a real beginning toward amalgamation.

On the other hand, the Locomotive Engineers' Journal, on another page, is perfectly willing to discuss "amalgamation" of other unions.

It bewails the "battle royal between the Street and Electric Railway Employes and the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs over the jurisdiction of men who operate motor busses."

It sheds fake tears over the "bitter conflict between the International Union of Bricklayers and Plasterers and that of Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers, who have locked horns over who should do the stucco work on buildings."

Then it goes on about "the old conflict between the carpenters and metal workers about the placement of metal trim, and the painters have recently entered the tangle in a strike against either group hanging metal work treated by dip enameling in the factories rather than painted by hand on the job."

For these other unions the Engineers' Journal hypocritically argues in favor of amalgamation as opposed to "loose federation," but the officials of the Engineers' Brotherhood, who dictate the policies of the Journal refuse to move against the craft divisions that divide the enginemen and firemen. It is easier to preach to others than it is to carry out those preachings in one's own case.

It is to carry out the principles of amalgamation, and not merely to discuss them, that inspires the Communist-led left wing in the trade unions. The officials do not want action; in fact they are bitterly opposed to it. That is one reason why the attack on the left wing is most bitter in those organizations where the question of amalgamation is in the foreground of the struggle.

• • • •

Amalgamation in the transportation industry is a crying need. The bitter lessons of the last great railroad shopmen's strike, when the workers tried to ride sixteen organizations against the well-knit forces of the enemy, have not been forgotten. Amalgamation should make headway all along the line. The members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers should tell Warren S. Stone, in no uncertain manner, that a good place for him to start is in his own organization. Failing to get action they should push ahead themselves, leaving him in the rear writing articles for an "Ex-President's Page," perhaps about "A Trip to Europe."

PACKING TRUST SERVED SAME OLD 1898 EMBALMED BEEF TO SOLDIERS OF WORLD WAR, IN LACQUERED CANS

By CARL HAESSLER

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, April 12.— That American meat packers are a thrifty lot and could have shown the ancient Egyptians a thing or two about the embalming business comes startlingly to light in the testimony of an expert chemist in charge of army food tests during the world war.

Serve 1898 Meat.

This scientist discovered, while stationed at the government laboratories in Savannah, Ga., during the war, that the embalmed beef of 1898 was being served up again in 1917 and 1918 by Swift & company or their allied packing interests. This analyst is now living near Chicago and has an important position in the leather industry.

The quartermaster division of the army sent samples of food supplies to the Savannah laboratory during the war for testing, not only as to quality but as to calory content, etc., to produce a balanced diet. Among the canned beef samples the chemist, who later received a captain's commission became suspicious of cans that were very heavily lacquered, about four times as thick as ordinary. Looking at them more closely he discovered pinholes that had been resoldered. And the contents gave evidence of having been bleached.

This looked bad. Dissolving the lacquer he was amazed to find the year 1898 stamped on the cans. The old embalmed beef that had roused the country against the packers during the Spanish-American war, that had roused Upton Sinclair to the writing of The Jungle, had been chemically retreated and apparently saved all these 20 years in hopes of another war. The war came and so did the embalmed beef. How much of it was eaten before the army chemist put a check to the patriotic economy of the packers is not known.

A few years after the war the chemist met Harold Swift, of Swift & Co., whom he had known in college. He told Swift of the marvelous resurrection of the embalmed beef. Swift called him a liar. The chemist got sworn transcripts of the evidence from the Savannah laboratory and presented them to Swift.

Swift professed himself "very much surprised."

Perhaps there are some cans left over for the next conflict.

EX-DRA[illegible]N OF KU KLUX KLAN IS LOSER IN COURT

Only Miracle Can Save Life of Alleged Victim

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 12.—The state won the first round today in the prosecution of David C. Stephenson, former Indiana grand dragon of the ku klux klan, on charges of criminally assaulting Madge Oberholtzer, 28.

Judge James A. Collins, in criminal court, sustained the state's demurrers to the abatement plea of Stephenson's counsel.

The abatement plea attacked the validity of the five indictments against Stephenson, alleging they were returned by the county grand jury without hearing competent witness.

After an examination this afternoon, her physicians decided Miss Oberholtzer was too weak to withstand an operation today. They hope to operate on her tomorrow.

Ruling Also Hits Pals.

Abatement pleas of Earl Klenck, and Earl Entry, indicted with Stephenson on charges of conspiracy to kidnap Miss Oberholtzer, also were affected by the court's ruling.

Eph Inman, counsel for the defense, immediately filed motions to quash all indictments against Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry. Hearing on these motions was set for April 18, but Judge Collins instructed both sides to appear in court on April 16 if there was to be no argument.

Indictments were returned by the Marion county grand jury on complaint of George E. Oberholtzer, father of the alleged attacked victim. They charge Stephenson with assault with intent to murder, also assault with intent to criminally attack and kidnaping.

Fight for Her Life.

While the defendant was appearing in court, physicians were preparing to operate on her in a last desperate effort to save her from the effects of poison she swallowed in Hammond, Indiana, after the alleged attack. However, they said, only a miracle could save her life.

Assisting the state at the hearing was Judge Charles E. Cox, former state supreme court justice who has been retained by the Oberholtzers.

Judge Cox pointed out that pleas in abatement must be certain and based on facts. The defense's plea was based only on conclusions he charged.

Shoe Workers of Lynn Oppose Fake Union in Effort to Amalgamate

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LYNN, Mass., April 12.—A struggle between the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, an independent union, and the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union is going on among Lynn shoe workers and the independent union is so far the winner.

The latest local, the heelers, voted against getting a charter from the Boot and Shoe Union after a long discussion. The Amalgamated now has five locals out of eight in the city where a week ago the Boot and Shoe had five.

Packing room workers left to join the Amalgamated, which includes cutters, stitchers, packing room workers, edgemakers and the heelers.

The Shoe Workers' Protective Union, another independent, operating in Haverhill, Mass., and Brooklyn, N. Y., is siding with the Amalgamated.

The Boot and Shoe organization is noted as one of the most infamous organized betrayals of the workers ever known. It "organizes" the bosses, not the workers, by "taking over" the shop at the prevailing wage scale and insuring the boss against strikes and is merely a company union in very thin disguise.

Governor of Ohio Ponders Problem of Lawbreaking Son

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 12.—Governor Donahey is today threshing over the problem what to do to curb the "sporting blood" of Hal, his 19-year-old son.

"He is a good boy at heart. The people of the state need have no fear but I will handle him effectively," Governor Donahey said.

All the plans for Hal's future are the result of his latest escapade—his flight to Columbus with Lillian Vogel, the 15-year,old Zanesville girl. The public wind up of the affair was written in Muskingum county juvenile court when Hal was fined $100 and placed in custody of the court until 21 and the girl was told to shun the boys and get back to her school books.

Cuban Tobacco Crop Fails

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The 1925 Cuban Tobacco crop will be forty per cent under the 700,000 bale yield of 1924, the department of commerce was informed today in consular dispatches. Lack of rainfall in the last four months was given as the cause.

RUSSIAN WORKER MUST BE BACKED SAYS A.A.PURCELL

Nails Anti-Soviet Lies in London Speech

LONDON, Eng., April 12.— "The question is not 'Can the Russian Soviet government last?' The question is, 'How soon shall we be able to shake hands with it on equal terms in all respects?'" declared Mr. A. A. Purcell, ex-president of the Trades Union Congress, and a member of the trade union deputation which recently visited Russia, in a speech at Street, Somerset.

Truth Will Burst Forth.

The capitalist class and orthodox politicians are making the greatest mistake of their lives, he said, if they think that by persistent perversion of the facts relating to the state of affairs in Europe and Asia, and particularly with regard to Russia, they can win thru.

Their success in this sphere, with all their tremendous expenditure on lying leaflets and fabricated brochures issued under the adopted names of radical sections of the working class movement, can only last their allotted span.

Confounded Profiteers.

Meanwhile, we must continue to keep the working class mind well directed towards the great work achieved so far by Russia.

The Russia worker has made a prime contribution to world peace by lifting that great country out of the imperialist world pawnshop.

He has confused and confounded the jingoes and profiteers of the world by the fact that he resolutely refuses to be a party to any of the imperialistic and spread-eagle schemes for domination promoted by the capitalistic political parties of Europe.

In this he has rendered great service to the working class and a great disservice to the capitalist.

It is, therefore, our working class duty to popularize and justify the Russian working class to the end.

Jurisdictional Row Continues But Men Go Back to the Job

NEW YORK, April 12.—The strikes of union bricklayers and plasterers on jobs totalling $22,000,000 worth of building construction are to end during the truce declared between the disagreeing unions pending final settlement of difficulties by respective executive boards in joint conference.

Plasterers who struck on Thompson-Starrett jobs in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other points because one of the Thompson-Starrett contractors in Miami, Florida, employed plasterers carrying bricklayers' cards will return to work. Bricklayers on strike in Atlantic City and other towns will also go back to their jobs.

Meanwhile E. J. McGivern, president of the Operative Plasterers' and Cement Finishers' International Union and W. J. Bowen, president of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union, will again attempt to agree on the division of the trowel trades.

This Years Wheat Crop Below 1924, Government Reports

WASHINGTON, April 12.— Based on a condition of 68.7 per cent of normal, on April 1, a wheat production of 474,255,000 bushels was forecast today by the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture, as compared with 590,037,000 bushels in 1924.

There was a decrease in condition from December 1 to April 1, of 12.3 points, compared with an average decline in the last ten yeas of 4.4 points between these dates.

The condition of rye on April 1 was 84.0.

PICKET LINES DOT WASHINGTON AS BUILDING TRADES WORKERS FIGHT PLOT OF BANKERS AND EMPLOYERS

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Bluntly demanding of the heads of all banks in the city of Washington that they declare whether their respective banks are parties to the conspiracy to boycott building contractors who employ union men under the new wage scale, the Central Labor Union has given the banking magnates in the capital something to worry about. In a resolution adopted immediately upon the strike of the painters and stonecutters for the $10 wage rate, the central body instructed its secretary to ask each bank where it stands. Unless it replies in the negative within a day or two, it is to be listed as agreeing to the financial blacklist of union employers.

Weasel Words.

First returns from this inquiry are reported to be couched in weasel words, hinting that the banks would look with "disfavor upon any group of men or organization which would act in any manner hostile to the interests of the national capital." That is to say, the big bankers look upon this wage increase as an affront to their dictatorship of affairs in Washington, and they propose to punish the unions by bankrupting the contractors who do not stand out against the wage scale. Inasmuch as the joint committee of bankers, speculative builders and real estate brokers has been recruiting strikebreakers in Virginia and in Baltimore, the contest becomes one of smashing or saving the building trades unions involved in the wage movement.

Picket New Embassy.

Bankers are trying to guess what effect on their business will be created by further development of the fight of organized labor implied in the Central Labor Union's resolution. They wonder whether the 50,000 union men and women in the city would start removing deposits from bank to bank, in order that their dollars might not be used against the building trades men.

Officers of the painters' local union report that picketing of struck jobs has been established thruout the ctiy. The new Italian embassy building is one of the conspicuous centers of the demonstration.

Present Wages Get Only Part Interest of School Teacher

NEW YORK, April 12.—Teachers in New York City today are part-time workers, District Superintendent of Schools John L. Tildsley tells Governor Al Smith in his open letter urging Smith to sign the Ricca bill (supported by the Teachers' Union) which increases teachers' pay. "While part-time for pupils is being eliminated, part-time teaching is becoming more and more common among the teachers of these same pupils" says the superintendent. As the teacher must meet the mounting bills for living costs Tildsley asserts "he takes another job after school in the afternoon and possibly another one in the evening and the boy gets but a part of a teacher and that of a slowly dying teacher who has not time for self-improvement. When teachers cease to grow they begin to die."

Many fine new buildings are not enough for education if the teachers are not the best and giving their best to the students, Tildsley continues. And the high cost of living failing to be met by teachers' pay prevents the ones from marrying or from having families if they do marry. Teachers of accounting recently turned down promotion and consequent increase of pay by $500 because the work would interfere with more renumerative and necessary outside accounting.

Thrown in the Ditch By Pennsylvania R. R. After Forty Years

SUNBURY, Pa., April 12. Even the Sunbury chamber of commerce is protesting against the lay off by the Pennsylvania railroad of 350 workers in its Sunbury shops. The chamber complains that the shops are centrally located and should be used and besides that the workers have been with the company, some of them as long as forty years.

CLEVELAND UNIONS AND IRISH SOCIETIES JOIN IN RAISING FUNDS FOR FAMINE SUFFERERS

By TOM GALLAGHER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, April 12.—The dance held by the Irish Famine Relief Committee in Market Square Hall netted the sum of $100 for the victims of the famine which is now raging in the west of Ireland. This is the committee's first effort in raising funds for the famine victims.

The committee desires to express thru the DAILY WORKER, its thanks to the following organizations which contributed to making the affair a success. Lathers, Local No. 2; Bakers, Local No. 19; Painters, Local No. 765; Painters District Council; Street Railway Employes No. 265; and the Terence MacSwiney and Uncle Sam Councils of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic that donated the hall. Music was donated by Irish musicians.

Comrade John P. McCarthy will speak here on Sunday, April 19, 2:30 p. m. at Laborer's Union Hall, on the Irish famine. McCarthy has just arrived from the west of Ireland where he has spent several months recently.

Ford Enters Commercial Aviation.

Today the first airplane of the Henry Ford airplane service, Henry Ford's new commercial airplane project will arrive from Detroit with 2,000 pounds of paid express. THINK MANY WORKERS BURNED TO DEATH IN GREAT FACTORY FIRE

HANOVER, Mass., April 12.—A worker in the mixing room of the National Fireworks company's Hanover plant was killed and other workers seriously injured or burned in the explosion which took place at the factory. More of the Lithuanian and Portuguese workers employed in the plant may have been burned to cinders in the fire which destroyed 200 of the 300 buildings.

CHEMISTS BURN MIDNIGHT OIL SERVING MARS

"Enemy" Must Now Go One Better

BALTIMORE, April 12.— Invisible light is the latest contribution of science to the art of modern warfare.

Addressing the American Chemical society here last night, Dr. Robert W. Wood, professor of experimental physics at John Hopkins University, explained that the "infra-red" rays, or the short light waves which ordinarily produce no color sensation on the eye, may be used effectively for sending military signals.

These signals, if flashed from a signal lamp, said Professor Wood, are visible to observers using field glasses equipped with a screen similar to that in the lamp.

It's Now The Enemy's Turn.

"To an enemy not equipped with like apparatus," said the professor "these rays are invisible. Signals can be transmitted in full sunlight in this manner for a distance of from five to eight miles."

The same principles that are applied to invisible light, Dr. Wood said, are now being used in detecting forgeries and clever alterations of documents. The chemicals used in such frauds can be detected when they are illuminated by ultra-violet or infrared rays, he said.

Girl Left Millions Sweated Out of the Workers by W. Leeds

MINEOLA, N. Y., April 12.— Already possessing a million in her own name, thirteen year old Joy Louise Leeds, the adopted daughter of the late Warner M. Leeds, became one of the richest girls in the world today.

Under the will of her foster father, filed for probate here, the girl, adopted by the Leeds when she was only one year old, becomes the chief beneficiary of an estate valued at more than $4,000,000.

NEGRO CONGRESS OF WORKERS IN CHICAGO SOON

Will Act on Problems of Negro Labor

An American Negro Labor Congress will be held in Chicago this summer to discuss the Negro problem. The congress will base its deliberations and actions on the fact that it is the Negro workers that have the power to lift the Negro out of the social, political and economic inequality in which they are compelled to exist.

To Consist of Workers.

The congress, which is being called by an organization committee of prominent Negro labor leaders, will consist of delegates from the various Negro labor unions, mixed unions (black and white), delegates from groups of unorganized workers in the factories, shops, etc., delegates from organizations of Negro agricultural workers, and individuals of both races well known for their championship of the cause of the Negro working class.

"The workers comprise an overwhelming majority of the race, and their struggles on the economic field form a basis for uniting with the largest class of whites in this country—the white workers." Lovett Fort-Whiteman, the well known Communist writer and speaker said in issuing the call for the congress: "The congress will concern itself with the problems of the Negro workers."

The exact date for the congress has not yet been set. However, local conferences are now being called thruout the country, to popularize the work of the congress. Members of the provisional organization committee, of which Lovett Fort-Whiteman is the organizer, will visit these local conferences to set forth the aims of the congress and its organizational character.

Prominent Negro Workers.

Those on the provisional committee for organizing the Negro labor include:

WILLIAM BRYANT, Business Manager of Asphalt Workers' Union, Milwaukee, Wis.

EDWARD L. DOTY, Organizer of Negro Plumbers, Chicago.

H. V. PHILLIPS, Organizer of Negro Working Class Youth, Chicago.

ELIZABETH GRIFFIN, President of Chicago Negro Women's Household League.

EVERETT GREENE, Chicago Correspondent of "Afro-American," Baltimore, Md.

WILLIAM SCARVILLE, of the Pittsburgh-American.

CHARLES HENRY, Representative of Unorganized Negro Steel Workers, Chicago.

OTTO HALL, Waiters and Cooks Association, Chicago.

LOUIS HUNTER, Longshoremen's Protective and Benevolent Union, New Orleans, La.

OTTO HUISWOOD, African Blood Bortherhood, New York City.

LOVETT FORT-WHITEMAN, Organizer of Congress.

AARON DAVIS, Neighborhood Protective Association, Toomsuba, Miss.

JOHN OWENS, Organizer of Negro Agricultural Workers, Ripley, Cal.

ROSINA DAVIS, Secretary of Chicago Negro Women's Household League.

E. A. LYNCH, Fraternal Delegate from West Africa Seamen's Union, Liverpool.

JACK EDWARDS, Representative Negro Pullman Car Workers, Chicago.

SAHIR KARIMIJI, Fraternal Delegate from Natal Agricultural Workers, South Africa.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS PAY LOWEST WAGES AND FIRES 4,000, AS BOSS GULPS LIQUID INSPIRATION

By ART SHIELDS

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 12.— The Baldwin Locomotive Works present one of the knottiest problems facing Philadelphia labor, in the course of the general organization program the American Federation of Labor has laid out for this city. Slack times and the contractor system make the unionizing of the huge locomotive plant a job that will take time and will test resources to the limit.

Long Hours

Baldwin's has been a challenge to the labor movement from the beginning and never more so than today. The 10-hour shift for days and the 12-hour shift for nights prevail now as they did before the great 1911 strike and as they did during the war. The contractor system, turning every petty foreman into a petty profiteer who takes a personal interest in speeding up his workers and firing agitators prevails now as it has ever since Samuel Vauclain introduced it as his first line of offense and defense against against labor.

Paid Bottom Wages

There is no scale of wages: the petty contractors hire at the lowest price of the moment. Each boss, it is true, has a skeleton gang, paid above the average for the shop, which he keeps all the time. A few of the favored machinists get as much as 95 cents an hour. These permanent employes are the backbone of the contractor's force and are expected to stay loyal. The rest are hired and fired as work busies or slackens and are paid bottom wages. There actually are men in Baldwin's doing work supposedly belonging to machinists, who get as little as 36 to 45 cents an hour and the majority of the mechanics get less than 60 cents an hour.

Four Thousand Jobless

Lately the Baldwin management has been turning a particularly hard-boiled face to its employes. There are many hungry men at the gates: only 6,000 are working out of 19,000 of busy times in the Philadelphia plant, what with reduced buying by the railroads and the gradual transfer of equipment to the company's plant at Eddystone, 12 miles out. The company apparently thinks it can ignore not only every demand of the workers but every conception of public decency. Its attitude is illustrated by a story members of the machinists' union tell of the reception given a representative of the Philadelphia health council and tuberculosis commission when he asked permission to make examinations of the employs—the results of the examinations to be confidential and not to be given to the company officials.

"Nothing doing!" was the company's answer. "Those who can't stand it here get out."

Vauclain Likes His Nip

Samuel Vauclain, Baldwin president, got out, early this spring, for a gay vacation, but is back again. Vauclain is a sport who admits that he likes his nip. Last month he felt the nips were nipping him too fast so he posted a $10,000 forfeit that he would not violate the Volstead law before the coming May. It was a long wait and Vauclain hied himself to Bermuda where Volstead has no jurisdiction.

Ones Left Alive Fight for Job of Building Monument to War Dead

BOSTON, Mass., April 12.—Whether American labor (union labor not specified) shall do the work on the proposed monument at St. Mihiel, France, to Massachusetts war dead or whether French workers shall be employed is the question before the legislative ways and means committee. One of the representatives argued that the French bid was less and that French workers were eager to do the job.

DEVER PUTS O. K. ON CHILD LABOR IN BOYS' JOB DAY ANNOUNCEMENT

Mayor Dever yesterday publicly recognized and approved the capitalistic institution of child labor when he proclaimed "boys' job day" to aid the boys brotherhood republic find jobs for as many boys as possible.

The boys' brotherhood republic is an organization promoted by business men to teach the youth of the country to be docile workers in industry, and be satisfied with small pay with the hope of achieving "success" some day.

Dever announced that the first job day for boys was held April 10, 1916, when 1,037 boys were supplied with jobs.

STEEL ORDERS DROP HEAVILY DURING MARCH

First Sharp Fall Off Is 421,207 Tons

NEW YORK, April 12.— Unified tonnage of the United States Steel corporation on March 31, showed a decline of 421,207 tons as compared with that of February 28, according to the monthly report of the corporation issued at noon today.

Forward orders on the books of the corporation on March 31, amounted to 4,863,564 tons against 5,284,771 on February 28, of this year; 5,037,323 at the end of January and 4,782,807 in March, 1924.

In July, 1924, the forward orders of the steel corporation amounted to only 3,187,072 tons and in March, 1923, forward business was 7,403,332 tons.

Decline of 421,207 tons in the March forward business of the steel corporations was slightly above expectations in Wall Street which estimated a shrinkage of from 250,000 to 400,000 tons.

HERRIN, Ill., April 12.—Following within 48 hours after 100 indictments had been returned in connection with a similar attack several weeks ago, another Herrin store was partly wrecked by an incendiary dynamiting today.

The latest attack was directed on the establishment owned by Clarence and Marshall McCormack, the latter a former klansman who has since deserted the klan faction to become a mayorality candidate on the anti-klan ticket.

Car Speeds Away.

No one was injured and a fire following the blast was quenched by neighbors when the Herrin fire department was delayed in their arrival, the chief explaining they had chased an automobile out of town. The early hour and the appearance of the speeding automobile immediately after he had heard of the explosion, led the chief to follow the car which soon outdistanced his truck, he said.

McCormack said he had only recently received a telephone call threatening his life if he continued his candidacy for mayor. It was the second attempt to wreck his store.

Laid To Klan.

No arrests had been made thus far in this latest renewal of hostilities altho four men are reclining in jail for the bombing of the Fowler grocery several weeks ago. The attack was thot to have been made by klansmen.

International Ball Given by Cleveland Comrades Best Ever

CLEVELAND, O., April 12.—Members and friends of local Cleveland Workers Party packed Grdina's Hall at the International entertainment, bazaar and costume ball making it the most successful affair held by the local organization.

At the many colorful booths were represented the Hungarian East and West Side branches, English West and East Side and Jewish. The women of the Hungarian branches served a fine supper of Hungarian goulash. Prizes were awarded to the Ukrainians for the best group of costumes. Stella Kaufman as a Russian boy and Mary Mulgrew in Irish costume received prizes for best individual costume. Lillian Krestan gave two excellent ballet dances in the evening.

The program included singing by the German, Hungarian, Lithuanian, Finnish and Ukrainian choruses; the Russian Balaleika orchestra with ballet dancer; the Finnish Women's Gymnastic Team; Recitation by Stella Haufman, member of the Jewish Branch Young Workers' League; Violin solo by M. Pehrman, accompanied by Elmer Malm and a talk by Carl Weisberg of the Young Workers' League on the White Terror in Poland.

The Workers Party in Action

STATEMENT ON SITUATION IN THE ITALIAN SECTION, WORKERS PARTY

To the members of the Italian Section, Workers Party of America.

Dear comrades: The recent convention of the Italian Section, held in Philadelphia, February 21, was unanimous in its decisions on the most important questions before the section. It elected a new bureau which has the support of the overwhelming majority of the membership. Under the direction of the new bureau the Italian section is restoring itself to active work and preparing for the establishment of the daily Il Laboratore.

There are still, however, a few persons, formerly members of the bureau, who refuse to accept the decisions of the membership expressed in the convention. Five weeks after the Philadelphia convention, after the entire Italian section had accepted the decisions of that convention with enthusiasm, a group of these former bureau members has mailed thruout the country a circular, containing vile and slanderous attacks against the bureau and against the central executive committee of the party. This circular called for a split in the Italian section, and was signed by A. Di Giacomo, Basilio Florio, J. Di Gregorio, Gaetano Baldassare and C. Balocco, as a "Provisional Committee for the Italian Communist Workers of America."

Because the C. E. C. believed that some of these were good comrades who had merely been misled by the slanders and lies which had been thrown about in the controversy, it hesitated to expel them at once, altho such expulsion was called for by the criminal action of the five signers of the document. The C. E. C. instead called upon them to come to the national office and receive the instructions of the party. Instead of appearing, they sent a threatening and defiant letter. Still the C. E. C. did not expel them, but set another date for them to appear. On April 10, the five signers of the document appeared, and again defied the central executive committee of the party and stated their intention of continuing their efforts at disruption.

Patience has ceased to be a virtue in the face of these continued assaults upon the integrity of the party. The C. E. C. has therefore ordered the expulsion of Di Giacomo, Florio, Di Gregoria, Baldassare and Balocco from the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

The central executive committee now calls upon every Italian Communist worker in America to completely liquidate the last traces of the former differences, to rally their local units and every sympathizing Italian worker to the great task of reestablishing Il Lavoratore as a daily paper in New York City, and in building up the Italian section of the Workers (Communist) Party as one of its largest, most active, and most important sections.

Comrades, the Workers (Communist) Party and the Communist International, engaged in the bitter struggles of the working class against capitalism, and furnishing the working class with its most necessary organization and leadership, demand your unconditional support and unswerving loyalty and discipline. As a section of the iron-disciplined battalions of the Comintern we will together rally the American working class for the final struggle.

For a strong and united Italian section of the Workers Party!

For a daily Il Lavoratore!

For unity and struggle under the banner of the Communist International!

IMPORTANT BRONX MEMBERSHIP MEETING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15

NEW YORK, April 12—A very important membership meeting of the Bronx section of the Workers Party and the Young Workers' League will be held on Wednesday, April 15, 1925 at 8 p. m. at the party headquarters, 1347 Boston Road. Every member must attend and bring party or Y. W. L. membership cards. The meeting is called for the purpose of organizing the party and league members who work in the shops and factories into shop nuclei. Comrade Ben Gitlow will speak.

PHILA. JUNIORS TO GIVE PLAY AND CONCERT

Will Depict Work of Young Communists

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 12.—The Junior Young Workers League of this city are busy preparing for the play and concert to be given on Friday April 24, at 8:00 p. m. at Progressive Library, 4035 Girard Ave.

An excellent musical program has been arranged for the occasion and the play "Our Juniors in Action" is precisely what its name implies—full of action portraying the youth of the Communist movement engaged in the struggles against the ravages of the capitalist system.

Much interest is manifested in this forthcoming event and although many of the party members and sympathizers failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the first affair of the juniors, they now realise that they missed a pleasant and instructive evening and are not going to miss this performance.

MORE THAN THOUSAND WORKERS PACK HALL TO HEAR TRIAL AND SENTENCE OF ABRAMOVICH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—While Abramovich was telling his venomous story before an audience of hired thugs, policemen and real estate agents (socialists), who drove up to the meeting place at the Labor Temple in their limousines, in another part of the city, at the Co-operative Hall, over one thousand people crammed every aisle and corner of the auditorium to hear the trial and sentence of the traitor Abramovich while many were turned away because of the overflow.

The trial was held under the auspices of the Workers Party of Los Angeles, and in the true fashion of a revolutionary tribunal of the working class, the large audience which acted also as the jury took their oath by singing the International at the opening.

Story of Betrayals

The long story of the betrayals of workers at the hands of Abramovich and his fellow lackeys in the Second International was vividly told by the prosecution and in convincing fashion, while the defense claimed that Abramovitch's treason was explainable by the fact that he never was a real revolutionist. Strange to say, Abramovich did not present himself to hear his damning indictment, and when the audience had listened to the long list of his crimes, and the judge asked the audience to deal out revolutionary justice, there was a thunderous response from the uadience: "Guilty."

A resolution was passed condemning and denouncing Abramovich for his treason to the revolution, and the resolution was absolutely unanimous, without one dissenting voice, and amidst great enthusiasm from the audience, which concluded the meeting by once more singing the International.

A large part of the crowd had already seen Abramovich last Thursday night, when many of Soviet Russia's sympathizers were refused admittance, dozens thrown out and beaten up for protesting against his lies, and ten of our comrades arrested by the police at the command of the yellow socialists.

This audience was now fully convinced, after the trial, why all honest workingmen have so strenuously objected to allowing Abramovich to spew his venom in America.

Hiss and Boo Disrupter

A remarkable thing happened on the same night at a large meeting of the Civil Liberties Union. An anarchist obtained the floor and introduced a resolution condemning and denouncing the Communists for their tactics at the Abramovich meeting last Thursday nite, and he was not only booed and hissed off the floor by the majority of the people present (very few of whom could have been Communists), as all our people were at our mock trial of Abramovich, but two other anarchists who attempted to get the floor were handled pretty roughly by members of the audience and ejected from the hall, before order was restored. So much for the workers' answer to Abramovich.

Marxist Message of Workers Party to Be Given Clinton, Iowa

CLINTON, Iowa, April 12.—J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews will give an exposition of Marxian science at the Clinton Memorial Temple, 613 So. 2nd St. on Sunday afternoon, April 19th at 2:30 p. m.

The trade unionists of Clinton will be especially interested in this lecture, as they have had a good share of experience with "labor political action." In explaining the science of Marxism, these speakers will show the difference between real working class political action and the mere election of "good men" to office.

No admission will be charged at this lecture.

ON MAY FIRST:

STRIKE AGAINST WAGE CUTS!

"Workers must defend their wages! Upon their wages depend their very lives. They must unite every worker in the shop or mine, every union of every trade, every worker's organization. industrial or political, to fight back the attack upon their wages!

"The capitalist class is tricky. It will cut wages in one shop or one industry at a time, and if the whole industry and the whole working class does not concern itself with the attack upon a section of their fellow workers, the capitalists will beat us down one group at a time. There must be unity among the workers. Unity and struggle against the common enemy. Down tools on May May!"

Be not indifferent! Order a supply of May Day leaflets and have them read by the American workers. $1.00 will buy 350. Pass them around—everywhere. Don't wait! Do it now! Order from National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

ON THIS IMPORTANT MATTER

Once More We Quote Wm. Z. Foster:

"Here, in the building up of the circulation of the DAILY WORKER, lies a field for the development of Communist organizers, which is open to every member of our party. In the performance of the systematic work necessary to the effective sale of DAILY WORKER subscriptions, and for that matter the sale of any of our party press subscriptions, there is called into play the qualities which go to make real organizers and propagandists.

"In building the DAILY WORKER circulation we approach non-party workers, workers who are not class conscious. We tell them about the DAILY WORKER and ask them to subscribe. We must explain to them at least the main essentials of the class struggle. We must overcome objections, prove the advantages and necessity of organization, of working class militancy, of struggle against the boss and his pliant tools, the trade union bureaucrats. We must exploit the growing revolt of these workers. We must connect up our paper and our party with these workers by making the DAILY WORKER the spokesman and champion of their grievances. All this must be done upon the most far-reaching scale and in the most systematic manner possible.

"Such work is getting down to fundamentals. It means real contact with the masses. By carrying it on aggressively and persistently we build up our self-confidence and our ability to give expression to Communist principles. In other words, we develop ourselves into organizers."

CHICAGO WORKERS TO HEAR FIRST NEWS ON ERIN

McCarthy Traveled Thru Famine Region

A mass meeting for Irish workers' and peasants' famine relief will be held in Chicago, at North Side Turner Hall, on Friday, May 8. John Patrick McCarthy, just returned to this country from an extensive trip thru the famine area, the land where he was born, will be the principal spaker. McCarthy was one of the most popular speakers in the campaign for Russian relief, and in this new appeal for working class solidarity he comes fortified with personal experiences and contact with the misery he is helping to alleviate.

Picketing Aroused Interest.

Every since the picketing demonstration conducted by the Irish Workers and Peasants Famine Relief Committee in Chicago's "Loop" and around the city hall on St. Patrick's Day, the Irish workers in Chicago have been watching this work with keen interest. The efforts of certain Free State politicians to hide or minimise the true state of affairs in Ireland, will not avail against the story of personal experience that this representative of the International Workers' Aid J. P. McCarthy, will tell. All who want to help strengthen the ties of international solidarity among the workers of all the world, should hold May 8th, for the Irish relief meeting at North Side Turner Hall.

RAILROAD LABOR BOARD SLASHED WAGES FROM TEN TO TWENTY PER CENT SINCE 1920, FIGURES SHOW

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The U. S. rail labor board outdoes the employing class in reducing wages in the railroad shops, to judge by the January wage report of the interstate commerce commission.

The average wages range from 10 per cent to 22 per cent below those established by the board in 1920 while the average wage in manufacturing today is approximately the same as in 1920.

Wages Slumped.

The average daily wages of 10 principal railroad occupations in January 1925 compared with those under the board's 1920 decision were:

Rail Board Wage Scale	Jan. 1925	Jan. 1920	Decrease
Machinist	$6.05	$6.82	11.2
Boilermaker	6.04	6.89	12.3
Blacksmith	6.22	6.92	10.2
Sheetmetal	6.06	6.81	11.1
Electrical	5.77	6.75	14.5
Car repair	5.51	6.48	15.0
Helper	4.16	5.00	16.8
Car cleaner	3.12	4.00	22.0
Shop labor	3.18	4.07	21.8
Common shop labor	3.18	4.00	20.5

This shows that the labor board has also outdone the employers at their game of soaking the low-paid unskilled workers hardest. While mechanics have suffered reductions ranging from 10 per cent for higher paid blacksmiths to 15 per cent for car repairmen, all the unskilled workers have been cut more than 20 per cent.

Many Promises During War

When the bosses wanted labor's cooperation in winning the war they gave lip service to the principle that even the lowest paid worker should receive enough for a bare substence. In Waynesboro, Pa., the national war labor board granted more than the workers asked in order to bring the minimum to a level which would pass muster in a civilized community.

But when the unusual demand for labor was over and the danger of world wide unrest passed, employers quickly proved that living wage talk was bunk to keep labor from taking full advantage of the economic position created by the war. Even such bodies as the rail labor board, specifically instructed to grant just and reasonable wages, proceeded to follow the open market in establishing wages for unskilled labor.

The results appear above. Wages of workers least able to sustain a cut are reduced by more than a fifth bringing their average to just over $3 a day or less than $1,000 for a full year.

Coolidge Deaf to Peru's Protest on Tacna Arica Award

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 12.—The reply of President Coolidge to the Peruvian protest against his award in the Tacna-Arica dispute in favor of Chile, which refused to change the award, brought out the fact that Peru has not yet appointed a commissioner to act on the plebiscitory commission arranged for by Coolidge. In his note Coolidge asks Peru to appoint a commissioner, declaring all others have been appointed.

Coolidge has been suspected of catering to Chile in the award in order that American capitalists may secure concessions of the Chile nitrate beds.

COMPANY UNION WINS ALBERTA FOR OPEN SHOP

District U. M. W. of A. Makes No Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HILLCREST, ALTA, April 12.—(By Mail)—Blairmore has decided to accept the new wage scale, this was done last night. It carried by about 56 of a majority. The operators in the Bron's Nest Pass refused to meet jointly with the men, each operator will only meet "their employes."

The same company owns the Blairmore and Bellevue mines, this means Bellevue will go next.

Betrayal by District Officers

Everything around here sure looks black. No one likes the idea of an open shop and a company union. One wonders if the district officials really care what is happening to the U. M. W. of America.

By refusing to call the whole district on strike, they have helped to bring the present situation here. They said that to have done so, would have been the height of folly. What is happening in such district is worse then folly.

I hear that Blairmore will start working tomorrow. After years of struggles, they are throwing away their conditions so they can say that they have a job! Let's hope they get lots of work. The only trouble—they drag the rest of us along with them.

A Company Union—All That's Left

There is nothing left now but a company union and an open shop, which is not a pleasant outlook, unless something can happen to prevent it. But the men have convinced themselves at the cut that they think its the only remedy, or the only way out, and no fighting leadership to point out to them their error.

Traction Bankers Seek Substitute for Dever Steal

Traction magnates were busy today trying to think up another traction ordinance in place of the defeated Dever traction steal, in order to save themselves from receivership. If the bankers do not obtain a new franchise by February 1, 1927, when the present franchise expires, they will be forced into a receivership in the federal court. Hence their haste in trying to pass the Dever ordinance, and their frantic efforts now to secure some substitute "just as good."

"The idea is to get the people sick and tired of hearing of traction plans, and then pass an ordinance that will give the bankers a long term franchise on the car lines, as the Dever ordinance did," said one alderman yesterday.

Insull Would Retain Property.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12.—Public ownership was characterized by Samuel Insull, chairman of the board of directors of the Middle West Utilities company, as "the first step toward a full Communistic program, as exemplified in Russia," in a speech here. Insull, who owns much stock in many mid-west public utilities, and electric light and power companies, made a plea that these companies be allowed to remain private property.

BUILDERS AT WORK

YOUNG WORKERS ARE GOOD BUILDERS

How We Build in Monessen, Pa.

By LEO KAUPPILA

The Y. W. L. is taking a great interest in the Second Annual Sub Campaign drive of the DAILY WORKER. The plan that we have adopted to get more subs in what we call the "installment plan." If the person who subscribes to the paper does not have enough money to pay for his sub at the time he orders, we give him the liberal terms of 25 cents down and 25 cents a week, or the amount he wants to pay. Of course the sub price must come out of the pocket of the agent and it is up to him to make collection.

In addition to this plan of getting subs we are visiting everyone for "May Day Greetings" for our Daily. We have already secured a number of these "greetings ads" and will get more to send in the near future.

The sample copies of the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly sent to us by the office are being distributed by our young BUILDERS and are going to help us a lot to do a better job in the campaign. We will soon have to write for more.

These are but few of the methods we are trying to build the Y. W. L. and the Communist movement in general thru the DAILY WORKER in Monessen, Pa.

"Pushing a pen" is harder for me than pushing subs for the DAILY WORKER—but maybe these methods would be of use for other BUILDERS.

• • • •

It should be a cheering note for our older BUILDERS to see these younger Johnny Reds actively participating, energetically building our movement by practical methods—even drawing their meager funds out of their own pockets to help build our Communist Party. Have you done your share—are you getting subs as have these active comrades?

This Is the Reason

Why you do not see the standing of the various locals for last week: the subs are coming in much faster and the list is growing so large we need an extra day to compile it. Hereafter the race in the Second Annual Sub Campaign will be listed on Tuesday for the preceding week ending Saturday.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The war department today sent a check for $350,000 to the treasury as a five per cent dividend from the profits of the government-owned railway in the Panama canal zone.

Klan Monument To Ignorance.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 12.—The ku klux klan is a monument to ignorance in the United States, Dr. C. A. Elwood, of the University of Missouri today told more than 1,700 central Iowa teachers in convention here.

GREEN, WORRIED AND PUZZLED, WANTS 'SURVEY'

But He Goes to Easly and Hoover for Aid

WASHINGTON, April 12. — President Green of the American Federation of Labor, who is to speak from the same platform in New York with Ralph Easly of the National Civic Federation and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, at a round-table discussion of waste and inefficiency in industry, is worried over the waste of the earning power of 150,000 coal miners in the United States. That number of miners are virtually marking time, unpaid.

He is also puzzled. He does not know what remedy to suggest. He says that it seems clear that a survey of this situation, and the situation in the New England textile industry, should be made by a commission of the A. F. of L.

Returning from his trip thru the coal strike region in northern West Virginia, where he addressed the strikers on April 1, Green says that reports brot to him indicate that the men who went out will stay out until the Bethlehem Steel and other operators live up to the Baltimore agreement, which they repudiatd after signing.

The Modern Inquisition

The terror raging in the Baltic states—Finland, Esthonia and Lithuania—against the working class exceeds in violence and brutality even the tortures inflicted on the workers and peasants in the Balkans. It is inspired by the same motives and has the same purposes in both of these spheres of imperialist influence—a deliberate process of extermination for the most militant of the workers and peasants is being carried out with the approval and financial backing of Great Britain, France and the United States.

Merely to read of the horrors in these countries causes the blood to run cold. What must it be for the workers who day and night are forced to live in the slaughter-houses and torture chambers into which these countries have been turned?

The days of the inquisition are used as the standard by which we judge of terror, but a new one is needed. In the last few months more than 3,500 hundred workers and peasants have been arrested, tortured, hanged and shot in the four little Baltic states. In the city of Reval there is not a single working class family that has not had at least one of its members tortured, killed or jailed.

The prisoners, whose only crime is their opposition to the government of hired murderers, are tortured in every conceivable manner—by fire, water, electric shocks, clubbings and other methods too horrible to be printed. The cities resound with the cries and groans of the working class victims.

We see in the Baltic states the treatment the ruling class reserves for all those who refuse to submit to the tyranny of capitalism. On a small scale is being enacted the scene that will one day be repeated in the United States if the working class is weak enough to make it possible.

There must be so much hell raised in the western nations that the counter-revolution is forced to call off its tortures. The rulers of the Baltic countries are puppets moved by strings from London, Paris, Washington and Wall Street. It is in the imperialist nations that the pressure must be applied. There is no other task of such immediate importance as opening the doors of the dungeons of the capitalist inquisition in the Baltic countries and the Balkans.

The capitalist press is grumbling over the impossibility of enforcing all the laws. It is noticeable, however, that there is never any great delay in enforcing all laws designed to suppress the workers.

The European Crisis

The eyes of the world are on Berlin and Paris.

France and Germany are powder magazines and sparks are flying all over Europe. The House of Morgan watches developments with an interested but cynical gaze.

Whatever happens, outside of actual collapse and revolution, is all grist to the Morgan mill. The cocky victors who have been fooling the French masses with fairy tales of German gold that was to liquidate all indebtedness now talk in humble tones while the German reactionaries show more and more assurance. Over all is the black pall of the Dawes plan under which the leech-like finance-capitalists prepare to suck the lifeblood of the French and German workers.

All talk of "stability," that magic word with which the allied capitalists have conjured up visions of a European slave-pen filled with toiling, sweating workers devoid of all power of revolt, has ceased for the time being.

A nationalist government in Germany, repudiating the Versailles treaty and its territorial arrangements in eastern Europe, with a French government of the Poincare type, will undoubtedly mean that war becomes a danger of today. Even tho the nationalists are defeated, their power is such that any regime other than a Communist one, will be forced to renew with vigor the attempt to bring back to Germany her lost territories.

That the capitalist class sees war in the offing is indicated by the increase of the Polish army by 170,000 effectives and by the terror against the workers in all the states bordering on Russia.

Seven years after the signing of the armistice and Europe seems ready to burst into flame again. But war this time means revolution. This is why relentless offensives are made on the Communists and the revolutionary sections of the working class. Capitalism is trying to sterilize its infected body before its internal contradictions rend it asunder.

The fear of revolution alone prevents the present European crisis from turning into another holocaust.

Have you seen the pictures of the land fortifications and the big guns in Hawaii? Then you know why we took that little island. It was not because our capitalists wanted to raise their own pineapples.

Emma Gets Poor Results

Prince Hopkins, than whom there is, or was, no better exponent of the liberal cult in the United States, in the recent issue of Labor Age is editorially intrigued by the adventures, writings and general activity of Emma Goldman.

Emma is in England at present and has been taken up by the intelligentsia. The rude and untutored worker will have nothing to do with Emma, however.

Like the rest of the counter-revolutionists in the anarchist and socialist camps, Emma is greatly interested in the political prisoners in Russia, but Prince Hopkins is forced to admit that she is having little success in arousing British labor to protest. The report of the British trade union delegation on Soviet Russia came at a very unfortunate time for the Goldmans and Abramoviches.

The great bulk of British labor now sees in the unity of the Russian and British labor movements the only real hope for world trade union unity. Furthermore, the British working class has made up its mind that the Russian workers and peasants have had the right to do anything they have done to maintain and defend the revolution. Counter-revolutionists now get a chill reception from the British working class no matter from what angle they attack Soviet Russia.

The Goldman formula for revolution is given by Hopkins with sympathetic comment. It is supposed to represent great achievement from the liberal standpoint because it is in conformity with what Hopkins calls "Ethics"—spelling it with a capital E.

Here it is:

"No revolution can succeed as a factor of liberation unless the MEANS used to further it be identical in spirit and tendency with the PURPOSE to be achieved."

An intelligent ten-year-old child will see immediately that this formula, if followed, makes social revolution impossible. The capitalist class and their hangers-on must not be treated roughly—oh dear, no. This would not be in keeping with the high purpose of social liberation. Even tho the army and other mercenaries of capitalism fill the gutters with the blood of murdered workers, the masses must not lose their collective temper. This would be very naughty and would defeat the purpose of the revolution.

The Goldman formula is about the best counter-revolutionary dope the ruling class has been able to purchase up to date. It explains fully why Emma Goldman is welcomed in England by the apologists for capitalism.

But the workers do not listen to Emma any more. She is unable to make but poor returns on the money the British imperialists have invested in her. Her charm has departed with her virtue.

Miners Rally to Militants

The rank and file of Sub-District 4 are rallying to Freeman Thompson and James Watt, the two officials whom Farrington is trying to railroad out of the offices to which they were elected and eventually out of the union.

Our news from that section tells of huge mass meetings at which the miners pledge support to Thompson and Watt in their fight. They are still in office and intend to stay there.

There has not been such an outburst of rank and file resentment for a long time as that which is making itself heard in the southern Illinois coal fields. What the eventual outcome of the struggle will be is impossible to predict at this time, but it is certain that the attack by Farrington has so far solidified the left wing and brought into action practically the whole membership of the sub-district behind the two militants.

Farrington seems to be preparing another Howat case. It is significant that just as the United Mine Workers are called upon to face the onslaught of the operators the efforts of the fakers are devoted to war on the militants. It was the same in Kansas. Howat and the miners were fighting the slave industrial court bill when he was removed by Lewis.

No opportunity is neglected by the Lewis-Farrington machine to strengthen the hands of the coal capitalists by fighting the honest and courageous district and sub-district leaders.

In so doing they are juggling with the very life of the union.

Hindenburg Is Resurrected

Hindenburg is to run for the German presidency and the social-democrats are reaping the reward of their betrayals. There would be little for us to regret in this were it not for the fact that the working class has been misled and disorganized and its forces weakened by the continual treason of the social-democracy.

The parties of the big industrialists, the right and left wing of the nationalists, and the Bavarian party have combined behind Hindenburg, according to the latest dispatches. This group is said to be able to muster about 12,000,000 votes, while the Weimar coalition—the social-democrats and other bourgeois parties—are credited with approximately 14,000,000 votes.

In this situation the Communist Party holds the balance of power.

Our magazine section tomorrow will carry a special article on the German elections by Ernst Thaelmann, Communist candidate for the presidency, in which the relation of forces and the program of the German Communist Party is discussed.

COLLABORATION OF CLASSES IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Bill Green Agrees to Everything

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

NEW YORK CITY, April 12.—The National Civic Federation, the leading organ for years of class collaboration, began what it calls its first "industrial round table" here Saturday, to "bring about elimination of industrial waste and the minimization of industrial strife."

All the boys were there, including Herb Hoover, secretary of commerce, sitting alongside Bill Green, head of the A. F. of L.; Gerard Swope of the General Electric trust and D. L. Cease of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Hoover Threatens Wage Cuts.

Hoover let the feline out of the sack early by remarking that "the fund from which labor must expect maintenance of present wages or an increase in real wages lies in more efficient production and elimination of waste." The none too gentle hint that even the "maintenance of present wages" will be subject to cut if the toilers do not produce more efficiently is an obvious threat of wage cuts. Mr. Hoover did not explain how it happens that his own government statistics show that as efficiency has gone up, wages have gone down.

However, Mr. Hoover is supposed to be on the capitalist side of the argument. What was more revealing was the reply to Hoover by Bill Green, who did not attempt to refute the false idea that efficiency increase means a better wage for the workers.

Green Accepts the Base of Argument.

Green practically agreed with Hoover that Labor is or should be interested in helping the boss manage industry efficiently so that the boss could make more money than ever "Just so the workers' standard isn't lowered," said the head of the A. F. of L., with absolute ignorance that if efficiency is increased and wages are not likewise increased wages are, by that fact, lowered.

Economics are a mystery to Green, however, who left the subject to talk about something that he could understand—"collective bargaining." Bill was strong for "collective bargaining" and was willing to give up most anything the members of the A. F. of L. have or hope to get, if only the employers will let him, Bill Green, do the "collective bargaining" stuff.

He did not give any reason why the members of unions should trust him to do their "collective bargaining" in view of the fact that he knows so little of practical economics that he thinks increased production without a wage raise is not a wage cut.

Argentine Paper Says South America Never Again Will Trust Cal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUENOS AIRES, April 12—Commenting upon President Coolidge's note to Peru, in which he declared the Tacna-Arica award was final, the Buneos Aires Herald, an English language newspaper, refers to the bluntness of the president's message as "entirely at variance with South American ideas of statecraft."

It expresses the opinion that "no South American republic will ever again appeal to Washington to solve its problems.

"The damage now has been done. We believe that had Peru thot such summary judgment would have been pronounced, she never would have submitted the problem to arbitration."

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 12—Chas. Kruck, Delaware, conductor, was burned to death and three passengers seriously injured here when a special car on the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Interurban line ran into a regular car in North Columbus.

Paasche Dies in Detroit.

DETROIT, April 12—Dr. Herman Paasche formerly privy counsellor and vice president of the German reichstag was dead here today, following a sudden attack of pneumonia while on a lecture tour thruout the United States.

Hoover Man Goes to Paris.

WASHINGTON, April 12—Raymond C. Miller, of Vincennes, Ind., was today appointed assistant commercial attache at Paris by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Feel Quake Tremors.

WASHINGTON, April 12—An earthquake of severe intensity was recorded on the Georgetown university seismograph here. The tremors began at 6:02 o'clock and lasted until 8:45 with the most severe shocks registering between 7:03 and 7:05.

STANDARD OIL THREATENS TO PUNISH SOUTH CHINA FOR ITS REVENUE TAX OF FIVE CENTS

they sent organizers all over the country to put this ticket over. If we are going to set the referendum aside in this manner and hold a secret convention of a small number of delegates to select our officers why not let all delegates have a voice in such selection.

Second.

"Several years ago President Johnston and Secretary Davison with the approval of Board Members Carr, Fechner, and Gauthier, purchased two hundred thousand dollars' worth of stock in the Commercial National Bank of Washington, D. C., paying two hundred dollars per share for same when it was selling on the open market for $148.00 per share or in other words, they paid more than fifty thousand dollars above the market price for it. This they do not deny.

"Second, they bought fifty thousand dollars' worth of bonds in the Minneapolis Star. This paper is in the hands of a receiver and we may never get our money out of it.

Third.

"They invested $25,000 in the Graham Printing company of Washington, D. C. That also went up the flue and we lost our money.

Fourth.

"They lied to our members about the organization owning the Mount Vernon Saving bank. We never owned this bank, we never controlled this bank and we were told that under no circumstances would the bankers who have controlled it since its organization, give us control.

Fifth.

"They are not putting a dollar in the strike fund as provided by law, in fact they are gradually draining the organization of its funds in order to keep their machine intact. Practically all money received at headquarters is being used to pay running expenses. The law at present states that forty per cent should be placed in the strike fund. Not one per cent goes in the strike fund and there seems to be no intention of putting any there.

"These statements are true and you can tell the world I said so and as a member of the board I believe the membership should know them. There are many other matters that could be shown up that are equally bad but this should be enuf to convince any man that a change is necessary.

"Well old top I will be in Chicago within a couple of weeks and try to land you a job there. Hoping that this finds you well and with best wishes to all the fellows I am,

"Fraternally yours, M. J. McMahon.

"P. S. The reason that Carr was not on the Johnston slate was because he was outvoted at the secret convention. There were not enuf votes cast for him at this little convention."

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

By ANNA THOMPSON.

The Campaign Against Religious Instruction in the Public Schools.

MOST comrades have seen in the papers—in our own as well as in the capitalist press—the great amount of discussion that has been going on in the educational and religious worlds in New York on the question of using the public schools in the field of religious instruction. Recently the matter passed beyond the discussion stage, a series of conferences were held, and actual organizational steps were taken to utilize the New York public schools in the work of inculcating the working class children of New York with the religious poison. From reports we are receiving from our Junior comrades in the schools this work is already well on its way. In a growing number of schools, the bible is read and discussed, psalms are learned and sung, sermons and lecture are held on religious texts and so on. In others, arrangements have been made for the early dismissal of children on certain days on condition that they immediately proceed to places (religious schools, Talmud Terahs, etc.) where religious instruction may be obtained. It will not take long before the whole public school system becomes perfectly adapted for these new tasks that the capitalists have entrusted it with.

Of course, all these proceedings are a direct challenge to our Communist movement, particularly to the Young Workers' League and its Junior Section. It is the business of our Junior Section to immediately start the agitation against religion and against religious training in the public schools and become the centers of the protest movement among hte children—thus following up the work of propaganda and agitation with organization work. It is the business of the Junior Section, this time in co-operation with the league and the party, to take the lead in arousing the young and adult workers against this menace of religion in the schools, to organize this protest movement, to back up in every way the school struggle of the Juniors, which is bound to be very severe, and in general, to throw into action against the bosses and their tools, as large a portion of the workers as possible. These, in outline, are the elementary tasks of the communist movement in the face of the present situation.

The Junior Section of the Young Workers League has not been behind hand in its tasks. The District Junior Committee has already elaborated an all-round plan of activity for the league and the Junior Section in reference to the campaign against religion and religious training in the schools. This plan was accepted and discussed in minute detail by the city executive committee and detailed plans laid by this committee for carrying it into action. Beside making arrangements for such internal activity (within the groups) as the enlightenment of the Juniors on religion and the training of certain picked Juniors as propagandists and agitators in the campaign, our plan of activity also goes into such matters of agitation and propaganda in the schools (a printed leaflet and several mimeographed leaflets to be issued) mass protest meetings and parents' meetings to be called, a call for a united front to be issued, labor unions and labor fraternal organizations to be circuralized and so on. Nor are plans simply on paper. The work in the schools has already begun; mass meetings have already been arranged for and held, and in every way, the Y. W. L. and the Junior Section are coming to the front in this anti-religious campaign.

Of the comrades in the league what we ask is understanding and support. We want support first of all in the recruiting of our Junior groups. See that all children you know between the age of ten and fifteen join the Junior groups. Secondly, we need Junior leaders now more than ever. Why don't you become a Junior leader? Call at the district office and talk the matter over. Then we want every section of the league to form a sect on Junior committee. This is absolutely necessary. Will you help us by seeing that a Junior committee is organized in your Section? Will you take the initiative?

Comrades, the Junior Section has great tasks before it. We want you to see that we carry these tasks out in the proper manner.

Hold Mine Rescue Contest.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 12—Teams from every coal mining state in the nation, as well as teams from foreign countries, were expected by Illinois miners today to take part in the fourth annual international aid and mine rescue contest to be held in Springfield September 10, 11 and 12.

GRAFT AND CORRUPTION RAMPANT AMONG HIGH OFFICIALS OF POLAND

WARSAW, April 12.—After lengthy investigations into the accounts of the Polish navy, in which charges of graft were levelled against high officials, Naval Commander Bartoszewicz has been arrested and Vice Admiral Porembski, chief of the Polish navy, suspended.

Both officials are charged with lack of proper surveillance, while nine other officials and controllers in the department have been dismissed or reduced in rank.

Commander Bartoszewicz, who was formerly in the old czarist Russian navy, is also accused of treason.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

in the meantime, we must get rid of the surplus abroad. But Europe owes us $20,000,000,000, has no money and can only pay us in goods.

LABOR unions are at their best, says Babson when employers are bidding for help, but in a situation such as he visualizes, the workers will be bidding for jobs. The manufacturer who can produce goods with the least expenditure of capital on wages will win out; the others must close up shop. Note the case of the coal industry. Non-union operators going strong, and non-union miners living comfortably while union mines are shut down and union miners are unemployed. This is Babson's yarn. His solution of the problem is that the workers should accept a lower standard of living in order to compete with the workers of Europe, who will in turn be asked to accept a lower standard in order to compete with the American wage slaves. And so on ad-infinitum.

ANYBODY can see at a glance, from the foregoing that the workers must be organized internationally in order to solve the social problem which can only be solved in one way, that is, by taking the wealth producing machinery out of the hands of the capitalists and organizing society on the basis of production for use instead of for profit. The unions must be fighting instruments and not capitalist auxiliaries as the labor fakers have partly succeeded in turning them into. Babson is speaking for his class. He is one of their most highly paid philosophers and industrial Baedekers. He deserves credit for being faithful to his trust.

BUT what can we say of the labor leader, who has risen to power on the shoulders of his class and then betrays them? Take Warren S. Stone, alleged progressive! Stone holds forth in the same capitalist sheet that contains Babson's views on business. The journalist who secured the interview says: "Stone, as he spoke, looked more like a prosperous big business man than like the most dynamic of labor leaders." Space does not permit me to deal exhaustively with Stone's capitalist hokum. The head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, boasted of so many banks that it would take too long to count them.

HE declared that labor in the United States has gone thru three cycles. The first one was class consciousness, the second collective bargaining and the third, what the faker is pleased to call co-operation, but which is better described by the term class collaboration. Stone gleefully stated that the brotherhood had "passed successfully" thru the class conscious stage and was on the threshhold of the last and more comfortable cycle, under which Stone and Dupont have their feet under the same table and pick cigars out of the same box. The sum total of Stone's theory is that the workers and the capitalists would join hands under the new dispensation and run industry thru the joint effort of each other's labor.

THERE is nothing new in this theory, except that the labor fakers have officially accepted it. This has been the ideal of the robber barons of this country, the religion of big business. Everybody knows that the workers now run the industrial machinery for the capitalists, but the latter play the role of exploiters while the workers get out of it whatever it pleases the capitalists to give them in wages. And it will be thus so long as capitalism exists. The brotherhood banks, says Stone, are educating the workers how to invest wisely. What will the miners of Nova Scotia, Southern Illinois or those who toil in Stone's scab mines in West Virginia think of this counsel?

TO sum up. A final damning indictment of this traitor out of his own mouth: "That means co-operation, unity safety for all. It means that when our banks in Cleveland joined hands with the National City company of New York and bought together $3,500,000 bonds of the International Great Northern Railway company a new epoch in the relationship of capital and organied labor was ushered in." There you are! The unions have a future says Babson, as corrals to keep the wage slaves in. "Yes, yes," says Stone, "see what I am doing. Making happy little capitalists out of the workers." But should Babson's pessimistic picture of industrial conditions in the next ten years come true, the dreams of the class collaborationists will be kicked higher than a runaway kite.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

BRITAIN did no go into the war to gain a foot of territory or a pound sterling as the spoils of victory. Just to save the poor Belgians from getting their national dignity trodden on by the beastly Germans! But what can poor J. Bull do if he finds himself in possession of territory that doesn't belong to him, but which is hankered after by some predatory power, that has not the interests of civilization at heart as well John? The only thing the honest plug can do of course is to hold on, and grunt along under an added "white man's burden."

AS the headline in one of the morning papers tells us, Britain's grip tightens from the Red Sea to India. Those of you who read the bible will remember that Moses, when fleeing from the Egyptians found in the Red Sea a good ally. With the enemy in the rear, closing up on his people, he was at loss what to do. But inspiration came along and he struck the sea with a rod, whereupon the waters divided, allowing his army to walk across without wetting their tootsies. But lo, as the bible would say, when the enemy tried to make the grade, Moses wickedly turned his rod loose on the river and the waters rolled over the enemy, drowning them.

DURING the war, while England was sending troops, sparingly, to the Western front to hold the Germans back, she was sending troops in goodly numbers into the Near East, to protect that country from nothing more dangerous than the hot sun. But when the war was over, France began to get suspicious and this suspicion increased until today there is as much enmity existing between the capitalists of France and England as existed between the pirates of Germany and England prior to 1914. Now both nations are quarreling over the spoils of the Near East. But Britain has possessions that means a good deal.

WHEN Balfour was in Damascus a few days ago the Arabs stoned the hotel in which he stayed. The stone throwers had just said their prayers and no doubt were informed by their god or gods that stoning Balfour was a religious duty. Of course Balfour's god was of an entirely different opinion. The latter uses poison gas and fighting airplanes, while the Arab diety is still in the stone age. However, stones were in the majority for the moment and Balfour fled. Now the peculiar thing about the affair is, that Balfour was in Syria, over which the French have a mandate when the excitement took place.

NO doubt he was keeping his weather eye open for an opportunity to strike a blow at French influence in Syria, when the Arabs began to hurl the Irish ammunition at him. And it is by no means outside the province of practical politics that France had incited the Arabs to rain stones on Balfour who was after a fashion the guest of the French. But when Balfour was compelled to flee for his life French police came along and jabbed the Arabs with sabres and took Balfour away on a French steamer. The Arabs have no love for the French exploiter but of the two evils they certainly don't prefer the British. Now the British fear their prestige in the East will be impaired because of Balfour's hasty flight.

THE British and the French robbers quarrel over the loot in the Near East, and they use the peoples of the East as pawns in their game of pillage and murder, but there is only one power making its influence felt in the Near East which is gaining the confidence of the masses as it did in China. That is Soviet Russia and Britain is much more afraid of Communist propaganda in its possessions

LOOKING OVER THE WAR MACHINE TO MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR MORGAN

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13.—Major General Eli A. Helmick, inspector-general of the United States army, was in Indianapolis today to inspect the troops stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The third field artillery, the eleventh infantry and the fifth tank company will pass in review before the general.

General Helmick is enroute from Washington to China where he will inspect the U. S. troops stationed there and in the Philippines.

LADELPHIA M. T. W. STRIKE JARKA DOCKS

Open Shop and I. W. W. Organization Clash

By R. BAKER.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.— One thousand two hundred M. T. W. Longshoremen tied up the Delaware water front when the Jarka Stevedore corporation refused to recognize or permit the members of the Marine Transport Workers' Union of the I. W. W. to wear their buttons on the job. The Jarka Stevedore corporation is a notorious anti-union firm with headquarters in New York and is one of the outstanding opponents of the M. T. W. in Philadelphia.

The strike affects the following steamship lines: the Munson Line, American-Hawaiian Line, United American Line, German Lloyd, German American and the Dollar Line. Five of the above lines are ready to recognize the union and have their ships loaded, but the American-Hawaiian line refuses to budge.

The M. T. W. is determined not to send a man back until all lines are ready to settle. About 200 scabs have managed to slip thru the picket lines, among them a number wearing the I. L. A. buttons.

The strike is the outcome of an intense organization campaign conducted during the last six weeks that has increased the membership of the M. T. W. to almost 5,000 members. George Speed, Ben Fletcher and Bob Chestnut are in charge of the organization campaign and the present strike.

Several conferences have been held between the strike committee and Superintendent Nolan of the Jarka corporation. The strikers are standing firm and are showing the old wobbly spirit of determination that is bound to win the strike within a few days.

Little trouble was experienced with the Philadelphia stevedore companies when the organization campaign started, with the result that 3,500 longshoremen wearing the red M. T. W. buttons are loading the ships for the following stevedore companies: Murphy Cook Co., Furness Withy Co., Union Stevedore Co., MacCarthy Stevedore Co., Independent Pier Co. and Daugherty Stevedore Co.

These companies well remember the record of the Philadelphia M. T. W. and were not anxious for a clash when they saw the tide of industrial unionism rise among the longshoremen. The red M. T. W. button is permanently established on the Delaware waterfront and the present strike will add prestige and power to the union.

The Red Button on the Water Front.

One needs but to take a walk thru the waterfront to know that the I. W. W. is on the job and has come here to stay. The many longshoremen strolling thru the streets and discussing the situation wear their red buttons conspicuously and smile the old wobbly smile of victory and determination that cannot be wiped out by the many mounted police that are in evidence thruout the strike zone.

The M. T. W. headquarters is buzzing with new life and activity as pickets bring in reports and old ex-members come for their new red cards quite often bringing along other workers who have been convinced that the M. T. W. in back on the job to stay.

STEEL WORKERS' UNION ASKED TO ADOPT PROGRAM OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers now in convention at Pittsburgh, Pa., has before it the wonderful opportunity of giving to the hundreds of thousands of workers in the steel industry, genuine unionism, industrial in structure and militant in spirit. Whether or not this opportunity will be taken advantage of or lost, depends solely upon whether or not the progressive element unites around definite policy, organizes itself definitely to carry their program into practice and fights against all opposition to militant action on the part of the hopeless and helpless labor fakers.

The Trade Union Educational League in the following statement proposes such a program and such action:

The T. U. E. L. Statement.

The most basic industry of this country, the steel industry, is controlled by the most ruthless, reactionary combination of employers. The workers in this industry are practically unorganized, and left at the mercy of the bosses. The organization which should embrace all steel workers, has not succeeded in bringing within its folds one fourth of one per cent of these workers. This is due to the face that the organization pursues the wrong methods. It has become gagged and bound and held in the icy grasp of the dead hand of a hopelessly reactionary officialdom which refuses to move one step forward. Pres-

COMMUNIST SEAMEN'S CLUB SENDS GREETINGS TO THE DAILY WORKER

The International Seamen's Club, with headquarters at Nicolaieff, Soviet Russia, has sent its greetings to the DAILY WORKER in the following letter:

"Dear Comrades: We were very glad to receive your letter. In receiving your letter we Russian workers feel a great satisfaction because we are able to see once more that we are not left to ourselves in this world, and that we are not the only section of the world's workers which tries to develop revolutionary action. We shall be able to build a single world's workers' and peasants' government.

"After receiving your letter we can say that your hearts are filled with the same desire as the workers of the Soviet Republic, and we are sure that only by the world's revolution of the workers will we be able to get rid of the world's capitalists and their chains. Forward, comrades, to the final battle!

"Long live the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics!

"Long live the staff of the world's Communist Party as the vanguard of the world's proletarian revolution!

"Cement stronger the ranks of the world Communist Party!

"With Communist greetings, we are, yours fraternally,

"SEAMEN'S CLUB OF NICOLAIEFF, U. S. S. R.

WILLY POPULAR IDOL AMONG THE KAISER'S GANG

Helped Hindenburg Out of Deep Puddle

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, April 13.—William Randolph Hearst is today the most popular American among the ranks of the extreme nationalists who are supporting the once military idol of Germany, Field Marshal von Hindenburg. The action of Hearst thru the monarchist Sylvester Vierick, of New York, in cabling the Kaiser for confirmation of the story that Hindenburg allowed his name to go forward for the presidency only on the urgent request of the Kaiser, got the nationalists out of a bad hole.

The Kaiser's Reply.

The Kaiser replied that he had not interfered in German political affairs and would not, so long as he remained at Doorn. The name of Hearst is now blessed among the feudal-capitalist-monarchists who want the Kaiser back on the trone.

STRIKEBREAKER LEADS MOBBING OF WAR VETERAN

Charge Labor Hater Was Instigator of Outrage

MINNEAPOLIS, April 13.—Lawson W. McMillion, state president, World War Veterans of West Virginia, was waylaid at Marlington, W. Virginia, and brutally assaulted by a hooded mob alleged to have been led by Lincoln Cochrane, notorious strike breaker and labor hater, according to a telegram to Emil E. Holmes, national president of the organization, from W. L. McCollam, organizer with headquarters at Marlington.

McMillion's Condition Serious.

As a result of injuries sustained in the murderous assault, McMillion lies in a critical condition at the Marlington hospital. In communications received from the state headquarters at Richwood, W. Va., little hope is held out for the recovery of McMillion.

National President Holmes tonight wired the governor of West Virginia demanding an immediate and thoro investigation. Mr. Holmes has also requested the aid of the American Civil Liberties, New York City, N. Y.

Sees Work of K. K. K.

The assault on McMillion was characterized by Emil E. Holmes, national president, as evidently the work of members of the K. K. K. and inspired by enemies of the World War Veterans in West Virginia, in a statement issued today by Mr. Holmes. "It is significant that this attack on Comrade McMillion should come at a time when our organization is conducting a nation-wide campaign against the hooded knights of the ku klux klan. McMillion has been a consistent fighter against the menace of the night gown wearers and has waged a relentless struggle for betterment of conditions of the workers in West Virginia. It is my sincere and honest opinion that this attack is the work of klansmen and that it was inspired by the enemies of our order in that state."

Report Italian Steamer Afire.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Philadelphia navy yard officials said this morning that they had heard no more word from the Italian freight steamer Valrossa that wirelessed the navy yard last night she was in distress with flames spreading in her hold. The Valrossa message also said she was racing up the Delaware river in an effort to meet aid as soon as possible. The ship gave her position off Bombay Hook Point, 65 miles down the river and two city fire boats were dispatched to her aid.

MINISTERS QUIT AS WORKERS AND FASCISTI FIGHT

Farinacci Would Exile Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ROME, Italy, April 13.—Street battles between fascisti and Communists continue to be reported thruout Italy. Three more fascisti have been reported seriously injured in the towns of Biella and Revo. The fascisti attacked crowds of workers and were repulsed.

At Bologna one Communist and one fascist were killed in the street fighting.

Deputy Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, has issued a manifesto asking that all Communist leaders be exiled.

The recent retirement of the fascist minister of war, Gen. di Giorgio, who was forced to resign because of opposition in the senate to Mussolini's army bill, will soon be followed by the resignation of Finance Minister de Stefani, it is reported.

The finance minister at Mussolini's demand, issued regulations to govern the stock exchange. Because of these regulations, the transactions on the stock exchange practically ceased. Mussolini was forced to step in and remove the measures.

A general shake up in Mussolini's cabinet is expected soon, in an effort to appease the growing opposition to Mussolini's rule.

"BIG TWO" PACKERS IN SIGHT

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Instead of having a "big five" among the meat packing companies, the United States will soon have merely a "big two," if the proposed Armour-Morris merger is approved, says the Farmers National Council, in a plea to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine to oppose the merger. This "big two" would handle nearly 48 per cent of the interstate slaughtering business.

REDS SPEAK AS 5,000 CHINESE MOURN FOR SEN

Communists Prominent in New York Parade

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 13.—Over five thousand Chinese workers, members and sympathizers of the Kuomintang Party, jammed to overflowing one of the largest theaters on the Bowery in their memorial meeting to Sun Yat Sen, dead leader of the Chinese workers and friend of Soviet Russia. The meeting was preceded by a long parade.

The Workers (Communist) Party took a prominent part in both the meeting and the parade.

Japanese Reds Carry Banner.

The procession in honor of the memory of the first president of the Chinese republic passed thru the heart of Chinatown, from Pell street, where the Kuomintang has its headquarters, to the meeting hall on the Bowery.

Five thousand workers took part in the parade. The Japanese section of the Workers Party had a large delegation in the parade, headed by a wide banner.

At the meeting Oliver Carlson spoke for the Workers (Communist) Party, Comrade Nokada spoke on behalf of the Japanese section of the Workers Party, and Comrade Zam spoke for the Young Workers League.

Demonstration Nationwide.

In Chicago three thousand Chinese, united in a meeting in honor of Sun Yat Sen. The services were under the direction of the Chinese nationalist league, which held demonstrations for Sun Yat Sen in all parts of the United States where Chinese live.

Following a parade the Chinese workers met in the Harbin Square playground. Ng Gon Nge read the biography of Sun Yat Sen.

Sun Yat Sen Demonstration.

At the Chicago demonstration, as well as in other cities, all factions and groups of the Chinese united in the memorial services. The Chicago demonstration was divided into three parts. Following the parade, Chinese crowded into the hall facing Harbin Square.

The memorial paens, following the Chinese funeral custom, were then delivered, followed by about twenty speeches delivered in the Chinese language.

The parade passed along 22nd St. to Wentworth Ave., and thence to Archer Ave., proceeding along Archer back to 22nd St.

ANOTHER FRAME-UP ON McNAMARA FOR FIGHT AGAINST CONTRACTORS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 13.—John J. McNamara, secretary and business agent of the local Structural Iron Workers' Union, was arraigned before Judge Fred C. Gause in criminal court today on four indictments, charging blackmail. Charles E. Cox, defense attorney, filed motions to quash the indictments and April 25 was the date set for hearing.

The indictments charge McNamara with attempting to force local construction companies to employ union men by threats of violence and acts of vandalism.

KAROLYI JAILED COMMUNISTS IN WAR ON SOVIETS

Sought Socialist Aid Against Communists

Count Michael Karolyi, who recently departed from the United States for Canada, "to tell his story," in the latest installment of his confessions, openly admits two things of importance:

First.—Instead of aiding the Hungarian Communists, he proudly boasts that he put Bela Kun, leader of the Communists, in prison, and that he pleaded with the allies to aid him stop the rise of Soviet rule.

Second.—That he pledged himself to admit "socialists" to his "liberal" government, in fact, establish a "socialistic" rule, if the "socialists" would agree to unite with him against the Communists.

This helps shed a little new light on the role of the "socialists" in Hungary, that reached a climax in the "treaty" between the Hungarian socialist party and the Horthy fascist dictatorship, that was made the basis for a working alliance between these two forces, with thousands of Communists in prison. Karolyi makes his revealing confession in these words:

Orders Arrest of Bela Kun.

"I have been charged with being a Bolshevik, and with being responsible for turning the government of Hungary over to the Bolsheviks.

"Surely, if that were true, my arch enemy Horthy, the dictator, would

RED HAWAIIAN SOLDIERS, BACKED BY STORM OF PROTEST FORCING CAL TO REDUCE SAVAGE SENTENCES

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 13.—In his preliminary report on the savage punishment of 40 and 26 years imprisonment, respectively, meted out by a Honolulu court martial to two soldiers for engaging in Communist propaganda, Major General Edwin M. Lewis, commanding the department of Hawaii, informs the war department that the sentences will probably be "very materially reduced." Whether the six or eight remaining prisoners, arrested as members of the Hawaiian Communist League, organized by Paul Crouch and Walter M. Trumbull, the men already convicted and sentenced, will be tried before the department has reviewed the first cases, has not been determined. It is evident, however that the war department is much disturbed by the resentment shown by the press against the army court in this case.

Press Makes Excuses.

Prompt to the rescue of militarism, the Washington Star offers a theory in excuse for the 40 year sentence of young Crouch. It suggests that the trial record, when received after a few weeks, will possibly show that "one or more foreign nations" were involved in the affair. It admits that army officers in Washington feel that the sentences were "almost unbelievably severe," and that the reason for this must lie in facts not yet reported.

It goes on to quote anonymous persons to the effect that a large majority of the population in Hawaii is hostile to the United States; that a general strike of Japanese workers in the Islands would, if joined by Germans and Portuguese, paralyze the territory's industries and amount to "a rebellion which might ultimately involve this country in serious difficulties with Asiatic nations." Then there is mysterious hinting that the Russo-

Coolidge Is Angel of Scheme to Make Youth Slave Harder

WASHINGTON, April 13—President Coolidge today was luncheon host to 36 prominent northeast manufacturers and business men who are preparing to start a nation-wide expansion program for the junior achievement work system.

The movement aims at restoring old fashioned industrial and home work to the daily programs of the younger generation and has the approval of the president.

Woman Picket Arrested in Washington

WASHINGTON, April 13.—For the first time in many years, a woman picket in an industrial dispute in the city of Washington has been arrested. She is Mrs. Dorothy Ferguson, and she is charged with having informed customers of a store that "This store employs non-union clerks and is unfair to organized labor." She will be defended in police court.

PLAN 48-HOUR FRENCH CABINET TO HELP BANK

Move on to Legalize Over-Inflation

BULLETIN.

PARIS, April 13—France still was without a premier tonight and the prospect was that it would be another day before the office was filled.

The selection of either Senator Anatole de Monzie, finance minister under Premier Herriot, or Aristide Briand, seven times premier of France, appeared certain.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 13.— A forty-eight hour cabinet with Anatole de Monzie as premier in order to keep the Bank of France from carrying out its threat to close temporarily was predicted today.

De Monzie was minister of finance under Premier Herriot, having succeeded M. Clementel.

The purpose of the forty-eight hour cabinet would be to legalize the over-inflation of the Bank of France.

No Immediate Solution.

"It is impossible to arrive at a solution before Tuesday night," said one of Briand's confidential lieutenants as he came out of a conference with Briand.

"Even if it were practicable to reach a conclusion to form a temporary cabinet, we must wait for reasons of courtesy until the socialists' executive councils meet."

Herriot Foes Angry at Cal.

PARIS, France, April 13.—The conservative French press, which hitherto has been cordial to President Coolidge, has issued a tirade against the American president for what the Liberte, the conservative nationalist paper, charecterises as a "pompous eulogy of the Herriot government." The nationalists take violent exception to Coolidge's praise of Herriot, who remained as premier only thru socialist support.

Liberte and the other conservative papers declare that Coolidge would not praise an American Herriot. Coolidge would not recognise Soviet Russia, they point out, in denouncing his eulogy of Herriot, and should not aid the schemes of international bankers to inflate French currency. "It is infinitely regrettable that the conservative President Coolidge continues to associate himself with these bankers," says Liberte.

Statement "Only Personal."

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—President Coolidge's eulogy of ex-Premier Herriot was his "personal point of view," Coolidge announced at the White House, and "was not a formal statement."

French and British Imperialists Clash Over Turk Treaty

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13. —British imperialism has entered into negotiations with Turkey for the settlement of possession of the Irak oil fields, in an effort to undermine the Franco-British negotiations.

The Turkish ambassador and Lord Birkenhead have started discussion of the disposition of the Irak oil fields, which are claimed by both the Turks and British.

The league of nations commission has given its "decision" on the dispute, ceding the oil fields to Britain, and giving Turkey the Kurdistan district of Sulemanei as a sop, but no one is paying any attention to the league decision.

The majority of the stock of the Bagdad railway, which is being bitterly fought for by the British and French as the key to the Irak oil fields, is now being held by the reparations commission. France and Great Britain are centering their efforts upon securing from Turkey the right to use the railroad.

POLISH TERROR DENIED LANZUTSKY LAWYERS FROM SOVIET RUSSIA

VIENNA, April 12.—The very day that Communist Deputy Lanzutsky was set free by the Przemysl court he was rearrested on charge of advising workers not to pay taxes. He has aagin been thrown into prison, to be a victim of the terrorist regime in Poland.

During Lanzutsky's trial, which has heard behind closed doors, five police spies testified. One of them, Chanietchi, withdrew statements he had made at the preliminary examinations, as he nad only made these statements under pressure of terror.

The Polish government had refused to allow its attorneys from Soviet Russia, England or France to defend Lanzutsky in the court. This is in contrast to the action of the Russian Soviet government in allowing Vandervelde, yellow socialist, to defend a counter-revolutionary in Russia some months ago.

UNORGANIZED STEEL WORKERS WIN HOT STRIKE

Give Militant Lesson to Sleepy Union

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

McKEESPORT, Pa., April 13.— A twenty-four-hour strike, a splendid demonstration of solidarity and 1,500 unorganized steel workers at McKeesport, Pennsylvania, made the bosses come to terms and won a complete victory last Wednesday. An attempt made to increase the present speed-up system failed utterly.

On Tuesday afternoon while the second shift was at work in the McKeesport Tin Plate Co., at Port View, a suburb of McKeesport, the boss notified one young husky roller that from now on the iron bars would have to be given an extra passing thru the rolls, increasing the passings from four to five with no extra pay. The roller and the catcher just refused, dropped their tools and walked out.

Complete Spontaneous Strike.

Immediately they were followed by the crews from the 44 different sets of rolls, popularly called mills, with 11 men to a crew. The third shift that day and the early shift next morning remained out and struck with them, a total of 1,500 men. Not one single individual could be discovered at work in the mill on that morning.

On Wednesday, just before the time when the second shift usually starts working, notices were posted all over the mill, signed by the management, stating that it had receded from its demand of five passings and were willing to continue on the old basis. The management saw the necessity of complete surrender before such demonstration of solidarity and the workers returned as united as they had come out.

The demonstration made is so much more significant when one recalls that not only has this steel mill never been organized, but in addition the most ruthless campaign of opposition to labor organization of any kind has been carried on for years in McKeesport, Pa. The present mayor of the city, Lysle, openly boasts of his record of prohibiting labor organization in the steel mills and working class meetings for any purpose whatever within the city. He claims he has been re-elected on this record.

Unorganized More Militant Than "Progressives."

The workers, however, have now become quite convinced that whenever they unitedly take matters into their own hands, the opposition of all the king's horses and all the king's men cannot stop them. The militant workers in this mill are now endeavoring to take full advantage of this experience and are proposing the organization of shop committees.

The victory won by the decisive action of these unorganized workers will perhaps convince the timid progressives who belong to the union but are fearful of fighting for militant policies that after all these steel workers are not so backward.

Victim of K. K. K's Ex-Grand Dragon May Yet Recover

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13.—Indiana's best medical minds were baffled today by the condition of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, victim of a criminal attack with which D. C. Stephenson, politician and former ku klux klan organizer, has been charged.

Unconscious for the greater part of the fifteen days that have elapsed since she swallowed a slow poison after the attack, Miss Oberholtzer has taken but little nourishment. Her temperature has hovered around and above 100. Yet her physicians admitted today for the first time that she might recover.

"The case is one of the oddities of medical annals," Dr. J. K. Kingbury, who first attended the girl, declared. "Apparent relief from an infection of the right kidney has caused us to postpone the contemplated operation. We will await developments.

"In most cases a victim of poison as strong as that Miss Oberholtzer swallowed, would have died within a week or ten days."

Stephenson's case comes up again next Saturday when Judge James A. Collins in criminal court is to rule on his motion to quash all charges against him.

Should Judge Collins overrule Stephenson's latest motion to quash the indictments, he cannot be brought to trial before June, County Prosecutor Remy indicated. Eight murder trials and a number of lesser important cases docketed ahead of the politician's case, are expected to hold the court's attention until May 25.

Two Die in Traction Wreck.

RICHMOND, Ind., April 13.—William Lawhorn, 24, and Frank Bussen, 17, were dead today and Harry Horter, 22, and William Katte, 20, were in a hospital suffering from serious injuries as the result of Horter's car being struck by an interurban car on the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern traction line near Centerville.

Karolyi Jailed Communists in Hungary have brought the charge against me in my trial for treason.

"But not a word was heard of it. The truth is, as every one in Hungary knows, Bela Kun, the leader of the Bolsheviks, was arrested on my order and imprisoned when he began his crusading agitation. While he was in prison the swift rush of events broke the prison doors, released Bela Kun, and brought on the rule of the Bolsheviks. This came as a stroke of fate, and nothing could have stopped it.

Blames Allies for Bolshevism.

"On March 20, 1919, the final blow was given to us by the ultimatum of the allies, tendered to me by the allied commission headed by Col. Vix. This ultimatum demanded that we should give up, again, a large portion of territory to the Roumanians. The demarcational line thus drawn was not any more a strategical but a political line.

"It was the foreshadowing of the Versailles treaty, and it was in all respects diametrically opposed to the spirit and to the letter of the armistice. I refused. But in doing so, I warned for the last time the allied commission that they were driving the country into the arms of the Bolsheviks, and that the inevitable consequence of this measure would be war and civil war, war against neighboring states, and civil war within the country.

"We were dropped by the western countries. We were not helped, not understood, but even opposed by the so-called pacifist allies with whom we signed the armistice. To adjust ourselves to all the wishes of the allies concerning pacifism we had disarmed our troops. The small army we had was chiefly composed of industrial workers. The reason for this was that the peasantry, who had spent four and a half years in the trenches, did not want to go into military service. It was practically impossible to recruit soldiers from this strata of the population. The way in which we were treated economically and politically by the allies helped to make the spirit of the army very belligrent.

"The enormous masses of unemployed workers, the masses of those who were driven out from Roumania and Czecho-Slovakia by the occupation of the old Hungarian territories, overheated the whole atmosphere.

"Budapest, which had a population of 900,000 during the war, increased several hundred thousand. Just at the time when the capacity for taking care of the population was at its minimum, the population was at its maximum.

"We not only had not coal sufficient to light up the town, but we had not sufficient trains to feed this increased population, and hadn't enough lodging possibilities. Thousands of people had to be lodged in railroad coaches. Ex-service men and ex-officers were out of jobs. There was no possibility for giving them any. Under these conditions it was impossible to keep up a coalition cabinet.

Proposes Socialist Party to Save Bourgeois.

"I proposed to form a party, a socialistic one. Again the whole cabinet agreed. Even the nationalists who were consulted were of the opinion that nothing else could be done.

"While this was going on, I got the news that 30,000 industrial workers had gone over to the Bolshevik party.

"Bela Kun was the leader of the Bolshevik movement in Hungary, and was at that time in prison.

"The actual reason that I decided to nominate a purely socialist government was, as I said, to stop the Bolsheviks.

"Secondly, as nobody wanted to accept Col. Vix's ultimatum, we had to prepare ourselves for forcible resistance. A coalition with the leading spirit of pacifism was already shipwrecked.

"That very night the Hungarian Soviet was proclaimed.

"The government troops had practically all gone over to the Bolsheviks. So, thru the force of conditions that could not be controlled, I ceased to be president of the Hungarian republic.

"I hadn't known, I hadn't even seen Bela Kun before the Bolsheviks seized power. His name had only been known for two months when he came back from Russia, after having been war prisoner there for several years. He was a good agitator and was a convincing man.

"I am absolutely sure that Bolshevism in Hungary was not made with the help of Russian money. But you cannot, in any country, under any circumstances, make much headway with propaganda if that propaganda doesn't appeal to the masses in general.

"For six months we tried hard, and didn't succeeded in persuading the allies that it was impossible to carry on the policy they did. Contradictory as it seems, it was a nationalist movement more than anything else that characterized this second revolution.

"Officers of the old regime joined the Red army in masses, and it was with their help and skill, and with the enthusiasm of the working classes that the war was fought against the Czechs under the red flag."

HERRIN BOMBERS DYNAMITE KLAN FOE'S RESIDENCE

Kluxers Seek Election Victory by Violence

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HERRIN, Ill., April 13.—The bombing squad, actively engaged in the present city election in behalf of the klan candidates went into action again today and the front part of the home of John Pison was reduced to wreckage.

Continued activities of the Herrin bombing squad active for the klan action today forced the deputizing of scores of Herrin citizens for patrol duty.

Authorities ordered a continual patrol of both residence and business districts until after the April 21 elections. Interest in the campaign has been stimulated to fever pitch, indicated in the record vote of Saturday when the klan emerged victorious in the school board elections.

Attack On Anti-Klan

Police declared that all business houses and homes thus far bombed, including the most recent victim, John Pizoni, were owned or occupied by members of the anti-klan faction.

Pizoni, a bachelor, was sleeping in a rear room of his home when a dynamite bomb demolished the front part.

Miner Kills Wife and Self.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., April 13.—Incensed at finding his wife making preparations to leave him, Jules Durand, 35, Stonington coal miner, returned home suddenly today from Taylorville, fired three pistol bullets into her body, killing her instantly, and then went into an upstairs room and fired two bullets into his own brain.

LANDLORDS WANT TO TIGHTEN HOLD ON THEIR VICTIMS

Urge Legalization of Tennessee Peonage

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 13.—If a bill introduced in the state legislature becomes a law, peonage will be legalized in Tennessee.

The proposal was introduced by Representative Ruffin. It declares that it is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment for any employe or farmer working on shares, to violate his contract.

The bill makes no refreence to violation of any contract by the employer. Section 1 of this vicious proposal reads:

"That any employe, laborer, servant, renter or share-crpoper who willfully breaches a written contract between employer and employe, laborer, servant, renter or share-cropper, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

The penalty is a fine of not less than $20 and not more than $50, together with imprisonment in the county jail or sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than three months.

Organized labor is opposing this attempt to enslave the unorganized agricultural workers and small farmers who operate on the share basis.

"Brave" Mob Confesses Crime.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 13—All but five of the 29 men arrested as members of a Martin county mob which took Joseph Needleman, Kinston, N. C., salesman, from jail and mutilated him, have confessed and are at liberty on bonds ranging from $5,000 to $20,000 each, attorneys in the case announced here today.

"Victor" and "Vanquished" Sign.

PARIS, April 13.—France and Germany signed the Franco-German boundary agreement today.

The agreement formally registers the frontier existing prior to the Franco-German war of 1870 with the exchanges of territory made for practical reasons.

Give Tariff Another Boost.

WASHINGTON, April 13—President Coolidge, by proclamation today increased the tariff duty on potassium chlorate fifty per cent, from one and one-half cents per pound to 3¼ cents.

HOWAT GREETED AT KANSAS CITY IN BIG MEETING

Speech on Prisoners Brings Applause

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 13.—The militant workers in this so-called "Heart of Capitalism" turned out Easter Sunday with a fine class conscious spirit to hear Caroline Lowe and Alexander Howat speak on "Labor's Prisoners."

Criminal Syndicalism Law Imported.

Caroline Lowe, in an effective speech showed that the "100 per cent Americans" had imported the criminal syndicalism law from Europe. Now it was being actively used to jail workers of the United States, in Michigan and California particularly.

When Howat was introduced he was given a rousing welcome, and all thru his speech each point made brought tremendous applause.

"The Kansas soldiers gave up their lives in the world war for democracy," said Howat, "but they got the industrial court law that put the working class back fifty years."

Officials Succeeded Where Government Failed.

"All the power in the state of Kansas could not enforce the industrial court law against the militant miners. And Governor Allen pulled in his horns when the miners gave determined battle.

"Neither the governor of Kansas nor the industrial court could demoralize the miners' union, but the Lewis machine, the officials of the union, could and did demoralize it.

"The dearly beloved 'public', according to the idea of the capitalist politicians are the 15 per cent of the people who have been riding on the backs of the 85 per cent, the workers. The Communists are put in jail under the criminal syndicalism law because they support the workers against the parasites.

"Anyone who stands for the workers' rights is a radical. A conservative is one who will get along with any salary and is always ready to compromise with the boss and thinks it proper for workers to get starvation wages.

The Only Way.

"The only time the workers will get justice is when the workers run their own government. This is really what the capitalists fear most, and that is why Michigan threatens to imprison Foster and Ruthenberg for 10 years under a 'criminal syndicalism' charge.

"As long as the workers are satisfied with half a loaf, they will be fed half a loaf—if they are lucky. But there is no power in the world that will be able to resist the force of the working class when once it is united. To unite them has been and is the duty of the 'Reds.'

"There are very few men who will go to jail for their opinions and those few are the 'reds'—the Communists."

ported by the socialists, the most loyal friends of the Dawes plan. Marx is a catholic, which also presupposes him in the favor of the bankers, the church having an excellent psychological machinery to fit in with the plans of the world pirates.

Communist to Run.

The only working class candidate in the field is the Communist Ernst Thaelmann, who is expected to receive the votes of many social democratic workers who voted for Bauer in the last elections.

The result of the German elections may have a determining effect on the character of the next French government. If Hindenburg wins, it is quite likely that the Poincarist faction will again come into power. On the other hand should Marx come out on top, a government not differing widely in character from the Herriot cabinet will be likely.

Bar Film in West Va.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The old anti-Negro film, The Birth of a Nation that is still touring the country cannot be shown in Charlestown, West Va., because the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has won its case against the Rialto Theater in the state supreme court. Mayor Wertz of Charlestown said after seeing the picture that he could not understand "why any law abiding citizen should bring such a picture to Charlestown."

A Right to Hire and Fire.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The ancient conflict between the legislative and executive branches of the government over their respective powers came again to the United States supreme court today when Solicitor General James M. Beck filed a brief challenging the right of the senate to prescribe the conditions under which a federal office holder may be discharged.

Against Infected Press of Sick Capitalism the Virile Communist Press

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the latest issue of The Seattle Union Record arrives and, in red ink, type four inches high, announces to its readers the latest news: "SHEPHERD DENIED BAIL." The yellowest capitalist dailies in Chicago couldn't have done more.

This is sigfinificant in view of the fact that the Union Record was the last of the so-called "labor dailies" to adopt this style of subsidized journalism as the road to financial security.

It, too, shot the germs of a sick social system into its pages in an effort to continue a doped existence.

• • • •

Day after day the succeeding issues of the Communist dailies published in Soviet Russia arrive in this country and they carry, on their first pages, articles voicing the aspirations of the freed workers and peasants. Always there is something about the world struggle of the oppressed in capitalist nations. The Russian Communist press breathes the virility of the masses, whose voice it is. It heralds the new day. It is healthy, robust, forward-looking, even as the Soviet Power, which it champions. It bears no compromising blemish. It is on labor's side of the class war.

What a contrasting picture in these United States! Here one of the surest indications of the fatal sickness that grips capitalism is to be found in the contents of its so-called "dope sheets". Only recently it was the Loeb-Leopold murder trial. Today it is the Shepherd case,—an alleged poison mystery, in which a young heir is supposed to have been murdered for his million dollar fortune. Three thousand miles away, the former Seattle "labor" daily treats the latest wrinkle in this case as if there were some great benefit to the working class in the whole nauseating proceedings. The Minnesota Star, also ex-labor, and the Milwaukee Leader, "socialist," have crawled into the same company. They are all on the capitalist side of the class war.

This press feeds on murder sensations, divorce scandals, the latest bootlegging escapade or the newest freak amusement of the idle rich. "Babe" Ruth gets a stomach ache, and is featured in the headlines, while scores of miners killed in the latest disaster, get passing notice. The good-for-nothing son of Ohio's politician-governor takes a girl friend out for an auto ride and, forgetting to take her home again, gets more attention, for several days, than the French cabinet crisis that rocks Western European if not world capitalism.

The pleasure-seeking son of a wealthy father suicides in Chicago and he gets the first page, with his diary published in full, while a huge demonstration in memory of Sun Yat Sen, echoing the revolutionary movement that is getting its grip on China, passes unnoticed.

• • • •

This noisome press, from Wall Street's New York Times to Berger's Milwaukee Leader, stews in its own filth. But like sick humans it tries to insist it is not all gone. Even the rapidly failing invalid, at death's door, often makes claims to health.

Thus the Des Moines, Ia., Register announces it will segregate crime news on an inside page; just as American cities for a long time maintained segregated districts for the purposes of prostitution. Another sheet, the Decatur, Ill., Review, maintains its "segregated district" at the lower left hand corner of the first page, and labels each column with the small head "crime". Over in West Virginia another newspaper announces an attempted cure thru leaving out crime news altogether. But there have been Keeley cures for individuals just as invalided capitalism is trying to take the Morgan-Dawas plan cure in Europe, when all of a sudden the disease breaks out worse than ever in Paris, in spite of Morgan's latest loan to France of $100,000,000.

• • • •

This dope press of a sick social system seeks to pass over lightly the financial troubles of France, the flight of Lord Balfour from Syria, the significance of Japanese recognition of Soviet Rule, the dire straits facing Mussolini, and similar symptoms, while urging the masses at the same time to give three cheers for the opening of the baseball season, the visit of the Prince of Wales to Africa and South Amercia, and the hunting expedition of the Roosevelt kids to "the top of the world" somewhere in Asia. The Caesars tried to satiate the discontented multitudes with the bloody spectacles of the Roman arena. The American kept press throws in a few extra pages of Sunday comics.

The Communist press alone breathes defiance to this decadent social system that seeks to sap the mental vitality of its victims, in order that they may be incapable of struggle against their misery. Sick capitalism likes a helpless, abject working class for company.

THE DAILY WORKER turns its back on the long procession of unending crimes committed under capitalism, except where they help enlighten the worker as to the real nature of the class struggle. To do otherwise would result in becoming infected with the same disease. To split clean with capitalism is to be able to wage victorious class war. That is the strength of Communism. That is the weakness of the "socialists" and their press, of the class-collaborating labor aristocracy and its press, imbibing capitalist dope and defending capitalism. It is so comfortable. It is so hard to fight; or lead the masses into the struggle, especially when one is sick under a sick system.

It is the healthy, vigorous, uncontaminated forces of Communism that issue the clarion call to labor to march to victory in the class struggle.

Against the yellow, infected press of capitalism, the healthy, virile press of Communism. Increased numbers of workers go daily into battle with it.

Admiral Lavishly Entertained

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—The admiral commanding the United States fleet, which will leave soon for war maneuvers in Pacific waters surrounding Hawaii, Robert E. Coontz, gave a reception to several hundred society people on board the SS. Pennsylvania. The admiral and his officers have been lavishly entertained here. Coontz chose the Pennsylvania for the reception because of its luxurious furnishings, he said.

Ford's Airplane Is Welcomed Here from Detroit by Plutes

The "Maiden Dearborn," owned by Henry Ford, which arrived in Chicago yesterday with 800 pounds of freight will be used not for general commercial business, but to carry the private freight of Ford to and from his Chicago and Detroit plants. Ford announced that the plane is the first of a fleet of airplanes which he will use to connect all of his plants in various cities.

A large number of businessmen were present at the landing of the airplane here.

OPTIMISM OF MIKE TIGHE COMES EARLY

Manufacturer Says "No Wage Increases"

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 13—Mike Tighe, faker president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers expressed an unjustified optimism in his interviews with capitalist journalists here. "Harmony, all is harmony" is Tighe's idea of the relations between the members of the union and the steel trust and its subsidiaries called "independents."

"Peace and Good Will."

This "peace and good will' stuff oozes out of Mike following conversations with James H. Nutt, of Youngstown, Ohio, secretary-treasurer of both the Western Bar Iron Association and the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association. These supposedly are "independen[illegible] steel manufacturers.

Tighe is going down for a nice [illegible]cation to Atlantic City next mo[illegible] and while listening to what the [illegible] waves are saying, the manufactur[illegible] are going to put over an agreeme[illegible] for the wage scale that will be effe[illegible]tive from July first onward for o[illegible] year.

What the scale will be is yet to be determined, but Nutt has loosened up with the opinion that no wage scale increases can be agreed to. And the Amalgamated has too much modesty to let its demands be known—or else Tighe is afraid to let the members know the proposed union scale.

Class Collaboration Theory.

The best that Tighe could offer as a policy of the union is a quotation from James J. Davis, secretary of the deportation department of Coolidge's cabinet. Tighe says: "Secretary Davis is right when he said that employers and employes are learning that fighting costs money. Our organization is doing everything possible to foster better relations between workers and employers."

This attitude of class collaboration is the dominating force in the Amalgamated union, as no progressive element has yet appeared strong enuf to cause Tighe to make even a pretense of class struggle. The whole contrasts strongly with the spirit of the unorganized steel workers of McKeesport who last week went out solid and won a 24-hour strike against the speed up.

Disrespect for Cal Charged.

Crouch and Trumbull, in their letters which were used against them in the trial, and in their talks with Fisher, the spy who was planted by the department in their circle, did show sympathy with the workers in Hawaii. Strikes on plantations in Hawaii have been put down in blood, repeatedly, because the workers are of alien race and are non-voters. Nothing in Gen. Lewis' report, however, gives the slightest basis for the assumption that the court martial proceedings dealt with anything beyond the agitation conducted by the young men in the barracks. They were convicted of violation of a territorial law forbidding secret organizations of a revolutionary character, and for violation of the 96th and 62d articles of war, dealing with conduct prejudicial to military discipline and dealing with disrespect for the president of the United States.

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" will be shown in Chicago tomorrow, Wednesday, April 15, at Wicker Park Theater, 1539 Milwaukee Ave., from 6 to 11 p. m. The demonstration at the Polish consulate in Chicago will also be shown.

Record Making Kills Two

LOS AUGELES, Cal., April 13.—The bodies of S. H. Wray and Timothy Reed, automobile company employes were brought here from near Bakersfield. HOW IT PAYS THE THE OPERATORS TO KEEP FAKERS

Farrington Aids Boss Against Miners

COLLINSVILLE, Ill.— Since the Jacksonville agreement and since the expression of Farrington the faker president of the Illinois miners to "give clean coal and more coal," the company here put a new condition in cleaning coal at the No. 2 mine, which makes it impossible for loaders to clean as the company requires.

The mine cars weigh from three to five tons. When this big lot goes to the top, the coal inspector picks out even the very smallest particle of dirt, and when he can get 75 pounds of impurities out of the whole car, the miner is discharged.

That Fine 3-Year Agreement.

This helps the company to get rid of "undesirable" miners or those who are active in the union. At first the local officials tried to fight the worst cases, but under the agreement nothing can be done.

Finally, the miners themselves tried to do the very best they could to load clean coal. But, experienced as they are, with the light of a lamp underground, it was found impossible to load four cars a day while trying their best to make it clean. The inspector still found dirt. The miners thot that if they would spend all day on one car, only then would it be possible to load as clean as the company requires.

So they stuck together and loaded real clean coal for seven days. The company tried to use malicious trickery on them, and discharged fifteen miners for not loading four cars a day.

Faker Farrington to the Rescue.

Then the miners all decided not to go to work until the company took back the discharged miners. In a few hours Frank Farrington sent a telegram urging that the miners go back to work. But the local disobeyed the order and decided to stay out.

Farrington sent another telegram threatening to revoke the charter if the miners would not resume work and, moreover, load four cars a day. The local, individually, has not the power to resist Farrington's machine, and decided to go back beaten and unconditionally.

A Lesson Worth Learning.

When Farrington sent a letter in stating his "reasons" for expelling MacDonald, the local never took up the fight against Farrington or made any protest. Now the miners are getting a good lesson in the fact that Farrington is far more concerned with the operators' than with the miners' interests.

Holy Water Ablutions and Image Kissing Taboo in Old Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 13.— Holy water fonts must disappear immediately from all Mexican churches, according to a law promulgated yesterday.

The law declares the fonts are insanitary, and also prohibits the kissing of images of saints for the same reason. Priests and bishops are made responsible for enforcement of the law.

HUTCHESON TRIES TO ORGANIZE A DUAL UNION

DETROIT, Mich.—The Building Trades Council here called a meeting for last Thursday night, of carpenters, for the purpose of organizing a dual carpenters' union. Undoubtedly this was done by Hutcheson's instruction to his tools here.

The head of the dual union, Claude R. Boland of Cincinnati, was supposed to be the speaker. But as he didn't show up the meeting was a fizzle as it ought to have been anyhow. This dual organization is, incidentally, being sponsored in an underhanded, underground and unofficial way by the officials of the building trades department.

It may be an accident or not, but the secretary of the Building Trades Council, Charles Whitcomb, is a sheet metal worker. The threat made is that a dual union of carpenters will be organized and all jobs pulled where the regular Brotherhood men are working.

This treacherous attack on the carpenters union, inspired by Hutcheson, is being exposed and opposed vigorously by the progressive carpenters' group.

It is pointed out that Hutcheson is getting about as traitorous as it is possible for an official to be, when—after expelling left wing members of his union on the charge that they are members of the T. U. E. L., and that the T. U. E. L. is a "dual organization"—he actually inspires the movement to organize a real dual union to his own Brotherhood of Carpenters. What next!

The T. U. E. L. is not, of course, a dual union, and what is more it is determined to prevent Hutcheson and his agents from organizing any dual union whether it be Boland's or any other.

COAL MINERS IN IOWA ARE FACING BIG SHUTDOWN

Work Day or Two Each Week During Winter

By TOM MATTHEWS.

CENTERVILLE, Iowa, April 13—"The boys are all leaving for the large cities. They only worked a day or two each week all winter, and now they have nothing to carry them over until the mines reopen next fall."

This is the story one hears thruout the mining camps in this state. The operators are making no attempt to minimize the seriousness of the situation, in fact they appear to be flaunting it in the face of the miners as part of a deliberate campaign to establish open shop conditions in the Iowa mines.

The operators have openly announced that more than half of their large mines are completely shut down, and point to wage-scales and freight rates on coal from the scab mines of Kentucky and West Virginia, claiming that such coal can be "laid down" in Iowa for less than Iowa coal can be sold at the mine.

An Exodus.

The result is an actual exodus of miners from Iowa to work in other industries, and a lack of any fighting spirit on the part of those who remain behind.

Many of the more wide-awake miners are seriously discussing the Progressive miners' program, which calls for nationalization of the mines, the six-hour day, the unemployment wage, and other measures designed to save the miners' union from annihilation.

The miners, of course, are more deeply interested in the immediate problem, which in a great many cases is, "Shall I stay here or move on to Chicago, Detroit, or some other large industrial center?"

One story is to the effect that a great many of these miners are leaving to engage in railroad construction work at various eastern points for "scab wages."

If this is true, then it only goes to show the logical outcome of the shortsighted policies inspired by the hasbeens in the labor movement of this country. Craft against craft, miner against railroader, district against district—all having its results in general lowering of wage scales and loss of working conditions gained thru years of struggle.

Workers Helpless.

With the rank and file practically tied hand and foot as the result of such short-sightedness, is it any wonder that the only solution they see should be to "move out"?

The way this affects other workers is strikingly shown right here in Centerville. With miners and their families leaving, the traffic on the street railways has so fallen off that cars are to be replaced with motor busses.

Thus the vicious circle goes 'round and 'round, leaving the workers wondering dizzily what it's all about.

There can only be one answer: Class collaboration cannot solve the problems of the workers under capitalism. Only the program of intelligence and class solidarity as advocated by the Trade Union Educational League and the Red International of Labor Unions holds any real hope for escape from these conditions of life.

It is only thru such a program that the labor organizations of this country can stand up under the fire of the capitalist class and keep pace with the industrial developments of the age.

Can't Have Councils, Teachers Now Have a Weekly Publication

The Chicago Teachers' Federation is publishing a weekly bulletin called Margaret Haley's Weekly Bulletin. This publication will keep the teachers informed on the federation's new $50,000 campaign to procure money for the school treasury that it is at present being robbed of thru tax dodging on big property. The bulletin will also take the place of the teachers' councils which was denied the teachers by a recent decision of the board of education.

The first edition carries a complete history of the federation's experience with the board of education's way of co-operating to get after the stockyard property. This property is valued at $130,000 an acre and yet paid taxes for it on a valuation of $11,000 an acre. The bulletin tells how the board of education backed out just in time to prevent any action being taken.

23 Are Still Missing.

MINDEN, Germany, April 13.—The bodies of fifty-eight victims of the pontoon bridge disaster on March 31 have been recovered. Twenty-three soldiers who were crossing the bridge are still missing.

Farmers Protest Merger.

WASHINGTON, April 13.— The Farmers' National Council announced today it will "probably seek an injunction" to obtain court action on the Armour-Morris packing merger.

Boston Carpenters on Job, Other Building Crafts on Strike

BOSTON, Mass.—Building trades strikes involving plumbers, electricians, lathers and building laborers continue confusedly for the most part—that is, confusedly as regards outcome. Carpenters who have signed a three-year agreement at the old $1.10 an hour rate will demand whatever increase is given other trades.

Building employers remain adamant in assertions that they will not give more, except possibly an increase to building laborers. Electrical workers are still striking for recognition of the national board of arbitration instead of referring disputes to the local board.

Painters are still out for the advance in wages. Some employers use the threat that Boston was once open shop for 18 months to induce workers to return to their jobs at the old rate.

THAT 3-YEAR AGREEMENT AND ITS NET RESULT

Militants Must Unite for Struggle

By ALEX REID.

The three year agreement by and between the coal trusts and their employees of the U. M. W. of A., was made for the sole purposes of stabilizing the coal mining industry. If any doubting Thomases think otherwise let them peruse the financial jornals of Dec. 1923, and Jan. 1924, and ample proof will be found recorded therein.

Every financial sheet was and is screaming long contracts with the unions that cannot be busted, and to further their end, the Wall Street representatives, "The ex-Britisher," Davis of the "department of leisure," famed for his efforts to return workers across the sea who dare question the methods he and his kind came by their millions in blood money, came to the miners convention to help make more easy of accomplishment the plans of his masters in Wall Street,—"the long term contract" to enable the enemies of labor more time to throttle the aspirations of labor.

But to the everlasting credit of the miners' delegates, he was accorded the scathing, rebuking welcome he so richly deserved, and lined up with this crew was the labor bureaucracy even desirous of a longer contract than that finally agreed upon.

Now, after one year of the desired stabilization, we ask, has the policy shown any signs of success? Is the miners' lot easier? Where is the promised prosperity? What are the actual results?

Ask the miners' whose digestive organs are "starvalized" about this stabilization. One thing is certain, they have steadied the industry, fixed it, so much so, that even the movement of the hoisting wheels have become stabilized, steadily fixed, in one position and revolved no more.

Miners travelling the country vainly looking for work attest to the wisdom of the stabilizing process. Strikes on every hand, open shop drives, and militant membership expulsions combined, are the sum total achieved for the year.

One main reason for a three year contract was and is the desire to freeze out 250,000 "surplus" miners, and incidentally in the freezing process it was and is the intelligent and militant members who must be frozen!

If one year is not enough to freeze them out, thru it becomes necessary to have an extention of time without contractual handicaps, three or four year contracts that will provide space to accomplish the end and get the progressive miners out before they succeed in opening the eyes of the miners to the reactionary policy of the leaders and thereby endangering the fat salary and expenses of the bureaucracy.

William Green, the Gomper's economist, lecturing to an eastern university informs a waiting world that be guesses everything on the labor field is O. K. and the unemployment question he guesses, will right itself, and further states his guess is as good as anybody's.

This is a remedy! "A guess" for an outgrown economic system, for unemployment of millions who have not been paid enough to buy back what they have produced. And this from Green who owes his position to the miners, the man now head of the Wall Street, A. F. of L. Is it any wonder we are the laughing stock of the workers throughout the world?

Brothers, organize in your locals, show the membership the treasonable policies of the officials, educate them to the only sane policy for the industry "Nationalization and workers' control" of the coal mines.

No help will ever come from your leaders, they admit they are policy bankrupt, you must help yourself.

Organize! Organize your fighting mine committees!

RED INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE ASKS ALL MARINE WORKERS AID PHILADELPHIA I. W. W. STRIKE

The strike of the Philadelphia longshoremen organized in the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union 510 of the I. W. W., deserves and must receive the fullest support of all revolutionary workers, and particularly of all marine workers adhering to the revolutionary transport workers' section of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The Red International Affiliation Committee urges all adherents of the R. I. L. U. engaged in marine work to strike against the six steamship lines tied up by the I. W. W. longshoremen of Philadelphia, and particularly to paralyze all shipping of the American-Hawaiian line, the company which is blocking general settlement.

Unity among all marine workers is the first essential of successful struggle, and the Red International Affiliation Committee wishes to condemn in the sharpest terms the traitorous lack of solidarity which has led some members of the International Longshoremen's Association to scab on the striking I. W. W. longshoremen.

At the same time the R. I. A. C. wishes to call the attention of the Marine Transport Workers I. U. 510, of the I. W. W., that only by uniting their forces in action in a united front together with the other revolutionary transport workers of the world adhering to the program and organizational center of the Red International of Labor Unions, can the necessary unity of the world's transport workers be achieved—in keeping with the interests of these workers and in conformity with the program and policy laid down at the New Orleans conference on March 1 of the marine workers of the western hemisphere.

The R. I. A. C. hails the striking I. W. W. longshoremen of Philadelphia as fellow workers engaged in active fighting in the class war and expresses gratification that the M. T. W. has shown and is showing a desire to unite the ranks of the working class in battle against the capitalist class while the remainder of the I. W. W. is perishing of social pacifism, sectarianism, censorship and persecution against Communists begun and persisted in by disruptive anarcho-syndicalist leaders who are fundamentally neither industrial unionists nor revolutionists.

The M. T. W. has a duty to perform in propagating and actively fighting for unity and revolutionary principles in the rest of the I. W. W., especially in advocating affiliation of the I. W. W. to the Red International of Labor Unions.

KINCAID MINERS SEND REPORT OF 8-HOUR MEETING

KINCAID, Ill., April 12.— On this day the local miners celebrate the winning of the eight-hour day. After long years of hard struggle this victory was obtained, and while continuing to struggle for their interests, the miners do not forget past victories.

In Kincaid, Ill., on April 1, the miners in that vicinity celebrated this past victory and demonstrated for the release of Sacco-Vanzetti, imprisoned and sentenced because of their effective work for the overthrow of capitalism.

Successful Meeting.

The meeting was a success from every standpoint. The miners filled the hall, standing together so as to make the aisles impassable, where seats could not be found. It was more than a spirit of victory that permeated the audience; the spirit of determination to fight for bigger things, and to fight the last fight was predominant.

The principal speaker was Pete Herd, representing the Workers Party. Tom Tippett, director educational department, Sub-District 5 of District 12, U. M. W. A.; Wm. Deach, ex-sub-district president; Ewald Sandner, secretary educational department, Local 3473, U. M. W. A., and Ed. Myers, business agent Central Trades and Labor Assembly, Taylorville, Ill., also spoke at the meeting.

Continuous Struggle Needed.

Herd, in his talk, pointed out that the struggle for the eight-hour day was gained only after long and bitter struggle; that the struggle to free Sacco-Vanzetti would likewise entail hard struggle on the part of the working class. The struggle for shorter hours of work, more wages and better conditions generally, were all different aspects of the same fight: the struggle of the working class to wrest power from the capitalists.

Until such time as the workers finally succeeded in abolishing capitalism and in substituting for its rule the rule of the workers, the arrest and conviction of such working class leaders as Sacco-Vanzetti, Mooney and Billings, the 32 Communist defendants in the Michigan cases, and all other workers jailed for their political opinions and their struggle for those opinions, would continue.

Endorse Communist Program.

The meeting enthusiastically endorsed the program of the Workers Party and its struggle for the interests of the miners and the working class as a whole, and went on record pledging itself unceasing struggle for the liberation of all workers now in capitalist jails as a result of their uncompromising struggle for the working class.

PAUL SMITH AN EXCELLENT MAN FOR EMPLOYERS

Black Magic Stuff.

The secretary of the Mill a Smeltermen's Union is the notorio labor faker, Herb Gallagher, who p moted the famous "Black Magic" company, the black magic being the separation of the poor work from their hard earned cash.

The last regular meeting of the sembly was to be a "harmony" me ing, so Smith had passed the wo but instead it was a real disorgani tion meeting. As soon as the n delegates of the mill and smelterm had been seated, they started a rou house.

Disrupters Win Against Spineles Opposition.

Johnson of the painters called the resignation of all officers in di gard of the rule that officers can removed only by charges being ferred in writing. Brother Quilty the cooks and waiters was preside When he saw Johnson's intent, to rupt the assembly he resigned and H. Blake, a contractor who is in carpenters' union was elected pr dent.

All the other officers resigned the exception of Brother Brug of printers, a progressive-minded wo who refused to fall for Smith's di work or yield to it. The two d gates from the carpenters are b contractors and reactionary to bone. Carpenters' Union 286 is tirely represented by contractors all local offices, or by those who not work at the trade. Delegates Take Wrong Step.

Several delegates to the assem declared their intention of withdr ing, and no doubt the whole thing go to the bad. Lee Forrest, a l automobile dealer who organized open shop "American plan" gang a few years ago, has informed gang that if they would have ha man like Smith here a few years the "damned unions would not had a word to say."

Before Smith came here all contractors had signed up with unions and were hiring all union But today I saw union carpe working on a job started with union helpers, so I expect things go backwards from now Everything constructive is upset Smith arrived.

of living is rapidly increasing, es in the steel industry have long struck the toboggan slide and cuts have become the order of day. All thinking members
he Amalgamated Association are aware that the blame for this situation must be laid at the door of the present officials who desire to rule as Czars and try to brand all criticism as disruptive. But it has come to a point where a change must take place if complete disaster is to be avoided.

Class Struggle is Here, We Cannot Escape.

We are today engaged in a desperate and bitter struggle of the classes—the capitalist class on the one side and the working class on the other—let us not deceive ourselves on this question. There is no escape from the struggle, but we must carry on until the working class becomes victorious.

The present reactionary officialdom of the Amalgamated Association instead of recognizing this class struggle are preaching that illusive and dangerous doctrine of class collaboration, which in plain English means, that the interests of the workers and employers are one and the same. But the very opposite is true. Our interests are in direct conflict with those of the capitalist class. Where they want long hours and low wages, the workers want higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions and the ultimate end of all working class organiation must be to take control of industry and do away with the system of wage slavery.

Launching of National Organization Drive.

All Progressive elements in the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers must combine their forces to oust from its present pedestal this reactionary bureaucracy, which is draining the life blood of the organization, and proceed to build a powerful union comprising all workers in the steel industry. We propose that the Amalgamated Association immediately prepare to launch a drive for the organization of the whole steel industry, on a national scale, taking in all workers, manual and clerical, employed in or about the mills, to be conducted on the following basis:

1. There shall be established a Department of Organization with full power to conduct the campaign.

2. The establishment of District Committees in each important steel district and the strengthening of these committees where such exists, each to establish a Department of Organization for the District.

3. All national organizers to be elected at the annual convention, and district organizers to be elected by the district membership.

4. A uniform initiation fee as low as $1.00 per member to be established.

5. All workers employed in the steel mills to be brought into the Amalgamated Association regardless of craft or skill, race or color.

6. A period of intensive propaganda covering the whole steel industry to precede the actual organization, the propaganda to be conducted under the following slogans:

A One Hundred per cent organized industry.

The complete establishment of the eight-hour day with abolishment of double shifts.

No further wage reductions, but increases of present wages.

Abolition of the speed-up system.

Standard scale of wages for all steel workers to expire at the same time.

One day rest in seven.

Abolition of Company Unions.

Abolition of the blacklist, physical examination and finger print system.

The industry to support its unemployed.

Industrial Form of Organization.

The steel industry is highly trustified and controlled by one combine establishing one complete monopoly. The gigantic steel corporations are a unit in the struggle against the workers, unitedly fighting all their efforts to organize. Still the unions within this industry persist in carrying on their antiquated craft form of organization which fitted in well to the industrial system at the time when the De Witt locomotive passed the first railroad tracks laid in this country, but now should be put into the museum alongside of that engine. The organizations of the workers must be built so as to be able to cope with the organizations of the owners of industry, and be able to meet their attacks successfully. The industrial union is the only possible form of organization in the steel industry which may adequately protect the interests of the workers.

The convention of the Amalgamated Association at Warren, Ohio, 1923, and Pittsburgh, Pa., 1924, went on record endorsing the industrial form of organization. The constitution reads that all men and women working in and around the iron and steel mills shall become members of the Amalgamated Association. The officials have made no move to carry this form of organization into effect but have done their utmost to maintain the craft outlook.

We propose that the Amalgamated Association become an industrial union in the full sense of the word on a modern centralized basis and to be departmentalized according to the requirements of the industry. We propose as an illustration the establishment of the following departmentalization:

1. Blast Furnace.
2. Open Hearth and Bessemer.
3. Rolling Mill.
4. Sheet and Tin Mill.
5 Wire Rod, Pipe Mill.
6. Maintenance.
7. Clerical.

Shop Committee Organization as Basis of Union.

No union can live and function effectively without job control. The basic strength of all working class organization must be established in the shop where the workers toil and from whence grows their grievances and aspirations. We therefore demand that a complete system of Shop Committee Organiation, taking in all workers in and around the iron and steel mills, organized and unorganized, be established, as a preliminary to union organization and supplementary to the union.

The Shop Committee must be representative of all workers in each mill, and composed of delegates elected by the workers from each department, regardless of craft or skill. Each Shop Committee shall elect its own officers and spokesmen and have full power to take up all grievances of the workers with the management and in conjunction with the union take all steps necessary to protect the interests of the workers. It shall carry on educational activties for the building and strengthening of the union. The shop committees of each particualr district shall be combined on the same basis as the local unions.

The so-called Shop Committees now existing in some mills composed jointly of workers and the management organized by the employers are tools of the bosses to protect their interests and help enslave the workers. They have nothing to do with the welfare and the aspirations of the workers. These committees should be fought until they are replaced by committees composed of workers only.

Unity, Nationally and Internationally.

The capitalists of the United States are solidly united in their common efforts to keep the workers in submission. Their organizations are united through interlocking directorates. Capitalism is also international in scope and the the working class must likewise unite internationally.

We propose therefore, first, that there be formed a real fighting alliance betwen the coal miners, railroad workers' and steel workers' unions. Not only for the purpose of extending sympathy with one another but to actually join forces for united action and to fight side by side in times of strike. Secondly, we propose to give the utmost assistance possible to the efforts now being made by the Red International of Labor Unions to create one united working class International comprising all labor unions of the world.

Inedependent Political Action.

Nowhere has the relations between the employers and the government become so brutally clear as in the steel industry. Time and again the government has shown itself as an instrument of the employers to help keep the workers in submission—as a capitalist government, courts, police, soldiers and every means at the disposal of this capitalist government have been used to attempt to crush the efforts of the steel workers to organize into a union. The remedy must be the establishment of a workers' government.

Despite the base betrayal of the labor party movement by the entire official family of organized labor the progressive steel workers see the need of united class political action by the industrial workers and exploited farmers. We pledge ourselves to carry on the struggle for independent class political action by labor as a means of the establishment of a workers' government.

Recognition of Soviet Russia.

The Russian workers, through their heroic struggles have abolished capitalist exploitation and taken control of the industries which are now being run in the interests of the workers. The Russian working class republic is in need of the things we produce in this country. We therefore demand the unconditional recognition of and establishment of trade relations with Soviet Russia, not only as a means of stimulating industry in this country, but as an act of solidarity with the Russian working class.

Class Struggle Against Class Collaboration.

We have already pointed out that the working class and the capitalist class have no interests in common. It has been effectively proven to us during all the struggles of the past. On the basis of these experiences we propose that the officials of the Amalgamated Association recognize the class struggle and frame and execute the policies of the organization accordingly. Our slogans must be: "Relentless struggle against the oppressive methods, wage cuts and the exploitation by the steel corporations." "For the organization of a powerful union in the steel industry ready to fight for the interests of the working class—a union which will become one of the battalions of emancipation of the workers."

We submit this program to the steel workers in general and to the members of the Amalgamated Asociation in particular. We challenge criticism and invite suggestions for further improvements. We suggest that the columns of the official Journal of the Association be opened for discussion of this program and for the problems of the organization as a whole. We propose that all contributions submitted by individual members or lodges, be printed in full without any censorship, so that we may find the best possible means of constantly building and strengthening the union.

We urge all progressive, thinking members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, to unite for the building of a bigger and better union—a working class union covering the whole steel industry.

In Answer to Many Questions—

This Is Our Explanation:

The subscription price to THE WORKERS MONTHLY is so extremely modest ($2.00 a year, $1.25 six months) even tho we are forced to charge 25 cents a copy—because—

A working class magazine can live on neither advertising nor dealers' sales alone—it must depend almost entirely on its subscribers. Otherwise it cannot exist.

For this reason effort is made not only to give the subscribers every consideration in price but also in promptness in delivery—which is the reason subscribers receive the very first copies off the press.

You should take advantage of these reasons in addition to receiving the very best working class magazine ever issued in this country.

As we mentioned before, the subscription rates are

HAWAIIAN SENATE IN DOUBT ABOUT SUN YAT SEN BEING COMMUNIST

HONOLULU, April 13.—The question of whether Dr. Sun Yat Sen was a Communist arose in the territorial senate during the discussion of a resolution to adjourn until Monday out of respect to Dr. Sun.

Senator James Russell declined his support on the ground that Dr. Sun was a Communist, but the senate adopted the resolution. Senator Tavares insisted that Dr. Sun was born in Hawaii and was a true patriot.

Our Readers' Views

NORWOOD, Mass., April 6.—To the DAILY WORKER:— Enclosed please find our check for $100.00 "To insure the DAILY WORKER for 1925."

In our party meeting, it was understood that the Finnish branch in Norwood has somewhat failed to participate in our campaign to support the central organ of the party.

As the members of the Finnish branch in Norwood are also a majority in local co-operative movement, so we decided to give part of our 1924 profit to the DAILY WORKER.

May I also say that we ought to get the co-operative societies a real part of the party. The DAILY WORKER should publish an article on this subject. If we get the co-operative societies to participate with the Communist movement as a whole, then it's worth while to work for them.

ON THIS IMPORTANT MATTER

Once More We Quote Wm. Z. Foster:

"Here, in the building up of the circulation of the DAILY WORKER, lies a field for the development of Communist organizers, which is open to every member of our party. In the performance of the systematic work necessary to the effective sale of DAILY WORKER subscriptions, and for that matter the sale of any of our party press subscriptions, there is called into play the qualities which go to make real organizers and propagandists.

"In building the DAILY WORKER circulation we approach non-party workers, workers who are not class conscious. We tell them about the DAILY WORKER and ask them to subscribe. We must explain to them at least the main essentials of the class struggle. We must overcome objections, prove the advantages and necessity of organization, of working class militancy, of struggle against the boss and his pliant tools, the trade union bureaucrats. We must exploit the growing revolt of these workers. We must connect up our paper and our party with these workers by making the DAILY WORKER the spokesman and champion of their grievances. All this must be done upon the most far-reaching scale and in the most systematic manner possible.

"Such work is getting down to fundamentals. It means real contact with the masses. By carrying it on aggresively and persistently we build up our self-confidence and our ability to give expression to Communist principles. In other words, we develop ourselves into organizers."

IRISH PEASANTS FACING PLAGUE THRU STARVATION

New York Famine Meet Next Wednesday

NEW YORK, April 13.—The situation in Ireland is getting worse. The Farmers' Association says that "80 per cent of the cattle have died, all the sheep are dead, the people are starving. They have not had fire for months. They are eating offal and dead leaves, and are face to face with plague."

The area in which they live on the coast line of Donegal and Mayo is very hard to reach as there is practically no railway service. Seed for immediate sowing is absolutely necessary. Misery, disease and plague face the workers and peasants of Ireland on every side.

Let the capitalist press deny that there is any famine, as the New York Times does. Let the capitalist and patriotic Irish press and societies declare that there is no suffering. Workers who have been in the famine district declare that "every household is the scene of the worst misery and destitution."

Blamed Soviet Regime.

When the Russian workers and peasants starved in 1921 owing to the failure of the crops, the cause was attributed to the Soviet regime. In Ireland, with its capitalist government under the tutelage of British imperialism, there are 750,000 starving men, women and children.

The workers of New York should know the truth about the situation. At the mass meeting at the Central Opera House, 205 E. 67th St., on Wednesday, April 15, at 8 p. m., the workers will be given this opportunity. Jack McCarthy, who has just come from the famine district, will tell the story. Among the other speakers will be Thomas J. O'Kelley, E. Gurley Flynn, Ben Gitlow, P. Cosgrove, Joseph Manley, chairman. Get the workers in your shops and unions to attend this meeting. Show your solidarity.

PITTSBURGH WORKERS TO HEAR RECORDS OF LENIN SPEECHES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 13.—A revolutionary party in honor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir, will be given in Pittsburgh, Pa., Wednesday, April 15, at 1522 Fifth Ave. There will be a musical program, dancing and free refreshments. Among the speakers will be Comrade Arne Swabeck, district organizer of the Workers Party in English, and Comrade Alexander Chramoff, organizer of the Russian section, W. P., in Russian. Talks will also be made by Comrades Lenin, Lunacharsky and others (from phonograph records). Come and listen to the voice of Lenin!

ILLINOIS UNEMPLOYMENT GROWS AS MINERS SUFFER MOST WHILE STEEL TRUST TALKS WAGE CUTS

By LELAND OLDS
Federated Press Industrial Editor

A slump of more than 1 per cent in Illinois factory employment between February and March follows the collapse of wheat prices and the break in the stock market as an indication that the Coolidge boom was a false alarm. Republican prosperity fails to relieve the chronic unemployment arising from basic economic maladjustments which it will not touch.

The March report of the Illinois department of labor follows that from New York state which found no well defined evidence of continued industrial improvement. Seasonal gains in New York leaves 82,000 out of work who had jobs a year ago.

Begins Early This Year.

The break in Illinois comes a month earlier than in 1924 when factory employment held steady from February to March and started downhill in April. This year the level is already 8½ per cent below March, 1924 and 11.7 per cent below March, 1923.

The free employment office reported 161 applicants for each 100 jobs compared with 157 last year and 96 in March, 1923.

Industries showing sharp reductions in force between February and March include boots and shoes 8 per cent, miscellaneous leather 6 per cent, men's clothing 8.1 per cent, meat packing 6 per cent and flour and feed mills 9.3 per cent. Metal trades employers as a group failed to show any gain.

Mining in Great Depression.

Suspension of Illinois mining operations on a broad scale accompanied the decline in factory employment. The department points out that as there are practically no other industries in the mining districts a considerable section of the state is under severe depression.

Latest reports from southern Illinois state that in Franklin, Williamson and Saline counties, constituting the leading coal fields of the middle west, only 9 out of 64 mines are working and most of those on part-time.

Talk Wage Cuts in Steel Mills.

The sharp drop of 421,207 tons during March in the unfilled orders on the books of the U. S. Steel corporation shows the extent to which the high March production was overproduction leading to an inevitable slump. This decrease is more than 3 times the decline in unfilled orders in the same month of 1924. It brings the total down to 4,863,564 tons or within less than 100,000 tons of March 31, 1924. Two years ago the corporation reported 7,403,332 tons in unfilled orders and in 1920 the figure was approximately 10,000,000 tons.

In the journals of the industry discussion of this decline in unfilled orders and the resulting decrease in operation is accompanied with speculation as to when wage reductions will be in order.

Charge Nurse Poisons Patients.

MONTPELLIER, France.—A modern Lucrezia Borgia was believed discovered in the Italian nurse Antionette Scierri, under arrest today on a charge of poisoning eight of her patients. Six of them died and two were in a serious condition.

than it is of the French army. Britain can make peace with capitalistic France but it can never make peace with Soviet Russia.

WILLIAM JOSEPH SIMMONS, founder of the ku klux klan, is again in trouble. While the graft was heavy and the pickings were good all the lieutenant grafters could be satisfied and only the few leading crooks locked horns. But the morons who turned over their ten spots to the confidence men in the early days are now sobering up and are spending their spare kale on spirits of ammonia rather than on pillowcases and second hand underwear. The result is that the klan leaders are venting their chagrin on "pure woomanhood" like the grand dragon of the Indiana ku klux klan, who raped and poisoned a young girl, or else are lifting the lid off the cess pool in court as is the case in the new Simmons case in Atlanta.

WE notice that one of the gentlemen who is applying the axe to the financial jugular vein of Simmons is Billy Parker, professional anti-catholic faker, publisher of the New Menace and of the Flaming Sword, official publication of the knights of the flaming sword. Parker is also publisher of a sheet called The Lifted Lid a pseudo-radical bi-weekly, edited by Linn A. Gale, formerly of Mexico City. The boys and girls who are now gunning for Simmon's scalp claim that he pockets all the dough that comes into the imperial cess pool from the diminishing subtreasuries thruout the country. Billy Parker and his associates do not think it fair that Simmons should hog it all. Why can't he be a good fellow, like certain labor fakers who divide the spoils of the game with their lieutenants?

THE klan craze is dying out. It was good while it lasted. The wise lads made enuf money to keep them at arm's length from hard work for the rest of their lives. The patriotic morons had a good time, even if they spent a little money. The more fortunate ones participated in the lynching of a few Negroes, tarred and feathered a few strikers, whipped women in the nude and some of those in the upper circles of klancraft experienced the inestimable joy of starring in rape cases to prove their loyalty to the sanctity of the home and their willingness to die for the preservation of American womanhood from the defiling touch of the non-Nordic alien.

NOTHING much is now left of the klan except several hundred court cases, varying from murder and rape to petty larceny. The klan was one of the greatest collection of cowards ever gathered together in the United States. It never attacked except when it was ten to one. And it is quite likely that the shooting of Glenn Young in Herrin had as much to do with putting the finishing touch to its activity as anything else. Sporadic klan outbursts may be expected in remote regions for some time but as a national factor it is dead.

FARMERS AMAZED AT EXPLOITATION IN STEEL MILLS

Monessen Hell Taught Reason for Strikes

MONESSEN, Pa., April 13.—Monessen held its first farm day for the farmers of the adjoining communities.

These toilers of the land were taken thru the giant steel plants in the city and shown how the poor workers of the city toil to make wire fence and nails.

The nail department will not be forgotten very soon by the farmers. In this department, where hundreds of nail-machines are operated, are employed mostly young boys. They have to stuff cotton into their ears on account of the noise.

They talk with their hands. Their clothes are soaked thru with grease

When they visit the wire drawers they will see a bunch of wrecked manhood. These fellows have to work in lime most of the time. They lose their appetites from this.

Many accidents happen in this department but little is let out about them.

When they visited the open hearth and rod mill they saw the men pour hot metal into kettles, and catching red hot rods as they came out of the rolls.

After these farmers go thru this plant they will know why the workers came out so strong in the great steel strike of 1919.

Two Mining Towns Tied for Leadership

New Orleans and Worcester, Mass., Reach Half Quota

Monessen, Pa., thru the efforts of the Young Workers League and under the guidance of Leo Kauppila tied Pittsburg, Kansas, another mining town for the lead in the Second Annual Sub Campaign.

Milwaukee and Philadelphia did most last week to raise their quota with Detroit right behind. In New Orleans one lone Communist, J. C. Das, without the aid of any party unit, has succeeded in reaching one-half of the quota set, and Worcester, Mass., has hit the same mark. Look to see where your local stands—and decide that something must be done—then do it!

55 PER CENT OF MOTHERS AND WIVES EMPLOYED

Uncle Sam Admits Break Up the Home

By LELAND OLDS,
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Slow disruption of the family by the failure of capitalist industrialism to pay man a living wage is reflected in the report of the U. S. women's bureau on the family status of breadwinning women. The study which covers four typical cities indicates that over 38 per cent of all women over 14 are forced into the ranks of the gainfully employed.

The proportion of breadwinning women to all women over 14 rises to 45 per cent in Jacksonville, Fla., and Passaic, N. J., while in towns like Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Butte, Mont., where industry is predominantly masculine the proportion is just under 30 per cent.

The old assertion that wage earning for women is just a passing stage preceding matrimony is completely exploded by figures which show that over 60 per cent of the breadwinning women in the 4 cities were over 25 and approximately 55 per cent were married.

Over 61 per cent of these breadwinning women who were or had been married were living with breadwinning husbands. Nearly 53 per cent had children and 40 per cent of those mothers had babies under 5. Over two-thirds of the bread winning mothers had wage earning husbands.

"The four cities analyzed," says the report, "may be taken as more or less representative of the country as a whole in the matter of the family status of the over 8½ million breadwinning women. Additional evidence of the universality of these problems is that the proportion of women who were gainfully employed did not rise or fall in any discernable relation to the presence or absence of so-called women-employing industries. Many women in every city or town must earn a living not only for themselves but frequently for dependents and if they lack opportunities in certain directions they must enter any avenues of gainful employment available."

The bureau summarizes the results of the study in part as follows: "Because of present economic organization of society many women are forced by stress of circumstances to become breadwinners. The failure of men to secure a living wage for the family necessitates the entrance of wives and mothers into breadwinning activities outside or within the home. Better wages for men would frequently mean withdrawal of a large group of wives and mothers from breadwinning activities. Better and more extensive mothers' pensions would mean the withdrawal of many more women from breadwinning activities. The coupling of economic responsibilities and domestic duties for women tends to menace the health of women and the happiness of the home."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ONE of the methods used by the capitalist political parties in Britain to replenish their treasuries and perhaps line the individual pockets of their leading members is the exchange of titles to the worthy, who can afford the honor, for pounds sterling. You may recollect the sensation caused by the affair of Ramsay MacDonald, socialist, and Sir Alexander Grant, tory. The honor given, may be the Order of the Garter or of the Bath.

THIS does not mean that the gentlemen so honored have their socks hanging over the heels of their boots for want of something to hold them in line, or that noxious odors are emitted by their bodies for want of a more intimate acquaintanceship with soap and water and the bath tub. Whatever may have been the origin of the titles nowadays they mean nothing except food for the vanity of the rich and an easy way out of financial embarrassment for the ways and means committees of the tory and liberal parties and loyal but poor British politicians.

HIS holiness, the pope, is doing a land office business in titles nowadays. There was a time when only the high and mighty of Europe's aristocracy were eligibles to papal honor. But the catholic aristocracy of Europe is today so poor that there are none too mean to do them honor. They are lucky to find themselves in hot dogs and coffee. So his holiness does not waste good decorations on them. He comes to where the aristocrats repair in search of meal tickets via wives in any physical condition, provided the bank account can stand the critical eye of a penniless baron, duke or count of no account.

THE papal coffers are sadly depleted and the prospects for their replenishment from the savings of the working class catholics of Europe are at [illegible] the dazzling point. There was a time when a pope hard up for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for heroic measures?

THERE is enough money among the newly rich in America to purchase all Saint Anne's shin bones, the fangs of the snakes St. Patrick drove out of Ireland, the million cubic feet of lumber from the sacred cross on which the lowly Nazarene was crucified—in fact, the widowed female relict of a deceased gouty American yeast magnate could purchase the entire output of the vatican's miracle factories for seven centuries and still have enough left to pay for an old fashioned monkey dinner.

BUT to get to the point. Cardinal Mundelein went to Rome recently and returned with a couple of titles for munificent givers to the church. No titles for ordinary workers. They haven't got the cash. Of course, later on, when this last bulwork of capitalism begins to stagger, we may expect labor fakers to receive papal titles, but not yet.

MONDAY'S news told us that a Mrs. Howard Spaulding, age 29, pulchritude passable, financial standing more so, received the title of Matron of the Military Order of the Holy Sepulchre, from Pius. His holiness was quite frank about it. The title was conferred on her because of her benefactions to the church and charity, the two being synonymous terms. Mrs. Spaulding is heiress to the millions of her father, the late John H. Barker, of the Haskell and Barker Car company. This means more benefactions and perhaps more titles. The nearest thing to the holy sepulchre this lady ever saw was her father's wine cellar.

THERE is an element of sardonic humor in the granting of the Military Order of the Holy Sepulchre to Edward J. Fogarty, warden of the Indiana state penitentiary. Fogarty never hunted any infidels from the environs of the spot where the last remains of the rebel Jesus are supposed to be. His contribution to the cause of human progress is being a successful herder of unfortunate human beings, mostly workers, in the living sepulchre, which is the Indiana state penitentiary.

THE papal title will make his job easier for Fogarty. Papal titles are very useful to the American capitalist class in keeping their slaves in subjection. The bourgeoisie are playing a wise game and are missing no opportunity to gain or retain the confidence of the working class, who are not alone slaves to the robber system of capitalism, but to one thousand superstitious inherited from the black past and sedulously cultivated and

IRISH FAMINE HAS THE RICH FARMERS SCARED

Relief Secretary Scores Lying Politicians

By ROBERT STEWART
(Sec'y. W. I. R. Irish Section)

DUBLIN, April 14.—The bye elections being past the press is lifting the ban on the truth about the horrible distress and suffering on the coast. Economic necessity reveals truth even when a government wants none of it. When my report might be questioned or even those of the republicans there steps in the respectable representative of the farmers' congress who drops a bombshell that the Irish newspapers must give heed to. Speaking of Clare, Colonel O'Callaghan Westropp says: "Cattle are dying wholesale, in one district during the past two months 436 cattle roughly valued at ten pounds each had died, all the sheep were dead." He challenged investigation by the department of agriculture (whose chief Hogan T. D. said that there was no famine, in fact that conditions were better than normal.

Colonel Westroop went on to say that in certain areas the people had lost 80 per cent of their live stock, that these people had had no fires for

Illinois Senate to Pass State Cossack Bill Before Break-up

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14. — That the Illinois state legislature will pass a state police bill in some form before adjournment was shown in today's debate on a substitute for the Barr state highway bill offered by Senator Dunlap.

Many senators spoke on the various police bills offered, but none spoke against a state police. The debate was entirely on what form the state police, [illegible] to be used to help break strikes, will take.

Dunlap's substitute provided for a state police force of 450 men. The Barr bill, providing for an unlimited force, is backed by Len Small.

Women's Eight Hour Bill Progresses in Illinois Assembly

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—With legislation in behalf of employed women tetering precariously, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, of Downers' Grove, saw her efforts to overcome the apathy of the house committee on industrial affairs which reported in with the woman's 8-hour bill minus recommendations, bear fruit today when the house voted 103 to 30 to place the bill on the calendar. It now will take its place with other bills in the long procession thru legislative mills.

Armenians Come Back Under Soviets

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Soviet Armenia had 90 per cent as great a crop area last year as before the world war, and it has quadrupled its cotton production in two years, says a report from Erivan to the Russian information bureau in Washington. The Armenians are carrying out a series of large irrigation projects, which absorbed one-third of the national budget in 1924. Shools maintained by the state number 2,344, as compared with 250 in the country before the war. There were 13 agricultural co-operatives in January, 1924. Now there are 10,000.

GENERAL COUNCIL OF BRITISH TRADE UNION CONGRESS JOINS GROWING PROTEST FOR LANZUTSKY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, March 31.—(By Mail.)—The executive of the International Red Aid has received a telegram from Bramley (London), who communicates that the case of the Polish Comrade Lanzutsky, has been taken up by the general council of the British Trade Union Congress. The British trade unions will appoint a delegation which will visit the Polish embassy and protest against the further imprisonment of Comrade Lanzutsky.

The executive of the International Red Aid sent the following telegram to the labor party:

"In connection with the inquiry of your representative at the Polish socialist party as to what measures are to be taken in order to liberate Comrade Lunzutsky with united efforts, we wish to say the following:

"The Polish socialist party sabotages the campaign for the defense of Comrade Lunzutsky; it hinders the meetings called by the Communist Party of Poland and by the members of the sejm. It has, for instance, prevented the meeting organized by the Deputy Skrypa from taking place.

"When two workers were killed in Dombrova by the police. with poisonous gas, the socialist party of Poland justified the police by denouncing the murdered workers as bandits.

"We appeal to you to send a special commission to Poland to investigate right on the spot the base role played by the Polish socialist party."

The executive of the International Red Aid has just received a telegram from London. stating that the Polish embassy has agreed to permit the representative of the Workers' Weekly, Tom Mann, to enter Poland.—Executive of the International Red Aid.

NEW U. S. DEBT ENVOY TRAILS $7,000,000,000

Burton Feels Situation Is "Very Unfavorable"

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Another "unofficial" American debt envoy is going to Europe to survey political and financial conditions and report back to the administration on the chances of collecting some of the $7,000,000,000 in war debts that remain unfunded on the treasury's books.

Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, member of the debt funding commission, is sailing for Europe tomorrow, to spend most of the summer abroad.

Job Mapped Out for Him.

He will go first to Geneva where he will represent the United States at the conference for control of traffic in arms, after which he will go to London and Paris to consult bankers and government officials.

Before departing, representative Burton said the debt situation is "very unfavorable."

Workers Party in Election Campaign in New Jersey Town

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Workers Party local Union Hill, New Jersey, will hold a mass meeting Wednesday night, April 15, at which Francis Steiner, Communist candidate for mayor of Union Hill, and George Pearlman, candidate for councilman at large, will be the principal speakers.

The republican party candidate for mayor is a superintendent of the largest silk mill in the county. The democratic candidate for mayor is a business man, and the republican candidate for councilman at large is a lawyer for the public service corporation, which owns the bus lines and traction system of the town.

BELGIAN SOCIALISTS CALLED BY KING TO FORM GOVERNMENT

BRUSSELS, April 14.—Emil Vandervelde, socialist leader in the Second International and one of the most notorious jingoes produced by the world war, has accepted the invitation of King Albert to form a cabinet.

American workers may think it peculiar that socialists could be trusted by a king with the reigns of his government, but this kingly fear which was once very real no longer exists. The socialists have proven themselves the most devoted servants of royalty in England and Sweden. Vandervelde's past is an unbroken chain of loyalty to the Belgian crown.

Shoe Workers Have Pickets at Seven Struck N. Y. Shops

NEW YORK, April 14.—Members of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union are today picketing the seven shops fo the United Shoe Rebuilding company, whose workers are on strike one hundred per cent to win recognition for their union. When all the other shoe repair shops signed up with the union for a ten dollar increase in wages last week, this concern refused to sign any contract with the union and offered the men individually the same increase in wages if they would sign personal contracts.

This the men naturally refused, since they know that their only safety lies in organization, and they are now fighting for their right to organize and bargain collectively. At first a few individuals were intimidated by the company into agreeing to the personal contracts, but when the strike was called they went out to a man, and now not one of them is working for this concern.

Seeing the unanimity of the men, the owner of the United Shoe Rebuilding company called the police and had Pascal Cosgrove, organizer of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, and Mike Tesky, one of the pickets, arrested for interfering with his "business." They were both released under $500 bail each, and their cases will come up in the Jefferson court.

Meanwhile the strikers' lines are standing firm, the "United" shops are picketed, and if the boss wants to resume repairing shoes he will have to deal with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union.

Fascist Shows His Colors.

MINE OWNERS IN IOWA JOIN DRIVE FOR WAGE CUTS

Demand Miners Return to the 1917 Scale

By J. E. SNYDER.
(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CENTERVILLE, IOWA, April 14.—The mine owners of Iowa are making claims that West Virginia, Kentucky and other non-union coal being shipped into this state is causing them to shut down their mines and that they will have to stay shut down unless the miners are willing to come down to the 1917 scale of $6.00 per day.

The miners are wondering about this claim. Many of them think it only a part of the nation-wide open shop drive and the statement is made at this time to educate the public to help finish the job of driving the miners back to work at the reduced scale when they have been locked out long enough.

5,000 Miners Jobless.

Just a few I met think that the big non-union mines are really putting these small mine owners out of business and killing two birds with one chunk of West Virginia scab coal.

Anyhow there are five thousand miners out of employment, and more mines shutting down every day, merchants are in dispair and traveling men are leaving town without orders. Even the politicians are concerned and thought we should soft peddle our speeches so as not to interfere with a "settlement."

The farmers are being educated as usual to blame the slump in grain prices on the high wages of the miners who force the mine owners to shut down their mines. This same bunch of easy marks believed the story of the merchants' and manufacturers' associations when that bunch of high binders peddled the propaganda that the "child labor amendment would take their children from them and turn them over to the state and forbid the farmer allowing his children to do the chores at home before and after school or even helping the old man during the summer vacation."

Thousand Miners Leave District.

A thousand miners are reported to have left the district in the vicinity of Centerville, Iowa, going largely to the big cities, such as Chicago and Detroit. Two of these are reported to have returned after a two thousand mile trip in search of a job and report that conditions are as bad or even worse elswhere than here, if that were possible. They report that the jobs are all taken and thousands every where hunting for work.

Plutes Inspect Boys

The Chicago Boy's Week Federation, run by business men, will inspect Chicago boys from 14 to 18 years old, and will select the boy, who, from the business men's point of view, will be "America's most valuable citizen in 1950." The children of workers are expected to get scant consideration in this "inspection."

Just Another Spring Rumor.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Coolidge knows of no foundation for reports that Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts is shortly to resign as chairman of the republican national committee, it was stated today.

Nash Motors Threatens Union Machinist

KENOSHA, Wis., April 14.—So efficient is the stool pigeon and blacklist system of Nash Motors Co. that a union tool and die maker was spotted and warned the second day on his job in his Kenosha plant. The worker attempted no union agitation and was on the payroll under an assumed name. It required just one day to check up on him. On the second day the foreman told him to watch his step, that Nash is an open shop and intends to remain so. Then all the hardest and worst work in the shop was given to the newcomer and he quit. Nash pays the Kenosha union scale of 80 cents an hour but will not tolerate union ideas.

MICHIGAN FLOOD PUTS 25,000 ACRES OF CORN UNDER WATER

DETROIT, April 14.— Twenty-five thousand acres of corn extending from Flat Rock to Ypsilanti are under water today as a result of a torrent which swept down the Huron river thru a break in an artificial clay embankment at the Detroit Edison dam at French Landing.

Scores of persons are temporarily homeless and Flat Rock and South Rockwood and Belleville are inundated while several bridges and houses were destroyed by the flood.

The flood was receding today. Fifteen men, women and children were rescued from houses which were partly submerged.

BRIAND UNABLE TO ACCEPT THE PREMIERSHIP

Socialists Would Not Enter His Cabinet

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 14.— Aristide Briand, seven times premier of France, has refused to accept the premiership because of the action of the socialist congress in refusing to enter the cabinet he was forming, it was said this afternoon.

On leaving the chamber at 6:20 o'clock this evening, Briand said:

Briand advised Doumergue to summon Painleve as the man best qualified to act in the crisis.

The senate tomorrow will legalize the Bank of France's over inflation and will authorize the additional emission of four billion francs, the newspaper Liberte declared.

"I am now going to the Elysee Palace to inform President Doumergue that I cannot form a new cabinet."

The condition of the Bank of France is causing considerable worry in government and financial circles. The bank has issued paper beyond the legal limit and has threatened to discontinue business unless a new government is established by Wednesday that will legalize its illegalities.

The hope that an interim cabinet could be formed that would tide France over the present acute crisis proved utopian. In fact, it is not expected that any stability can be secured on this side of the German elections.

Worshippers of the Past.

ROME.— Premier Held of Bavaria, today presented Pope Pius with a replica of the precious code aureas ninth century bible, which now is a treasure of the Munich state library.

SUB-DISTRICT OF MINERS SCORES FARRINGTON

Springfield Meeting Begins Battle

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—The fight of the rank and file vs. the Farrington machine in District No. 12, U. M. W. of A. is on. This undoubtedly means a fight to the finish for the calling of a district convention to take up the many grievances of the rank and file against the machine that have been accumulating for months. At least this was the sentiment of the several thousand miners who gathered in Reservoir Park Sunday to hear Tom Parry, John J. Watt and Freeman Thompson tell about the latest outrage, the illegal attempt to remove Sub-District President Freeman Thompson and Sub-District Secretary-Treasurer John Watt, from office. Not only this grievance was mentioned, but the entire machine was shown up in all the corrupt practices that it has engaged in since the war.

Parry Scores 3-Year Agreement.

The meeting was called to take place for two o'clock, but long before this time the miners began to gather. Tom Parry, who opened the meeting as chairman, said the present deplorable circumstances of the miners can only be understood by investigating cause and effect. We all know the effects because we have felt them, but in order to understand the cause we must go back to the strike of 1919.

He then proceeded to show how this and all other attempts of the rank and file to better their conditions and strengthen their position was blocked by the machine. Finally the three-year agreement, which mainly is responsible for the present condition of the miners, was saddled on their backs. At the time of the signing of the agreement the argument was advanced that it is now time to stop fighting

Less Workers, Less Pay But More Work; This Is the Bosses' Aim

MONTREAL (FP)—Canadian railways in 1924 employed 8,500 fewer persons on the average in 1923. Operating expenses were cut by $28,000,000 and the pay roll by $15,000,000, compared with 1923. Total operating revenues in 1924 were $441,249,000 against $471,236,000 in 1923. The loss was mainly due to the smaller grain crop. Compared with 1919, the railways in 1924 employed 26,000 fewer persons, and the pay roll was $58,000,000 less. The average number of employes was over 7,000 less than in 1913, though the mileage operated was about 50 per cent greater.

DEMOCRACY FOR CAPITALIST ONE THING, FOR PRIVATE SOLDIERS SOMETHING QUITE DIFFERENT

By CARL HAESSLER, Editor Federated Press.

Blowing hot and cold has long been known as a characteristic of the established daily press, but it takes the Chicago Daily Tribune, the most arrogant reactionary paper of the middle west, to do it in the same breath and that on the subject of freedom of speech and opinion.

In its leading editorial of April 10, devoted to the gag placed by the U. S. department of state on Count Karolyi, Hungarian pacifist and liberal, the Tribune says:

> All our recent tendencies have been towards the setting up of a dictatorship of opinion and habit and when a shirtsleeved democracy heads that way it can outdo a belted, spurred and helmeted autocracy . . . We are a long way from first principles when a republican is out of order in the United States.

In its adjoining column, the Tribune editorializes on the ferocious sentences of 40 and 26 years' imprisonment imposed by a U. S. court-martial on two soldiers in Hawaii for expressing Communist opinions and organizing a Communist league:

> The sentences may seem excessive but they will not when the offense is examined . . . We know that most of the American reds are loony and this attempt to corrupt the loyalty of the army may have been loony, but it was made in the most important military post in American control. Organizing sedition in the army is different from preaching it from a soap box. Therefore the severe penalty.

To this second editorial the Tribune's first would seem a sufficient answer. The American Civil Liberties Demand Release of Crouch and Trumbull!

Statement of Workers Party of America

CAPITALIST militarism is a beast fattening on the bodies of humans. Even in times of peace this moloch devours its prey. The only welcome for the recruit entering the ranks of the army or navy would be the inscription placed by the imagination of Dante at the gates of hell: "All Ye Who Enter Here Leave Hope Behind."

News reaches here from Hawaii that a number of soldiers stationed there are accused of the horrible crime of not believing what the secretary of war in Washington prescribes as the official political idea. A number of these boys have been cited before a court martial. One of them, Paul Crouch was sentenced to 40 years imprisonment. Another, Walter Trumbull was sentenced to 26 years of imprisonment with hard labor. A number of others still await trial.

And what was the crime for which these atrocious sentences were meted out? These men were accused of having studied Esperanto, of sympathizing with Soviet Russia, and of having attempted to organize a Communist league in Hawaii. All of these "crimes" are the perfectly legal right of every citizen of the United States. But a court martial whose members have been crazed by a red flag declares that these deeds when committed by a soldier in uniform are capital crimes and punishable by a living death in prison.

If the accused had been millionaire robbers like Doheny, or grafting politicians like Fall who have cheated the United States out of millions, a benevolent court would have found some error in the indictment in order to save their precious hides.

But because the accused are only simple soldiers in the ranks their sympathies with the working class and their belief that capitalism might not be the last word in social development, becomes cause for them to be condemned to a life of hard labor in prison. If they had been rich and merely accused of murder, the law would have provided for some loophole for them to creep out. But the soldier who believes things that the government says he must not believe cannot expect mercy.

Words fail to characterize this atrocity of the moloch of American militarism. Millions in the United States must raise their voices in protest against this crime. They must raise their voices so loud that the beast will drop its prey.

Immediate release of those sentenced and accused; impeachment of the maniacs who indicted and passed judgment upon these soldiers; abolition of court martial; and a guarantee of civil trials before a jury for every soldier charged with an offense; those are the demands that must be taken up by the masses of the workers thruout the country and must be fought for vigorously.

RELIGIOUS WAR RAGING AMONG CZECHO-SLOVAKS

City of Prague Taxes Catholic Parents

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, April 14—There is a religious war going on in Czecho-Slovakia, scarcely less violent than the one which was recently liquidated in France by the complete surrender of the socialists to the vatican.

Under the old Austrian empire the catholic priests were state employes. Owing to the numerical strength of the catholics, the republic felt itself obliged to continue this policy in part. The government of Edouard Benes, foreign minister, is based on a coalition between the socialists, national socialists, national democrats, farmers' party and catholics. Benes is now trying to get rid of the latter from his government bloc so that he can accomplish the separation of church and state, without losing his official head.

The workers of Prague, impatient over the dilatoriness of Benes took the bull by the horns a few weeks ago and passed a law imposing special religious taxes on catholic parents.

Commission on Miracles.

One of the recent contributions to the gayety of nations was the establishment of a commission to determine whether the preservation of the tongue of St. John of Nepemuth was genuine or not. The catholic church has made considerable money out of John's tongue. The saint was the confessor of Wenel II, who was a jealous old dog. The king pressed the saint to divulge the secrets told by his wife in the confessional, regarding her love affairs. When the priest refused, the monarch cast him over a bridge. When the saint was dug out of his grave 300 years afterwards, a tongue was found among the remains. The story does not say whether the tongue was wagging or not. However, John was canonized.

How the commission can determine whether the miracle is genuine or not is a problem.

SUPREME COURT RULES FOR 'OPEN SHOP' BUILDERS

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—The United States supreme court made another one of its many rulings in favor of the employers when it refused to intervene in the suit charging San Francisco builders with violating the Sherman anti-trust law. The builders, it was claimed, combined to force the building contractors to operate on a non-union "open shop" basis, and withheld supplies from union concerns.

"The government is powerless to intervene unless material restraint of interstate commerce is shown," was the court's ruling.

The supreme court denied a rehearing to the Pennsylvania Mining company in a suit claiming treble damages from the United Mine Workers' Union for "property damage" in the Arkansas strike.

Different Dose of Democracy for Private Soldier and Capitalist

Union, which has the benefit of highly trained counsel, points out in protesting to Washington that the sentences were grossly excessive and that American soldiers have the legal right to belong to the Workers (Communist) Party and to believe in the Soviet form of government. "These men are being improperly tried for their political views," the Union states.

Looking beyond the fate of the radical enlisted men, the interesting thing in the Tribunes exhibition is its capacity to hurrah for freedom in one line and to combat it savagely in the next. This open contradiction is the result of its pretense of independence, altho sold to the hilt to the financial interests. A pacifist from Hungary gives this type of paper a chance to cater to liberal readers. But freedom among capitalism's hired fighters is different.

Every Boost a Knock—And Vice Versa.

The game is a losing one. One big reason for the defeat of the Chicago traction ordinance Apr. 7, as for the defeat of many measures and many men before it, was that it had the enthusiastic support of both the Tribune and its evening counterpart, The Chicago Daily News.

STEEL TRUST "QUIET, IMMOVABLE, SATISFIED AND STEADY," ON PRICES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 14.—Chairman E. H. Gary of the U. S. Steel corporation denied this afternoon that the directors of the corporation were seriously considering further reductions of prices of steel products.

"We are sitting perfectly quiet, steady, and immovable, and we are satisfied," Judge Gary said.

Coal Miners Score Farrington

and make peace. Parry, in showing the fallacy of this argument, showed how the miners are now paying the price with unemployment, etc.

Watt Talks of Machine Rule.

John Watt, the second speaker, pointed out that the condition of the miners as well as the miners' union was sinking lower and lower and unless the rank and file made a determined stand, sooner or later the union would be totally destroyed by the methods of the machine.

It is the policy of those in power in the miners' union not only in District No. 12, but the national organization as well to get rid of all the best fighters in the U. M. W. of A., Watt pointed out. He showed how the machine ousted Howat, Meyerscough, McLachlan and others for no other reason than that they fought for the interests of the rank and file.

Thompson Makes Great Speech.

Freeman Thompson covered the situation in detail, giving documentary evidence of the corruption and misleadership of the Farrington machine. Thompson spoke for over one hour, but interest was sustained thru out. It was the hottest day of the year and all those present had to stand thruout the speaking. Nevertheless, hardly a man left before the meeting had ended. Thompson finished his talk with a ringing call to action.

His appeal was met with extended cheers from the audience. It was the battle cry of thousands of outraged miners in this sub-district and it will be heard not only in the state of Illinois, but its echo will carry to every nook and hamlet thruout the United States where there are any rank and file miners.

POLISH WHITE GUARDS FAIL TO STOP RADWANSKI

"Orders from Higher Up," Says Cop

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 14.—Despite unheard of efforts of the white guard Polish agents in Cleveland, acting in combination with the police department to break up Comrade Radwanski's protest meeting against the atrocious white terror against the working class of Poland, the meeting was very successful. In fact the white guard opposition only aroused the spirit of the audience.

From "Higher Up" Say Cop

A police captain and a corps of plainclothes dicks were present, and the captain announced that upon "orders from higher up" he would not allow a collection to be taken to defray the hall rent.

All day previous to the meeting the owner of the hall was telephoned to by a Polish reactionary lawyer and other anonymous skunks trying to intimidate him into closing the hall and preventing the meeting.

A White Guard Rebuked

This failed, however. And at the meeting itself only one reactionary had the gall to take the floor—and he did not end the attempt happily. At once he opened his mouth and began to attack Rakwanski the Polish workers in the audiance rose up on all sides to denounce him as a fake labor leader and an enemy of the workers. They shook their fists under his nose so menacingly that he changed his mind about making any extended oration and subsided.

Radwanski made an excellent speech and kept the audience with him from first to last.

Alleged Victim of K. K. K. Ex-Dragon Dies from Poison

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 14.—After clinging tenaciously to life since March 15 when she swallowed poison, following an alleged criminal attack, Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, died at her home here today.

Miss Oberholtzer, before she became unconscious fifteen days ago, accused D. C. Stephenson, Indiana politician and former K. K. K. organizer, of kidnaping her and criminally attacking her in a sleeping car enroute to Hammond, Ind.

Immediately upon learning that the girl had died, Charles E. Cox, attorney retained by Miss Oberholtzer's parents to assist the state in prosecuting Stephenson, said an attempt would be made to have the county grand jury indict the former klan leader on a murder charge.

While the poison which caused Miss Oberholtzer's death was self-administered, Attorney Cox contends that a murder indictment is returnable because of Stephenson's alleged refusal of medical aid when he learned of the girl's condition.

Stephenson is under indictment on five charges returned on information given the grand jury by Miss Oberholtzer's parents. They allege assault with intent to commit a criminal attack, malicious mayhem, kidnaping and conspiracy to kidnap.

CLOTHING SHOP REMAINS IDLE

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., April 14.—Injunctions which failed to produce clothing in the open shop of the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills at Rock Island seem to have aided in permanently closing the plant. It has not tried to run since the receivership. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union was active in organizing the workers last summer. Gunmen, judges and the company were active in opposition.

DELEGATES ARE RE-ELECTED BY SEATTLE LOCALS

Hold Central Council Acted Illegally

SEATTLE, Wash., April 14—(By Mail)—Three out of the six delegates arbitrarily declared unseated from the Central Labor Council by Jepsen's illegal ruling, have been given new credentials and returned by their local unions as delegates to the council. They were declared unseated because they were Communists.

Joe Havel, of the Stenographers Bookkeepers and Office Employes Local 16,304, was given a vote of confidence by his local and along with new credentials the local is addressing a letter to the council demanding that members of organized labor should be guaranteed the right of political belief and stating that Havel is entitled to his seat in the council as having been as good a union man as anyone.

The others returned already are Paul K. Mohr of the Bakers' Union and H. G. Price of the Machinists Lodge 79. M. Hansen and W. H. Jones of the Painters Local 300 have not yet been returned, their local being still engaged in discussion on the matter and no vote has yet been taken.

A series of mass meetings, both indoors and on the streets, are being carried on by the Communist members of Seattle unions to explain to the whole city the disruption of the unions by the reactionaries.

Illinois to Pay the Cost of Stock Yards Sewage Waste System

Members of the city council committee on committees, whose principal task will be to select a new chairman of the transportation committee, have left for Miami, Fla., where they will complete the committee organization for the next council.

A small group of aldermen insist that no alderman who supported Dever's traction steal be appointed to the transportation committee.

The new sanitary district sewage disposal construction program, which will cost a total of $265,000,000, in the next 20 years provides for expenditures of $2,000,000 to take care of stock yards waste, it has been revealed.

Japan Forbids Study of Social Science in the Tokio University

KOBE, Japan —(FP) —Repressive measures are being taken by the Japanese minister for education, to halt the radical tendencies in Tokio university. Not only has he supported introducing military officers to conduct drill, but he is stopping students from discussing social problems, and has forbidden plays having a radical color.

A social science discussion club at the Keyoto high school has been disbanded by official order. Students must confine themselves to the exact sciences, leaving human affairs to the

Pepper Wants More Power

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—The suit of Frank Myers, former postmaster of Portland, Oregon, who was appointed by President Wilson and removed from office by President Harding before his full term had expired for his full salary is now in the hands of the supreme court of the United States. Senator Pepper appeared on behalf of the senate and argued that the president's right to discharge government employes is limited by congress.

GREEN JUBILANT AT KILLING OF LAW HOWAT HIT

'Open Shop' Does Work; A. F. of L. Praises Self

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—The officials of the American Federation of Labor who hounded Alexander Howat out of the Kansas Miner's Union, after he had broken the power of the Kansas industrial court law, are now hypocritically claiming the credit for the supreme court decision formally nullifying the strikebreaking law.

Howat was denied a fair trial by the international board of the United Mine Workers of America, of which William Green, then secretary of the organization, was a member. Now Green, as president of the A. F. of L. says, "The supreme court has re-established the charter rights of labor as laid down by the American constitution."

Howat Struck Mines

It was Alexander Howat, then president of the Kansas Miner's Union, who insisted on the right to strike and despite the court law, struck the Kansas coal mines. Howat smashed the power of the law and defeated Allen, the sponsor of the law, when he endeavored to be re-elected as governor on the issue of the industrial court. Howat served nearly two years in jail for his work in combatting the strikebreaking law.

The Kansas law "forced both labor and capital to submit to arbitration and comply with the decision of the arbitration tribunal."

Green a Hypocrit

Although Green declares, "The decision leaves labor free to bargain collectively with employers, and American labor can new enter an era of new progress," it is noticeable that it was not the efforts of the A. F. of L. officialdom which brought the supreme court decision.

The suit which brought the industrial court law before the supreme court was entered by the Charles Wolff Packing company of Topeka, an open shop concern which objected to even "arbitration" with unions. It was the decision on this case that dealt the formal blow to the Kansas court law.

Sullivan, Town of Recent Mine Blast, Hit by Near Tornado

SULLIVAN, Ind., Apr. 14—Residents of the northwestern part of Sullivan were busy today repairing partly wrecked houses and wiring damaged by a tornado which passed high above this city last night, coming near enough to earth in places to unroof houses and beat down telephone poles.

No casualities were reported and the twister confined its destruction to a dozen buildings which were unroofed, electric wires and trees.

Sullivan recently witnessed a mining disaster in which many miners were killed.

At Komono the storm lifted the roofs from several houses, damaged three garages and carried Curtis Dukes about fifty feet, without injuring him.

Fort Wayne and Plymouth also reported small property losses from the storm.

Inventor of First American Auto Dies

KOKOMO, Ind., April 14—Elwood Haynes, inventor of the first American automobile, is dead here. Automobile manufacturers are now coining millions of dollars from Haynes' invention, but Haynes, like many inventors, did not participate in the profits of Henry Ford and the other big capitalists who founded their enterprises on his invention.

It was on July 4, 1894, that Haynes drove his "horseless carriage" thru the streets of Kokomo at about eight miles an hour.

Haynes was born at Portland, Indiana, on Oct. 14, 1857.

Find Traces of Poisoning.

GARY, Ind., April 14.—Definite traces of arsenic have been found in the vital organs of Walter Cunningham, youngest son of Mrs. Anna Cunningham, 47, Indiana's alleged "poisoning mother." Dr. W. D. McNally, coroner's chemist of Cook county, Illinois, reported to Indiana authorities here this afternoon.

A "Three Minute" Cyclone

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—Eight persons were nursing minor injuries here today as the result of Springfield's "three minute" cyclone. Rain and hail roared thru the city on a 60-mile gale, beating in plate glass windows and ripping the tops from automobiles. The mad spasm of the elements passed as quickly as it came.

"For the Mikado!"

TOKYO, April 14.—Two Japanese naval aviators were killed today when their plane fell 3,000 feet while flying over Kasumigaura airdrome, near Tokyo.

Socialist Farewell to Traitor Abramovich Is Funeral of Dead Hopes

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the "socialist leadership" in this country plans biding farewell to Raphael Abramovich, traitor of the Russian revolution. It will be pretty much in the form of a funeral over dead hopes.

At the same time great masses of American workers will shout "Farewell! And good riddance! Bother us no more!"

• • • •

The coming of Abramovich, anti-Soviet agent of the Second (socialist) International to this country, has had several results, all of them beneficial to the growth of Communism in this country.

It has revealed clearer than ever the alliance of the isolated "socialist leadership" in the United States with the Russian counter-revolution; its sympathy with the emigre anti-Soviet plotters of Berlin and Paris.

It exposed to America's workers the only remaining task of the Second (socialist) International; an ally of capitalism in the war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. It thus made clearer to America's workers, who sadly lack an international viewpoint, the big issue at stake in the struggle between the Communist International and the "socialist" international.

It brought nearer home and made concrete this war of capitalist rule against Soviet rule, when policemen's clubs, at all of Abramovich's meetings, descended on the heads of workers who disagreed with the traitor-spokesman of the "socialist" international. It showed how the American capitalist state rallies to the aid of the "socialists" in the attack on the Communist idea This has become crystal clear even to workers barely on the brink of Communist sympathy.

• • • •

It was surely not the intention of Abramovich, Hillquit, Cahan and Berger, that these should be the results of the lengthy tour of the United States so carefully planned. Not at all.

It was intended, of course, that Abramovich was to deal a death blow to Communism in this country, thru his "exposure" of Bolshevik rule, and to prevent recognition by the United States of the Soviet Union. In this he had the enthusiastic support, not only of the "socialists," but also of the bureaucracy in control of the American Federation of Labor, not to mention the whole capitalist press. It was all to be accomplished under the mask of "democracy."

• • • •

But the large numbers of Communist workers, especially Jewish Communist workers, attending Abramovich's meeting, quickly tore this hypocritical mask off the "socialist" agent of world reaction. He was forced into the open; to to stand before America's workers trying to argue that there was not one bright spot in the Bolshevik revolution. But, unfortunately, in that same hour America's workers were getting acquainted with the glowing report made officially by the British trade union delegation to the Soviet Republics; and the Japanese government was also according recognition to the Soviet Power.

All this left Abramovich with no definite place to hide his nakedness. All that was left to him were his frantic denunciations against Soviet Russia, that were faithfully reported in the "socialist" press, either in the English-language "Leader," or the Jewish-language Daily Forward; all of which found a natural echo in the dwindling audiences that greeted Abramovich as he made his inglorious way westwards to the Pacific Coast. If the police, the thugs and stool pigeons of the "socialists" on the one hand, and the Communist workers on the other hand, had not attended his gatherings Abramovich would indeed have been lonesome.

• • • •

It is rumored that the "socialists" are trying to bring a twin Abramovich, J. Ramsay MacDonald, former "socialist" premier of Great Britain, to this country for another tour. Let him come. He will prove more grist for the American Communist mill.

Ford Seeks to Buy Out Company Making His Freight Planes

DETROIT, Mich., April 14.—Directors of the Stout Metal Airplane Co., at a secret meeting this afternoon, will be asked to vote on an offer from the Ford Motor company to buy out their concern.

This is the outstanding development following the inauguration Monday of Ford company's private freight air line to Chicago, soon to embrace other cities.

Henry Ford declared that the Ford company is determined to make a success of commercial aviation.

"We don't care what it costs," Ford said.

The Stout company built the "Maiden Dearborn," used yesterday in the first air freight experiment.

Deportation Hearing for Communist Editor Is Set for April 18

Hearing on the deportation warrant issued against S. Zinich, editor of Radnik, the Croatian-language radical paper, will commence here April 18. The department of labor seeks to deport him to the reactionary country of Jugo-Slavia, on technical grounds and because of "disbelief in organized government" and advocating over throw of the U. S. government by force. Zinich is a Communist. He is the fourth foreign-language Communist editor to be the target of deportation proceedings in recent months. Of the others George Halonen, a Finn, fought them successfully, while Eugene Vajtauer, a Czecho-Slovak, and John Lassen, a Hungarian, are still in danger. The Labor Defense council, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, is managing Zinich's defense.

THOUSANDS OF PARENTS GO TO ALBANY TO FIGHT FOR N. Y. TEACHERS BILL

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 14.—Resolutions adopted by labor unions, petitions with hundreds of signatures by individuals and a delegation of thousands of parents and members are working for the Ricca teachers' salary bill here today

In urging Governor Smith to sign the bill they will prove that Mayor Hylan's recent statement against the bill was an attempt to head off the growing sentiment for the bill in order to protect the interests of certain realty associations which have opposed this bill and all other similar increased expenditures for educational purposes.

World Financiers To Seek Trade Agreement At Brussels Meeting

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14—Further attempts to increase profits by means of international trade combinations, will be made when the international chamber of commerce meets in Brussels on June 21, the American section of the chamber announced here.

Big business from forty different nations will be represented at the six day session, comprising over 200 financiers and industrialists. A discussion of the Dawes plan will have an important place on the program.

ROUMANIAN WORKERS ARE HUNGRY

VIENNA, Austria, April 14.—The fascist Roumanian government will soon be compelled to resort to enforcing "breadless days," as the wheat scarcity here is becoming acute, altho Roumania is an agricultural country.

The bakers are selling adulterated bread, consisting partly of a wheat, rye and corn meal mixture.

LEWIS IN NOVA SCOTIA BOOSTS COLLABORATION

Praises Capitalist Premier.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, April 14.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is in Nova Scotia supposedly to "aid" the strikers of District 26 against the British Empire Steel corporation (Besco) who struck following a practical lockout put on by the company to force wage reductions.

The best John L. is doing, however, is to compliment Premier Armstrong for calling a conference to talk about the conflict. The conference will doubtless recommend some scheme of class collaboration. It is to be held at Halifax, and Lewis, in taking the sycophantic attitude toward the provincial government is following his habit of always bowing and scraping lackey-like before government authority even when it is sending troops against his union members.

In the nation-wide strike of the miners in the United States Lewis gave up when Judge Anderson issued an injunction, saying "We cannot fight against the government." This is the method he is following here instead of demanding that the government save the lives of the starving miners as a measure of public protection by seizing the mines and putting the miners to work under union management at the union scale.

Teachers' Salaries Discussed In Star Chamber Session

TEACHERS SALARIES

The finance committee of the board of education went into secret session yesterday afternoon considering the new teachers' salary schedule. All morning the finance committee talked about titles and increase of salaries of individuals in the superintendent's and business manager's offices. These matters were taken up in regular open sessions.

Superintendent McAndrew's office put in a request for $1,500 to be used for sending a special lobbyist to Springfield to work with the board's attorneys for pushing educational bills.

When this motion was being put thru Miss Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' Federation requested the floor and made the suggestion that the motion include a clause that the board's representative will receive his instructions from the board of education and not from the superintendent with reference to the measures he is to work for. She argued that since the superintendent has withdrawn from the teachers the right to take leave of absence to go to Springfield to work for teachers' bills, the teachers would be compelled to depend on the board representative for their lobbying. She was ruled out of order by the chairman, Trustee Julius Smetanka.

Proposed "Improved" Conditions Reveal Shanghai Slavery

SHANGHAI, China, April 14.—The whole caboodle of tax payers of the city are being called in by the municipal council to see if they (the tax payers) will agree to an ordinance forbidding child labor in the textile mills. Things are so fixed that it will require a full quorum of the tax payers present to make any action effective. If these take a notion to boycott their annual meeting, or to vote against the measure, child slavery will continue.

There are 22,000 children under ten years of age now working in the mills. These are the only ones covered by the proposal, altho tens of thousands more from ten upward are among the mill workers. After four years of the proposed measure, it provides that 12 years shall be the minimum age.

The conditions of the Shanghai textile workers are atrocious. Even the proposed bill, put out as it is to placate the workers and compromise any effort to stop the spread of unionism, provides for a 12-hour day and seven days a week with only one day off every two weeks. These are the "improved" conditions the British territorial government is trying to set up as a "precedent for all China."

Probe Freight Rate Boost.

WASHINGTON, April 14—The interstate commerce commission today ordered an investigation of the proposal of several railroads to increase commodity freight rates on grain and grain products in carloads from Chicago, Peoria, Cairo, Ill., St. Louis and related points to Alliance, Ravena and other points.

OIL TRUST ASKS CAL TO SPEED SOVIET TREATY

Sinclair Tears Hair Over Concession

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Of course there is nothing to this Japanese oil concession, secured from Russia in the Russo-Japanese recognition treaty, to worry the Coolidge administration. The White House has spent the week making that perfectly clear. If Japan has secured a naval oil supply at her own door, and if the Soviet Union has thereby made itself popular in Japan, and if American prestige in the Far East is thereby somewhat dimmed, what of it?

True, the administration is deeply concerned that American companies should get as many foreign oil fields as possible. The race for oil is the race on which, apparently, depends the future commercial conquest of the world. Sinclair had an even better concession from the Soviets, in Russian Saghalien, than has now been given the Japanese. An American company has a still stronger cinch on an oil field in China.

Sinclair After Recognition.

Sinclair has until January, 1928—so he contends in a brief filed with the state department—to make good his concession in Saghalien. He denies that the recent decision of a Moscow court that he has forfeited his privilege by failure to overcome Japanese refusal to permit him to bore for oil, is binding. If the administration were to recognize the Soviet Union, Sinclair might get half of that Saghalien oil.

Must Recognize Russia.

Sinclair's concealed press bureau has brought up the fact that Japan is already indignant because the American grand fleet is starting maneuvers off Hawaii. It has reminded the public that Japanese-American relations were strained by the unfairness of the immigration ban, and that only the gentlest tone on the part of the United States can avert a serious dispute with Tokyo. It has shown that American interests threatened by Japan cannot be protected unless the Washington government either makes friends with Russia or takes a chance of war with the Japanese.

Wilson Monarchist His Lawyer.

Former Secretary Lansing, who now appears as Sinclair's lawyer, has filed a formal brief and various other written arguments with the state department. He has been conspicuous as a friend and entertainer of Russian monarchist refugees, and hence his appeal to the department cannot be tainted with any love for the Soviet Union. He speaks as a business lawyer, for American business interests that are hungry for profits from oil fields in the Russian Far East.

Doheny, when trying to get around the Mexican revolutionary constitution and save his oil wells in Mexico, employed McAdoo as his agent. Sinclair, dealing with a reactionary administration operated by an admirer of Morgan and Mellon gives a retainer to Lansing. Of course, Coolidge is not to be influenced in his hostility to Soviet Russia. But business is business especially when it is the oil business.

Borah Urges Treaty.

Sen. Borah has held secret conferences with Coolidge and his secretary of state, discussing with them the danger of further delay in recognizing the Soviet Union, it is reported here.

Borah has, beyond question, been talking with Coolidge in this subject. He has pointed out the significance of Japan's getting a fuel supply for her navy right at her door, and has not failed to point out that the immigration dispute has made it very difficult for Washington to approach Tokyo in a threatening tone just at present. If Saghalien oil is to be shared by American companies, the road to that happy end is thru recognition of Moscow and a business-like talk with the practical men in the Soviet government. It is wholly unlikely that Borah has talked with Kellogg, who has no power of decision on policies.

MEXICO CITY. (Weekly Letter.)—A new imperialism would like to enter into the Mexicon field to embarrass the United States rather than to dispute seriously the possession of the rich mineral resources of Mexico.

The Japanese government, seeing the inevitability of a war with the United States is looking for alliances in Latin-America to annoy its enemy "from behind the lines."

Curiously enough, it is entering the field in truly American fashion under an idealistic banner. The Japanese government has intimated that it would pit an anti-imperialist movement of Latin-America against American imperialism.

Naturally, the anti-imperialist movement of Latin-America which is organizing under the banner of the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League rejects the aid of Japanese imperialism. That will not prevent the American papers and even the American servants in the government of Mexico from calling the anti-imperialist movement "pro-Japanese" when the Americo-Japanese situation gets serious.

Results of American Propaganda

The anti-Japanese and anti-Chinese agitation in Mexico is the answer of American propaganda to Japanese. In certain states it is favored by economic conditions—in the west the problem of cheap Chinese labor, in Tampico competition between small Mexican industries and Chinese industries, and in general the competition between the Spanish grocery owners and the Chinese and Japanese (the Mexicans own almost no groceries). The Spanish speaking the same language as the Mexicans, are taking advantage of the agitation to deal the much more competent and successful Chinese and Japanese grocers a death blow.

Workers Support Striking Teachers

The teachers of Tampico, Orizaba, Veracruz and Puebla are on strike for non-payment of salaries. The labor movement is supporting them and the schools are closed.

Obregon Goes to Europe

It is reported that ex-President Obregon is going to Europe as extraordinary envoy of Mexico. It is also rumored that he will seek alliances and capital investments to partially offset American control of Mexico.

Want Men Who Won't Sell Out

The frankness of the leaders of the Mexican Federation of Labor in their policy of class collaboration, prevention of strikes, expulsion of Communist and other militants, and fascisti nationalist unionism is beginning to arouse opposition in some of its most powerful unions. In Tampico it has lost control of the unions which have formed "the united front" as it is called there, a local organization of all unions of the port of Tampico which pays no attention to the leaders of the federation. In Veracruz the new Federation of Sea and Land Workers, affiliated with the Federation of Labor, adopted a resolution declaring that its activity is based on the class struggle. In Orizaba, the largest textile center of Mexico, and home of yellow unionism, Pro-Paria, local organ of the unions there, angered by the declaration of Moneda, national secretary of the federation, that he would fight unauthorized strikes, has published two editorials attacking the present leadership of the organization, and demanding the substitution of men "who will not sell out when they get into power."

Heedless of these growing warnings, the leaders of the Federation of Labor continue their plans to hamstring their own unions and destroy the independent ones such as the port workers of Tampico, the railroaders, etc.

Minister of the Treasury Alberto Pani has been the object of heavy attack during the past week in one of the supposedly administration papers here El Globo.

Not only he, but the whole treasury department and the famous Lamont-de la Huerta treaty which recognizes the debts of Mexico to the American and European bankers, puts Mexico under a sort of modified Dawes plan, obligates it to pay over a billion dollars, indemnify property injured in the revolution, and return the government owned railroads to private hands.

Only Bargaining

Every feature of the treaty has been attacked in one or another of the papers. Curiously enough, the big conservative daily El Universal has been carrying attacks against the return of the railroads, written by the Mexican minister to Italy. It is difficult to decide to what extent the government has been favoring the attack against the Lamont-de la Huerta treaty in an effort to get more faverable conditions for its bankrupt treasury, from the American bankers. But when El Globo turned the attack into a personal one against the minister of the treasury, President Calles had to answer defending his minister and attacking the administration paper and its editor. It is generally accepted that Pani is the go-between for the American bankers and the Calles government and this may have somethink to do with Calles's public defense of him and the repudiation of the attacks.

Rail Strike Inevitable

The deficit in the national railroads for the first six months of 1924 was a million and three-quarters in American dollars. As the Mexican government by the Lamont-de la Huerta treaty has pledged itself to return these railroads to American owners, they must reduce the deficit. To do this they are abolishing passes, reducing personnel and salaries and preparing to break the railway unions. The leaders of the Mexican Federation of Labor, faithful as ever to the government, are preparing to aid this destruction of the rail unions. All other forces in the country, independent unions, Communists and even the unions of the federation which are not entirely servile to the leadership are preparing to help the railwaymen. The strike is inevitable altho the government is cleverly delaying it and demoralizing the rail unions by fantastic attacks and partial retreats. The strike will be decisive for the whole labor movement of Mexico.

America's Stranglehold On Mexico

Since 1918 claims for over 200 million dollars have been made against Mexico for damages to property caused by the revolution, without counting claims presented this year. Most of these remain unsettled. The Lamont-de la Huerta treaty provides the submission of those of the United States citizens to arbitration. The arbitration tribunal has begun to function and many more claims are being presented.

MOISSAYE OLGIN TO SPEAK IN RUSSIAN IN CHICAGO, FRIDAY

What promises to be one of the most interesting lectures given in Chicago in the Russian language is the lecture to be given by Comrade Moissaye Olgin, co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. He will speak at the Workers' Home (formerly the Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St., on Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m., on "What did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants?"

Comrade Olgin was in Russia a few times during the revolution as delegate to the Comintern. He is the author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and other works about the revolution. He is an excellent speaker and it is expected that he will draw a big crowd of those who understand the Russian language. Admission is only 25 cents.

Sailing of Teapot Domer Brings Tears to American Legion

NEW YORK, April 14.—When the party of Theodore Roosevelt sailed from here on the first leg of their trip to explore wild regions in Asia, north of India, the American Legion took a prominent part in the reception. The Nassau county American Legion presented Roosevelt with a traveling bag and a large delegation from the national organization bid the young Teapot Domer farewell.

Roosevelt took the order transferring the Teapot Dome oil leases from the navy to the interior department to Warren Harding for his signature, and was a participant in the various stages of the bribery of Secretary of the Interior Fall.

Prepare for Publicity Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Replies to the government's complaints against newspapers for publishing individual income tax payments were filed todya wit hthe supreme court by Senator Reed, of Missouri, for the Kansas City Journal-Post, and by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker for the Baltimore Post.

Graft in School Board.

Graft within the Chicago schools system came to light when it was discovered that the board of education approved the expenditure of $65,000 annually to Frank J. McAdams, engineer custodian at the Englewood high school and the Lewis-Champlin elementary school, as "compensation."

Boost Price of Bread.

SARAOGSSA, Spain.—Several bakers were under arrest here today charged with making illegal advances in the price of bread.

KEPT EDITOR IN OKLAHOMA HITS AT COMMUNISM

Tool of Soviet-Hating U. S. Congressman

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

OKLAHOMA, CITY, Okla., April 14.—One of the bitterest, most credulous and persistent enemies of Soviet Russia and the Communist philosophy in Oklahoma is Waldo G. Clegg, editorial echo for Congressman M. C. Garber at Enid. Each day Clegg "dishes up opinions" for the Enid news and Daily Eagle. First of all, an explanation of his circumstances is not amiss.

Congressman Garber, an old school republican machine politician and Clegg's employer, seems to have one pet obsession which is a fear that the American working class some time will abandon its unprotesting acceptance of custom and tradition, refuse to follow its present leaders—the rich men who "farm" and exploit it—and break the economic and political power of these ancient worthies. Garber is rated a millionaire and probably would be a supremely hoppy man but for the shadow of Soviet Russia with its flaming, red banner—emblem of human brotherhood—which crosses his path by day and possibly intersperses his slumbers with horrible nightmares.

Garber is afraid to attack the ku klux klan thru his papers, but Zinoviev, Kamenev and other Soviet chieftains, with the "iron legions of the proletariat" behind them, are at Moscow—a long distance from Oklahoma—so Garber concentrates all his class hate and venom on them.

For such a capitalist master Clegg is the ideal tool. When the DAILY WORKER'S traveling reporter was investigating conditions in Enid he learned that Clegg, altho compelled to struggle hard to "get by" himself, is completely and hopelessly indoctrinated with the beliefs of the big rich.

Several times weekly Clegg repeats the usual run of shopworn misrepresentations relative to the Communists and Russia. Fear of the Russian Bolsheviks has prayed on him so much that try as he may he cannot banish these bogey men from his thought processes.

Were palsy suddenly to stop the hands with which Clegg pounds out his vials of hate against Communism or were blindness to overtake him, Garber his millionaire employer, probably would not have any further use for him. Most cold-blooded capitalists junk palsied and blind men, like pieces of wornout machinery, and so it is not a wild conjecture to prophecy that Clegg, despite his present aggressive hatred of Communist philosophy, would be thrown into the discard also.

Tikhon, Harmless Old Man, Who Had Little Influence, Is Buried

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., April 14.—The funeral of Tikhon, before the Soviet revolution patriarch of the Russian Greek church, marked the passing of a harmless old man, who had for some time taken no part in politics.

Tikhon was arrested by the Soviet government, when, during the year of the famine, he refused to give up church treasures to feed the dying famine victims.

In spite of his crime against the starving workers, Tikhon was well treated, having a room to himself in the Donskoy monostary. Tikhon was released when he promised not to fight the Soviet government.

CLASS WAR BETWEEN EMPLOYERS AND WORKERS BROUGHT SENTENCES TO JAIL IN PATERSON, N. J., COURTS

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, April 14.—The class struggle, not an outworn and unconstitutional law, was behind the conviction and sentence of Roger N. Baldwin and seven Paterson silk strikers, says a statement by Baldwin.

The director of the American Civil Liberties Union intended to read his statement in open court before sentence was pronounced but this privilege, usually accorded prisoners, was denied by Justice Delaney of the court of common pleas. After citing the bill of rights guarantees for free assemblage and showing that the strikers conducted themselves peacefully, all the violence being on the side of the police, he says:

War Against Silk Strikers.

"What is really behind this case is of course, the struggle between two classes in society—the working class and the employing class. This indictment would clearly never have been brought unless this assemblage had been held by the strikers to get their rights.

"I venture to say that the police would not even have interfered with the strike meetings had they been conducted by an American Federation of Labor union with its powerful political and industrial backing. But because these strikers happened to belong to an independent union without affiliations elsewhere, and are chiefly aliens, they were easy to attack. Furthermore, the strike issue was aggravated by the 'red bogey' of Communism and revolution, because the strike committee was assisted by a representative of the Workers Party from New York. Yet none of these factors offers any moral or legal justification for the action of the police.

Incident in Long Struggle.

"This trial is of course, merely an incident in the long struggle of the working class for the rights to organize and strike. In this struggle the police almost everywhere side with the propertied employing interests as against the workers. We were therefore not unprepared for the conduct of the police. We have not ever looked to them to protect anyone's rights. But we hoped that your honor's decision might be in conformity with our conception of our constitutional liberties. It is our belief that section 18 of the constitution of New Jersey assures us the right which we have taken. This section reads:

"'The public have the right freely to assemble together, to consult for the common good, to make known their opinions to their representatives, and to petition for redress of grievances.'

"Tho you have decided against us, we believe that our position will ultimately be vindicated, and that those rights by which one industrial conflict can be settled peacefully will be fully established."

Participated in Mass Meeting.

Baldwin is out on $2,000 bail pending appeal to the New Jersey supreme court. The seven strikers are out on $100 bail each pending appeal from their fines of $50 each on the similar charge of unlawful assemblage. They were arrested for participating in a mass meeting on the streets during the strike after Chief of Police Tracy had attempted to deny the right to strikers to assemble.

MANY NEW RUSSIAN ACTORS WILL PLAY IN RUSSIAN DRAMA

A Russian performance in honor of the well known Russian actor A. Pokatikov will be given next Saturday night, April 18, at 1902 W. Division St., "The Father" (outlaw) by Strinberg will be presented.

Many new actors who just arrived in Chicago will participate in the performance beginning at 8:15 p. m.

IRISH WORKERS SCORE IN NORTH IRELAND POLLS

Carry Red Flags Thr Belfast Streets

BELFAST, Ireland, April 14.—Th outstanding result of the recent ele tions in Northern Ireland is the ele tion of three labor party candidate comprising the entire labor ticket.

The three successful candidat are: Wm. McMullan, secretary of th Irish Transport and General Wor ers' Union in Belfast; Sam Kyle a Jack Beattie. With red flags carri aloft and singing revolutionary son composed by James Connolly a other working class poets, the wor ers of this most exploited industr inferno marched thru the streets c ebrating their victory.

Red Flag Cheered.

The sight of a red flag, would hav caused a riot here until recently, b the banner of labor was cheered o all sides by the men and women the slums and the factories.

The big losses in the elections we for the unionists and the republica the latter winning only two seats, t they had ten in the last parliame Those seats were lost to the natio alists who under the leadership Joseph Devlin, former Redmond su porter, now constitute the most n merically important opposition in t northern parliament. Seven union officials were defeated. Industrial B fast went strongly against the re tionary Craig slate while the count went as strongly for him.

Abstention Policy Blamed.

The abstention policy of De Val is considered responsible for the lo of seats sustained by his party. T labor victory has increased the mor of the workers in this stronghold bigotry and religious rancor. T election of a Transport Union offi is expected to have the effect breaking down the prejudices of m Orange workers against the labor ion that the "Fenian" James Conn laid the groundwork for.

Even if You Talk Yourself Blue in the Face--

There is at least one worker you can't convince.

No matter how well you may have argued and no matter how long you might have talked—there is at least one!

It may be the worker in your shop (perhaps that intelligent fellow at the machine next to yours)—or it may be the one in your union.

But there is at least one whom every Communist knows—and can't convince.

He is the reason why in this campaign the DAILY WORKER wants you to get TWO subs.

The first you will get—you CAN convince at least one worker that he should subscribe to a great working class paper. That's a simple task for a determined Communist.

But for the worker you can't convince—

The Propaganda Sub

With the DAILY WORKER reaching your shop-mate everyday—with the best expression of Communist principles and practice and a picture of Communist activity the world over—

Reaching him when he can read and THINK—(and no boss or stool-pigeon is nearby)—the DAILY WORKER will do what possibly you might have failed in—it will "make another Communist!"

Pay for "a propaganda sub" to do this (out of your own pocket if you can)—it is little enough to contribute for such a definite Communist purpose.

ACHINES KILL OBS BUT ENRICH THE INVESTORS

orkers Idle as Profits for Capital Increase

By LELAND OLDS,
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How the impersonal modern ma- ine with its vast productivity is owding out human labor and divert- money which would have been ages into the profit pockets of the vesting class is shown in Iron Age Pres. F. A. Scott of the Warren & wasey Co. This article on Net Pro- s from Modern Equipment describes e results of substituting a modern proved turret lathe for an old ma- ine in the company's Salt Lake City ant.

The new machine, according to cott, made a net profit of $4,080.20 year, after deducting depreciation replace the machine in 5 years. his means 117.8 per cent on the in- estment.

Gain for Owning Class.

This huge gain for the owning class as possible because the machine re- uced the time required for a unit of roduct from 80 minutes to 30 min- tes. The cost of production on the ld machine including direct labor at 0 cents an hour and overhead at 90 ents an hour was $2 a piece. With he new machine it cost 75 cents a piece, leaving $1.25 a piece as gross profit from the change.

Scott gives these figures:

Cash investment to install new equipment, $3,355.00.

Former cost per unit, $2.00.

Cost with new equipment, $.75.

Gross profit per piece, $1.25.

Production per 9-hour day using 48 minute hours to allow for delays, etc., $.14.

Gross profit per day, $17.50.

Gross profit per year of 280 working days, $4,900.00.

Deduct depreciation including 20 per cent of investment in new machine and 100 per cent of cost of special tools, $819.80.

Net profit per year, $4,080.20.

The table shows that the production of 14 pieces requiring 9 hours on the new basis would have required 24 hours using the old machinery. To obtain the present rate of production with the old machinery additional workers would have been hired in the ratio of 24 for every 9 necessary with the modern machinery. And $14.40 would go for direct labor in wages instead of the $5.40 with the new equipment.

After substracting $2.95 per 14 pieces to cover depreciation on the new investment there remains about $7 which used to go as wages to the labor directly involved but now goes to investors.

NEW YORK BUILDERS' CORNER

Conducted by KATTERFELD.

MAKE KICKS SPECIFIC.

OVER FOUR THOUSAND new subscribers were placed on the DAILY WORKER mailing list thru the recent press pageant in New York. In handling this many subscription cards it is inevitable that some mistakes occur, especially since many of the cards were so poorly written that they could hardly be deciphered. Any reader of the DAILY WORKER who hears of some subscriber that is not receiving the paper is urged to notify the New York manager at 108 East 14th street.

But in bringing in a complaint be sure to MAKE THE KICK SPECIFIC. Give correct name and address of subscriber exactly as it should be, the length of the subscription and if possible the date when sent in, and the original receipt. Otherwise it is difficult to make corrections, as the girls in the mailing room are not clairvoyants.

PAY UP.

Branches and members are instructed to settle for all press pageant subscription tickets AT ONCE. Unsold cards must be returned or paid for. Balance the account at your next branch meeting. If you can not go to your next meeting you may settle at the district office, 108 East 14th street, and your branch will be credited.

GET RENEWALS.

The four thousand subscribers secured thru the press pageant are now expiring. Every party member should help with the work of visiting them to secure renewals. The New York agency of the DAILY WORKER has their names and expiration dates. Come up to 108 East 14th street, get a batch of them and go after them.

OFFICE HOURS.

The New York manager will be in the office, 108 East 14th street, every day from 12 to 2 p. m. and from 6 to 8 p. m. At other hours he may be seen by appointment. Phone Stuyvesant 8100.

INSURANCE MOUNTS TO $27,894.14

The first two weeks of April have brot an additional $1,647.25 to the fund to insure the DAILY WORKER for 1925. The total amount raised to date is $27,894.14, indicating a steady mounting toward the $50,000 quota set.

TELLS FASCIST VIOLENCE UPON LABOR UNIONS

Italian Workers Have Lost Everything

By CARL BRANNIN.

MILAN, Italy, April 14—Back of the recent successful strike of 100,000 metal workers in northern Italy lies a contract for wages and hours drawn up by fascist trade union officials and accepted by the employers. But at the same time the General Confederation of Labor took a referendum on this contract among the workers of the district. Five per cent were for the contract, 95 per cent against it. It was put into effect with "striking" results.

Immediately after the war the Confederation of Labor numbered 2,500,000 members. It has shrunk to between 150,000 and 200,000. Many trade unionists were forced to join the fascist unions to live and yet it is estimated that not more than 5 per cent of all industrial workers are members. Ninety per cent of the peasants have been forced to join because of the terror of the Black Shirts. Thousands of them now live in the cities.

Some 200,000 Italians emigrated to France the past two years, many without passports as political refugees. Others remain, though their cooperative and union institutions have been destroyed. While they may wear the fascist button many still carry red cards in the Socialist party or Communist party and distribute literature under cover.

In spite of great obstacles, officials of the Confederation declare their unions are rebuilding slowly. No organizers can be sent out nor general meetings held but the workers are ready to come back at the first opportunity. The official weekly of the Confederation has 10,000 regular subscribers. The Socialist locals are now permitted to hold meetings for the regular members at infrequent intervals.

While the unions have suffered greatly in strength and membership from the fascist terror the worker cooperatives lost properties which it will take years to replace. The policy of the Black Shirts was either to destroy or control these institutions. In the larger industrial centers like Milan, due to the mass strength of the workers, this policy was not carried out so drastically but in the rural districts there was almost a clean sweep.

The cooperative at Molinella is the most glaring example. Here in the course of 30 years the workers had built up institutions (producer and consumer) that were the model for cooperators in all countries. Their properties were valued at $2,000,000. When Mussolini seized power he put one of his creatures in charge who sold everything—land, buildings, machinery and implements, and turned the proceeds, about $500,000, over to charitable institutions.

Woman Member of the Canadian Parliament More "Red" Than Lewis

By JOHN ROBUR.

OTTAWA, Can., April 14.—"It was a dubious compliment to Canadian intelligence that it was necessary for the miners of Cape Breton to refuse that gift from Russia," is one statement made by Agnes Macphail, the only woman member of the Canadian parliament, in reviewing her recent visit to the Nova Scotia coal fields. "We are a self-righteous people," she added. The Red International of Labor Unions had donated $5,000 to the locked out miners.

The members listened closely while Miss Macphail gave an unvarnished account. She told of a miner, his wife and two children sleeping in a three-quarters bed; of children suffering from rickets and ulcers as a result of under-feeding over a period of four years; of Besco the British Empire Steel Corp. run by absentee directors, some in England, three in the Canadian senate. She told the house if the United Mine Workers' Union was crushed a more radical organization would succeed it.

"The miners," she said, "feel they have not had justice. How deep is their resentment; how intense; how quiet! If I lived there, I would be a great deal redder than anyone I saw."

The only assistance the Dominion government is giving is to raise the duty on coal so as to put more money in the pockets of the corporation. This affects slack coal only and raises the import rate from 14 to 50c. At the same time the rate on bituminous coal in general has come down from 53- to 50c per ton. The plea is made that this is done to help the workers; but when Pres. McLeod of the miners' union in Nova Scotia asked whether this would mean an increase in wages, the answer was a prompt negative.

Elmer Smith, Wobbly Lawyer, Wants to Make 'Em Say It Again

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Elmer Smith, disbarred radical Centralia labor attorney, has filed an application for a rehearing.

THO THEIR GRAFT BE AS BLACK AS TEAPOT PETROL YET ARE THEY WHITEWASHED LIKE SNOW

WASHINGTON, Apr. 14—Albert Fall former secretary of the interior and center of the oil corruption exposed in the senate investigation 15 months ago, has been freed from the criminal indictment brought against him in the Disttrict of Columbia. Federal Judge McCoy has ruled that the indictments against Fall, who received the $100,000 cash in a satchel from the younger Doheny at the order of the elder Doheny, was not legally indicted, because a special assistant to Atty. Gen. Stone was in the grand jury room when testimony was being taken. He finds that was illegal because the senate had taken the case out of the hands of the department of justice when it required Pres. Coolidge to appoint special counsel to prosecute the criminals.

Logically following out this act of grace for the man who became wealthy through giving away the public oil lands, McCoy finds that the Dohenys were not legally indicted, and that Harry Sinclair was likewise improperly brought into peril of trial as a corruptor of Fall. They all go free together.

This decision by McCoy, who used to be a congressman when Fall was a standpat senator, will probably save the four from ever going to trial on charges of bribery. The statute of limitations has run against the crime since the indictment—now nullified—was returned. They may still be tried and convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, however, and the Sinclair and Doheny lawyers will proceed to build their future defenses against this possibility.

Coolidge first sought to appoint as prosecutors two of the most conspicuous lawyers connected with the oil interests—Strawn and Gregory. When they were rejected by the senate, he named Roberts and Pomerene, who had little familiarity with this branch of law. At the first test they left a loophole of escape for the givers and taker of the $100,000 black satchel.

Capitalist Law Mills Refuse to Repeal the Syndicalist Gag Acts

NEW YORK, Apr. 14—Sessions now closing of state legislatures have done nothing toward repealing criminal syndicalism and sedition laws, reports the American Civil Liberties union. But the organization finds that such repressive legislation is a dead letter in nearly all the states. The Idaho legislature widened the definition of sabotage to include peaceful slowing down on the job, but it is expected that the courts will construe the law so as to prevent prosecution for mere membership in labor unions.

The U. S. supreme court has before it two cases which will test the constitutionality of the state syndicalism laws and free 89 men in state penitentiaries if favorable decision is given. The cases are those of Anita Whitney, California woman, convicted in 1919 under the state syndicalism law for membership in a Communist party, and Benjamin Gitlow, convicted under the New York state anarchy law in 1920. His case has been argued. Argument has not yet been made in the case of Miss Whitney. The case of C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, convicted in Michigan for attending a Communist convention, has been appealed but is not yet before the court.

Of the 89 syndicalist law prisoners, 82 are in California penitentiaries; five in Washington; one each in Kansas and Oklahoma. All the men serving time are members of the I. W. W., convicted for membership.

More Efficiency Only Adds to the Unemployed Army

How increased efficiency mean gain for the employer but loss for labor is indicated by the February employment report of the U. S. department of labor. In spite of the high rate of production said to prevail generally, industrial employment stands 4.5 per cent below February 1924 and 8 per cent below 2 years ago.

Decreases in number employed and amount of payroll compared with February 1924 are shown by the percentage figures:

Per cent decrease from Feb. 1924	Employment per cent	Wages per cent
Food	5.0	4.5
Textile	2.6	2.5
Iron, steel	4.5	4.3
Lumber, products	1.2	1.6
Leather, products	1.7	1.6
Chemicals, etc.	4.7	1.4
Stone, clay, glass	5.6	5.9
Tobacco	1.5	7.1
Vehicles	10.7	11.1
Miscellaneous	3.4	3.2

Paper and printing showed an increase of 1 per cent in employment and 2.1 per cent in wages. Industry as a whole operated 93 per cent of full-time with 83 per cent of a full normal force. It averaged about 77 per cent of capacity with production running ahead of consumption.

In spite of wage decreases affecting nearly 100,000 cotton mill operatives reported to the department in the last 11 months, average earnings remain at about a year ago amounting to $26.63 a week.

Picketing Is Legal But Still Illegal!

WASHINGTON, Apr. 14—Decision by the supreme court of the state of Washington that picketing of a moving picture theater is illegal when federal law permits such picketing, has been referred to the officers of the American Federation of Labor by the Tacoma central labor council. The Clayton act was supposed to safeguard the right to picket.

CANADIAN JOBS FEWER BECAUSE OF SPEED UP

27,000 Workers Less, Produce 50 Pct. More

By C. McKAY.

MONTREAL, April 14.—Canadian manufacturing industries employed 27,000 fewer persons in 1922 than in 1911, government statistics show. Employment in such industries today is not materially greater than in 1922. With fewer employes these manufacturing industries had a quantity output nearly 50 per cent greater in 1922 than in 1911, and a value production just 100 per cent greater. Canada's major industries—agriculture, mining, fishing, logging manufacturing and transportation—only employed 27,381 more persons in 1922 than in 1911. With an increase of less than two per cent in number of employes, these industries produced values in 1922 more than 100 per cent greater than in 1911; about 50 per cent being the measure of the increase in values due to enhanced prices.

During the decade 1911 to 1921, immigrants entering Canada numbered 1,728,000, and the natural increase of the population was 1,150,000. But thanks to improved machinery, the major industries only offered 27,381 more jobs in 1922 than in 1911. How was the increased population provided for? The United States received many. Great numbers returned to Europe. Increased wealth production permitted greatly increased domestic and personal servants, chauffeurs, etc. Many crowded into trade, increasing the spread between producers and consumers prices.

The effect of the machine in limiting opportunities of employment is more apparent in Canada than in the United States. Canada imports much of its machinery. The U. S. manufactures most of its machines, and persons in such manufacture add to the total number of employes in manufacturing.

Don't Let Its Left Hand Know What Its Right Hand Is Doing

MONTREAL.—Although the Canadian government disclaimed responsibility for the great unemployment, it is guaranteeing employment to immigrants under the empire settlement scheme according to the British home secretary.

IRISH FAMINE HAS THE RICH FARMERS SCARED

months, that they were starving, living on offal and dead leaves. One could not travel the roads of Clare without meeting two or three funeral a day. People of Clare he said were today seeing black, tomorrow they might see red, and god help the country then. He blamed the government for muzzling the voice of the organised farmers of Ireland, and demanded that something be done as they were face to face with plague. So speaks the bourgeois farmer to the bourgeois Free State. Relieve us he says of government charges, declare a moratorium.

It looks more as if the areas involved would themselves become a mortuary. Maybe the Irish in America and elsewhere will forget the political interests that are served either by exposure or concealment of the misery rampant in Irish homes, such as they are in the coast of Mayo, Galway and Donegal. Damn the politicians, succour the sufferers. I have personally visited Killybegs, Kilcar, Tellin, Glencolumbkille, Ardara, right to Dungloe in Donegal and it is hunger, hunger all the way. Only last week I visited Mayo, from Ballina thru Ballycastle to Portacloy, it is one long tale of unrequited toil, disastrous seasons; no crops to reap; no seed to sow; hunger and misery now, misery and hunger next year, unless food, fuel and seed can be provided.

The Workers' International Relief, has started relief work in Donegal and Mayo, and food, fuel and clothing has been and is being distributed in Portacloy, Stonefield, Carratigue, Cornboy, Killalagdra, Ballycastle and Ballina in Mayo, and also around ancient Tirconnail and Glencolumbkille. Only the fringe has been touched, but the villagers overwhelm us with thanks for even that little. We need seed potatoes, seed corn, flour, meal, milk, sugar, tea and clothing. Lives will be lost if response is not immediate.

Workers of all lands unite to alleviate the desperate plight of our Irish fellow workers.

OPEN SHOP DRIVE JUST BEGINNING IN PHILADELPHIA TEXTILE CENTER

By ESTHER LOWELL
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 14—Textile workers in Philadelphia on the whole are faring a little better than their New England fellow workers. Systematic wage cuts have not yet been introduced in Philadelphia mills. The industry is more specialized in Pennsylvania and has not been so much affected by depressed business as New England mills manufacturing coarser goods. Finally, textile unions in Philadelphia in the branches at all organized, are comparatively strong.

Open Shop Maneuvers.

The Upholstery Workers' Union, Local No. 25, United Textile Workers, is one of the old, large unions. Until the last few years Philadelphia has manufactured about 95 per cent of the upholstering material of the United States. Lately upholstery manufacturers have put factories in outlying towns where native labor is cheaply secured. This tendency of decentralization has not yet developed enough to alarm the union, but watch is being kept and recently an investigator for the union surveyed the entire out-of-town upholstering field.

Introduce Speed Methods.

Union upholstery shops use only one weaver to a loom, George Creech, secretary of the union, asserts, but non-union shops outside of Philadelphia are introducing the two-loom system. Women winders and spoolers are organised with men weavers in the upholstery union, which is part of the textile council. Hosiery knitters, hosiery borders, surgical knitters, loomfixers, warpers, warp dressers' unions comprise the rest of the council.

Have Powerful Union.

With the increasing vogue of silk hosiery for women, the Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers' Union, of the United Textile Workers, has doubled its membership since 1920. Philadelphia is the center of the industry, altho the largest single mill is the Berkshire in Reading, Pa. Other mills in nearby Pennsylvania towns have branches of the union. According to Gustav Geiges secretary of Local 706, union shops have only one man to one machine. Since the 1921 strike the union has controlled 75 per cent to 80 per cent of the industry. Most of the workers are young men and girls. The latter may average $28 a week and work is fairly steady thruout the year. Skilled piece workers make up to $40.

Seamless Work Cheaper.

Seamless hosiery workers have had a union but it has declined. The full fashioned hosiery is made on complicated, expensive machines which require the full attention of a worker to one machine. Seamless hosiery is made on much cheaper and simpler machines and one worker tends many machines.

Cloth Industry Open Shop.

The cloth industry—cotton, wool, worsted, silk goods—is unorganized in Philadelphia. Woolen yarn workers once had a flourishing union but the 1921 open shop drive of employers laid it low. Brussels carpet workers likewise lost the bulk of their organization. Tapestry carpet workers have a strong independent union (once in the U. T. W.) under Lawrence LaBrie and are affiliated with the Federated Textile Unions. The Amalgamated Lace Operatives, Philadelphia's oldest union, is also one of the Federated Textile Unions and includes the numerous lace curtain workers under Thomas Burns.

CROATIAN SOCIETY JOINS FIGHT ON CHILD SLAVERY

Streator, Illinois, Lodge Passes Resolution

STREATOR, Ill., April 14.— The Croation Benevolent Society of Streator at the meeting of last week, passed the following resolution against child labor exploitation, which points out that the remedy lies not only in constitutional amendments but in organised struggle and in full government maintenance for the children of poor workers and farmers by the government. It follows:

Resolution Against Child Labor.

"Whereas, the physical and moral well-being of the working class youth of this country is being destroyed thru the brutal exploitation of children in the mines, mills, factories and sweatshops to create larger profits for the bosses;

"Therefore be it resolved: That we demand the immediate ratification by the state legislatures of the child labor amendment to the constitution and that congress shall immediately pass a law prohibiting the labor of children under eighteen years of age; and be it

"Further resolved, that, since the child labor amendment is meaningless without government maintenance of the school children of the workers and poor farmers, the state and federal legislatures shall pass a law providing full government maintenance of all school children of workers and poor farmers, the funds for this purpose to come from special taxes on high incomes; and be it

"Further Resolved, that the trade unions repeal from their constitutions all discriminatory clauses against equal rights in the unions of young workers; also that the admission fees and dues be made lower for young workers to enable them to become members of the unions which will thereby become strengthened in their struggles against the bosses; and be it

"Further resolved, to call upon all other working class organizations to unite with us in a common political struggle against child labor exploitation and for full government maintenance of the school children of workers and poor farmers."

Tchar Collner, Secretary.

English Lord Admits Nations' Mad Arms Race Cannot Be Curbed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 14.—Viscount Lee, who, with Lord Balfour represented England at the conference of world powers in Washington, in an address here admitted that an arms conference will not prevent nations from arming.

"We have forbidden the German from having any submarines," Lee said. "Then what danger are we preparing for if we keep on having submarines? Are we preparing weapons against one another?"

There is no hope of limiting land or air armaments, Lee declared "Besides, large armies can rapidly be improvised. I doubt the practicability of limiting, effectively air forces. Commercial air development which is closely related, must necessarily go on."

Industrial Cripples Federate

WASHINGTON,—In order that they may exercise more power in getting legislation for the men and women crippled in industry, the chief organizations of industrial cripples in Great Britain, Belgium and France have held a conference in Geneva and formed an international federation. Their appeal to industrial cripples of all countries to join in this movement has been made public in Washington.

BUILDERS AT WORK

HERE'S HOW ST. PAUL WILL DO IT

To Have Contest Campaign.

THE quota for St. Paul is 125 new subscriptions. Comrade O. L. Johnson, acting DAILY WORKER agent and one of those who are making DAILY WORKER history, sends us the details of how St. Paul will get them.

It's going to be a contest. A point system has been devised and to the branch securing the highest number of points in proportion to its membership at the opening of the contest, A BANQUET WILL BE GIVEN by all the other branches of the city. At that time a banner will be presented with the inscription "Winner of the Second DAILY WORKER Sub Drive in St. Paul" to the winning branch.

The member getting the highest number of points will receive a $25.00 watch or set of books equivalent in value.

The member of the branch receiving the highest number of points will receive a set of the new "Lenin Library" now being prepared.

Each branch must average a certain number of points per member in order to be eligible for the city prize.

This shows real interest in the campaign and it is possible ONLY because the branches have acting DAILY WORKER agents and because these are guided by an active city agent who in the first campaign last year showed how well it could be done.

But this St. Paul drive has additional features. One of these is that the point system devised gives credit for subs secured to language publications of our party as well. This is real building. A DAILY WORKER BUILDER is a Communist builder and it is his job to get as wide-spread a distribution of Communist propaganda as possible among both American and foreign-born workers.

We look for St. Paul to climb near the top of the list in the next few weeks and with the plans they have started in operation we are sure they will do so.

MOVIES TO SHOW RED PROTEST AT POLISH CONSULS

At Wicker Theater Chicago, Tonight

The workers who demonstrated in front of the Polish consulate in Chicago in protest against the threatened execution of Stanislav Lanzufsky, will have a chance to see themselves in the movies that were taken at that time.

These pictures will be shown for the first time in the DAILY WORKER Film Edition No. 6, at the Wicker Park Theater, 1539 Milwaukee Ave., TONIGHT, April 15.

The feature of the program will be a return engagement of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls."

There is no guarantee that there will be further repeat performances, so all who expect to see this Russian feature film should come early to the Wicker Park Theater.

Klan Hires School Under False Name, Bars Board Members

NEW YORK, April 14.—The ku klux klan was allowed to hold a meeting in the Manhasset, Long Island, high school auditorium, while the board of education was meeting in another part of the hall. The klansmen, afraid to reveal their identity, took out their permit under the name of the "Nathan Hale Association." No such organization could be found.

The members of the board of education, declare they heard the klan was meeting in the high school and went to the auditorium, but were refused admission.

Sixty-one members of the klan were admitted at the meeting it was reported. Practically all of the klansmen came to the meeting in automobiles. The board of education refuses to act against the misrepresentation of the klan.

Two Supreme Court Decisions

The United States supreme court has made two decisions within the last few days that are of vital importance to labor. One, that will be hailed as a victory by the labor officialdom and used to further fool the workers into believing that the courts are impartial, lays down the rule that compulsory arbitration of labor disputes is unconstitutional. This part of the decision is incidental, however, to the further ruling in the same case,

This is our old friend "state rights" introduced that state bodies have no right to fix the hours of labor.

This is our old friend "state rights" introduced in the same garb we saw it wearing in the war on the child labor law. The sedition and criminal syndicalism laws of the various states have not yet been interfered with, but the limitation of the hours a worker can be exploited out of the twenty-four is another matter. It is just possible that the workers might secure sufficient control in one or more states to enact shorter hour bills that would cut down the profits of the bosses. The Kansas industrial court had no such intention, but the precedent it established was a dangerous one. The national government, further removed from the masses than the state authorities, has spoken and we have a new example of how handy a centralized state power is to the bosses.

This decision reverses that of a California court and if one is familiar with the reputation of California courts among the legal fraternity, whose moral code is elastic, to say the least, one has a fairly good idea of the class character of the ruling.

It means that when an open shop struggle is on the capitalists can institute a boycott against those employers who recognize the unions, deprive them of raw material by any and every means and be certain that this action will be upheld by the courts.

Unions that use these tactics are liable to prosecution for interfering with interstate commerce and a number of union officials are now in jail for this very offense.

It is no wonder that the capitalist press always refers to the courts as the "bulwark of OUR liberties."

Weeks to Go

The help wanted sign may be hanging over the executive office door of the war department within a few days if reports of the threatened resignation of Secretary of War Weeks are well founded.

The departure of Weeks will leave Coolidge free of the Harding cabinet liabilities with the exception of Hoover, Davis and New, secretaries of commerce, labor and postal departments respectively. With the exception of Hoover, who is now taken up with the radio, these three relics cut little ice.

There is considerable speculation as to who shall succeed Weeks. A likely candidate for the job is General Pershing, the favorite of Wall Street. Pershing has been properly groomed for the position by the inner circle that controls the government and their press has heralded his praises until he has become somewhat of a popular hero among the jingoistic elements of the population.

In the event that "Black Jack" steps into Weeks' shoes, the former's trip thru South America will stand him in good stead. The United States intends to put more teeth in the Monroe doctrine from now on. The dollar sign will be more visible than ever in the folds of the stars and stripes. The republics to the south possess untold natural wealth, that is waiting the magic touch of the exploiter. Wall Street is willing. It has competitors. And between this exploitation and its fruits stand millions of workers who must be driven to produce profits. This is where the army talks.

It must be admitted that Pershing will make an ideal candidate for the job. He is fully qualified. He is well acquainted in Europe and in South America. He is a rock-ribbed reactionary. No liberal idea is ever known to have escaped over his lips. Wall Street has groomed him carefully.

A blood clot on Weeks' brain may send him back to his counting rooms. Or the squabble over the relative merits of battleships and airplanes may be the cause. The workers of the United States have nothing to say in the retirement of one or in the selection of the other. It is not their army, tho they elected Coolidge. Wall Street, not the workers will fill the office of secretary of war. And one of the functions of that secretary will be to shoot the workers if they get too fresh with Wall Street.

Selling Labor at Luncheon

In New York City, on April 11, the Civic Federation showed that its influence on the American Federation of Labor did not vanish with the death of Samuel Gompers.

William Green, successor to Gompers, attended and spoke at a luncheon in the Roosevelt Hotel given by the Civic Federation in honor of August Belmont and Samuel Gompers, deceased president and vice-president of that organization. The subject for discussion was, "Eliminate Industrial Waste—Minimize Industrial Controversy."

Those who spoke, in addition to Green and Judge Alton B. Parker, who presided, were Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, D. L. Cease of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and Marcus Marks, former president of the Borough of Manhattan.

Judge Parker struck the keynote of the meeting when he said that the United States is the only country in the world where such a conference could be held "because in the European countries there is little in common between employers and employes."

What a commentary on the American labor movement!

The president of the most reactionary organization of bosses and bankers in America is able to boast that the American labor movement is still under the influence of the capitalists and to prove his statement produces nothing less than the president of the American Federation of Labor as Exhibit A.

President Green was in tune with the topic under discussion. He was for elimination of waste in industry and he said he thought it would enable the employers to raise the wages of the workers. This epoch-making utterance came at a time when the most casual survey of capitalist industry shows that the elimination of waste goes on apace and that standardization, sepcialization and the introduction of improved mechnical devices allowed the capitalists last year to increase production 17 per cent with 12 per cent less workers.

But William Green, personification of the slave-minded labor leader, was not satisfied with expressing his approval of the man-killing efficiency of the ruling class. He had to get down on his belly and grovel in the name of the workers who pay him $12,000 per year to fight their battles. He said:

> If trade unionism were un-American, unpatriotic or antagonistic to the American form of government or to American institutions, then employers of labor might be justified in vigorously opposing the very existence of such an organization. But they do not have even this excuse, for American labor and American labor organizations are loyal to America, to its traditions and to the American principles of government.
> The labor organizations of our country recognize the existing order and have steadily refused to embrace any imported philosophy no matter how it may be disguised or how seductive and alluring it may appear.

What does this mean?

Simply that in return for concessions given to a certain selected section of the working class, the trade union officialdom will support any and every attempt on the part of the capitalist class to destroy the revolutionary wing of the labor movement. It is an oath of allegiance to American imperialism, a public announcement of perfidy without parallel except in nations where the struggle for power is already in progress and where the labor officialdom has completed the task of selling the working class that Green has just begun.

"Imported philosophy."

Is it "imported philosophy" to tell the working class that fraternizing with the enemies of the unions, endorsement of their schemes for squeezing a little more blood from the workers, is black treason?

Is it "imported philosophy" to tell the workers that the road to freedom lies thru struggle, that the flag of the workers is red like the open wounds of the murdered miners in Colorado and West Virginia and not white like the luncheon cloths on the table of the fat-bellied robbers in the Roosevelt Hotel?

Is it "imported philosophy" to tell the workers that capitalism is the same the world over and that in America the workers must travel the same road as their brothers in other lands?

To hell with this ku klux klan conception of a 100 per cent American labor movement whose official spokesman is greeted and treated by the most powerful capitalists in America while members of his own union are on strike in the coal fields; when the owners of the mines have just stated that they break the "sacred contract" for which a million betrayals have been perpetrated.

Green and his capitalist friends have no difficulty in picking out their enemies. Against the Communists and the Communist International these fakers and their robber friends unite. The capitalists know that trade unionism alone is harmless and to prevent interference with their imperialist plots they are willing to buy part of the labor movement—officials especially.

It is the new tendency of the trade unions to see the government of the capitalists as an enemy and not as an impartial agency that is worrying the plunderbund, it is because the Communists tell the workers this unceasingly and prove their contentions by a thousand instances that American capitalism is alarmed.

A million grovelling Greens cannot prevent the working class understanding this role of the capitalist state as the pressure of capitalism increases and it will take something more than filling the paunch of a labor faker with food and wine to prevent the Communist message reaching the workers and bringing them into action.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

Fisher Speaks on Bolshevization.

MOSCOW, March 26—(By Mail)—Third session of the enlarged executive. At today's session of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International Comrade Ruth Fisher spoke on the political situation and on Bolshevization of the Communist parties.

The main characterization of the present situation in Germany are: the liquidation of the Ruhr crisis, the Dawes plan, and stabilization. In spite of all this however, the bourgeoisie faces great difficulties.

The absence of an acute revolutionary situation does not mean cessation of the class struggle. It will be impossible for the bourgeoisie to fulfill its promises on the national and economic fields. The illusions in regard to the Dawes plan are beginning to disappear. The railwaymen's strike has proven this.

The fact that the present government is able to maneuver very carefully renders the work of the Communist Party more difficult.

A new situation has been created for the social-democracy. The S. D. was until now a governing partner of the bourgeoisie, but the coalition policy is coming to an end. The S. D. is weakened thereby, for its whole policy was based on participation in bourgeois governments. The rather forced "radical" note in the social-democracy is meeting with great difficulties in its own camp.

Strike Was Widespread.

The railwaymen's strike was more widespread than the bourgeoisie had expected.

It is nonsensical to speak of an ideo-political left current within the social-democracy. Levi and his consorts take advantage however, of the difficulties arising out of the Dawes plan, as well as the Barmat scandal and the Ebert trial—to proceed against their party executive. As soon as the situation becomes more acute, the S. D. will have to drop its present "radical" tone.

The next wave of activity in the labor movement will arise out of the struggle for the 8-hour day, wage increases, and out of the struggle against reaction.

It is difficult to prophesy the pace of events. The position of the bourgeoisie may undergo a rapid change in view of the great market difficulties.

The Bolshevization of the German Communist Party began with the complete clarification of the situation. The trade union question is in fact a discussion of the future of the German revolution. The main problem of Bolshevization is: To permeate the Comintern with the Leninist conception of imperialism.

The question of Soviet Russia is not only one of sympathy, but also requires the theoretical understanding of the essence of the Soviet Republic.

The expulsion of certain active workers because of their attitude on the trade union question was absolutely necessary.

The new shop council policy and the policy of joint lists of candidates (in the shop council elections) is only apparently unfavorable—in reality, however, this policy is more favorable. The formal existence of shop nuclei does not suffice. The German Communist Party is striving to permeate the shop nucluei with a political spirit by transferring all campaigns to these nuclei.

The speaker then points to the work done among the peasantry, and to the peasant conference which had taken place. She then passes to internal party questions.

The party is still suffering from remnants of Luxemburgism, Trotskyism and Brandlerism. It is necessary to amalgamate the old forces with the new. Democracy within the party is necessary, and it was actually put into effect; but in certain questions, as in the trade union question and in the question of fractional activities of the right, it was necessary to adopt strict organizational measures.

Comrade Semard greets, in the name of the presidium. Comrade Lanzutsky who had to be acquitted by the white Polish court, under pressure from the proletarian masses, and moves a protest against the further imprisonment of Lanzutsky.

Discuss Situation in Czecho-Slovakia.

MOSCOW, March 28—(By Mail)—After opening the session, Comrade Krisch (France) honored the memory of the victims of the mine catastrophe in Marienbach, where French, Polish and Czech workers have been murdered by capitalist greed. He calls upon the German, Polish and Czecho-Slovakian miners to come to the aid of those left behind. The executive decides to send a telegram of condolence.

The third speaker, Comrade Chruska, of the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia, states that at the present time Czecho-Slovakia is suffering from no acute economic or financial crisis. The bourgeoisie is striving to consolidate itself with the aid of foreign capital and at the expense of the workers. This of course meets with great difficulties because of the over-industrialization, and leads to an intensification of the class struggle.

The workers have been cured of the illusion of an "independent state." The Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia is a good proletarian party which must be Bolshevized. The social-democratic traditions must be overcome; real work must be accomplished in Czecho-Slovakia for the proletarian revolution.

The second party convention improved the theoretical basis of the party. The work of Bolshevization is meeting with great difficulties because some of the functionaries, like Bubenik, are sabotaging it. The elimination of the liquidators and opportunists is the prerequisite for Bolshevization.

Organize 800 Shop Nuclei.

The party has 800 shop nuclei which must be rendered politically active. A better revolutionary spirit and greater capacity for action are beginning to show themselves, as we have seen in the Prague and Kladno demonstrations.

As to the fractional work in the trade unions—only a beginning has been made. We must get into the reformist trade unions. Our One Big Union (Internationaler Allgewerkschaftlicher Verband) must take up the initiative in the question of reestablishing trade union unity. Another step in this direction would be the amalgamation of the Czech with the German unions. As to the peasant movement—it is stronger in the Czech districts than in the German districts. After the second party congress, the minority attempted to discredit the central committee.

Even Comrade Smeral tried to twist matters as if the central committee had defended unproletarian actions. The workers of Brunn rejected the thesis of the lawyers. The Czech character of the party will be retained, but no nationalist prejudices will be permitted. The party is still laboring under opportunistic traditions. We still find in it remnants of the opportunistic system as represented by Comrade Smeral, who is also supported by our good Comrade Zapototsky. The policy of the party has been laid down by the Fifth Congress. We must all unite on the platform of Bolshevization. (Applause).

Youth Delegate Hits Menshevism.

Comrade Vuyovitch from the Youth International, emphasized the need of discarding the social-democratic ideology. All parties must give more attention to the youth movement. It was the task of the Communist Youth International to create real mass organizations. In the Soviet Union we have a real mass organization in France we also have a good organization. Which proves the correctness of our methods.

Comparatively good results have been obtained in Italy, particularly since the new anti-Bordiga central committee took over the leadership of the party.

In America too, fairly good results have been obtained. On the other hand, in those parties where a struggle had to be carried on against the opportunists, the results have been negative.

When Comrade Smeral reproaches us with the fact that in Czecho-Slovakia we have but 12,000 members in the youth organization, we answer that it is his own fault. No section of the Czech youth supports the opportunists. In view of the retarded pace of the revolution, our youth must give more attention to the partial demands.

Every young Communist must join a trade union and there fight for trade union unity.

In view of the danger of war our anti-militaristic work must be intensified. The work among the peasantry must also be improved. Particular attention must be given to our activities in the East. The reorganization of the party must be carried out and the membership doubled. We must render the membership more active, we must improve their theoretical knowledge, and give them good revolutionary literature to read. The parties should instruct the youth more, and make real mass organizations out of the Youth Leagues.

nourished by the master class in order to bind them with invisible strings to their chariot of power.

THIS question of organized religion is an important one for the American working class. Certain radicals are prone to wave it aside as something of little importance. Every revolutionist, worthy of the name admits that the leaders of the movement must possess minds free from any taint of religious superstition. But not everybody sees the tremendous role that is being played by the churches in the class struggle. The catholic church is the most powerful of all churches, because it is the best disciplined and tolerates no divided allegiance among its flock, an appropriate designation.

THE weakness of radical propaganda among workers of Irish, Polish and other nationalities where the catholic church is powerful in the nomeland is significant. It shows that the religious machine has succeeded in building a stone wall between the workers and the ideas that will give them the vision of a future, different to what they ever dreamed of. This stone wall must be broken thru.

IN this connection, one of the most encouraging pieces of news that has come out of one of the European cradles of catholicism and religious bigotry, Ireland, is the report of the election of three labor candidates to the northern parliament. They were elected in Belfast, and after the votes were counted, thousands of workers catholics and protestants, marched together thru the streets carrying red flags and singing revolutionary songs. It is this common struggle for the material needs of all workers, and not bald anti-religious propaganda that will bring about a better understanding between the workers of all religious creeds, and that will ultimately mean the "banishment of the gods from the skies and capitalism from the earth." When that day comes papal titles can be had in the museums.

Young Men and Maids Clamor for Chances to Buy Red Tickets

In the spring the young man's fancy—and also the young maid's—lightly turns to many things they don't want published in the DAILY WORKER. But the young men and maids of Chicago have decided that one thing they want shall receive full publicity in the columns of America's greatest labor daily.

For this particular desire of youthful hearts, whether said cardiac organs be 16 or 60, is the longing to waltze with their sweetie (and somebody else's) at the spring dance, the grandest affair of the season to be held at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., Sunday evening April 26.

Young Communists to Hike.

The Young Workers' League, local Chicago, is holding its first city-wide hike Sunday, April 19. The hike will be held in the Harlem forest preserve at the end of the Grand avenue car line. The comrades will meet at the following headquarters at 9:30 a. m., Sunday, April 19:

South Side, 3116 S. Halsted St.
West Side, 2118 W. Roosevelt Road.
Northwest Side, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.
North Side, 2409 N. Halsted St., and from there will proceed to the end of the Grand avenue car line, where all groups will meet at 10:30 and march into the forest preserve. Everyone is asked to bring along all the base balls, gloves, jumping rope, etc. they can find around the house. There will be a couple of games of baseball between the league and the party. There will be athletic exercises by the juniors and generally much fun. Comrades are asked to bring their lunches and to bring their friends and fellow workers to this hike.

Government Boats of Australia Are Scab and Under Boycott

MELBOURNE, Australia— (FP)—The Australian government's chartered British cargo boats are on the unfair list of the Seamen's Union and other maritime organizations forming the Sea Transport Group. This step was taken because in chartering British vessels the Australian government is getting work done for less than prevaling pay. None of the unions will unload or load the vessels and if the crew leaves a ship, no fresh crew will sign on.

Sport Club Members to Chew Nails and Bend Iron at Party

NEW YORK, April 13—At last we have it! The first affair of the Workers' Sports Club since its organization. The most novel entertainment that ever a branch produced, including a musician who plays on the saw and many others equally interesting.

Miss Lee Cohen, a singer of note (high note) will render several selections. Comrade Davidson, and accomplished cellist will delight us with a few numbers. Irving Shoebe is the one who will show us how to play Rackmainoff's preludes on a saw. A Communist Breitbart will chew up nails and bend iron for our benefit.

And not only do we have this fine program, but following it we will have dancing with the jazziest music that can be obtained.

Don't forget. The place is 108 E. 14th St. The date is Saturday evening, April 18, 1925 at 8 p. m. Be there early for the entertainment will start at eight sharp.

Probably Cross-Word Puzzles.

BEDFORD, Ind., April 14.—George Cook, 70, was near death in a hospital here today as the result of being struck by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train at Loogootee. Witness said Cook was sitting on the platform with his feet on the tracks, reading a newspaper, and apparently did not hear the approaching train.

Honey and Beefsteak Combined at Paul Whiteman's Concert

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

Paul Whiteman's concert at the Auditorium last Sunday was just too sweet for words. He turned the hall into a hive, and honey dripped from the ceiling, and great rivers of honey flowed down the aisles.

Or, to change the figure, a great muted trumpet did a hoochie koochie dance on the stage and squawked as it did so, "Red Hot Mamma, How I Just Adore You."

But in the sea of sweet stuff there was some beefsteak. The first was an excellent dance version of Rimski-Korsakov's "Hymn to the Sun," in the opera, "The Golden Cockerel." It is perhaps fitting that Whiteman should play Korsakov, for he is much indebted to the Russian and his school for the surprising variety and novelty of his orchestral effects. It is too much to say that Paul Whiteman is an artistic descendant of the school that began way back with Michael Glinka, but he has most certainly borrowed and stolen from those who are Glinka's descendants.

A "Synconata," a piece in free (very free) sonata form for jazz orchestra, by Leo Sowerby was given its first Chicago hearing on this program. It confirmed the belief (if anyone doubted it) that Sowerby is the outstanding musician of the time in this country. He has done a wonderful piece of work in this composition, one that stacks up with his "King Estmere" and his symphony. More pieces like this and the American musical revolution is accomplished.

The program wound up with the "Rhapsody in Blue" for piano and orchestra, by George Gershwin, which on second hearing was more beautiful than before. (Whiteman played it here last fall.)

The rest of the program was blah.

Individually and collectively the orchestra is ideal. It would be more so if it had more bearable stuff to play. The horizon looks bright however, for the jazz orchestra on the concert stage. Sowerby, Gershwin, Carpenter, Collins, to quote men who have written important works in jazz style that have been played recently, are turning their talents toward it, and others will follow. And it is high time they did

T. V. O'CONNOR, chairman of the U. S. shipping board seems to be in a hurry to lose his job, a rather unusual malady to afflict a labor faker. T. V. was until recently head of the International Longshoremen's Association. The board, by a bare majority vote, sanctioned the sale of several first class ships to the Dollar Line, for a price far below what the ships could be built for today. In explaining his vote, O'Connor says that the Dollar Line is one hundred per cent American. Hearst backs him up on this, tho Willy is playing possum more or less.

IF T. V. persists in getting rid of the government owned ships to private interests at the present rate, he will have no shipping board to preside over, but then, the Dollar Line, is known to appreciate labor leaders who do not lead but hinder the workers. T. V. is of that type. He is unquestionably America's champion labor traitor. The Dollar Line interests are the bitterest foes of union labor, going to the extent of hiring literary hacks to write magazine stories in glorification of the owners and belittling strike leaders, and unions.

ARTHUR BRISBANE does not see any reason why Morgan should not grant a good loan to Italy, the land that "discovered this country." Brisbane is one of Mussolini's most fervent admirers. He is the literary expression of the American fascisti and never tires of singing the praises of the big American plutocrats, such as Ford, Gary, Schwab, and Rockefeller. A good name seems to stick to some people as long as a bad name sticks to a dog. Brisbane still gets away with being considered a "progressive" in some quarters. But he is worse than a reactionary. He is a mental prostitute.

J. H. THOMAS, well-known British labor faker and imperialist, is being widely quoted in the capitalist press because of his speeches decrying strikes and urging round table conferences instead of industrial struggles. "Give us a little of the spirit of 1914" squawks this arch-traitor, while speaking on the present economic situation in England. That was the time when the workers gave their lives to be shot and mangled on the battlefields of Europe, in a war that increased the millionaire population one hundred fold and left seven million workers dead upon the battlefields of Europe and Asia. Thomas wants more of that spirit.

THE London Daily Herald carries pictures of the Russian trade union delegates arriving in England for the historic conference which had as its object the development of a plan to bring about a unified international labor movement. While J. H. Thomas, Philip Snowden and the yellow socialist wing of the British labor movement are urging class collaboration, the militants are pressing forward, and taking steps to strengthen the unions with a view to more effectively fight the bosses and ultimately solving the social problem, thru the elimination of the capitalists.

THE following incident did not happen in County Cork, but in Butte, Montana. Con Lowny, barber, was charged with the serious offense of having insulted deputy sheriffs Paddy Holland and Jack Kelly, by deliberately and with malice aforethought placing his thumb at the right side of his nostril and wagging the disengaged members provocatively at the deputies, in the meantime making vocal noises that carried an unpleasant intonation to the ears of the pillars of the law. Timothy Nolan defended Lowney but Justice McNamara fined him $25.00. Con appealed, evidently with the hope of running into a Nordic judge, or at least into one who is not a member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

THE democrats are still on the hunt for a savior who will lead them out of the wilderness. The leadership of progressive democrats is considered essential in the next presidential campaign. McAdoo is the favorite of the western progressives while Al Smith looks good to the eastern variety. But Al likes his beer and admits it, while McAdoo may like it just as well but does not admit it. Al is the darling of Tammany Hall, and the catholic machine. McAdoo is the reverse. Watch them get together.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY IN MAY DAY GREETINGS TO WORKERS OF LATIN-AMERICAN COUNTRIES

First of May greetings voicing the solidarity of the Communist workers of the United States with those of Latin-America, have been voiced by the Workers (Communist) Party in a May Day manifesto just issued as follows:

• • • •

May Day Manifesto to the Workers of Latin-America.

GREETINGS FOR THE FIRST OF MAY!

This is our day, workers of all countries; it is the perfect symbol of our struggle and our aspirations. Out of the very bitternesses and hardships of the struggle we have created a workers' holiday which expresses the glorious purpose of the struggle.

Greetings for the First of May!

The observance of May Day began in the United States 39 years ago, when on the first of May, 1886, three hundred and fifty thousand workers thruout the country went on strike in support of their demand for an eight-hour work-day. The brutal acts of repression performed by the American bourgeoisie in this strike—the Haymarket police raid in Chicago, the bomb explosion frame-up, the execution of Parsons and his comrades, the closing of union halls and the breaking up of strike meetings—have graven the First of May into the minds of class conscious workers in every country on earth, and have given it a new meaning. May Day no longer means merely the struggle for an eight-hour day under capitalism. It is the expression of the mighty movement of the workers of all countries which will do away with capitalism, wipe it from the face of the earth by the

Austrian Socialists And Pan-Germans in Favor of Annexation

VIENNA, April 15.—Austria will be united with Germany if the plans of the Austrian socialists and the pan-Germans are realied. Even the so-called christian socialists, hitherto opposed to German annexation, are in favor of it since the Danube conference fizzled out.

Dr. Frank, leader of the pan-Germans, expressed his opinion that the monarchy would be restored in Germany following a successful monarchist victory at the polls. The leader of the social democrats, Dr. Leuthner, also favored German annexation.

BELIEF FRENCH INCITED ARABS AGAINST BRITON

London Angered Over Lord's Flight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 15. — The bitterly hostile feeling that exists between a section of the French bourgeoisie and the ruling class of England is accentuated by the severe criticism launched against French rule in Syria, by the London press as a result of the stoning of Balfour by a great mass of Arabians. The British are incensed because they believe the precipitate retreat of their ambassador will have a damaging effect on British prestige in the Near East, and will increase French prestige in inverse ratio.

Hostile to Both Powers.

It is even hinted in British official circles that the riot was instigated by the French. If this is true, it must be said that it did not require any great efforts to incite the Arabs against the Britsih. In fact, the natives are hostile to both French and British, but they hate the British more, because they see the latter's power spreading out to bring under the imperial heel peoples of the east from the Golden Horn to the Straits of Malacca.

The Turkish government which is supported by France is making war on the opposition party, which is secretly supported by England. The opposition is believed to be implicated in the Kurdish revolt, a British undertaking having for its aim placing the rich oil territories in Mosul under the control of England.

Would Annihilate Family, Charge.

A possibility that the poison plot attributed to Mrs. Anna Cunningham, 47, of Gary, Ind., may have been aimed at annihilating the two remaining members of her family was raised here today when it became known that the daughter, May, 18, had undergone an examination here following the appearance of symptoms of arsenic poisoning.

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

LaFollette Opens Fire On "Cal's" Gang

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 15.—Burton K. Wheeler, vice-presidential candidate on the progressive party ticket in the last elections will go on trial here tomorrow charged with using undue influence to secure permits from the department of the interior for the exploitation of oil fields in Montana for his friends and associates in business.

Chief Figures in Trial

The principals in the trial are: Frank S. Dietrich, of Boise, Idaho, trial judge; Senator Wheeler, defendant; John L. Slattery, United States attorney of Montana, chief prosecutor and Thomas J. Walsh, senator, who is Wheeler's counsel.

Wheeler made public an editorial from the current issue of La-Follette's magazine, in which the Wisconsin senator bitterly assails the Coolidge administration. The administration is accused of having secured the indictment of Wheeler in order to block investigation of the departments of justice and the treasury.

JENSEN REBUKED BY CARPENTERS' DISTRICT BODY

"Expelled" Member Of Local 181, Seated

The Harry Jensen gang, that ruled Local 181 of the carpenters' union here until recently, when the membership elected a new president, is now quiet and peaceful and holds a meeting of his own in the rear of the hall while business is transacted up front.

Jensen was administered a severe rebuke recently at a meeting of the district council, when Brother A. Westerberg, one of the reinstated "expelled" members, was seated against the dictator's wishes. While Westerberg was under the official ban in Local 181, he could not sit on the district council, but on his reinstatement he returned. The overwhelming majority of the delegates voted to seat him. Jensen only drumming up five or six supporters.

GERMAN SOCIALIST LEADER PRAISES HINDENBURG, REGRETS HE'S CANDIDATE

BERLIN, April 15.—"We all honor Hindenburg's patriotic good faith and intentions, his personal purity and integrity," declared Fritz Ebert, son of the late president of Germany, in an official statement given to the foreign correspondents today, relating to the election campaign.

"We republicans," continued the socialist leader, "especially the republican war veterans are most indignant that the person of the aged field marshal, who was equally venerable to all Germans, is thus dragged into the mire of party str[illegible]

BULGAR KING GETS TRIMMED WITH BULLETS

"Barber" Did Not Use Much Lather

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, April 15.—According to reports of the latest shooting fatality in Bulgaria, King Boris had a close shave. This must be taken literally, as the royal personage had his mustache partly amputated by a bullet which missed penetrating the august anatomy by several hairs.

The capitalist press have blamed the shooting on the Communists, tho they admit the marksmen were not visible. The king was on his way to the capital when the incident took place. Two of his aides were killed and his chauffeur was wounded.

One of the generals prominent in the movement that overthrew Stamboulisky in 1923 was killed in the streets of Sofia yesterday. The present government of Bulgaria holds power by the dagger and the bullet and it seems that all the bullets are not flying one way.

On the strength of inspired rumors that a revolution was scheduled to take place in Bulgaria on April 15, the council of ambassadors in Paris permitted the Zankoff government to recruit an additional force of three thousand soldiers to put down any possible uprising. The remnants of Baron Wrangel's troops are quartered there and are available for any dirty work that may be undertaken by the fascisti.

Coolidge Note To Roumania Pleads For Big Business

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15—The Coolidge government has addressed a note to Roumania's white guard government demanding the payment of the forty-two million dollars owed to the United States. The note also speaks for the "American oil companies which have had their rights seriously jeopardized by the recent Roumanian mining law."

The government also brot pressure upon Roumania on behalf of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, the International Harvester company, and the Wall Street bankers, who had also made loans to Roumania. The capitalists, in their loans to Roumania, insisted on receiving large orders for American products to be paid for out of the loans.

The American note objects to recent financial arrangements between Great Britain and Roumania.

SMALL PUSHES COSSACK BILL TO 3RD READING

Will Provide 750 Armed Strike-Breakers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 15.—Governor Len Small's state police bill, introduced into the legislature by State Senator Barr, was advanced to the third reading and seems sure of passage by a large margin on Thursday.

The Barr bill was amended to provide a force of 750 state "highway" police, who will have full power to act as sheriffs, to make arrests, and to act in aid of the employers to break strikes. Small's bill was made the order of special business today, and with the governor's support will pass.

The state police will be operated by the state department of public works, according to the bill, and as the department is ruled by a governor appointee, will be under the direction of Small himself.

The women's eight-hour bill, which has received scant consideration from the present legislature, will meet a flood of amendments when it comes before the house for second reading on April 28.

New Medical Achievement.

Medical science made fresh strides today when for the first time the negative of an X-ray photograph taken in New York city was received here over telegraph wires. It demonstrated, X-ray experts said, the possibility of an X-ray diagnosis of an injury or ailment by a specialist distantly removed from the patient.

The picture required seven minutes in transmission. Specialists said it was received so clearly and distinctly that it could readily be used by any surgeon or doctor for diagnostic purposes.

SEND FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO THE NOVA SCOTIA MINERS

WOMEN and children of the Nova Scotia coal miners are starving, locked out by the British Empire Steel corporation in its effort to destroy the United Mine Workers' Union, and to reduce wages that are already below the subsistence level.

Workers of the United States must send aid. Many weeks ago the Workers (Communist) Party called upon the working class of America to send assistance. This call is repeated and emphasized.

Ask your local union to donate from its treasury. Ask that special assessments be levied. Make collections. Send the money by wire to Nova Scotia, because it is urgently needed. Send contributions to J. B. McLachlan, P. O. Box 260, Glace Bay, Nova Scotia.

AMERICAN SECTION OF WORKERS INTERNATIONAL AID SENDS GREETINGS TO COMMUNIST DEPUTY IN POLAND

In the name of the revolutionary working class of the United States the International Workers' Aid and the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, cabled greetings to the Polish Communist deputy, Stanislav Lanzutsky, in his prison cell in Przemysl, and expressed the solidarity of the American workers with the persecuted workers of Poland. The cablegram reads:

Prison, Przemysl, Poland.
Deputy S. Lanzutsky

In the name of the many thousands of American workers who have met and demonstrated in protest against the oppression and murder of the Polish workers and national minorities and the persecution of their leaders, at which meetings demands have been and are being made for your full freedom and that of other deputies, Communists and workers in Poland we send you our greetings and expression of solidarity. In all American cities and industrial centers workers are protesting against the terrorism against the Polish workers.

GOOD REASON FOR CHINESE HATRED OF FOREIGNERS

22,000 Children Under 10 Doomed to Mills

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SHANGHAI, China, April 15.—Quite to the expectation of the Communists among the Chinese workers in the textile mills of Shanghai, but coming as a surprise to the liberals who, in the so-called "anti-child labor committee," proposed that the annual meeting of foreign taxpayers approve of a law forbidding children less than 10 years old to work in the mills—the said foreign taxpayers simply boycotted the meeting and thus defeated the law.

This is possible because, under the beautiful arrangement of the international capitalists' rule over Shanghai and its hundreds of thousands of Chinese wage workers, no municipal ordinance is effective in the international settlement without the foreign taxpayers' meetings, held annually, vote approval.

So the law—even though it limited the age of child workers to no higher than 10 years, and permitted children over 10 years to work along with other workers and fixed the mill workers by law to a 12-hour day and a seven-day week with only one day off in two weeks, failed.

The municipal council invited the foreign taxpayers to the regular annual meeting of taxpayers so that the measure the council was willing to pass might be considered. The liberals awaited the meeting of taxpayers with fond hopes. When it was apparent that the foreign taxpayers were boycotting the meeting, the attendance falling 300 below the necessary number to make a quorum, the hopeful committee became indignant, but remained helpless.

The 22,000 Chinese children under 10 years of age now working as long as 14 and 16 hours a day in the Shanghai textile mills will keep right on doing so if they can stand it and live. This is the verdict of the foreign taxpayers.

Bishop Raps Anti-Evolutionists.

Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, bishop of Tennessee, who is here on a visit, rapped the anti-evolution law passed in his native state which prohibits the teaching of evolution in Tennessee schools. "William Jennings Bryan seems to be disturbed lest a single dot or punctuation mark of the bible shall be misplaced," said Gailor. "I think it is a sign of decadence when the church runs contrary to the most enlightened scholarship of the age."

FARMERS LOST 5 BILLION LAST YEAR, IS REPORT

Average Income $671 per Family

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 15.—American farmers actually ran behind, in the year 1924, at least $5,144,000,000, despite all the hue and cry about their restored prosperity, says Benjamin C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers National Council, analyzing reports from the federal department of agriculture.

Marsh shows that the combined value of crops and live stock was $12,404,000,000 in 1924, while the approximate cost of producing them, exclusive of labor of farmers and their families, was $8,248,000,000. This left an average of $671.93 per farm family. Federal taxes, payments on interest and principal of $13,000,000,000 of mortgages and short term debt, payment of insurance, purchase of clothes and food not produced on the farm, upkeep of farms and buildings, support of churches, etc., and savings for old age had to be covered by this pitiful sum. Figuring the minimum average return for the labor of each farm family at $1,500 for the year, the total due for this farm labor was $9,300,000,000. Taking from it the $4,156,000,000 actually received, we have an unpaid difference of $5,144,000,000.

Marsh argues that if the administration now permits the modification of the packers' consent decree, which now restrains the operations of the food trust, a deadly blow will be dealt the farmers' co-operative marketing enterprises.

PAINLEVE MADE FRENCH PREMIER; CRISIS STILL ON

Predict New Cabinet Will Soon Fall

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, France, April 15.—President of the Chamber of Deputies Paul Painleve this afternoon accepted the appointment as premier, and immediately commenced an attempt to call a cabinet.

The appointment of Painleve merely prolongs the crisis in French finance and politics, as Painleve belongs to the same coalition which made Herriot premier, and a Painleve cabinet will met the same opposition in the senate that caused Herriot's downfall.

Caillaux After Job.

Reports that Painleve had telegraphed Joseph Caillaux to come to Paris and would offer him the ministry of finance were confirmed when it was learned that Caillaux left Mamers at noon today for Paris. He announced he would accept as minister of finance if offered the job.

Predictions are made that any cabinet formed by Painleve, who is a member of the radical socialist party, will not last a month. Painleve had previously declined the thrice repeated offer of President Doumergue to form a cabinet, as he knew a stormy time awaited him.

Socialists in Bourgeois Coalition.

The socialists, who have been the bulwark of the bourgeois rule of France by the French bankers and industrialists and who have allowed foreign capitalists to gain greater control over French finances, belong to the majority block of the chamber of deputies. The socialists hold 104 seats, the republican socialists 46, and the radical socialists, who are really the conservative socialists, 149 seats. All are upholders of bourgeois rule.

Painleve did not accept the premiership until he had been assured by the socialists that they would support his bourgeois cabinet, and participate in his government. Under Premier Herriot, the socialists, altho they supported the premier, did not accept places in his cabinet.

The socialists made a deal with Painleve that they would take three positions in the cabinet in return for their support of the new ministry.

Crisis Merely Prolonged.

It is being rumored that Herriot will be offered the portfolio of foreign affairs in the new cabinet. The senate has already made it known that it will not support a left bloc government, and thus the present crisis is being prolonged.

Further Illegal Inflation.

The senate is to meet this afternoon to "legalize" an increase in the paper franc circulation by four billion ($200,000,000). This will cover the present illegal inflation which was recently exposed. The officials of the Bank of France refused to issue another weekly statement, which it is admitted will show still further illegal circulation, and threatened to close the bank, unless the illegal issue was "legalized."

America Owns Ruhr.

M. Colrat, who was a minister in Poincare's cabinet, said in a statement on the control of France by international bankers by means of the Dawes plan: "The Ruhr now belongs to Americans and Englishmen. It would be folly to install a government in France which might cause prejudice to Anglo-Saxon investments."

Chamber for Inflation.

PARIS, April 15.—An effort by Deputy Louis Marin to have the four billion franc increase law of the Bank of France declared illegal was rejected by the chamber with a vote of 388 to 164.

Allen Angry at Losing Pet.

WICHITA, Kan., April 15.—Former Governor Henry J. Allen, who was defeated for re-election because he supported the industrial court law, declared the decision of the United States supreme court abolishing the power of his pet was "most reactionary."

DECIDED 40-YEAR SENTENCE HIT POPULARITY OF MORGAN'S ARMY

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Word from Honolulu that Major General W. R. Smith, divisional commander at Schofield barracks, of his intention to cut the 40-year and 26-year sentences of Crouch and Trumbull, Communist soldiers, to not more than 3 years each, caused no surprise at the war department in Washington. Headquarters had communicated to Hawaii its opinion that the original action of the court martial had been dangerous to the popularity of the army with congress and the public.

On the other hand, Judge Advocate General Hull finds that he has no authority to stop the trials of the remaining accused radicals at Schofield barracks pending final review of the Crouch and Trumbull cases. Each case will be tried and reviewed independently, but sentences in the remaining cases will probably be light.

WAR VET DYING AFTER ATTACK BY KLAN POLICE

Civil Liberties Sends Protest to W. Va.

NEW YORK, April 15.—"Immediate investigation and prosecution of the leaders of the mob which attacked Lawson McMillion, world war veteran, at Marlington on Friday," is demanded of Governor Howard M. Gore of West Virginia, in a telegram by the American Civil Liberties' Union. McMillion was ambushed by a mob led by Lincoln Cochran, town sergeant of Cass, West Virginia, and beaten up so severely that he had to be removed to a hospital where he is in a critical condition.

Klan Did It.

"The brutal attack on McMillion," says the telegram, "presumably resulted from the dismissal on April 8, of charges against McMillion growing out of the ku klux klan attack on him at Cass last October." Sergeant Cochran was also responsible for the October attack, the union charges. The original assault took place when McMillion, with Cochran's permission, started to speak in public in answer to a warning by the ku klux klan that he must "get work or leave town."

Assaulted by Law Officers.

When he started to speak he was assaulted by Cochran, Justice of the Peace J. B. Sutton, Constable James Belcher, then arrested, charged with breach of the peace and finally the case dismissed April 8.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN JOINT ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR UNITY ESTABLISHED

LONDON, April 15.—The official report of the Anglo-Russian trade union unity conference which was held here recently, recommends the establishment of a joint advisroy council to provide co-operation between Russian and British trade union movments and also for joint efforts to induce the Amsterdam International to agree to a free, unconditional and immediate conference with the representatives of the Russian trade union movement.

With the backing of the powerful British and Russian trade unions the movement for a unified international is now expected to proceed rapidly to a successful fulfillment. The reactionaries on the continent who are blocking the road to unity will not be able to hold back their own rank and file. The British unions are the principal support of the Amsterdam International.

Black Jack and Hell And Maria Boost War Plans Before Plutes

General John J. Pershing, tool of big business in its efforts to militarize the country, in speeches here told of his work in preparing for a conscripted army of American workers at the outbreak of the next war. Pershing advocated a military nucleus of officers in each community, to hold the whip over the next forcibly drafted army. "The reserve officers must aim for perfection to meet any emergency for which they may be called," Pershing said.

Pershing went to the circus, and spoke before the members of the chamber of commerce at a luncheon in the Hotel La Salle. Vice-president Charles Dawes had Pershing in tow during his Chicago visit, and endorsed his militaristic schemes.

T. U. E. L. CALLS UNITED FRONT CONFERENCE OF TEXTILE MILL WORKERS AT LAWRENCE, APRIL 26

To All Textile Unions, All Shop Committees, All Textile Mills and Groups, To All Militant Textile Workers!

Greetings:—Never in the history of the textile industry was UNITY more necessary for the workers than now. Not only have wages been cut from ten to twenty per cent, but the introduction of speeding-up systems has compelled the textile operator in every department to do twice as much work for less wages.

Fight the Speed-Up.

The introduction of the magazine loom and speeding-up in the textile mills has thrown thousands of textile workers on the streets, while the textile millionaires are using the unemployment, thus created, to still further reduce wages and to increase the exploitation of the textile workers.

The mill owners are organised in their associations. They have cut wages in one mill at a time, in one locality at a time, until, today, in the cotton mills over 70,000 textile workers are getting 10 and 20 per cent less wages while doing twice as much work. The worsted mills will be next, unless we ORGANIZE to RESIST.

Workers Practically Unorganized.

The textile workers are for the most part unorganized. Helplessly we watched the mill barons cut wages in city after city, in mill after mill. Some weavers struck—stayed out for a few weeks—then returned, DEFEATED.

While the great mass of textile workers are unorganised, the few weak and small unions are competing with each other. These textile unions have been unable to rally the masses around them or to mobilize the textile workers for the struggle.

Therefore, a UNITED FRONT CONFERENCE of TEXTILE WORKERS has been called to meet in LAWRENCE, MASS., at IDEAL HALL, 180 ESSEX ST., SUNDAY, APRIL 26, at 10 A. M.

All Unions Invited.

All textile unions are invited. YOUR union is invited. We will not create another and dual union. Our aim is to UNITE all existing textile unions and have them AMALGAMATE into ONE POWERFUL, INDUSTRIAL UNION OF TEXTILE WORKERS.

ALL textile committees are invited. ALL mills are asked to send delegates. Get a group together in the mill where you work and have them send a delegate. Take up a small collection to pay the railroad fare.

Agenda of Conference.

The agenda of the conference will include: (1) Organization of shop committees in every mill. (2) Amalgamation of existing unions. (3) United front action to resist wage-cutting and speeding-up systems. (4) Action on unemployment. (5) Child labor. (6) Relief for striking textile workers. (7) Defense of free speech and assemblage and of the right to organize. (8) Local united front committees of textile workers.

Attached to this call you will find a CREDENTIAL. SEND A DELEGATE! COME TO LAWRENCE on SUNDAY, APRIL 26. ORGANIZE—ORGANIZE AND FIGHT!

WHEN THE BOSS SABOTAGES IT IS GOOD BUSINESS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TACOMA, Wash, April 15.—When the workers in the lumber industry unite, that is a crime, called criminal syndicalism. When they slow down on production, that is a crime, called sabotage.

When the owners of the lumber industry unite it shows what good busines men they are. When they slow down on production it is because of an economic necessity.

One law for the workers, another for the exploiters.

Over a year ago the government talked about proceding against the Douglas Fir Lumber and Exploitation association as a combination in restraint of trade. But nothing was done.

Sabotaging Production.

When prices are not high enough, the lumber magnates agree to close down for a time in order to force prices up. They are now running most mills on a four-day-week basis for this reason.

Now a plan is under way, coming apparently from the Coos Bay district, to consolidate some 75 lumber companies under one ownership. This is probably the forerunner of a series of consolidations which will place the entire lumber industry of the northwest under one corporate ownership.

Hoover Picks Some Characters.

Herbert Hoover has just placed a number of Pacific coast lumbermen on a lumber export committee which is to act as an advisory board to aid the department of commerce in promoting the sale of lumber abroad. Among them are Hammond of San Francisco, a name well known to the San Pedro I. W. W., and Osgood of Tacoma, who celebrated the new year by discharging every man who dared to take a holiday that day, and in whose plant many men have been seriously injured lately because of lack of proper safeguards about machines and sawdust burners.

Major Griggs of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber company, head of the Douglas Fir Exploitation body, has just bought a new home for $75,000. Most of his employees get $3.40 a day for a four-day week. It would take one of these employees at this rate over 106 years to earn this much money.

Wobbly Union Feeble.

At present the workers in the lumber industry are almost unorganized. The A. F. of L. organization is dead. The I. W. W. is feeble and has lost the little it once won The L. L. L. L. is a scab union, controlled by the bosses, always willing to accept a wage cut

There has been some attempt at Everett to organize lumber mill workers under the A. F. of L. and so far Bill Short's State Federation of Labor has not had time to smash it, being too busy aiding Seattle fakers to expel Communists.

American Fleet to Begin Terrorizing In Pacific Today

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 15—The most powerful war fleet ever assembled, including 145 ships manned by 45,000 men, left San Francisco today to practice war maneuvers in the Pacific.

While sixteen admirals loll leisurely on the deck of the steamship Seattle which left yesterday, the fleet will show the other world powers the dominance held by the American navy over Pacific waters. The maneuvers will center around Hawaii. The Seattle carries the high navy officials who will take no part in the war manevers but will act as "umpires."

Penniless "Prince" Won't Work.

NEW YORK, April 15.—"Prince" Felix Youssoupoff, one time a wealthy landowner in Russia, is here endeavoring to secure two portraits by Rembrandt which Joseph Widener of Philadelphia secured from him. The "prince" claims he loaned out the portraits on a chattel mortgage, whereas Widener claims he bought them outright. Youssoupoff gave the pictures in return for a loan, as he was destitute, he declared.

The "prince" has refused to return to Soviet Russia to work for his living. He still has faint hopes of getting his estates back, he said, and is working for the downfall of the Soviet government.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub or two, will make a better Communist of you.

SEE CAL'S HAND IN RAIL MERGER OF SWERINGENS

His Appointee Decides Billion Dollar Deal

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The greatest railroad merger in modern transportation history hung in the balance here today as the Interstate Commerce Commission began consideration of the Van Sweringen plans for consolidating five big roads into a single unified system.

It is a "billion dollar" proposition.

Billion Dollars Involved.

The properties involved contain more than 16,000 miles of tracks and sidings, and embrace the Erie, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Nickel Plate, the Hocking Valley and the Pere Marquette, operating in ten states. The total estimate of investment in these properties is $1,081,000,000.

The commission was confronted at the outset with a demand from minority stockholders in the C. & O. that the proceedings be continued until the chancery court at Richmond passes on the legality of the merger. Thomas B. Gay, their attorney, presented his argument today and was followed by W. A. Colston, attorney for the Van Sweringen brothers.

Cal's Commissioner R. R. Director.

Sitting with the commission for the first time was Thomas F. Woodlock, whose nomination the senate twice refused to confirm. He is a former director in the Pere Marquette. At the time of his nomination the commission was understood to be split five to five on the proposed merger. It is well known in Washington that Coolidge insisted on appointing Woodlock because of his interest in merging the railroads.

The Nickel Plate, the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Hocking Valley are the nucleus for the proposed trust, which provides arteries in the country's main sweep of traffic from western gateways, besides an outlet to the port of New York and routes giving direct access from Norfolk and Newport News to the tip of the lower Michigan peninsula.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Minority stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad lost the first round today in their fight to block the gigantic Van Sweringen railroad merger, when the interstate commerce commission refused to grant a postponement of hearings on the proposed consolidation.

PLAN CHARGE OF MURDER AGAINST KLAN EX-DRAGON

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 15.—With the report of pathologists indicating death was due to mercurial poisoning, an official inquest was to be conducted today by Coroner Paul F. Robinson into the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, victim of an alleged criminal attack charged in five indictments to D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana ku klux klan leader.

The outcome of the coroner's inquest will determine whether or not the grand jury will be asked to indict Stephenson on more serious charges, according to County Prosecutor Remy. While the poison said to have caused Miss Oberholtzer's death was self-administered, the prosecutor was considering filing charges of murder, accessory before the fact and accessory after the fact.

Should a murder charge be filed it will be based on Stephenson's alleged refusal of medical aid to the girl, the prosecution announced.

Stephenson was silent on Miss Oberholtzer's death. Both the defendant and his counsel refused to comment when officially informed by the county prosecutor's office that she had died.

Eph Inman, defense counsel, will appear in court tomorrow to hear the ruling of Judge James A. Collins on the defense's motion to quash all charges, he said.

If the court rules against Stephenson, the defendant must enter a plea to all charges.

Called as the first witness in the coroner's official inquiry into the death of Miss Oberholtzer, Dr. John K. Kingsbury recited under oath today details given him by the girl of the alleged attack on her by D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana ku klux klan leader.

As Stephenson lay asleep in a Hammond, Ind., hotel Miss Oberholtzer slipped his revolver from its holster and planned to shoot her alleged assailant, Dr. Kingsbury, in his sworn statement, said the girl told him.

Abandoning this plan, Miss Oberholtzer pointed the revolver at her own temple, but decided on poison as a surer means of ending her life, physician told the coroner.

Capitalism Can Show no Symptom of Improvement Thruout the British Isles

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, as Germany staggers under the heavy burdens inflicted by the Morgan-Dawes plan, and the French franc hovers on the brink of chaos, little attention is given to conditions in Great Britain. This land, at least, is held by capitalist apologists to be an impregnable citadel of capitalism.

Great Britain certainly will continue to be a capitalist stronghold if the leaders of the British labor party can have their say. These include especially J. H. Thomas, who was secretary for the colonies in the recent "labor" government, and J. Ramsay MacDonald, the late premier himself, with others like Frank Hodges and Philip Snowden. Thomas repeats the stand of this "socialist" wing of British imperialism when he declares that if he had the power to put socialism into operation by his one vote, he would refuse to do it, "because the majority of the people do not believe in it."

The Thomas-MacDonald brand of socialism, under "labor rule," consisted of an open alliance with British imperialism; in fact, in the case of oppressed Egypt, these two worthies even outdid the tories. They uphold the British capitalist dictatorship as against the dictatorship of the British workers thru a Soviet republic.

• • • •

"'United We Stand, Divided We Fall,' is the motto alike," declares John L. Balderston in the New York World, "of Stanley Baldwin for the property-owning classes, and J. H. Thomas and Frank Hodges for the workers."

Balderson, of course, knows he is committing a falsehood when he says that Thomas, Hodges, Snowden or MacDonald speak for the British workers. The report of the British trade union delegation to Russia is conclusive proof of this. This writer lies as much in this instance, as he does when he verbosly proclaims that, "It is certain that in this new post-war world the old shibboleths of capitalists and workers alike are as out of date as the mid-nineteenth century dogmas of Karl Marx, which are worshipped as gospel texts by the Communists of Moscow."

This writer, like capitalism itself, would like to hide his head ostrich-like in oblivion and dodge the truths of Marxism and Leninism that are conquering the world for the working class.

• • • •

In this England of Baldwin and MacDonald, according to Lloyd George's recent tearful confession in the house of commons, there is nowhere to be found any real sympton of improvement; 25 per cent of British pre-war foreign trade and 15 to 20 per cent of pre-war national income has disappeared.

While the British press frantically points to Soviet rule, charging that the recovery of industry and agriculture there is not as rapid as it should be, it is admitted that production in England, untouched by the ravages of external and civil war and intervention, is today below what it was in 1913.

There are today 1,259,000 registered unemployed workers in Great Britain, who have received more than a billion and a half dollars in doles since the war. Efforts to ship these jobless workers to Canada and Australia offer no solution since both of those colonies have unemployed problems of their own. To refuse this amelioration of the sufferings of the workless would produce a worse crisis than the present drain upon the treasury.

• • • •

The temporary safety of British capitalism rests in the ability of the Baldwins, Asquiths and Lloyd Georges to unite with Thomas, Hodges, MacDonald and Snowden, in a tory-liberal-labor-socialist bloc against the interests of the workers. That is what the World's correspondent means when he says, "United We Stand; Divided We Fall!" But even the British working class will develop sufficient strength to throw off the yoke of the "united opposition" of capitalism. That is what helps develop a serious crisis in England, as well as in Germany and France. The struggle for bread is as keen in the British Isles as it is on the continent. Capitalism has its troubles everywhere.

IRON WORKERS DISCOVER OPEN SHOP TRICKERY

But 2,500 Men May Strike May 31

Structural iron jobs involving $50,000,000 worth of contracts in Chicago, among them the addition to the Morrison hotel, the new Palmer House and the Bismarck block, may be tied up on May 31 by a strike of the 2,500 members of the Iron Workers' union for a raise in pay of 25 cents an hour.

The open shop Iron League has been stalling negotations along from month to month, and altho the union has been seeking a new wage scale for a year or so, the Iron League hung back. Now it is trying to evade any increase by saying that the agreement which will expire May 31, provides that the present scale would remain effective—according to their argument, for another year.—if a new one is not negotiated by Feb. 28.

However, the agreement merely provides that the present scale shall be effective if no new one is set before Feb. 28, but only until a new one is set—and the union contends that there is no automatic renewal of the old scale for any fixed term, but a mere permission for continued work at the old scale until a new one is agreed upon.

The iron workers are said to have received a lesson upon why the open shop Iron League contractors dilly-dallied over a new contract until after Feb. 28.

SOVIET ENVOY PROTESTS WHITES IN CHANG'S ARMY

Sino-Russian Treaty Claimed Violated

PEKIN, China, April 15.—Recruitment of Russian white guards into the armies of Chang-Tsao-Lin, Manchurian war lord, was the subject of a protest lodged today with the Chinese government by L. Karakhan, Soviet ambassador to China.

In support of his protest, Karakhan cites a clause of the Sino-Russian agreement of last year, providing for the liquidation of the czarist forces in the Chinese armies. He demands the immediate dismissal of the white detachments, asserting that failure to carry out the provisions of the treaty cannot be otherwise interpreted by Russia except as a case of bad faith, and a policy likely to render abortive a future conference.

Capitalist interests in China are active in trying to create difficulties in the relations between Pekin and Moscow.

YOUNG WORKERS PROTEST ARREST OF HAWAIIANS

New York League Fights School Dope

NEW YORK, April 15.—The Young Workers League of District No. 2 is calling a protest mass meeting for Friday, April 17, at Stuyvesant Casino to protest against the introduction of religious training in the public schools of this city and also against the attempt of the American imperialists to imprison for life eight young Hawaiian Communists for no other crime than being members of a Communist organization.

The two issues that occasioned the call of this meeting are issues that involve the entire working class the country over and should be responded to by every militant worker in this city. First, the introduction of religious training in the city public schools is an attempt to further poison the minds of the children of the working class and make willing and submissive slaves of them. While the persecution of eight young Communists in Hawaii is an attempt on the part of the American imperialists to crush the revolutionary movement of the working class the world over.

Workers Protest.

The workers of this country must voice their protest against both religious training in the schools and the attempt to put out of the way eight of the best fighters of the revolutionary youth of Hawaii.

It is the duty of every workingman and workingwoman, of every young worker, to come and demonstrate their protest and determination to fight these new onslaughts of the world bourgeoisie. Let us put a halt to the murderous hands of American imperialism and the attempt to poison the minds of the children of the workers with "opium of the people," as Lenin expressed himself on religion.

Prominent Communists Speak.

The speakers will be Ludwig Lore, editor of the Volkszeitung; Jack Stachel, district organizer of the Young Workers League; Herbert Zam, Sam Don, in Yiddish, and Morris Spector, who spoke at the Lenin memorial at Madison Square Garden for the Junior section of the Young Workers League.

Admision will be free, and workers are urged to bring their children of school age with them.

ALLEGED SOVIET JAPAN TREATY SCARES LONDON

LONDON, April 15.—The British foreign office still continues its anti-Soviet campaign with undiminished vigor. The latest attack on the Soviet Union is in the publication of an inspired story alleging to be a summary of a secret protocol between Russia and Japan providing for certain mutually favorable conditions in the event either country became embroiled with another nation.

According to the foreign office story, the Soviet government makes certain concessions to Japan in return for which the latter agrees not to recognize the cession of Bessarabia to Roumania and promises to back Soviet before the league of nations interests involved in previous decisions by that body.

The chief importance of the story is, the fear of Soviet power, which hangs over the British ruling class.

Hungary Britain's Ward.

LONDON, April 15.—The influence of Austen Chamberlain was able to cause the failure of ratification of the trade agreement signed between Soviet Russia and Hungary but never ratified by the Hungarian government.

April 12 was set as a time limit on ratification. The Hungarian government asked for more time but Moscow made stipulations which showed that it did not consider a treaty with the Horthy government a matter of vital importance. Hungary recognized the Soviet regime when the labor party government of Britain was in office.

Abolish Segregated District; Now It'll Be Crime All Over

DECATUR, Ill., April 15.—The Decatur Review today resumed its usual make-up after a week of segregating crime news to one place on the bottom of page 1.

HOLDERS OF RUSSIAN CZAR'S BONDS WORRYING ABOUT MAZUMA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Holders of more than $3,000,000 in imperial Russian bonds, issued before the war, today sought the assistance of Attorney General Sargent in collecting from Russian money now held by the alien property custodian.

The bonds were sold to American bankers with the acquiescence of the state department. Sargent promised to co-operate with bondholders and said he would immediately investigate the best methods of collection.

WORKERS DONATE FOR MINERS IN STORM DISTRICT

Labor Defense Plea for Funds Answered

About fifty delegates from various workers' organizations, including Machinists, Carpenters, Wood Turners, Food Workers and other unions, Lithuanian, Slovak and Jewish fraternal organizations, and Workers Party and Young Workers' League branches, attended the last meeting of the Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief.

Local secretary, William F. Kruse, reported on the results of the March 29th International Unity Demonstration, and outlined the two new campaigns in which the organization is involved.

Collect Storm Relief.

The first of these is in behalf of the working class victims of the tornado which recently raged thru that section of the southern Illinois mining belt which is the home of the most militant section of the miners' union. The Illinois Manufacturers' Association, which spent a fortune in trying to hang the strikers at Herrin, is not likely to pass up such a chance to discriminate against working class fighters thru its relief agencies. There must be working class relief to working class militants.

Circulate "Pay Envelopes."

The method by which this fund is to be collected quickly is thru the circulation of thousands of "pay envelopes." In party branches and other organizations these are distributed, three to a member, one of them being filled immediately by the member and returned to the Defense-Relief delegate, who brings it to the local office. The two (or more) are used for collection from shop mates and neighbors and are turned in at the following meetings. One per cent of the weekly wage is asked for, one cent on the dollar, and the response has been very gratifying.

It was brot out that some branches, following the usual course of merely announcing communications under the report of the executive, did not follow the procedure outlined. The delegates were instructed to insist that the collection plan must be made very plain, thru the reading of the letter, and that it be carried out in detail immediately.

Jewish Branches Show Interest.

Comrade Clara Gabin reported that the Jewish branches showed keen interest in the plan and that a good sum would be collected at each of the meetings to be held next week.

Comrade J. Goebel promised to organize a corps of German speakers from his branch to cover meetings of the various Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Societies. Representatives of other languages promised to make up lists of meetings of similar societies so that they could be covered.

George Maurer, national secretary, reported on the national situation as to miners' relief and Irish famine relief. He stated that the San Francisco I. W. A. had immediately sent in a check for $100 and had already collected a large amount of clothing which would be shipped to our representative in the storm area, Ross White of Sesser, who is president of the miners' union local there.

A motion was made and carried that the secretary bring in a comprehensive plan for clothing and food stuff collection at the next meeting to be held Friday, April 24, at Greek Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave.

Several meetings and affairs favorable to the collection of money were announced and committees appointed to cover them. Unrepresented branches were also alloted to committee members.

The second big undertaking will be a meeting for Irish famine relief to be held at North Side Turner Hall, on Friday night, May 8. This is to be advertised mainly at the Mary Mac Swiney meeting on April 27, at the May Day meeting, and by a general distribution and posting on Sunday, May 3. John Patrick McCarthy, just returned from the famine area will be the chief speaker.

GREETINGS TO LATIN-AMERICA

power of the proletarian dictatorship, and usher in the new day of Communism.

Greetings for the First of May! The Workers (Communist) Party extends greetings to its sister parties, to all toilers, and especially to the workers and peasants of Latin-America, victims like us of the insatiable profit-hunger of American capitalism.

Not content with exploiting the workers at home, American capital is penetrating more and more surely into Latin-America, striving to absorb the entire Western hemisphere into a single economic system dominated by Wall Street. Along with this "peaceful penetration" goes the Monroe doctrine: America for the financial kings of Wall Street! Wall Street is carving out a vast empire for itself. The United States government is a mere tool in the hands of Wall Street. In the interests of Wall Street, Cuba has been made a virtual colony, Porto Rico has been seized and has been subjected. American marines have landed in Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica, and Haiti and Santo Domingo have been brot under the orders of the United States navy department. Mexico is constantly threatened with military intervention and even now the American firms in Mexico try to treat their employes almost like a colonial people. In Venezuela, the United States government lends full support to the bloody dictatorship of Juan Vicente Gomez. Ecuador and Bolivia are practically American "spheres of influence." Chile and Peru are played off against each other for the sake of nitrates. Ever more and more deeply into the countries further to the south pushes American imperialism, engaging in conflict with the equally rapacious British imperialism for the chance to monopolize the oil lands, mines, industries and markets of Latin-America.

The most significant fact confronting all the workers of the Western hemisphere on this First of May, 1925, is the growing domination of American imperialism. In practically every country of the hemisphere, the rule of the privileged classes is supported or maintained by the power of American imperialism.

The struggles for national liberation are struggles against American imperialism.

The fight of the peasants for the land is a fight against American imperialism.

The revolutionary movement of the workers is a movement against American imperialism.

American imperialism bars the way to every movement for liberty and human progress in the western world.

American imperialism represents the interests of the ruling capitalists in the United States, not the laboring masses. Those interests are directed against the workers in this country just as they are directed against you. Here as everywhere else, a class struggle is going on between workers and capitalists. Wall Street is our enemy no less than yours.

Wall Street uses "foreign cheap labor" to force down the standard of living of the workers in this country and draws strength from her investments abroad to beat back working class resistance at home. She plays upon the ignorance and prejudices of the home population to aid her in her imperialistic adventures abroad.

Ours is a common struggle, workers of North, South and Central America, against a common enemy. We must unite our forces to throw off this monster of Wall Street. The Communist International, leader of the revolutionary world proletariat and of the oppressed peoples thruout the earth, has already pointed out that American imperialism constitutes the backbone of world capitalism today. Let us dedicate this First of May to the struggle against imperialism—American imperialism, British imperialism, French imperialism and all other imperialisms alike!

Let us inscribe on our banners the common slogan: Independence and liberty! the land for the peasants and the factories for the workers! And under this countersign be prepared to march ahead, shoulder to shoulder with the revolutionary masses in all parts of the world, for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a free society.

Greetings for the First of May!
Workers of all countries unite!
Down with capitalism!
Down with imperialism!
Long live the Communist International!
Long live Soviet Russia!
Forward to world Communism!
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA,
EARL R. BROWDER, Acting Executive Secretary.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN CONFERENCE

life in the leisured upper class which the press circulated thruout England has done the work of tons of propaganda. Says the Daily Herald:

Debased "Upper Class."

"All who have read any history know that such people always exist in a class which has wealth and privileges divorced from duties or responsibilities. They live idly and luxuriously, self-centered and self indulgent; they are not intelligent enuf for rational amusement. Nothing is left for these victims of a debasing system but the pursuit of excitement in its most vicious forms."

Parliament Ditches Miners.

The defeat of the miners' minimum wage bill by the combined reactionary parties is termed by F. B. Varley, a moderate, "a direct incentive to revolutionary action."

The bill, which was rejected 208 to 143, would have guaranteed a minimum wage of from 10 to 12 shillings a day—about 3 pounds ($14.34) a week. The miners awaited the fate of this bill before mobilizing their economic power to obtain a living wage.

Rejection Means Strike.

The rejection, according to A. J. Cook, secy. Miners' Federation, will throw the miners back on their own industrial strength. He recalls that the rejection was moved by a tory and seconded by a liberal, proving that "we have only two parties—labor and anti-labor."

Dispute Over "Arbitration."

The co-operative dispute with the Distributive Workers' Union resulted in a lockout involving 9,000 workers in the northwestern area. Altho arising out of wages the dispute centered about representation and the form of "arbitration." The settlement provides that if after negotiations agreement is not reached by a certain date the matters in dispute shall be referred to a court of arbitration consisting of two representatives each from the co-op association, the union and the Trades Union Congress, and an impartial chairman.

Anglo-Russian Union Conference.

The Anglo-Russian trade union conference called to discuss international trade union unity, opened April 6. British representation includes Swales Purcell, Smillie, Thorne, Tillett, and Bramley. Russians include the president, secretary and chief organizer of the Russian Trade Union Council, the chairman of the Leningrad Trades Council, the chairman of the Metal Workers' Union and a member of the executive committee of the Textile Workers' Unions.

Even Defenseless Hens Exploited by New Orleans Firm

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.— The New Orleans Public Service, Inc., which has cost the city many thousand of dollars in furnishing protection for strike breakers when that corporation differed with their union employes, has evidently turned their attention from exploiting men, to "working" the poor barnyard hen.

Relying on the adage that a hen has no sense, in a display advertisement published Sunday the glib ad writer says: "Hens naturally go to roost at dark. If daylight can be artificially continued for a period the hen will also continue to scratch and feed, thus laying more eggs than otherwise. During the short-hour-day-months the egg production must be stimulated by these means."

When a corporation exploits a defenseless hen by urging the hen-owner to install electric light in the coops so "biddy" after a rest of a few short hours gets up when the current is turned on, thinking that another day has dawned, and begins laying the proverbal egg a day, what will they do to "intelligent man" who relies on the capitalistic newspapers for his patriotic propaganda?

MOSCOW STARTS FIGHT ON AGRICULTURAL PESTS IN NORTH CAUCASIA

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 15.—A squad of airplanes has left Moscow for north Caucasia for the purpose of fighting agricultural pests in that region, and especially with a view of destroying embryos of locusts in the marshes which otherwise are not accessible.

Pershing Prepares Next War.

General John Pershing, originator of the plan to militarize the entire country by means of citizens' training camps, spoke in Chicago last night in furtherance of his scheme. Pershing is proud of the fact that, partly thru his efforts 80,000 reserve officers are organized into divisions ready to step into the next imperialistic slaughter on the side of Wall Street. Pershing spoke before the 86th reserve division.

Church Modernists Win.

NEW YORK, Apr. 15—The modernists of the presbyterian church won a battle at a meeting of the moderators' council here when Cameron P. Hall was given his ministers' license, by a vote of 65 to 15, in spite of the fact that Hall denied his belief in bible miracles.

PORTUGAL'S ARMY TURNING RED AS HUNGER PINCHES

Even Officers Preach Open Rebellion

LISBON, Portugal, April 15.—That the Portuguese army, which is now facing starvation, will not much longer allow itself to be used to break strikes for the country's employers, and will side with the workers in case of a revolution, is the prevalent opinion here, following the publication of the letter of an army captain.

The letter, writetn by Jose de Barros Norfolk, declares in part: "The soldiers are half starved and the officers poverty stricken under their gilt braid. The recompense to the army for putting down strikes and uprisings, and reducing the working-classes to order, is the misery in which officers and their families live, and stark hunger among the men.

"The indifference of the politicians will be rewarded by our folding our arms in our barracks. We are tired of so much talk, so much moral misery, so much robbery and exploitation.

"The army may have to drive out all politicians, cleanse all the posts occupied now by thieves and traitors, and hand the administration of the state to Portuguese citizens who deserve that name."

N. Y. Labor Men Rally to Support of Teachers' Bill

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 15.—The teachers of New York have taken their fight to the labor movement and are daily enlisting more labor organizations in support of the Ricca teachers' salary bill.

The local unions of New York City are endorsing the teachers' fight for higher salaries and are sending resolutions to Governor Smith calling upon him to sign the Ricca teachers' salary bill. Local Union No. 25 of B. of P., D. and P. of A. with a membership of 1,500, and the Amalgamated Food Workers voted to support the teachers. The resolution of the Amalgamated follows:

"Whereas, the present salaries of teachers of New York City have a purchasing power of approximately 70 per cent of their salaries of 1914; and

"Whereas, thousands of teachers are compelled, for this reason, to engage in day and night employment and difficult conditions of heavy programs and crowded class-rooms; and

"Whereas, wage earners' children, who make up the bulk of the school population, are entitled to the best teachers who are adequately paid and not overworked; and

"Whereas, the Ricca teachers' salary bill represents simply a partial restoration of the teachers' pre-war dollar, particularly for the thousands of teachers of the lower grades; and

"Whereas, New York City, the richest city of the richest country in the world, can well afford to increase its school expenditures one-sixth of one per cent of the value of its manufactured products; be it, therefore,

"Resolved that the Amalgamated Food Workers, consisting of 8,000 members in Greater New York, urge you to sign the Ricca bill No. 1997.

"Signed: Aug. Burkhardt,
"Secretary-Treasurer."

Labor men are signing petitions as trade unionists calling upon the governor to approve of the bill. In one hall 150 striking machinests signed up.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL URGES CHINESE MASSES TO UNITE UNDER BANNER OF REDS AND KUOMINGTANG

MOSCOW, April 15.—In a manifesto addressed by the Communist International to the masses of the Chinese people, it is stated that the Comintern (Communist International) mourns, together with the Chinese people, the death of the Chinese people's leader, whose name is endeared to the toilers of the world.

Then, after reviewing in detail Sun Yat Sen's life work beginning with his struggle against the Manchus and ending with his death, the manifesto proceeds to declare that Sun Yat Sen has become the symbol of the East that has entered upon the path of struggle against the enslavement by the imperialistic countries of Europe and America.

Kuomingtang and Reds Must Unite

On this day of sorrow of the death of their leader, the Comintern calls upon the workers and peasants of China to close their ranks around the national revolutionary party of the Kuomingtang and the Communist Party of China and carry on the struggle started tens of years ago by the now deceased leader, fighting the imperialists striving to vitiate the position of the great leader of the party by pushing it to compromises.

Support Chinese Liberation Move

In an appeal to the workers of the world, the Comintern calls upon them "in the face of the death of the gallant champion of the liberation of the oppressed, to close their ranks, to support the national liberative movement of the toilers of China, not to allow their respective bourgeois classes to tear to pieces the four hundred million Chinese people."

Profintern Statement

A similar manifesto, addressed to the toiling masses of China, has been issued by the Profintern (International of Red Labor Unions). This organization calls upon the Chinese trade-unions to continue Sun Yat Sen's work, declaring that they can rely on the assistance of the revolutionary workers of all countries. The Profintern exhorts the Chinese trade unions to strengthen their organizations, getting into closer connection with the international revolutionary labor movement.

Red Aid Sends Message

In the name of five million organized workers and peasants, the executive committee of the International Revolutionary Fighters' Relief conveys its sympathies and condolences to the executive committee of the Kuomingtang and declares that "the imperishable political will of Sun Yat Sen adds strength to the firm resolution of the Mopra (the above-mentioned labor relief organization) to extend its slogans of relief of the slaves of the capital also to those millions of workers and peasants of China who cherish the idea of the international solidarity of the toilers. "Everlasting memory to the best son of the Chinese people" —concluded this manifesto.

Youth Issue Statement

The executive committee of the Communist International of Youth, the central committee of the Russian Lenin's Communist Union of Youth, the board of directors of the society for the promotion of the air fleet, and a number of other political and social organizations have wired to the Kuomingtang messages of deep sympathy and condolences.

The Communist University for the Toilers of the East hoisted mourning flags.

Russo-Oriental Trade Body Meets

A special memorial session of the Russo-Oriental chamber of commerce was held at the people's commissariat of foreign affairs, with the participation of representatives of the Communist International, the central committee of the Russian Communist Party, the Chinese and Mongolian missions, the Chinese, Persian and Afghan merchants, Messrs. Lejava, Frumkin, acting people's commissary of foreign trade and other prominent men.

Mr. Hodoroff, vice-chairman of the chamber of commerce, and Mr. Rotstein, member of the collegium of the people's commissariat of foreign affairs, were the principal speakers. They dwelt on the activities of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the policy of the Soviet Union of the East, in particular, the role of the U. S. S. R. in thwarting the imperialistic intervention in connection with last year's events in China.

Soviet Union Only Friend.

In the resolution passed by the meeting, it is declared, in part, that China, surrounded as she is by enemies can look for assistance only to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics which is her only friend; close economic relations between the Chinese people and the peoples of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will create a basis for a powerful development. The life of Sun Yat Sen —the resolution concludes— must serve for a model to all the Chinese who wish to save their own country from the yoke of imperialism.

GERMAN ACTORS' UNION FIGHTS MANAGERS WHO WOULD WARP CONTRACT

BERLIN, April 15.—The International Artists' Lodge, German vaudeville performers, are fighting the discrimination of the managers' association, which is attempting to nullify the favorable contract won by the union at the end of 1924.

The contract omitted to stipulate, however, that 50 per cent of each theater's budget must be spent on native talent. The vaudeville managers are spending all they can on foreign performers.

The home contract which expires in 1926 compels managers to pay railroad fares, allowances for baggage, gives permanence of individual contract once signed, etc. Farseeing union members are preventing the agitation from taking on an anti-foreign tinge and are concentrating on the managers.

Russo-Chinese Fair at Harbin Promises Exchange of Trade

HARBIN, April 15.—At a recent session of the Chinese section of the committee of the joint Russo-Chinese exhibition to be held soon at Harbin, it was decided to send a delegation to Pekin to ask for a prompt solution of the question of a special low tariff on Chinese railways for the transport of exhibits and also the exemption from customs duties of goods brought to the exhibition, with the provision that should such goods be sold at the exhibition their owner would have to pay the corresponding duty.

Further, it was decided to ask Mr. Li Chia-ao, Chinese representative at Moscow, for his good offices in obtaining the same facilities from the competent Soviet authorities.

With a view to acquainting the Chinese business circles with the aims and object of the pending Harbin exhibition, it was decided expedient to proceed without delay to the issuance of information bulletins in the Chinese language.

NORTH CHINA IS GRIEVED AT SUN YAT SEN'S DEATH

English Paper Calls Him a Hero

SHANGHAI, April 15.—Stating that an element of quite exceptional importance has been eliminated from the mechanism of Chinese politics with Dr. Sun Yat Sen's death, the North China Daily News foresees that this event is bound to bring about substantial changes in all the prospects lying before this country. The English paper pays a high tribute to the deceased leader who, as this organ admits, was ever inspired by the great idea of regenerating his country and to whom China owes the overthrow of autocracy.

The North China Daily News concludes that there may be created such a situation as to justify many of Sun Yat Sen's deeds which now may perhaps seem only to be caprices or may appear to have been dictated by sheer unwillingness to compromise, and that in the future Sun Yat Sen will be recognized by all as a hero, just as he is acclaimed as such now by his followers.

Our Readers' Views

Another Season for Nuts.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Here is an example of the way the retail merchants here in Oakland, Cal., work the gulible "public." Due to lightheadedness, a heavy hat and our glorious California climate, I decided I should like to invest in a straw hat, having noted they were beginning to creep forth on several display counters about a week ago. Of a sudden all disappeared from sight. Inquiry brought forth the following from a member of the Merchants' Association, whose counter was bare of "straws."

Customer: "Hello! No straw hats, what's wrong?"

Merchant: "Well, you see we have them, but were compelled to withdraw them from display, as the Merchants' Association decided that April 23 was to be Straw Hat Day and no display before that day, so we have them in the basement, and if you insist on a purchase now, why of course, we are allowed to serve you."

Customer: "Well, I'll think it over. I may wait another year, good day!"

Soviet Exhibit at French Fair Gained Cordial Reception

PARIS, France, April 15.—Mdivani, trade representative of the U. S. S. R. in France, states that he has been highly gratified at the reception the Soviet representatives have met with at Lyons fair. The fair committee arranged a banquet in honor of the Soviet guests.

The Soviet pavilion is practically the only one among the foreign pavilions which has been attracting considerable interest on the part of the visiting public.

Doing Missionary Work For Communism

By Wm. Z. Foster

"IN subscription campaigns the immediate goal to achieve is, of course, to extend the circulation of the DAILY WORKER. But this is by no means the only advantage to be gained. By the very act of trying to sell such subscriptions, whether he succeeds or not, the comrade in question is not only doing missionary work for Communism, but is also gaining valuable organization experience.

"The Workers Party membership must take seriously the necessity for mass participation in the work of spreading the DAILY WORKER. The building of our great English language daily must ever and always be kept in the foreground of our program as one of the most important tasks confronting our party. A DAILY WORKER with a great circulation means tremendous strides towards the building of our organization into a mass Communist Party, a Bolshevized Party, a party of organizers and leaders. Let us work to the end that when the second anniversary of the DAILY WORKER arrives we will have a vast net-work of organizers and militants throughout the party working ceaselessly to extend the circulation and influence of our paper amongst the struggling masses."

From the Daily Worker Jan. 13, 1925.

JOINT SUN YAT MEETING HELD IN PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Workers Party, Kuomintang Speakers

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—Four hundred Communists, sympathizers and members of the Kuomintang packed the Grand Fraternity Hall to honor the memory of the great Chinese revolutionary leader, Sun Yat Sen. The meeting was held under the auspices of Philadelphia Local Workers (Communist) Party. Comrade R. Baker, secretary of the Workers Party of Philadelphia, acted as chairman and pointed out that the meeting was one of the many held thruout the country by the Workers Party as a demonstration of proletraian solidarity with the great Chinese revolutionary movement against world imperialism led by the Kuomintang.

Comrade S. Sklaroff in the name of the executive committee of the Workers Party expressed sympathy for the great loss to the Chinese proletariat in the death of Sun Yat Sen and called upon them to close ranks in their battle against world imperialism.

Chinese Speaker.

J. M. Lau, member of the Kuomintang, spoke in Chinese on the life of Sun Yat Sen and the aims of the Kuomintang party. His speech was translated by J. A. Paau and was received with tremendous applause by the audience.

Comrade I. Amter spoke at length on the Soviet policy in the Far East and outlined the various economic and political factors determining the movement of the Chinese masses as embraced in the Kuomintang and the great movements of the masses in the Far East who are beginning to upon the Communist International as the real leader of their struggle.

Amter dealt at length with American imperialism and especially stressed the savage sentences passed upon the two young Communist soldiers who were sentenced to long prison terms for forming a Communist League in Hawaii. After the speeches the following resolution was introduced from the floor and passed with a unanimous rising vote:

We send our greetings to Comrades Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull and the six other indicted comrades. Your fight, comrades, will be an inspiration to the workers of Hawaii to continue the fight. The Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League will do everything in their power to rally the workers and poor farmers of this country to your cause and will not rest till under the leadership of the Communist International the workers and poor peasants of all countries have put an end to capitalist rule and have established the power of the workers and poor peasants the world over in the form of Soviet governments.

We, revolutionary workers of Philadelphia, assembled at Grand Fraternity Hall on Sunday, April 12, emphatically protest against the savage term of imprisonment inflicted upon our two comrades and categorically demand that they be reelased.

Workers Communist Party.
Young Workers League.

Kuomintang Holds Memorial.

Philadelphia local of the Kuomintang held elaborate memorial services in the afternoon in the Dumont's theater. The meeting was attended by about 600 people, mostly Chinese workers, and among them many members and sympathizers of the Workers Party. The theater was beautifully decorated in accordance with the Chinese custom. The stage was arranged with several large pictures of Sun Yat Sen surrounded by a large array of flowers and bouquets from various organizations, among them a bouquet of red roses from the Workers Party. Luther Lee, chairman of the local Kuomintang, opened the meeting and introduced a number of speakers in Chinese and English.

The splendid spirit of co-operation shown in these two memorial meetings by the local Kuomintang and the Workers Party will lead to the establishment of friendly relationship of the two organizations.

The Workers Party of Philadelphia is holding its next meeting Sunday, April 19, at the Grand Fraternity Hall, 1628 Arch St. Simon Felshin of New York will speak on "Proletarian Art and Culture." This meeting will be held in the evening and will be followed by questions and a discussion. Admission is free.

Salzman Speaks For Y. W. L. at Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday, April 19

The Young Workers League of Cleveland will hold a general membership meeting April 19 at the party headquarters. Comrade Max Salzman, member of the National Executive Committee, will report on shop nuclei and the immediate tasks of the Cleveland League. This meeting will be one of the most important meetings held by the Cleveland League. A 100 per cent attendance is expected.

In addition to Comrade Salzman, a report of the working area branch will be rendered by Comrade Papcun.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time are:

New York, N. Y.—Speakers, William Z. Foster and Moissaye Olgin.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Speakers, Ben Gitlow and Oliver Carlson.

Boston, Mass.—Convention Hall, Garrison St. (Near Mechanic's Bldg.) 7:30 p. m. Speaker, Wm. F. Dunne.

SCHOOL SALARY RECOMMENDATION TO GO TO BOARD

McAndrew Takes No Risks with New Trustees

Rumors have it that Superintendent William McAndrew's new salary schedule is slated to come before the board of education meeting April 22, which means that it will be approved. For no McAndrew recommendation is permitted to be acted upon at a board meeting unless the trustees are sold on it.

The reason for the rush was explained to be due to the short time left before the reorganization of the board on May 1. McAndrew has these trustees securely stuffed in his pockets—figuratively speaking. He is not sure of the seven new trustees.

It is also rumored that McAndrew has lost no time in letting his scheme grow cold. It is said that he called 25 principals to his office and gave them a few pointers how to talk up the measure. He told them not to be bashful, but to go and visit the members on the board individually and show them that they are for the increase. He told them this was necessary to convince the wavering members on the board that the "teachers" were for it.

It looks like the money for the immediate increase which the principals are to get right away will come from increasing the tax rate for educational purposes. The board can by referendum ask for an increase of $1.00, or any part of a dollar, over the present levy which $1.92.

As has been pointed out on several occasions the deficit in the school treasury climbs this year $4,000,000 and totals $20,000,000. To meet the new scale $1,300,000 will be required the first year. Unless this amount can be saved the budget deficit would jump to more than $5,000,000 for the year. Perpetuation of the increase means $3,000,000 the second year, increasing to $8,000,000 by the eighth year.

No reply has been made to the Teachers' Federation's letter which urges the board's co-operation in their fight to get the money due the school treasury in taxes that is now thru favoritism to wealthy property holders escaping taxation. They also ask McAndrew the following questions:

1. If the proposed schedule is adopted by the board of education, what maximum salary is to be paid for the years 1925, 1926, 1927 to each of the following groups of teachers, and how many persons in each group are eligible to and will be paid the maximum?

(a) Elementary teachers? (b) Junior high school teachers? (c) High school teachers? (d) Head assistants? (e) Elementary principals? (f) Junior high school principals? (g) High school principals?

They say they want to safeguard every teacher against discrimination. From McAndrew's maneuvers, they say, the entire project looks like a scheme on the part of the superintendent to build his machine with the aim to break the backbone of the teachers' organization by playing favoritism to the principals and some of the teachers.

Cleveland Juniors' Basket Party.

POLISH WHITE TERROR EXPOSED BY COMMUNISTS

Comrade Radwanski On Speaking Tour

The campaign against the Polish white terror now conducted by the Polish Federation of the Workers Party and the I. W. A. is meeting with success according to reports coming from Comrade Radwanski, who is on a speaking tour thru the East.

Five hundred workers attended a mass meeting in Hamtramck, Mich., last Sunday at which Comrade Radwanski spoke. His schedule is as follows:

Niagara Fall, April 16, 7:30 p. m., in Polish Federation Hall, Falls and 27th Street.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 17, 8 p. m., at Polish Educational Hall, 881 Broadway.

Rochester, April 18.

Utica, N. Y., April 19, Sunday afternoon, 2 p. m., at "Czerkiesa" Hall, 315 Nichols Street.

Fulton, N. Y., Sunday, April 19, 7:30 p. m., at "Oswiata" Hall.

Speeches, Movies and Music Feature Milwaukee May Day

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 15.—A gigantic May Day demonstration is being arranged by the United Front Conference in Milwaukee under the leadership of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League. A very interesting program has been arranged in the evening.

The demonstration will be held in the Freie Gemeinde Hall, 8th and Walnut Streets, Friday, May 1, at 7:30 sharp. Max Bedacht, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party will speak in German, and Thomas Bell, industrial organizer for the Workers Party in the city of Chicago will speak in English. Other speakers will include John Edwards, Francis Urban, and George Bubich.

The musical program includes the German and Russian-Ukrainian choirs, Tamburica orchestra, the Freiheit Singing society, and the Buduchnost Singing Society.

Two reels of motion pictures will be shown, depicting scenes from the French, German and Russian revolutions, and American strikes.

Workers' Sports Club Entertains in N. Y. C.

NEW YORK, April 15.—At last we have it! The first affair of the Workers Sports Club since its organization. And you can bet it's a Jim Dandy. The most novel entertainment that ever a branch produced.

Miss Lee Cohen, a singer of note (high note) will render several selections. Comrade Davidson, an accomplished cellist will delight us with a few numbers. Irving Shebe is the one who will show us how to play Rackmaninoff's prelude on a saw. A Communist Breitbart will chew up nails and bend iron for our benefit.

And not only do we have this fine program, but following it we will have dancing with the jazziest music that can be obtained.

Don't forget. The place is 108 E. 14th St. The date is Saturday evening at 8 p. m. Be there early, comrades, for the entertainment will start at eight sharp. Al Furman, organizer.

SOCIALISTS AID WALL STREET TO KID MAIN STREET

Standard Oil Patronizes Berger's Sheet

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 15.—The old adage that business is business holds good particularly when it is applied to the renegade "socialists," whether they still masquerade as socialist or run under the klan ticket.

Two specific illustrations of that one could observe in an advertisement in the Milwaukee Leader, official organ of Victor Berger and company. In the last few issues there appears a large fourteen-by-eight-inch advertisement of the Standard Oil company.

Kidding Main Street.

The subject of the advertisement is devoted toward proving that "Main Street and not Wall Street now owns the big industries."

"Why," the advertisement states, "there are at present 49,277 owners of this company, of whom not one owns as much as 6 per cent of the whole." The advertisement further proves that much of the smooth functioning and its avoidance of labor trouble is due to the progressive measures.

The advertisement finally concludes with the splendid oration on co-operation of all classes.

Klan Is Also in Business.

Another demonstration that business is business may be seen in the news articles that Kleist, a klansman and candidate for judge of the supreme court in the spring elections, is demanding that the bail of his client accused of violation of the Volstead act, should be reduced $1,500 in order that he may collect his fee. It seems to be fully consistent with the principles of the invisible empire to take up and defend the bootleggers' cases.

So business is business for Vic Berger and his worthy disciple Kleist, who has now graduated into the klan. The fascist movement is openly selling itself to the capitalist class and all the parasites of the capitalist society. The Workers (Communist) Party is the only organization holding high the principles of revolutionary class struggle and the only organization worthy of the support of the working masses.

Wicks Speaks Friday on "The Next War" at Reading, Pennsylvania

The Workers Party branch of Reading, Pa., has arranged a mass meeting for Friday, April 12, at 8 p. m., with H. M. Wicks as speaker on "The Next War."

A close student of imperialism and current history, Comrade Wicks is eminently fitted to handle the subject from a revolutionary standpoint and to expose the reality beneath all the diplomatic intrigues of capitalist statesmen. The lecture is free to all workers and is of vital interest to them, as they are the ones who with their very lives furnish cannon fodder in the game of their imperialist masters.

Already capitalist statesmen are talking in terms of another world war and the workers of Reading will have an opportunity of hearing the Communist view of this impending struggle, compared to which the last world blood bath of the workers will seem mild, and the Communist method of combating the schemes of the ruling class of the world.

The meeting will be held at the R. V. V. F. hall, 612 Franklin street, at 8 p. m. sharp.

Big Meeting Expected At Speech on Assault Against Seattle Reds

SEATTLE, Wash., April 15.—The whole labor movement of Seattle and surrounding cities is being stirred profoundly by the clash in the Central Labor Council between the reactionaries and the Communists. Interest is becoming so widespread that mass meetings indoors and outdoors are being arranged by the Workers Communist Party to carry their message to the whole working class.

Among these meetings an outstanding event will be the speech of Norman H. Tallentire, district organizer of the Workers Party, to be delivered in the Painters hall, Union Record building, 1915 First avenue, at 8 p. m. on Friday, April 24.

Tallentire's lecture is announced to be on "The Assault on Communism in the Labor Movement" and is expected to draw a standing-room-only audience. No admission is being charged.

The Workers Party in Action

Iowa Coal Miners Hear Speakers Urge Class Solidarity

MYSTIC, Iowa, April 15.— Good-sized crowds of coal miners listened to J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews at an open air meeting here in the evening and at Centerville in the afternoon.

Snyder pointed out the determined efforts of the coal operators to crush the miners' union, as shown in their shipment of scab coal from West Virginia and Kentucky into Iowa in competition with the coal mined locally.

This determined drive of the mine owners, Snyder pointed out, would inevitably result in the annihilation of the United Mine Workers and the loss of the wage scale and working conditions, unless the miners united around a militant movement such as the Workers Party and the ideas it advocates to the end that class solidarity will replace class collaboration as the policy of the organized labor movement. The miners listened attentively and in large numbers at both Centerville and Mystic.

Considerable quantities of literature, including the DAILY WORKER and the report of the British Trade Union Congress on international trade union unity were distributed.

BOSTON WORKERS CONDEMN POLISH WHITE TERROR

Socialists Aid in Jailing Reds

BOSTON, Mass., April 15.— At a rousing mass meeting held here in the Credit Union Hall, a resolution was unanimously passed by the large audience, condemning the white terror in Poland.

The resolution calls on all workers to fight the Polish terror and demands the release from jail of the Polish workers. The help given the Polish white guard in imprisoning workers, by the social-democrats, is clearly pointed out in the resolution, which states:

Foul Murders.

"The Polish government, aided and abetted by the social-democrats, is conducting a white terror that knows no bounds. The Polish government has brutally imprisoned thousands of Communists. It has just foully murdered two staunch fighters of the working class, Wieczorkiewicz and Baginski.

"It has reluctantly only just now, forced by pressure of the international proletariat, organized under the banner of the Communist International, been made to release Stanislav Lanzutsky.

"The workers of Boston protest against these brutalities of the Polish government, acting as it is, as the agent of the capitalists and imperialists of the world.

End White Terror.

"We call on all workers to demand the end of the white terror in Poland and to compel the release of working class fighters from Polish jails.

(Signed) Resolutions Committee,
"JOHN SOJA,
"ALBERT WEISBORD."

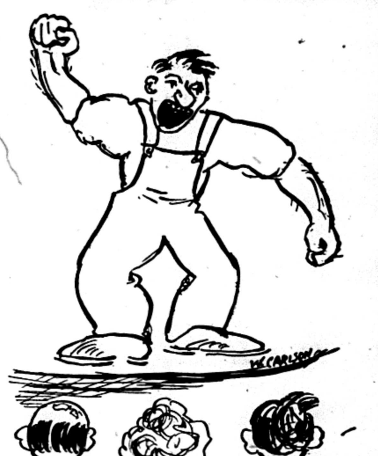
Even if You Talk Yourself Blue in the Face--



There is at least one worker you can't convince.

No matter how well you may have argued and no matter how long you might have talked—there is at least one!

It may be the worker in your shop (perhaps that intelligent fellow at the machine next to yours)—or it may be the one in your union.

But there is at least one whom every Communist knows—and can't convince.

He is the reason why in this campaign the DAILY WORKER wants you to get TWO subs.

The first you will get—you CAN convince at least one worker that he should subscribe to a great working class paper. That's a simple task for a determined Communist.

But for the worker you can't convince—

The Propaganda Sub

With the DAILY WORKER reaching your shop-mate everyday—with the best expression of Communist principles and practice and a picture of Communist actitity the world over—

Reaching him when he can read and THINK—(and no boss or stool-pigeon is nearby)—the DAILY WORKER will do what possibly you might have failed in—it will "make another Communist!"

Pay for "a propaganda sub" to do this (out of your own pocket if you can)—it is little enough to contribute for such a definite Communist purpose.

This Is it

Send it to The Daily Worker,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.
Chicago, Ill.

IF YOU MAKE THE SUB FOR A YEAR—

Be sure to ask for the special leather binder containing note paper for your use and a full descriptive catalogue of all Communist publications and literature. It is given ONLY to those who have secured a year's sub (or $6.00 worth of subs) on which no commission is deducted. Ask for the leather binder—you'll like it!

RATES
$6.00 a year $3.50—6 months $2.00 3 months
In Chicago—$8.00 a year $4.50 6 months $2.50 3 months

Send this PROPAGANDA SUB to a worker to "Make Another Communist"

TURKOMEN FORM REPUBLIC, JOIN SOVIET UNION

Repentent Bandit Given Amnesty

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, April 15—The declaration of the formation of the Turkomen Soviet Socialist Republic was read and adopted amidst enthusiastic applause by the All-Turkomen congress of Soviets, sitting at Poltoratsk, Trans Caspian region.

Then, in a scene of general jubilation and under a salute of artillery guns, the congress passed the decision of the new Turkomen Republic's joining the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Draft Constitution.

The future central executive committee has been charged with the drafting of the constitution, which will be submitted to the next Turkomen congress of Soviets for approval.

An interesting episode occurred when the chairman declared that a delegation representing Djunaid Khan, the chief of the Basmatch bandits, had arrived and wished to make an urgent statement. They were admitted to the session and read a letter from their chief, who asked for pardon and promised to give up his bandit activities nad return to peaceful work.

Give Bandit Amnesty.

The congress, taking into consideration Djunaid Kahn's repentance, decided to amnesty him, despite all the wrong he had done to his country. An amnesty was also granted to those Turkomen farmers and petty landlords who had emigrated to Persia and Afghanistan during the years of civil war: they are to be allowed to come back to their homes within six months.

Philadelphia Fruit and Grocery Clerks in Unionizing Drive

PHILADELPHIA—The Fruit and Grocery Clerks' Union of Philadelphia has launched an organization campaign that will definitely establish this organization as a vital factor in the food industry. This local has been recently organized and has about 100 members.

Several months ago the local affiliated with the Amalgamated Food Workers and arrangements are now being made to form a joint council of the food workers that will be in a position to put an organizer in the field.

Many thousand leaflets are being distributed among the fruit and grocery clerks as a forerunner to a series of organization meetings. The union meets every Sunday at 3 p. m. at 329 Pine street.

Let the DAILY WORKER make your arguments every day. Send in a sub for your shop mates.

LYNCHINGS, DEPORTATIONS AND ARRESTS OF STRIKERS FEATURE AMERICAN MOB RULE IN MARCH

NEW YORK, April 15.—The report of persecutions of workers for labor activity and mob violence in the month of March, issued by the Civil Liberties Union, is featured by many lynchings and the trial of silk strikers.

Three lynchings of Negroes in the south and two near-lynchings of white men stand out in the report. Conspicuous items among the unfavorable reports are the conviction of seven silk strikers for unlawful assembly in Paterson, N. J., and the strengthening of the criminal syndicalist law in Idaho.

In California, 2 of the 5 cases reported are prior to last summer, when the criminal syndicalist prosecutions ceased.

The release of the last federal war prisoner serving for political reasons, and the dismissal of the last West Virginia treason indictments growing out of the miners' armed march in 1921, mark the close of two important and lengthy series of cases.

Lynchings and Mob Violence

Louisiana: Joe Airy, Negro, was taken from the custody of the sheriff at Schreveport by a mob of 200 armed men and lynched.

Virginia: An unindentified Negro, was taken from the Sussex county jail at Waverly by a mob and lynched.

Georgia: An unidentified Negro was burned at the stake at Rockyford by a mob.

Maryland: A mob of more than 100 persons at Berlin attempted to lynch the Bevans brothers in custody of Sheriff Wilmer Purnell, but dispersed when the sheriff threatened to shoot into the mob.

North Carolina: James Needleman, a travelling salesman, was taken from the Martin county jail by a mob at Williamstown, and mutilated.

Meetings Broken Up

California: Leo Callagher, an attorney representing the California branch of the American Civil Liberties Union was arrested at Los Angeles on Feb. 23rd, when he was addressing a meeting to protest the recent police interference with "hecklers" at the open-air religious meetings at the Plaza. He was released on $35.00 bail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

New Jersey: The department of justice on March 3rd dismissed the charge of conspiracy against Judah L. Cooper, arrested at Bayonne in 1924 for a speech in Russian at a Workers Party meeting. It was the first federal conspiracy case based on a single speech.

Washington: Anton Karachun, a Russian citizen serving a 20-year sentence at McNeil Island penitentiary on a charge of desertion from the United States army in Siberia, was released by the war department on March 5th on condition that he return to Russia. Karachun was the last of the federal war prisoners serving sentences for political reasons.

West Virginia : The last of the indictments against members of the United Mine Workers of America charging treason as a result of the armed march to Logan county in 1921 were nolle prossed by Judge Woods on motion of Prosecuting Attorney Porterfield on Feb. 11th.

To Deport Two Jugo-Slavs

Missouri: John W. Dobrinich and Milos Vojnovic, natives of Jugo-Slavia, who were arrested at St. Louis in 1919 and again in 1920 in the Palmer red raids, were ordered deported on March 14th after a five-year fight against the deportation. Vojnovic is a member of the socialist labor party. Further efforts will be made to stop their deportation.

California: Appeal in the case of Powell et al was denied by the third district court of appeals on March 4th. Eight of the nine I. W. W.'s in the case were arrested at Eureka in October, 1923 One was arrested at Trinidad two weeks later and included in the same indictment They were convicted in April, 1924 after their first trial had resulted in a hung jury.

Wobbly Given Six Months

Charles D. Criswold, I. W. W. arrested at Westwood on March 6th on criminal syndicalism charges (later changed to violation of the Busick injunction) was convicted on March 9th and sentenced to 6 months in the county jail

T. J. Smith, T. Foley, E. Scheisser, C. Anderson and J. Nolan, I. W. W's, arrested at Sacramento on March 9, on vagrancy charges were released on March 18.

Allen Doble, I. W. W. news-seller, arrested at Los Angeles on vagrancy charges and held for 46 days, was discharged on March 3rd. This was Doble's third arrest in three months, the first time for violation of the criminal syndicalism law, and then for violation of the Busick injunction. In both of these cases, the charge was dismissed also.

W. I. Fruit, I. W. W. convicted at Los Angeles in 1921, was released from San Quentin on March 11, upon expiration of sentence.

Arizona: Robert Ayner, I. W. W. arrested on vagrancy charges at Phoenix on Jan. 27 and sentenced to 10 days in jail, is still being detained for deportation to Canada. J. D. Hart, John Martin and G. M. Monroe, I. W. W's arrested March 27, at Phoenix on vagrancy charges, were found not guilty.

Discharge Detroit Communists

Michigan: Seven men and one woman, members of the Workers Party, arrested by the Detroit police when they attacked a demonstration before the Polish consulate on March 28 in protest against the death sentence imposed by the Polish government upon Lanzutsky, a Communist, were later discharged.

"Academic Freedom"

Missouri: The appropriation bill for the mainteinance of the state university and school passed by the legislature in March provides that no institution supported by the state shall employ any person who teaches or advocates in public or private "that the citizens of this state should not protect the government of the United States from aggression from other nations."

Tennessee: A bill forbidding the teaching of the theory of evolution in state-supported schools was signed by Governor Peay on March 23.

Massachusetts: Because of an attack on the reserve officers' training corps in an editorial in the March issue of the Beanpot, Dean Everett W. Lord of Boston University has called for the resignation of Henrietta Perkins, managing editor of the university publication.

Gag Legislation

Idaho: Governor Moore this month signed an amendment to the state criminal syndicalism law defining the word "sabotage" to mean "damage, injury and destruction of personal property; work done in an improper manner; tampering with or disabling of machinery; improper use of materials; loitering at work; slack work; slowing down work or production; scamped work; waste of property; the publication of trade secrets; or either of any of the foregoing acts when done wilfully or maliciously."

California: The bill to repeal the state criminal syndicalist law, introduced by Assemblyman Hornblower, was tabled this month by the unanimous vote of the judiciary committee.

Soviet Russian Music Gives Tense Moments to Symphony Audience

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

"Ilya Mourometz," the third symphony of Reinhold Moritzovich Gliere, who teaches composition at the Soviet music school in Moscow, took up most of the program of the Chicago symphony orchestra at Orchestra Hall last Friday and Saturday. To phrase this writer's opinion of the symphony quite mildly it is the greatest piece of music in symphonic proportions ever conceived in the mind of man, bar none.

The work consists of four tone pictures describing scenes in the Russian epic of Ilya Mourometz. In the story of Ilya everything is massive, mountainous, planet sized. And Gliere's music is also plant sized. At the end of the last movement, when Ilya Mourometz is turned from a giant of flesh to a statue of stone occurs probably the biggest, most hair-raising climax in music. It is a climax that has the effect on the listener of over exhausting physical exertion, leaving him weak and trying to recuperate.

Great and marvelous as the work is in and for itself, it is also great in its significance in the history of music. For it seems to the writer that "Ilya Mourometz" represents both the climax and the end of that period of Russian music that can be called the nationalist era. It began with Michael Glinka in the 1840's, it was in its heyday in the eighties when Borodin and Musorgski and Rimski-Korsakov were alive and creating, it ended with Gliere's third symphony in 1912. True there are members of the nationalist school still alive, but the two greatest of them, Ippolitov-Ivanov and Glazunov, are pretty old men, and Glazunov never really was one of the group anyway.

Rimski-Korsakov's "Russian Easter" overture opened the program. It is the sort of charming, beautiful thing one expects from Korsakov, with some novel effects in the percussion instruments taking a prominent place.

The program wound up with the customary Easter time excerpts from "Parsifal," which, lovely as they are, got no attention from me because they followed too close on the heels of the petrification of Ilya. Mr. Stock puts Max Wintrich and his tubular bells up inside of the organ pipes to the left of the stage for this, and when the "Parsifal" music great bell motive, comes thundering out of the unseen, it always gets the audience. Proving that Frederick Stock is a good showman as well as a superb musician.

This was probably the most difficult program of the year for the orchestra, even taking into account the one on which they played Stravinski's "Rite of Spring." They did it with customary perfection, and it was listened to without a cough, proving that they sold it as well.

Bank of Japan Changes Rate.

TOKYO, April 15.— The Bank of Japan today reduced the discount rate from 8.03 per cent to 7.3 per cent, first change in the rate since 1919. The reduction was made possible, according to a bank statement, due to the better condition of the institution brought about by healthier business thruout the empire.

BUILDERS AT WORK

HERE IS A VOICE FROM THE SHOPS

A Message from Detroit Shop Nucleus No. 1.

Dear Comrades: A message to the comrades who are building the DAILY WORKER. The newly organized Shop Nucleus No. 1, Detroit, with only fourteen members is stepping forward in the DAILY WORKER campaign. At its last meeting the nucleus has ordered 2,000 copies of the May Day edition. Altho the nucleus is recently organized and much handicapped due to the small membership and finance, —it is planning for a large DAILY WORKER campaign, giving an example for other comrades of larger branches to follow. Also made an arrangement in financing the selling of DAILY WORKER, Workers Monthly and other literature at the shop gates, beginning with 100 copies of the DAILY WORKER.

Comrades, let us celebrate this May Day with a large edition of the May Day special and make our masters take note that we are here to fight them to the finish.

Yours for Communism,

PRESS COMMITTEE,
NUCLEUS No. 1.

• • • •

At the very time we receive this letter of wonderful work by our comrades in the nucleus, Comrade Alfred E. Goetz, city DAILY WORKER agent, brings further attention to the splendid activities of our comrades in the shop. He writes:

"Here is something that you might enlarge upon in the column. Shop Nucleus No. 1 which was responsible for the DAILY WORKER stickers has started a fund and they are paying a comrade $10 a week to sell the DAILY WORKER in front of their factory.

"Altho this nucleus has only 14 members so far they have been very active in ALL party activity but they aim to distinguish themselves in this May Day distribution. They have pledged themselves to pay for 2,000 ($28) and they are going to distribute at least 5,000. If the rest of the party came across that good we could make it a 50,000 distribution at the very least . . . instead of 20,000 only."

He also tells us in his letter that "Our ambition is that we come out of this campaign with at least 750 new subs." (Their quota is 500).

With such comrades in his local as those in Shop Nucleus No. 1 his ambition is no longer an ambition . . . it's "a dead cinch."

Bandits Flee with Loot After Killing in Siberian Town

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 15.—It is reported from Blagovestchensk (Siberia) that a gang of Munghuz brigands crossed over the China-Russian frontier, coming from Manchuria, and looted the village Dobroye, in Soviet territory.

The bandits drove away cattle, looted the farmers' property, killed some of the inhabitants and committed rape.

After their raid the bandits retired into the hills on the Chinese side of the border.

The Amur executive committee has lodged a complaint with the Chinese authorities, thru the Soviet consul at Sakhalian and have presented a list of material claims.

LABOR DEFENSE FIGHTS TO FREE 'RADNIK' EDITOR

Faces Deportation on Six Charges

A few days after the Labor Defense Council warned the workers against the methods of the department of labor of the United States in seizing and deporting foreign-born workers on various pretexts, the immigration bureau here served a warrant on S. Zinich, editor of the Communist paper Radnik. Obviously informers, friends of white guard governments of Europe are at work just as was the case with Editors Vajtauer and Lassen.

Six Charges Against Zinich.

Zinich, who is now free on $1,000 bail and for whom the Labor Defense Council has engaged counsel, is charged with (1) entering without inspection, thru misrepresentation (2) Violation of passport law, (3) Likely to become a public charge, (4) Disbelief in organized government, (5) Advocating opposition to all organized government, (6) Advocating overthrow of force and violence of government of the United States.

Deport 4,448 in Six Months.

The Labor Defense announces that it will fight to the limit for Zinich's freedom and calls upon all workers for support—for funds and for help in the struggle against the new deportation bill, now before the senate, by which the bosses propose to make it easy for themselves to perpetrate wholesale deportations of foreign-born workers and thus divide the workers and weaken their class strength.

Workers everywhere are reminded that in the last six months the government has silently deported 4,448 foreign-born workers, and that the 14,000,000 foreign-born workers in America must have the support of all labor if the labor movement is not to be seriously weakened.

Militia Bands Scab on Musicians' Union

CHICAGO—(FP)— Competition on an unfair basis of the national guard regimental bands with union musicians will be an important issue before the annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians, according to Secy. E. A. Benkert of Local 10, Chicago. The convention opens in Niagara Falls, N. Y., for a 6-day session on May 11.

"The most obviously unfair factor in the militia bands," Benkert says, "is that the charge for their music is included by the national guard when it rents out its armories for dances and other occasions. If people engage a union band for their events they get no reduction from the armory management but have to pay the full rental. The effect is that many people accept the nonunion music because they have to pay for it anyhow."

France's Frenzied Finance

The lid is off in France and the resulting odor is anything but pleasant to the ruling class.

The Bank of France has been doing a little counterfeiting, it seems. A mere trifle of 2,000,000,000 francs over the legal limit has been issued and without the legalizing of its action the currency is just so much waste paper. The director of the institution threatens to close up shop unless the government stands back of him. It appears that the committee which acts in a supervisory capacity refused to sign the bank's statement unless the excess circulation was admitted, but with the aid of Herriot the matter was patched up. It was understood that the premier would issue a decree legalizing the inflation, but his advisers informed him that this procedure was illegal. Before a vote of the chamber on the question could be secured the Herriot cabinet fell.

Unless the 2,000,000,000 francs worth of paper are given some sort of a legal camouflage before the regular statement of the bank is due on Thursday, French exchange will take a bad tumble.

The entire affair, which would never have seen the light of day had it not been for the cabinet crisis, is illuminating as showing the thin ice on which supposedly powerful governments are skating in these parlous times.

Coupled with the sensation that the disclosures have made is the anxiety due to the uncertain result of the German elections. It is felt that the position of France as the dominant power in continental Europe has been seriously weakened by the exposure of the basic weakness of her finances and that the German government whether monarchist or republican, will be encouraged to make new demands.

Even among the allied governments, nominally with France against Germany, there is to be heard a note of satisfaction over the ridiculous position in which the bully of Europe is placed.

The House of Morgan is greatly pleased. It feels sure that the French government will have to accept any terms it cares to make for the new financing necessary to save the franc pending returns from any taxation measures that will have to be introduced. It looks as tho French hegemony in Europe is definitely on the wane.

With the French government in pawn to the House of Morgan it will be able to continue its support of vassal states and the plundering of Germany only insofar as this fits in with the plans of American imperialism for world control.

The Church Militant

There are two warring schools among the followers of Christ, tho it must be confessed neither school walks the chalk line very strictly. But in the piping days of peace, one section presents the alleged founder of their creed as a man of peace while another section dresses him up in the habiliaments of war. Whatever position Jesus of Nazareth took two thousand years ago, does not matter very much today when the warring capitalist groups clash over world markets or spheres of influence. The preachers don the war paint at the point of a gun. The capitalists will stand no nonsense from their men of god.

A rather lively scrap has been causing some excitement in the methodist church for the past year or more. The United States government, not being engaged in war has allowed the scrimmage to proceed more or less unhindered excepting the attentions of sundry stoolpigeons from the department of justice who take note of the pacifist leaders with a view to filling jail cells, when we proceed to eliminate the "yellow peril" or some other menace to our "liberties."

But Wall Street has its caucus in the methodist church. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes is one of them. In an address before the American Legion in a local hotel a few days ago, he denounced those who were attacking the militaristic and imperialistic policy of the United States. He scored the resolution presented to a methodist conference a year ago denouncing war. "If the occasion were to arise again I am sure that I would do as I did during the last war," said the bishop.

No doubt the pious would stand on the side lines and cheer the cannon fodder on its way to stop bullets so that bishops, capitalists and other parasites might enjoy the hostilities from a safe distance. This was his service in the late war. The prospective cannon fodder need not look to the church for a solution of the war evil. It must look to its own organizations, industrial and political. And it must abolish the capitalist system before peace becomes more than an empty dream.

Every member of the Coolidge cabinet is a christian and a member of some church, but the Washington hostesses always count the silverware after every dinner party.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Ominous Signs

The decrease of almost a half million tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation last month, the drop in the price of wheat, continuing depression in the coal industry, a falling off in car loadings, all point to the shaky foundation on which American "prosperity" is built.

Production is far, far in advance of domestic consumption and the standardization of industrial processes brings ever increasing numbers of recruits into the permanent army of unemployed thus narrowing the domestic market.

The outstanding feature of the present period in the United States is the frenzied attempt of the capitalists to increase the domestic market. Advertising schemes on an enormous scale, special deferred payment plans for selling everything from automobiles to perfumery, "own your home campaigns" that tie the gullible investor to the mortgage shark for the rest of his life, changes in styles of wearing apparel as sudden as changes in the weather, great public and semi-public improvement projects, every one of these phenomena have for their purpose the extension of the market for the flood of commodities that American industry turns out.

The official American labor movement is living in a fool's paradise. Its attitude toward American industrial and political life is that of the middle class. It talks glibly of "good times" and "high wages" and it refuses to see that rising prices and the extension of the power of the capitalist state lowers the standard of living, reduces the bargaining power of the workers and puts them at the mercy of the capitalists the moment the inevitable industrial depression strikes.

This dream of permanent prosperity is about to be rudely shattered. The signs of a sharp curtailment in industrial activity are here.

Morgan and Mussolini

Thomas W. Lamont, of the House of Morgan, spent the Easter holidays in Rome. But he did not waste his time visiting the catacombs or the ancient spot where the early christians once tempted the palates of hungry lions.

Morgan's ambassador to fascist Italy spent his time in conference with Mussolini, Finance Minister De Stefani and Minister of the Interior Federoni. What did they talk about?

The conferees are silent. But a news dispatch that reads as if it were inspired, informs us that Lamont's purpose was to learn the facts regarding Italy's finances, the labor situation and the prospects of Italy's economic future.

Morgan is already the official receiver for Germany. He has his foot well inside the French door and it is more than possible that the king of Italy has not his headquarters in the Quirinal, but in Wall Street.

The recent strike in the heart of industrial Italy caused as much uneasiness at 100 Broad street, New York, as it did in Mussolini's office. Is the fascist regime about to topple? Morgan wants to be on the safe side, so he sent one of his best men to look over the situation.

Morgan may decide to put his millions behind Mussolini and his fascist cutthroats or he may decide that the socialists can serve his purpose better. He is paying the piper. It is up to him to call the tune. Italy is today a dependency of Wall Street. The iron battalions of Italy stood back the Austrian legions on the Piave, but the iron dollars of Wall Street were busy back of the lines putting an iron collar around the necks of the Italian bourgeoisie. And behind the iron dollars of Wall Street stand the army and navy of the United States.

Peace

There are 80,000 reserve officers in training in the United States today. They form skeleton units that can be filled with cannon fodder on short notice. It is necessary only to call up 20 conscripts for every officer and an army of 1,600,000 men is in existence.

These simple figures shatter all the "peaceful progress of American civilization" dope. They show that the United States today is on a war footing—for what?

For war, of course.

Against whom?

Read the capitalist press and note the conflicts arising in the fields of American imperialist enterprise between America and Japan, America and Great Britain.

Note the cruise and the "war game" of the greatest fleet ever assembled in the Pacific.

Only fools think that the rulers of the United States are not preparing in earnest for a war of conquest of which our part in the late world war was only the first act.

Colonials Are Astir

We pick up a copy of the London Daily Herald, official organ of the British labor movement and see three news items that are symbolical of the stirring of the masses in the British empire:

"Disorders in Egypt."

"Bengal Crisis Acute."

"Jerusalem In Fear."

The colonial peoples are striking, demonstrating, rejecting British-made laws, and fighting British troops. There is no longer any period in which all colonial troubles are liquidated as was the case before the world war.

The black and yellow races have caught the spirit of revolt and their struggles link up with those of the white workers in the imperialist nations. For the first time in history there is a genuine world revolutionary movement, for the first time the workers of all races are actually fighting capitalism side by side.

Is it any wonder that world capitalism hates and fears the Communist International whose call to revolt has been answered by millions of hitherto passive colonial slaves?

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

Gallagher Emphasizes Discipline.

Comrade Gallagher (England) emphasizes the necessity of discipline which at the same time presupposes self-discipline. The shop councils constitute the basis for organizing the workers in the shops and factories. The anti-militaristic work is urgent, for otherwise Comrade Smeral and others may be surprised by a crisis. The Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party should bear in mind that the deserters of today are the fascists of tomorrow.

It is the task of the Communists to prevent the stabilization of capital. The organization of the unemployed is a matter of primary importance. The trade unions must not be weakened. The demands of the unemployed, the wage demands of the workers, the solution of the housing problem and the parliamentary struggle must undermine capitalism.

The Comintern must study the stategy of the bourgeoisie. The speaker is of the opinion that the stabilization process had its roots in the betrayal of the British miners' strike.

The Eastern question demands more attention. The workers must be acquainted with the treachery of the social-democratic trade union bureaucracy. In England a new revolutionary wave is rising. We must therefore create a strong Communist Party.. Our party must be deeply rooted in the shops and factories; it must carry on anti-militarist propaganda; it must seek an alliance with the land; and neutralize the reserves of the bourgeoisie. That is why the British Communist Party accepts Zinoviev's theses on the Bolshevization of the parties.

Living Cost Rises in Italy.

Scoccumate (Italy): The most important characteristic of the Italian economic situation is the discord between agriculture and industry. The burden arising out of this discord has to be borne by the workers and peasants.

The cost of living is rising, and wages are being cut. As a result of the Dawes plan the crisis is becoming more acute. The bourgeoisie resorts to protective tariffs, which makes the condition of the workers still worse.

The destruction of the proletarian organizations and the impoverization of the petty bourgeoisie, renders the struggle for partial demands particularly important. Fascism was unable to consolidate its own organizations, and as a social phenomenon, fascism is gradually disappearing.

That is why the bourgeoisie desires "normalization," i.e. a mixture of democracy and fascism; which in other words means: the alliance of the petty bourgeoisie with big capital.

The maximalists are playing as treacherous a part as the left social-democrats in Germany. They are supporting the reformists with whose aid they hope to form a labor party. The intensification of the agrarian crisis offers the basis for the creation of workers' and peasants' committees. This complex situation gave rise to two deviations. The right elements believe in normalization; this constitutes no serious danger, since the party rejects this view. The leftists on the other hand, think it possible to overthrow fascism by a frontal attack.

Bordiga is doctrinaire and is unable to adapt the elastic Leninist dialectics to the given concrete situation. Bordiga does not realize that the party must live and fight among and with the masses, and not alongside of them. Altho Bordiga recognizes the Leninist policy of the Comintern in theory, he combats it in practice. Bordiga's absence from the central committee increases the danger of fractions. Fascism was a good lesson for the Italian Communist Party, and accelerated its Bolshevization.

At the evening session of March 28, Comrade Domsky spoke: The stabilization is not as secure as the bourgeoisie believes it to be. When Radek and Brandler claimed the victory of fascism, they attempted to hide their opportunist tactics. Already the bourgeoisie thinks it can rule without the aid of the social-democrats. The Communists must not share the illusions of the bourgeoisie. Permanent stabilization is out of the question. The convention of the Polish Communist Party made it clear that the consolidation is giving rise to new conflicts and is rapidly revolutionizing the peasantry. A great influx of new members is to be observed in the independent peasants' party of Poland. In the border regions there is a revolutionary mass movement. The Polish working masses have become politically active, as may be seen from the Lanzutsky campaign as well as from the Dombrov episode which involved 30,000 workers. The Polish party is meeting with success in its work among the social-democratic wroking masses . . . The right wing in the Czecho-Slovakian party must be ruthlessly combatted. The right elements have turned the parties into propagandist sects. The parties must be based on action. The Polish party has abandoned its old policy. Events in Dombrov showed how a Bolshevized party can fight. It is during the stabilization period that we must develop the fighting capacity of the masses.

Real Communist World Party.

Comrade Kun speaks on the tasks of ideological stabilization, and points out that the Comintern has developed from a series of propagandist groups to a real Communist world party. But when the parties had become mass parties, the practical activities distracted their attention from theory and education.

It is not by chance that these questions are raised now in connection with our slogan "To the masses" and Bolshevization. Opportunism is characterized by the enthusiasm for the narrowest forms of practical activity. Opportunism means a policy from case to case, and shows the lack of a theoretically well thot-out politico-strategic plan. Opportunism means the negation of the role of the party as the conscious leader of the proletariat.

Bolshevization means the installation of the party into this role. This is possible only when Marxism and Leninism play their due role in this propaganda. No Bolshevibzation is possible without theory, nor is it possible without the propagation of Leninism.

Between two revolutions parties can, in complicated questions, easily lose their bearings, as was seen in the case of Brandlerism. Brandler's fundamental error was in his erroneous state theory, and in the fact that in that circumstance he took the illusions of the working class and not their daily needs for his guide. Disorientiation can be caused by leftism as well as by right opportunism.

Urges Deep-Rooted Propaganda.

The social-democracy invents new theories like the one of socialist construction, which was also taken over by the Austrian school. The increased party tasks create the need for a deep-rooted propaganda. Similarly with out position in the parties. The reorganization of the parties on the basis of shop nuclei, requires propaganda which is deeply rooted in the masses. The new generation of party functionaries must receive a Leninist education.

With the sole exception of the Communist Party of Russia, the afirarian, peasant and nationality questions have not been worked out theoretically at all. Leninist propaganda is a guaranty against the danger of losing the revolutionary perspective in the sense of right opportunism on the one hand, and against isolation from the masses in the sense of left opportunism on the other. Russian experience is an essential part of Leninism, and must be applied dialectically, just as Lenin, in the year 1902 applied German and French experiences to Russia, not mechanically but dilectically.

The differentiation of Russian experience for each country is necessary. Leninist propaganda is still in the stage of agitation; it must, however, be developed into real mass propaganda. A very praiseworthy beginning has been made by the Communist Party of France in establishing a Lenin school, and by the British Communist Party in opening an elementary school.

For Central Party Schools.

The first great difficulties consisted in combining propaganda with daily problems and organizational forms. Another deficiency is the lack of Leninist literature in the most important languages. In the near future the works of Lenin will be published in German, French and partly in English.

The main task in Leninist propaganda is the democratization of Leninism, so that theoretical knowledge may not become the monopoly of the leadership, as it the case in the Second International. Our most important task is the education of the party members to real Communism thru elementary schools of Leninism. The Leninist education of the functionaries is very important because every one draws his ideology from his social surroundings.

No less important is the creation of central party schools in the biggest parties and the estblishing of international courses in Leninism. Ideological Bolshevization and the acquisition of Leninism is an important factor of Bolshevization . . . (Applause.)

The Presidential Elections in Germany

By A. O. (Berlin)

WITH the usual cries of democracy which are well known in America the German presidential election campaign opened.

The first act of this masked Noske democracy was the suppression of the Rote-Fahne, the official organ of the Communist Party as a sort of appetizer and later on over a dozen other party publications were suppressed for short or long periods.

All this of course under the excuse of insults against the deceased president, Ebert, whom the Communist Party has exposed as a simple tool of the worst reactionary and monarchist forces in Germany.

Transport Worker as Candidate of The Workers.

THE candidate of the Communist Party is Comrade Thaelmann who is at the present time the chairman of the party and also a member of the reichstag.

Comrade Thaelmann is a transport worker and was one of the leaders in the Hamburg uprising. He is an ideal representative and in fact the only working class candidate for president in contrast to all the other candidates, who represent the German bourgeois and petty bourgeoisie.

The social-democrats, who have recently been involved in the great Barmat swindle affair have as their candidate Otto Braun who is nothing but a straw man representing the monarchist and reactionary elements in Germany.

Campaign Opens with Shooting of Workers in Halle. Social-Democrats' Police Chief Responsible.

THE Communist Party had organized one of the first campaign meetings in Halle with Comrade Thaelmann and French and English comrades as the main speakers.

To a tremendous over-flow meeting these comrades delivered speeches and the masses arose to sing the International after which the interpreter went to the platform to translate the speeches of the foreign comrades.

As he stepped on the platform the police arrived and ordered the meeting dispersed with the excuse that the safety of the state was in danger.

THIS order was given by the social-democratic police president, Runge, who would not allow the German workers to hear the message from workers in other countries. He is of course as worthy representative of the Second International. The story tells that someone threw a glass of beer at the police captain in charge and that a shot was fired from the gallery by, most probably, a member of the secret service who seems to have learned American methods of frame-ups.

THE police captain then gave orders to fire into the crowd with the result that seven workers were killed. This number has later been swelled to nine among whom were also social-democratic workers. Hundreds of workers were brot to the hospital severely wounded.

In the panic when the people were rushing for the exits the pressure was so great that the stairway leading from the gallery broke like matches and the crowds fell to the ground floor. Thus ended the meeting in Halle. That is the kind of protection the workers receive from social-democratic chiefs of police.

Great Demonstration of Protests All Over Germany.

IMMEDIATELY all over the country the workers demonstrated against this bloody action and demanded that the guilty be punished. It was my great fortune to be in Berlin at the time of a great demonstration organized here within 24 hours after the Halle affair by the Communist Party.

It is especially impressing to see 20,000 fearless and young proletarians with red flags unfurled and singing revolutionary songs, stopping obstacles in their way.

Young they are, these boys and girls in age from 15 up. They are the cream of the German proletariat. They know the value of discipline and march in regiments under well-trained leaders.

TO watch the marching of these young storm troops makes one realize that in spite of temporary defeats the German Communist Party is the only party representing the German masses and can not be brushed aside. This hopeful and courageous battalion of Young Communists constitute the future Red Army of Germany.

Forced to Fire Police Chief in Halle

AS the pressure of the masses became stronger the minister of interior of Germany was forced to discharge the police president, Runge, and have an investigation instituted to determine who was responsible. This of course means only the usual whitewashing of those responsible.

Many are the crimes committed by the local traitors in the name of labor, and many more will they have to account for when the German workers establish their own rule and side by side with the Russian proletariat begin to build a Communist society.

Communist Party Organizes Great Demonstrations in Honor of the Fallen in the March Action.

A FEW days later 5,000 workers in Berlin held a gigantic demonstration in honor of the fallen revolutionists in the March revolution. Demonstrations took place all over Germany.

Thirty thousand workers demonstrated in Hamburg for Thaelmann and in Dusseldorf the French troops prohibited a meeting where he would speak. The workers answered by marching to the station 25,000 strong and the police did not dare to interfere. Comrade Thalman spoke to the greatest demonstration held in Dusseldorf since October.

The German Communist Party is recovering its former morale and fighting spirit during this campaign and is again awakening to action the masses in Germany who have been suffering under the treachery of the social-democrats.

Chinese and Japanese Problems Identical

Translated by Y. NISHIMURA.

Mun Hey Weekly, a radical progressive paper (Chinese) published in New York City urges unity of the working class in Asia. We print a translation of an article that appeared in that paper.—Ed Note.

With the development of modern industry most of the land of Asia upon which beloved mountains rise and gracious streams flow, was transformed into a slave colony of dominant western imperialism. Even Japan, who fortunately is able to keep her head upright as an independent empire, does not permit her countless toiling masses to share this right. They are enslaved by their own imperialists at home. Their agony and our misery, both under the reign of imperialism, are common in the nature of our suffering. While we suffer from foreign power the Japanese masses are struggling with oppressive capitalist law makers.

The aim of the three principles advocated by the late leader of the Chinese workers, Dr. Sun Yat Sen, are the equal distribution of land to the people; strict restrictions for capital; governmental functions by votes and self determination of nations. If all of them were carried out the questions now confronting the whole Orient would be readily solved

Dr. Sun's principles are the key note of the great emancipation of the workers of Asia. The deep condolence expressed by the Japanese workers at the death of Dr. Sun signifies it.

Now is the time that we who belong to the same class of China and Japan unite to clear the sky of the Orient from the oppressing air of imperialism. Let us finish the commendable task begun by Dr. Sun—the Pan-Asiatic principle of no imperialistic capitalism.

Our workers of China who still look with suspicion on the success of the national revolution should draw inspiration from the teachings of our Father Sun Yat Sen and follow where his brigth star leads us—toward the emancipation of the enslaved workers of the world.

"Maiden Dearborn" Is Busy.

MOISSAYE OLGIN TO SPEAK IN RUSSIAN IN CHICAGO, FRIDAY

What promises to be one of the most interesting lectures given in Chicago in the Russian language is the lecture to be given by Comrade Moissaye Olgin, co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. He will speak at the Workers' Home (formerly the Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St., on Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m., on "What did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants?"

Comrade Olgin was in Russia a few times during the revolution as delegate to the Comintern. He is the author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and other works about the revolution. He is an excellent speaker and it is expected that he will draw a big crowd of those who understand the Russian language. Admission is only 25 cents.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

"NOW we do not want in any way to encourage militarism or become 'Hearsterical'," writes Victor Berger in the Milwaukee Leader, by the way of preparing his readers for a definite flop into the ranks of the jingoes. Whatever else might be said against Berger's perversion of socialism, in the past, the pacifists could still hug his portly figure to their bosoms as a beefy mountain of solid anti-militarism, except when Mexico was mentioned. But nature has finally broken out thru the eyes of this fascist cat.

IN the April 16 issue of the Milwaukee Leader, Berger throws off the white robes of pacifism and appears in his war paint. It is a good beginning. No doubt, Arthur Brisbane's propaganda has done its dirty work, tho it must be admitted that Berger's pacifism was never more than skin deep. When hard pressed during the period of war hysteria, he boasted of having urged one of his male relatives to join the army. This proxy fighting has at least two advantages. First, and foremost, it is perfectly safe and secondly, it is a useful defense in court.

BRISBANE has been carrying on a jingoistic campaign for a flock of war planes in his column for over two years. It seems that Berger has decided to follow suit. From now on Victor will not be obliged to dig up old pacifist speeches of Eugene V. Debs when his brain is too busy pondering over real estate problems to fill his column with the usual kind of rubbish. All he has to do is to quote Brisbane.

AFTER declaring his opposition to a "large" standing army, throwing a few boquets at the navy, Berger writes: "The case of the air forces is somewhat different. Airships and airplanes could not for obvious reasons be very readily used against our own people in cases of strikes." Is that the only use to which airplanes could be put? What about bombing Hawaiian, Mexican, Japanese, or Filipino villages? And come to think of it, were not airplanes used against the West Virginia miners in their famous march to clean up Logan county and unionize it?

BERGER is not a militarist, but . . . . , "neither do we want our (emphasis ours) country to be at the mercy of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, or of Russia." This is the same old gag that senile rear admirals inflict on old women's conferences or on rotarian conventions. And this monumental faker sees no difference between the Red army of Soviet Russia and the White armies of the capitalist powers. No, because Berger is as much of a capitalist at heart as Judge Gary and would fight, or get others to fight, just as willingly against the Red army of Russia as the most loud-mouthed union hater in the American legion or the ku klux klan.

BERGER goes on to draw a terrible picture of what happened to Germany since that country was disarm-

BOSSES BOOST FREIGHT AIR FLEET AS START OF HUGE WAR PLANE FORCE

Commercial aviation is being boomed by the Chicago association of commerce, New York business men, and nationally known financiers, including Henry Ford, in the plan to prepare a large air fleet for the next war.

Col. Harold Hartney, representing the General Airways System, Inc., of which he is vice president and general manager, said his company will soon have five airplanes running between Boston, New York, Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul, with freight and passengers.

Militarists agree that commercial airplanes can be readily converted into war machines.

MIXED CABINET CANNOT BOLSTER UNSTABLE FRANC

French Currency Is Inflated Some More

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, France, April 16.—France will emerge from the present financial and political crisis a second rate power, dominated by the international bankers, headed by the Morgan Wall Street syndicate, it was predicted here today.

Premier Paul Painleve told president Doumergue this afternoon that he is having difficulty in completing a cabinet and asked for more time.

Socialists Serve With Financiers.

Former premier Aristide Briand, the conservative, has been asked to take the post of foreign minister, and Louis Loucheur, France's richest man, has been offered the portfolio of minister of commerce. If these two men accept, the socialists will find themselves serving on the same cabinet and in the same government which includes the representatives of the industrialists and financiers.

Joseph Caillaux, upon his arrival in Paris, assumed what promises to be a dominant position in the new cabinet. Caillaux has accepted the post of minister of finance, and refused to withdraw despite the objection of the socialists. Later the socialist party, having 139 seats in the chamber of deputies, voted to support Caillaux.

Bank Further Inflated.

The Bank of France balance sheet was published today and showed a decrease in circulation of 45,000,000 francs over last week. The bank's loans to the government last week increased 350,000,000 francs. This makes the total loan to the government twenty-two billion, three hundred and fifty million francs. The legal limit heretofore has been twenty two billion francs.

However, the chamber and senate passed a bill authorizing the Bank of France to "raise the legal limit of circulation" from 41,000,000,000 to 45,000,000,000 francs and "legalizing" advances to the government of twenty-six billion francs.

MARX COALITION ENDORSES DAWES SLAVERY PLAN

German Ambassador Echoes Servile Views

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, April 16.—Dr. William Marx, candidate of the socialist-republican coalition, for the German presidency in the April 26 election, again indorsed the Dawes plan in a speech in Koenigsburg.

"The president of the German republic must give the outside world the assurance that we are determined to carry out our policy of international rapproachment in politics and economics," Marx said, "Our national convalescence can only be attained thru constant and faithful prosecution of a policy of reconciliation."

"Here's Our Neck-Step," Says Ambassador.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Baron Ago von Maltzan, German ambassador to the United States, declared that no matter what the outcome of the German presidential elections, the Dawes plan will be carried thru.

"The far sighted president of the United States and of his government," said the baron, "has transfered the reparations problem from the realm of politics to the hands of economic experts."

He made a plea for "continued economic co-operation."

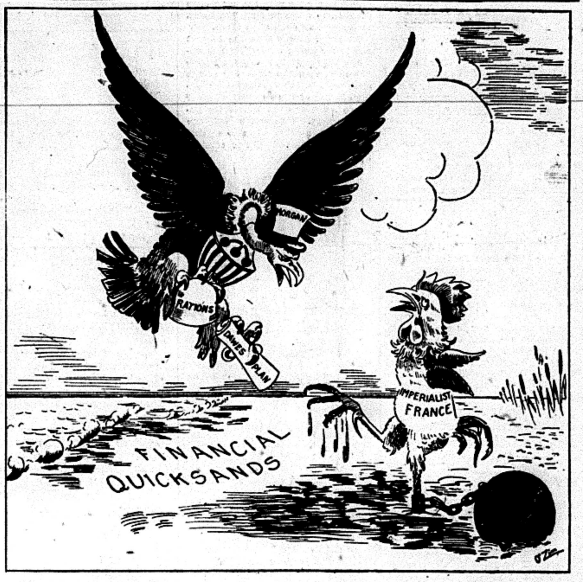
BOTH BLACK AND WHITE CHILDREN WORKING IN COTTON FIELDS OF TEXAS CHEATED OF SCHOOL HOURS

NEW YORK, April 16.—A study of the cotton field child workers of Texas, made by the national child labor committee and reported by the New York committee of that organization, tells how the educational progress of the children is retarded by the time lost in the fields.

The investigation covered 998 families with 5,121 persons in six counties of Texas. It was found that the white child lost one-fourth of the school session, with 62 per cent of this loss due to work in the cotton fields. Negro children lost one-half the school time, with 85 per cent of this loss due to the cotton work.

Children of from 6 to 16 years work in the fields from nine to eleven hours during the cotton seasons. In the spring planting, in the cultivating and chopping and in the cotton picking the children are conscripted to the task by their poverty-stricken parents. Those are the hard facts: they are offered without recommendations.

MORGAN'S EAGLE ON THE JOB



THIRD CONGRESS OF COMMUNIST PARTY OF MEXICO IN SESSION; GREETS THE WORKERS PARTY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, April 16.—The Third Congress of the Communist Party of Mexico today telegraphed the following greetings to its brother party in the United States:

"To the WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA:

"The Third Congress of the Communist Party of Mexico greets the members of the Workers Party as comrades in the Communist International, leader of the world revolutionary proletariat, and congratulates you for your able fight against capitalist imperialism.

"Signed: R. G. LORENZO, Presidente del Congresso."

The national congress was opened on April 7, with ten regular delegates besides the national committee and fraternal delegates from Guatemala and the United States.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America is represented at the Mexican congress by Manuel Gomez, of Chicago, secretary of the Pan-Americna Anti-Imperialist League, the activities of which form an important point on the agenda.

There are representatives from the following cities present: Mexico City, Tampico, Vera Cruz, Crizaba, Guanajuato and Morelia. Many practical subjects, such as the street-car strike and other larger issues are being taken up.

CANADIAN FARMERS AND WORKERS DESTITUTE IN CLUTCH OF BIG BANKS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 16—(FP)—Canada is in desperate straits because of the collapse of her agricultural prosperity, the shrinkage of her western production and population with the failure of farm prices and crops, and the steadily mounting burden of her annual interest charge on the public debt, according to Messrs Spencer of Battle River and Coote of McLeod, province of Alberta, who have been in Washington, looking into taxation policies of the United States.

Spencer and Coote are members of the dominion house of commons at Ottawa. They both belong to the banking committee which is searching vainly for a way out of the morass of debt into which the war and over-expansion of facilities in the west has plunged the country.

Spencer reports that Canadian banking is now virtually operated by four big banks; that all banks have withdrawn credit from farmers in the west; that western farm lands are almost valueless in the market; that inability to migrate to the United States has damned up a great volume of unemployment in the dominion, and that economic standpatism is accordingly threatened by hard human facts.

POLISH WHITE TERROR MURDERS MANY WORKERS

World Protest Grows Against Butchers

The Polish white terror is by no means confined to the widely protested and unsuccessful attempt to execute the Communist Deputy Lanzutsky. This is but one of the outstanding instances of the violent path being pursued by the desperate and reactionary Grabski government to bolster up a bankrupt regime, and at the same time suppress the indignations of a rebellious people.

At present there are eight thousand workers and peasants in the prisons of Poland as political prisoners in a country of some thirty millions. Ninety-five were sentenced to a total of 386 years hard labor. One hundred fifty three others sentenced in August and September have a total of 677 years of hard labor to serve.

Many Get Death Sentences

In October, ten white Russian peasants were sentenced to death for political activity on behalf of liberation. In the period from September 1924 to January 1925, 132 trials took place against 248 revolutionaries in which sentences of 618 years hard labor were passed. At Lodz 80 young workers were sentenced from four to twelve years for participating in the work of the Communist youth organizations.

According to incomplete statistics, 109 death sentences have been passed during the terror.

WIDE RIFT IN BRITISH LABOR PARTY'S RANKS

Labor Weekly Flays the MacDonald Govt.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, April 4.—(By Mail)—The wide cleavage that exists in the ranks of the British labor party is illustrated in the damning indictment of the right wing leadership of that party in the current issue of Lansbury's Labor Weekly, one of the left wing papers that have sprung up in this country of late.

The Communists have charged the MacDonald government with treachery to the working class during its terms of office but the following bitter arraignment of the labor government in an organ owned, controlled and edited by members of the labor party, is as complete a picture of labor party treachery as could come from the pen of any Communist:

The I. L. P. Ministers

There is not much to be gained by crying over spilt milk. There is, however, much to be gained by having clear ideas as to who is and who is not responsible for the milk spilling. The first labor government was very largely composed of members or ex-members of the independent labor party. The ex-prime minister is the leading figure in that party. Philip Snowden, Charles Trevelyan, Noel Buxton, J. R. Clynes, John Wheatley, Fred Jowett, Josiah Wedgwood, Arthur Ponsonby, Professor Richards, Morgan Jones, Rhys Davies and many others are leading members of the party. Consequently they must accept

LEVIN, CHICAGO HEAD OF A. C. W., UNMASKED AS ALLY OF POLISH TERROR IN EXPULSION DRIVE

That the complete unmasking of the Hillman-Levin machine in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, as an agent of reaction and white guardism, was soon to come, no one has doubted.

But at the meeting of Polish Local Union No. 38, Wednesday night, it astounded even the most faithful to hear Sam Levin, manager of the Chicago Joint Board, seek the expulsion of a member from the Amalgamated because this member, H. Bramorski, had taken part in the protest demonstrations against the pogroms of the Polish white guard government.

Thus is the betrayal of the workers linked definitely in a united front between the murderous regime of Grabski, Pilsudski of the Polish government and the Hillman-Levin-Abe Cahan counter-revolutionary gang in the United States.

Urge Bramorski Be Reinstated.

A majority of the local executive have passed a motion to reinstate H. Bramorski back on the job from whence he was illegally taken by orders of Sam Levin.

The board of seven were divided, with four in favor of putting Bramorski back to work, two against and the chairman, also opposed, not having a vote in the board.

Levin, having heard of the local's executive's action, called the reactionary members and his gang into consultation Wednesday afternoon at his office, to determine on a plan to overrule the local executive and to jam thru the local meeting a repudiation of the action taken by the majority of the local executive.

"Hail, Hail! The Gang's All Here."

So when Local No. 38 convened Wednesday night, Levin himself, Leo Krzycki, former "socialist" chief deputy sheriff in Milwaukee county, Wissonsin, now general organizer and member of the general executive board —known as an arch-reactionary by all workers, and all the business agents of the local, appeared in a campaign to filibuster the meeting until the workers would go home and to jam thru their program of expulsion disguised as "suspension."

The local's chairman, being in

WHEELER PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN OIL FRAUD CASE

Farmers Tell Judge Their Troubles

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 16.—Three fourths of the veniremen called for the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana on charges of misuse of his office in favor of oil companies for whom he acted as attorney, asked to be excused from jury duty when the trial opened here today. Wheeler pleaded not guilty.

The veniremen, farmers and miners, asked to be excused on the ground that their labor is necessary to keep their families provided with food. One miner said his family of eight would starve if his wages were stopped. Many of the farmers told of the deplorable conditions of their farm, and declared they must labor from dawn until dark to keep from bankruptcy.

Judge Frank Dietrich, who is trying the case, said, in excusing 25 farmers from jury duty, "I do not want to interfere with the planting of crops."

Wheeler, who has a large battery of lawyers, headed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, defending him, was in court and announced he will testify. Wheeler is charged with accepting $4,000 from Gordon Campbell, oil promoter, to use his office as senator to secure oil leases for his client before the department of interior.

Owing to the dismissal of the farmers and miners, the jury will be composed largely of clerks and business men, it is predicted.

WALL STREET'S ARMADA TO AWE PACIFIC SLAVES

Red Soldiers to Hear Big Guns in Prison

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 16. — The United States naval forces are now steaming toward Hawaii, to engage in battle maneuvers intended to impress Japan with the power of American imperialism in Pacific waters.

In the prison hospital in Schofield barracks, near here, Private Paul Crouch, who has just been given a taste of Wall Street justice, will hear the booming of the big guns in the war maneuvers. Crouch has been sentenced to forty years imprisonment for defending Soviet Russia in a letter to the Honolulu Advertiser, and for declaring himself a Communist.

To Hear Guns in Guardhouse.

Walter Trumbull, now in the barracks guardhouse, has been sentenced to 26 years in prison for being a Communist, and six other privates are in prison awaiting the pleasure of the court martial.

There are others in the territory of Hawaii who will hear the booming of big guns. "The attack on the islands will be such as Japan might deliver at a moment when the entire American navy is in the Atlantic," says a news dispatch from the battleship West Virginia.

Mass of Population Oriental.

The overwhelming population of the territory of Hawaii is of the darker rcaes. Three-quarters of the population are Japanese or Chinese workers. It is these workers that American imperialism wishes to impress by the naval war and by the imprisonment of the Communist soldiers.

There are 40,000 Filipino laborers in Hawaii who work for one dollar per twelve-hour day on the sugar plantations.

It was these workers who struck terror into the heads of the American sugar trust when they went on strike for a living wage last September. The police were immediately rushed to attack the sugar strikers by the American authorities, and in one battle, on September 10, sixteen Filipino workers were shot dead by the police. The strikers killed four policemen in defending themselves. These sugar workers produced 700,000 tons of cane sugar in 1924 which was sent to American sugar refineries.

Hawaiian Hearst Babbles.

"We shall give the United States naval fleet a great reception," says Lorrin A. Thurston, editor and owner of the Honolulu Advertiser, the man who informed the military authorities that the "dangerous Communists" at Schofield barracks should be punished.

"Economically we need the Japanese now here," says this Hawaiian Hearst, "altho I believe in the soundness of restricting oriental immigration."

The United States soldiers stationed at Schofield barracks will perhaps resent being used by the sugar trust as a cat's paw to terrorize the oriental sugar plantation slaves.

And these slaves will no doubt look with hostile eyes at the Wall Street armada as it steams into Hawaiian waters to set the seal of force upon their slavery.

KLANSMAN HELD FOR CRIMINAL ATTACK ON GIRL

Doctor Tells Story of Brutal Assault

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 16.—D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the ku klux klan in Indiana, a well-known Indiana politician, and owner of a large factory, was held for trial in criminal court on charges of criminally attacking Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, whose funeral was scheduled to be held today.

Judge James A. Collins today denied Stephenson's motion to quash all charges contained in five indictments against Stephenson. No definite date was set for the trial, but Judge Collins said the case would probably be reached about May 25.

Drugged and Beaten.

Dr. John Kingsbury, who attended Miss Oberholtzer after she returned home from the kidnaping and attack, testified at the coroner's inquest that before her death the girl told him she had been summoned to Stephenson's home. Drinks were being mixed, and she was forced to drink. She tried to escape by calling for help on the telephone, but she was beaten and snatched away from the phone. The drink overpowered her, and she could offer no resistance.

The girl was then taken on a train to Gary, she told Dr. Kingsbury. Stephenson remained in her drawing room and attacked her, she said. When they reached Hammond she was forced to remain at the same hotel room with Stephenson, and was again attacked.

Poisoned Herself.

She secured poison in a drug store, to which Stephenson and his two accomplices, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, accompanied her thinking she wished to purchase cosmetics.

When she told the klan kidnapers that she had drunk poison, she was taken back to Indianapolis, suffering tortures, and kept prisoner in a garage. Altho Miss Oberholtzer pleaded to be allowed medical attention, she was refused, and was not released for many hours.

The three klansmen pleaded not guilty.

Responsible for Death.

None of the charges against the politician hold him responsible for the girl's death, but Charles E. Cox, attorney retained by Miss Omerholtzer's parents, has indicated the prosecution will seek to fasten that responsibility on him at the close of the coroner's inquest.

Pathologists, who examined her stomach after death, testified at the inquest that death was du3 to mercurial poison, self-administered. However, the contention of the prosecution is that more serious indictments are returnable against Steph nson, alleging that he refused medical aid to Miss Oberholtzer when he learned she had swallowed a slow poison.

One of the charges against Stephenson is kidnaping.

Klenck and Gentry are charged with holding the girl a prisoner in the Stephenson garage following her return to Indianapolis. All are at liberty under bond.

Every Teacher Taken Care of in Ricca Bill Says Dr. Tildsley

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 16.—Dr. John L. Tildsley, district superintendent of schools of New York City, is co-operating with the teachers in their struggle to get the Ricco bill which calls for an increase in teachers' salaries signed by Governor Al. Smith. He sent out an appeal to "friends of the public schools" to write or telegraph to the governor to sign the Ricco salary bill.

Tildsley denied Mayor Hylan's claim that the bill had been drawn up in the interest of the higher paid teachers. Dr. Tildsley said that the teachers from the kindergarten to the 8B grade would profit by the Ricca salary bill. In speaking of the increase in taxes he said it would amount to about one mill in the tax rate.

Dr. Tildsley said that teachers are now receiving only 79 per cent of the purchasing power of 1914 and the bill would increase this to about 92 per cent. Many teachers, he said, were compelled to take on extra work so that teaching in New York has become a part time job.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association of New York is viciously attacking the teachers' salary bill, and Mayor Hylan has lined up with that element. Hylan is strongly opposed to the bill. Stewart Brown, president of the real estate owners boasted last night that he is sure Governor Smith will veto the bill.

CALL STRIKE IN W. VA. PANHANDLE; BUT DARE NOT DEFY INJUNCTION

WHEELING, W. Va., April 16.—A call for a general strike of coal miners in the four Panhandle counties of West Virginia was issued today by officers of the Ohio district organization of the United Mine workers. An exception was made in the strike call of the mines of the Windsor Power House Coal company where injunctions are in force.

ARBITRATION OF UTICA STRIKE AIDS BLACKLIST

Organizer Permits Discrimination

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., April 16.—The betrayal of the mayor's "arbitration committee assisted by Joseph R. White of the United Textile Workers is now showing up in the discharge and blacklist of active union workers from the textile mills. In spite of this, Organizer White is discouraging a protest strike and playing the game of the mill bosses in the most brazen manner.

Five active union workers have been discharged. The bosses find fault in their work without reason, and in this way try to get rid of them because they are trying to get other workers to join the union. Any active union man is forbidden from going around the workroom, even during the noon hour. In addition the bosses are adopting an unbearable attitude of provocation, calling the workers unprintable names.

Those discharged are two spinning fixers, one girl in the spooling, one man in the card room and Tony Giglotti, a yarn tender, the most active member of the spinning room union.

Tony was going around the room to get the workers to join the union. The superintendent told him to stop asking workers to join the union, but Tony still got the workers to sign up their application cards. So the superintendent told one of his straw bosses to fire Tony.

That was last Saturday, and the workers in the mill have been very angry and want to go out on strike to force the mill to take Tony Giglotti back to work. But yesterday morning Joseph R. White, organizer of the U. T. W. of A., who seems to do just what the bosses want done—told the workers of the Utica Steam and Mohawk Valley Cotton mills that they must not strike to defend their fellow worker. But the workers are demanding that he be put back on the job—and nobody knows now what will happen.

Farm Tractor Kills Two.

MATTOON, Ill., April 16—Van Bowman, 39, and his 3-year-old son, Lawrence, were crushed to death today when a farm tractor fell over backward on them while crossing a small ditch. The child was sitting on his father's lap and both were pinioned beneath the steering wheel.

SENATE PASSES SMALL'S STATE COSSACK BILL

Provides Force of 750 Strikebreakers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 16.—The senate today passed the Barr state police bill by a vote of 34 to 9, and sent the measure, which passed by virtue of Governor Small's support, to the house. The bill provides for a state "highway" police force, which is under control of Governor Small, as it is made a part of the public works' department of the state machinery.

The Barr bill is even more vicious than the proposed Dunlap cossack bill, as it provides for a force of 750 state police, who are given full power to make arrests, act as sheriffs and are under the command of a single individual. The Dunlap bill provided for a force of 400 state police.

The workers have flooded the legislature with protests against Small's cossack bill, because it provides the employers with a large force which may be used to break strikes. Airplanes, radio and modern weapons of war are provided for in the Barr bill, with which to intimidate workers in labor disputes.

The bill providing for the reading of the bible in the public schools was favorably reported to the house from the committee.

Julius Smitenka and Supt. McAndrew Clash on Salary Schedule

Julius F. Smitenka, chairman of the finance committee of the school board is holding out against Superintendent McAndrew's new salary schedule it was learned yesterday. He won't approve before he knows how the superintendent proposes to get the money. "There will be no more closed meetings on the proposal," he said. The "showdown" on the proposal will come at the next regular meeting of the board which will be held Wednesday afternoon.

The clash came when McAndrew refused to consider a suggestion that the lists be approved "in principle" and that their provisions be made inoperative until November 1926. At that time referendum will be called on the question of increased tax rates.

The position taken by the Chicago Teachers' Federation differs from that taken by Trustee Smitenka. The teachers do not object to getting a raise. But they do object to an increase that leaves the bulk of the teaching staff out in the cold and provides large increases for the aristocracy of the teaching staff. They also emphatically denounce any talk of increases in the tax rate before property controlled by big business interests has been propertly assessed and the revenue due the schools from that property is collected.

league with the Levin gang, permitted little discussion from either Bramorski or his supporters, but gave the Levin-Krzycki crew all the time they wanted—and they wanted it all. So unfair was this that members of the local cried out from all over the hall in protest against the unfairness. Bramorski himself was permitted to speak only once and briefly against his many detractors.

Strangely enough, the supposed charge of "passing out leaflets" was completely ignored. Nothing was said about that at all. But Levin and Krzycki and all their gang fulminated at length upon the point that Bramorski had took part in the protest demonstrations against the catholic white guard government of Poland for its murders and imprisonment of Polish workers.

"Why," shouted Levin, "Bramorski actually marched in front of the Polish consulate in the demonstration against the Polish government! And he was one of those who called the meeting in Schoenhofen Hall against the Polish government! He is a Moscow agent and tool of Foster and the Communist Party! Let Foster give him a job!"

There was nothing at all about leaflets.

"Heads I Win—Tails You Lose."

The reactionary amendment to the motion of the local executive board, provided that instead of reinstating Bramorski on the job, he should be suspended and disfranchised. But, according to Levin's own words, no matter what the membership or the executive of Local No. 38 would do, he would do as he pleased and overrule any action of the membership which would return Bramorski to the job.

"I'm a czar and I'm going to keep on being a czar!" declared Sam Levin, quite aptly to his program of aiding catholic white guards of Poland in their murderous pogroms against the workers. "What is more, if this local accepts the action of its executive board, I will ignore the local's action."

Oh, How Sam Loves Capitalism!

He added, "If the local accepts its executive's action, the DAILY WORKER the next day will run a big headline saying that Local 38 is in favor of Communism and against capitalism."

Many of the members of the local after vainly protesting to the reactionary chairman against Levin's defense of capitalism and the Polish government and his attacks on Bramorski, known as a loyal union member, left the hall in disgust. This, of course, was just what Levin wanted them to do, as he and Krzycki and company kept up the talk-talk in hopes of getting members opposed to their expulsion policy disgusted, tired and going home.

The Puppydog Chairman.

When the vote was taken after midnight, a show of hands was demanded, but contrary to the rules, the chairman would not allow the election of a committee to count the votes—and arbitrarily declared the motion lost, without even announcing the count.

This was quite natural, since he did not count them at all, as they looked too much like the Levin machine had been beaten. So he hastily declared the "suspension" amendment carried. Afterward he was overheard threatening Bramorksi—"Now, you've got no right to come up to the local meetings, and you better not come. For if you do, we will throw you downstairs."

On With the Fight for Reinstatement.

The members of Local 38, who took part in the fight for reinstatement, were vocally active thruout the meeting, and are determined that such high-handed rulings shall not go unchallenged nor the will of the membership be defied without rebuke.

ANOTHER UNION HAT FACTORY MOVES TO NORWALK TO GO SCAB

ORANGE, N. J., April 16—The dispute of the hatters and the F. Beng and company felt hat manufacturers over an increase in wages has drawn to a close with the company's decision to move to Norwalk, Conn. to conduct an open shop there.

Norwalk, at one time the biggest center for union made hats and union controlled hat manufacturing has now, thru the treachery of the class collaborating reactionary union officials of the United Hatters of North America been lost to the union workers. This will be only one of a large number of shops that have moved to Norwalk to conduct an open shop.

WORKERS PARTY AIDS TEXTILE CONFERENCE

Branches to Organize for United Front

BOSTON, Mass., April 16.—That the campaign for a united front initiated by the central executive committee of the Workers Party in conjunction with the Trade Union Educational League is at last bearing fruit, can be seen by the fact that a delegate conference from all the various textile unions and from unorganized mills is to be held on April 26 at Lawrence, Massachusetts, to plan ways and means of united action against the wage cuts.

In conformity with the party program of active leadership in the struggle against the textile barons, the executive committee of District One, under date of April 10, has sent out from Boston to the party branches in the textile towns of the district the following call:

"To All Branches in Textile Centers:

"The district office has been carrying on a campaign to organize the textile workers in the mills in this district since January 1925.

"Seventy thousand workers in the cotton mills here have had their wages cut from ten to twenty per cent. Speeding-up systems have been introduced in nearly all the mills. The textile workers are unorganized and have no means of resistance to the bosses. The few unions that exist only divide the textile workers.

"Shop committees must be formed in every mill. United front committees of textile workers must be organized in every mill center. The many little weak and ineffective unions of textile workers must be amalgamated into one powerful industrial union.

"The textile workers must be organized to resist the millionaire mill owners. The Communists, members of the Workers Party, must take the lead in this campaign to organize the exploited textile workers.

"A textile conference has been called to meet at Ideal Hall, 180 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass., Sunday, April 26, at 10:30 a. m.

"Please act at once! Do the following things without delay:

"1. Call a special meeting of your branch. Don't wait for the regular meeting. Make this a special order of business!

"2. Elect a delegate or two to go to the textile conference in Lawrence.

"3. Take up a collection at the meeting to pay railroad fare.

"4. Fill out and mail the enclosed credential.

"5. The delegate should be a textile worker.

"The success of the conference will depend upon your immediate action. This is the most important conference of textile workers ever held in this district. Delegates will be in Lawrence representing every union and every improtant textile center. Be sure and send a delegate from your city and branch! Our party must be well represented there.

"The textile conference will be held Sunday, April 26, at Ideal Hall, 180 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass., at 10:30 a. m.

"Call a special meeting! Elect a delegate! Take up a collection to defray his transportation expense!

"Yours in comradship,
"District Executive Committee,
"District No. 1.

Ex-Prince Spills Beans in New York Courtroom; Hopes to Get Land Back

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, a hundred million and more of peasants under the red flag of the Union of Soviet Republics should find interesting reading in the reports of the court proceedings now taking place before Supreme Court Justice Davis in New York City

The trial seems innocent on the surface. An emigre Russian "prince," Felix Youssoupoff, whose family was wealthy in land under the czars, is trying to collect on some paintings he stole, after the Bolshevik revolution, and smuggled out of the country. The pictures, two Rembrandts, are valued by the untitled "prince" at a million dollars, and evidently he needs the money. All czarist emigres do.

• • • •

But in an idle moment Youssoupoff was cross-examined by Ex-Governor Nathan B. Miller, the opposing counsel, after this fashion:

"Then you expect your estates in Russia to be restored to you?" asked Mr. Miller.

"Yes."

"In other words, it's like the hope you have that you will get back the family castle in France?"

"No. I have more hope of getting my Russian land back than I have of getting the castle," was the reply.

• • • •

That was a frank admission. It embodies in a few words the ambitions behind the attack on Soviet Rule. The frankness of this outburst startled the Chicago Tribune, for instance, into exclaiming:

"That is the trouble with all the white enterprises against the Bolsheviks—with the Kolchak, the Denikin, and other attempts to overthrow Lenin and his regime. They were all supported by men who expected to get back their estates and that is what the peasant, 85 per cent of the Russian people, whose will is the final arbiter in Russia, in all matters which concern them, will not permit."

Instead, the Tribune urges that Youssoupoff should have stuck to the slogans of "democracy," heralding to the Russian peasantry that the alliance of western capitalism with the outcast "princes" and "dukes" was "a crusade on behalf of liberty and sanity." This is the policy that the Tribune has followed for the last eight years and it is quite chagrined to think that a "prince of the Russian blood royal" should double-cross it at this late date, even tho the hard-headed Russian peasant had turned his back on the "liberty and sanity" myth, and held to the land given him by Soviet rule. The Tribune's idea was to lie to the Russian peasantry first and then take the land away from them afterwards, a good American capitalist shell game.

Evidently the Tribune will confine its attentions more to the United States in the future, where its efforts will be better appreciated.

It will be compelled to return to preaching of the "liberty and sanity" of the Landis scheme in the building industry and other union-wrecking "open shop" maneuvers. It will have to emphasize some more the "glorious freedom and unbounded opportunities" facing the mortgaged and tenant farmers in their struggle to enrich landlords, bankers and food speculators. The Tribune, for instance, was for the re-election of Coolidge, and it got some satisfaction out of the fact that Coolidge was kept in the White House. It feels that the dope works in the United States.

But it much annoyed that the Russian masses should not succumb to the same alluring propaganda. In its moment of annoyance it admits that Soviet rule has been successful in its land policies; just as successful as the intervention plots of the deposed forces of czarism have been failures.

It is well that the Russian peasants should know of and enjoy the chagrin of the capitalist Chicago Tribune. But, for America's workers and poor farmers, it should also help shed a new and clearer light upon their own slavery. What's good for the freed Russians ought also to be good for enslaved Americans.

STUDENTS HEAR THURBER LEWIS ON COMMUNISM

Ask Questions on Pacifism and Trotsky Dispute

Students of the University of Chicago heard a thing or two about Communism from a Communist yesterday morning. On invitation of the school, Comrade Thurber Lewis took over a session of Dr. Holt's class in Huskell Hall. The students were anxious to hear what the professor called "The Communist's criticism of society."

Comrade Lewis was cordially received and spent a half hour or so explaining the viewpoint of Communist toward capitalism, reviewing as much as time would permit the fundamentals of Communism, and closing with a resume of the struggle against capitalism thru the world medium of the Communist International.

Shoes Under Communism

The rest of the time was given to questions. "Can one be a Communist and a pacifist at the same time?" called forth a statement of the revolutionary role of the workers' movement. "How, for example, would a pair of shoes be made under Communism?" Lewis replied, "Much the same way they are made now, by means of large scale industry, but, under Communism the maker of the shoes will have a better opportunity to wear them than he has now."

The students showed an interest in developments in Russia and asked a brief account of the Trotsky controversy.

YOUTH PROTESTS ATTEMPT TO GAG U. S. SOLDIERS

Mass Meeting in Detroit Against Sentences

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, April 16.—While the U. S. navy is commencing its practice for the next war in Hawaiian waters, the workers of Detroit are holding a mass protest meeting Sunday against the brutal sentence by court martial of U. S. soldiers in the Schofield barracks, Honolulu.

In Jail in Hawaii.

With plans for the next war being worked out in the Pacific, Comrades Crouch and Trumbull are in jail in Honolulu under a sentence of 40 and 26 years respectively, because they dared to have working class sympathis and because they showed up the all too evident war preparations to the other soldiers in their company, organizing them into a Hawaiian Communist League.

Demand Political Rights for Soldiers.

The officers in the army have the right to belong to any political organization (of course, they always join organizations of their class) while the soldiers are denied the right to join or even show sympathies with any organization of the working class. While generals can belong to the ku klux klan, chambers of commerce, rotary clubs, etc., soldiers find things different when they want to join an organization either to improve their rotten service conditions or in order to save themselves from being slaughtered for the profits of the bosses.

Warns Workers of War.

To save the comrades arrested in the army and to prevent the further terrorization of all class conscious soldiers by the war lords, all class conscious workers must fight with the soldiers for the following demands:

1. The right to join political parties and to organize branches of these parties in the army and the right to attend political meetings and demonstrations.

2. The right to join trade unions and the right to form and join soldiers' unions.

The meeting will be held Sunday at the House of Masses at 2 p. m., and Barney Mass, acting national secretary of the Young Workers' League will be the speaker. Immediately following the meeting there will be a bazaar and dance conducted by the Young Workers' League and its Junior Section.

DISTRICT ONE, MINERS TURN TO PROGRESSIVES

Reject Traitors and Conciliation

By PAT TOOHEY.

Scranton, Pa.—Miners of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, largest of the three anthracite districts, will go to the polls in June to vote for officers to replace the present administration headed by Rinaldo Cappellini. He who promised the miners so much two years ago and was elected as a radical on a radical program, has now degenerated into nothing more than a servile and dependable tool of the syndicates who control the anthracite coal supply.

For many years the anthracite region has been a hotbed of discontent. The bosses have consistently robbed the miners all these years, while the men have no redress with the exception of turning their case over to their district officers to fight for them. District officers of District 1, past and present, do not differ from district officers of other districts, being usually spineless job-hunters and easy prey for the employers. When a case is referred to the district office for adjustment, usually the miner sighs and gives up in defeat long prior to the "hearing" of the grievance.

A Bitter Lesson.

So often, and with impunity, do the bosses violate the contract and attempt to compel the miners to work under damnable conditions that grievances by the hundreds arise and keep arising without adjustment. The conduct of their district officers in the past, in "fighting" these grievances, supposedly representing the interests of the miners, have taught the rank and file a bitter lesson.

They have been taught that before they will get the wages due them for work done, satisfactory adjustment of their grievances, and to make their organization an economic weapon to fight their battles and not a meal ticket and source of income for a select crew of quacks and fakers they must select men from their ranks, militant miners who have a thoro understanding and knowledge of their conditions and unhappy lot.

A Demagog Unmasked.

This awakening was but dim two years ago when Cappellini, the quack and demagog, realizing that in order to get himself elected district president was to suddenly become a fighter for the miners, exposing the corruption of the district, recounting their many lost grievances and suggesting his general grievance committee for closer unity between the membership. Not being able to see thru the faker the men hailed him as their savior and elected him by a 10,000 majority over Brennen, the Lewis candidate.

Cappellini swore by every saint in the calendar that if he was elected he would make Alex Howat one of his organizers. His conduct during the past two years have shown him for what he is. At the present time the thousands of miners are in open rebellion. Their grievances are still unsettled or those that have been "heard" and decided upon by the conciliation board were invariably lost and the decision in favor of the operator.

Another Strike Rumored.

The outlaw strike of the 12,000 men of the Pennsylvania Collieries was because of unsettled grievances. Rumors are that the men of Glen Lyon have set a time limit of 15 days for settlement or they strike.

The grievances of the miners are heard by the conciliation board, composed equally of miners and operators and a referee. It is the same medium of grievance adjustment that Roosevelt instituted in the great 1902 strike. Grievances presented to the board from two months to five years remain unsettled. The conciliation board is very beneficial to the operators and it is the miner who usually loses.

A most striking example of this fact was recently when the board handed down its decision in the case of the Wanamie local, prohibiting the local from specifying the amount of cars to be loaded by an individual miner.

The Progressive miners ticket, headed by Bernard Zaleskas, condemns the conciliation board and stands for its immediate abolition and for the direct adjustment of grievances by the miners and operators with the rank and file representatives present at these settlements, while demanding the settlement of all grievances within sixty days from the date they arise.

Lewis has ordered the dissolution of the general grievance committee, or rather his "commission" has, which is about the same thing. The general grievance committees are the only mediums of rank and file expression. Lewis and his cohort, Cappellini, does not want the men to have any expression and calls attention to a very innocent looking section of the district constitution wherein it states that all locals are forbidden to affiliate with any group or organization not endorsed by the district executive board.

Progressives to Retain Grievance Committees.

Lewis held this club over the heads of the men until now. The committees had to be organized, for Cappellini spewed so much about them during his campaign that the rank and file, determined to organize them. Now, Cappellini, founder of the general grievance committees, safely in the band wagon of Lewis, also orders their dissolution and refuses to recognize them officially.

The Progressive platform demands the retention and development of the general grievance committees for the better expression of the rank and file. To develop these committees under a militant leadership to fight for the rank and file is the object of the Progressive miners.

Textile Trust Drops Pretense of Caring for Workers' Welfare

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 16.—The American Woolen Co., has abolished its labor (welfare) department and hereafter will handle its labor problems without gloves.

The welfare program began in 1919 after the great strike and thru its Americanization courses, company farms and welfare camps, cafeterias, visiting nurses and employes' magazine The Booster sought to minimize the friction that attended a low wage, speed-up policy in the mills.

The plan was instituted under the presidency of William M. Wood but his successor as president of American Woolen, Andrew G. Pierce, concluded that the 20 welfare employes made too high an overhead and of the farms and other equipment of the department Pierce tersely said, in discontinuing the welfare program, that he was a manufacturer and not a farmer.

Union Pleased

The United Textile Workers' Union does not regret the passing of the welfare work. The union has never supported this paternalistic system of camouflaging exploitation and it has always opposed the espionage features of the welfare program.

"When the textile workers are given enough money in their pay nevelope they will make enough for their own welfare," says a union statement. "They will not need any workers' welfare department."

Trade Unionists to Hear J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews Sunday

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLINTON, Iowa, April 16.—On Sunday afternoon, April 19 at 2:30 p. m., J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews will speak to a gathering of trade unions at the Clinton Memorial Temple, 613 So. Second St. on Marxian science.

The trade unionists of Clinton will be especially interested in this lecture, as they have had a good share of experience with "labor political action." In explaining the science of Marxism, these speakers will show the difference between real working class political action and the mere election of "good men" to office.

No admission will be charged at this lecture.

Boss Painters' Weaken

WASHINGTON.—Striking painters see signs of weakening of the part of the Master Painters' association. The bosses announce that they will not import strikebreakers, since they can get plenty of them at home.

FIGHTING LOCAL AT CHARLEROI SITS ON FAKERS

Refuses to Consider Framed Charges

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURG, Pa.—District No. 5 miners' officials wrote charges against progressives and had one of their tools sign and present them to Local 4546 of Charleroi, Pa. Failure in their first attempt to secure an expulsion in McDonald they now turn to the local from where the call for the March 15 conference originated.

At the last meeting of Local 4546, the following charge was preferred against Jim Oates, "Violating Article 18, Section 3, and Article 13, section 2 of the district constitution" on the basis of a resolution passed at the last district convention which is a sense prevents miners attending a movie show if the officials see fit. The charges were signed by Thos. Winn who is a brother-in-law to Frank Feehan a former president of this district. His motion was seconded by the sub-district board member's brother.

A Plain Frame-Up.

In the discussion, Winn admitted that the charges were written by the district officials and that he signed them. So flimsy is the basis for the charge, the local refused even to accept them and have a trial. And the officials, knowing that they have no leg to stand on, do not trust to one specific charge but rather draw up a document of them, hoping that at least they could induce the local to accept one of them.

It must be remembered that this local is the one that in Feb. 15, held a mass meeting of miners in Charleroi to which they invited the district officials to answer charges of misappropriation of the miners' money.

A Fighting Local

Not one of the officials were present at the meeting, but instead carry on a policy of disruption and expulsion. This same local is also calling for a special district convention to take up misappropreation of the miners' money by the district officials, malfeasance of office, investigation of the funds expended in the Fayette county field in 1922, present grievances that are piling up and rallying the entire organization for the release of the men imprisoned at Moundsville.

The officialdom knows that the local and Oates have the goods on them, they are afraid the membership will get to know the truth of their methods. Oates at one time was an organizer and has had an opportunity to get a close look at their activity. He was very active in the organization of the Alleghany Valley and securing conditions for the miners at a time when Van Bittner wanted the strike in that region called off.

Feeders Threatened with Wage Slash; Berry for Arbitration

George L. Berry, president of I. P. P. & F. U., visited Chicago recently to urge upon the members of Franklin Union No. 4 the necessity of submitting the question of their wage demands to arbitration. The bosses are trying to reduce our wages $4 a week. In his arguments in favor of arbitration he told the membership that the union was too weak to strike, but that as soon as "his" union located at 181 W. Washington St., had organized the pressrooms of Chicago then they could get anything they wanted.

This union on Washington St. is a peculiar outfit. The members in that union work 48 hours a week and receive whatever wages they can get, while the members in Locals No. 3 and 4 work a 44-hour week and have a regular union scale of wages.

The members of Franklin Union were not very much impressed with the vision of the Washington St. union organizing the city when they were unable to force the bosses to live up to the union scale. However, Berry thinks it a fine idea to keep six of his organizers in Chicago looking after that union. To the members of Franklin Union the Washington St. outfit is nothing more than a scab outfit.

Berry had to admit that he was not very welcome in Chicago. Perhaps he remembered when in 1918 Franklin Union No. 4 was successful in signing up most shops for a $5 a week increase he came in and told the bosses that $2.50 a week was sufficient of an increase for a pressfeeder, with the result that Franklin Union got only a $2.50 raise. After listening to three hours of Berryism (arbitration, no strikes and co-operation with the bosses) the union decided to hold a referendum on the question of strike or arbitration.

Miners' Institute Free of Debt.

COLLINSVILLE, Ill.—The $140,000 building housing the Collinsville Miners' Institute is free of debt, following the burning of the mortgage April 1. Locals 264, 685, 826, 848 and 4398, United Mine Workers, have been assessing themselves 1 per cent of their earnings since 1916 to wipe out the debt.

Progressive Party Holds Caucus in Typographical 16

On Sunday, April 12 the Progressive Party in Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 held a caucus to choose candidates for the coming local elections. About seven hundred members attended. The qualification for admittance was the possession of a paid-up card in the local. No speeches from candidates were allowed. Canvassing took the form of whispered conversations as to the qualifications of the candidates—and the main qualification of all of them appeared to be that "he is a good fellow."

The candidates of the Progressive Party in the May elections will be: for president, Hedger; for vice-president, DeWolf; for organizer, John English; for executive, Aussem, Carlson, Cooper, Powers, White; delegates to I. T. U. convention, Chapp, Tatge, Oblinger; sergeant-at-arms, Jack Canty.

As compared with the Wahneta clique in the Typographical Union the Progressive Party is very much preferable. At least the Progressives have broken loose from the hide-bound conservatism that characterizes the Wahnetas. But there is a lack of any fundamental program on the part of the Progressives.

Among some Progressives, however, the healthy sentiment against arbitration with the bosses and for amalgamation is a good sign, and should be seized upon by the adherents of the Trade Union Educational League to develop the forces that are out to develop the strength of the union to its maximum.

COURT DECISION HELD BIG BLOW AT RAIL BOARD

Held Aid to Voluntary Arbitration

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 16.— Prospects for the Barkley railroad labor bill in the new congress are distinctly improved by the supreme court's decision, in the Kansas industrial court case—that compulsory arbitration of labor disputes is unconstitutional.

Hence the railroad labor board must go, and competent voluntary machinery for dealing with rail labor disputes must be arranged. That is the purpose of the Howell-Barkley measure which was throttled by the Longworth-Gillett-Snell organization in the house during the past year.

See Efficiency of Bosses' Rule.

There are cynical persons who observe that the supreme court of the United States nullified the principle of compulsory arbitration only when the organized employers had become more efficient in swaying public opinion than the organized workers. Organized business had become strong enough, class conscious enough, and sufficiently united under aggressive leadership, to get more for itself from a free fight than from state compulsion.

They point to the fact that in the capital, on the day this decision was rendered, some 70 building contractors signed a compact to stand by one another in the refusal to grant wage increases to the building trades; that only four firms stayed out of this agreement; that the sub-committee which engineered the deal included Vice-President Robertson of the Associated General Contractors of America, and officers of the Building and Manufacturers' Exchange, the Operative Builders and the Builders' Exchange. Not a word of protest from the White House or from Secretaries Davis or Hoover.

Hope for Howell-Barkley Bill.

Administration press agents, however, declare that the ruling of the supreme court shows that organized labor has lost none of its standing, under a conservative political regime; that if labor has the power to drive a good bargain with the employers, it surely has the legal right to do so. What they do not mention is labor's utter lack of means of carrying its message to the general public, so that trade union membership will cease to be a matter for half-ashamed explanation, as it is becoming in neighborhoods and classes affected by conservative propaganda.

Railroad men see in the decision a bit of real encouragement for their plan of voluntary arbitration. The Howell-Barkley bill will be brought forward, next December, with vigorous determination.

Will Favor "Friendly" Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 16.— By a vote of 39 to 6 the Washington central labor union has voted its approval of a plan for selection of 6 or more local banks as being "friendly," from the 47 to whom letters of inquiry as to their policy toward the building trades strike were recently sent. It is recalled that when one of the local banks was identified, some years ago, as hostile to a union then on strike, some $200,000 of its deposits were affected.

Reds Life of Union, Says Sillinsky

The Journeymen Tailors' Union has become, under the brazen-faced office stealing regime of Thomas Sweeney, as reactionary as any other of the unions. Sweeney, thru his control of the official organ, The Tailor, has had the policy of loudly applauding all the illegal and disruptive attacks made on the Communists in the central bodies of Minneapolis and Seattle.

Finally, a left winger has managed to get a letter into the publication, opposing such expulsions and pointing out the real issue, class struggle versus class collaboration underlying the question. The letter is written by Max P. Sillinsky, a Cleveland progressive, and is as follows:

"Cleveland, Ohio, March 23, 1925.

"It was with a great deal of interest that I read the news items in the columns of the several recent issues of The Tailor that told of the expulsion of Communists and Reds from the Central Labor Unions of Seattle and Minneapolis.

"My activity in the trade union movement is of many years' standing, and all those years I have been subject to the same experience. This experience has been, that the so-called 'Reds,' those in the unions that are really progressive, that really believe in the struggle of the workers for a betterment of conditions, as well as for the eventual emancipation from wage slavery, these Reds were always in the forefront in all our union work, were constantly helping to build up the unions and accepting the most dangerous posts when the union was on strike.

"In certain localities, among some unions, a novel idea seems to be gaining ground. This is the idea of class peace. Labor leaders, here and there, are boasting about their friendship with employers, paying more attention to building banks and apartment houses and other profit making enterprises, than they are in gaining higher wages and better working conditions for the workers. The recent trouble the miners' union had with the locomotive engineers' organization and its nonunion mines in West Va., is a clear case in point.

"The idea of class peace will lead us only to one end, a continual weakening of our union, lower wages and worse working conditions. For a labor union to give up fighting is equal to playing into the hands of the open shoppers. There is no more effective weapon the workers have than a strong union, ready and able to fight when necessary. We should organize and amalgamate so as to be able to use our power more effectively.

"When I read of suspensions from central bodies of the real fighting elements, I am convinced a wrong step is being taken. To weed out the real fighters from the ranks of labor is a grave mistake. I am never afraid of labor becoming too radical, there is greater danger in labor becoming too conservative—Fraternally yours,

MAX J. SILLINSKY."

Building Trades in Boston Vote on Strike Settlement

BOSTON, Mass., April 16.—Striking building trades local unions and other building trades unions not yet on strike are voting on the proposal of the building trades employers' association for a 3-year agreement, with present wages to stand until April 1, 1926, and the wage scales for the remaining period of the pact to be settled by arbitration.

The building trades council committee has accepted the proposal but it must be ratified by the trades to be effective. Final results will not be known until the end of the month when the voting will have been completed.

Painters, plumbers, lathers and gas fitters are on strike for $1.25 an hour. The strike is effective against all building trades employers' association jobs. Some independent firms have yielded to the union.

"Right of Contract" Covers Too Much Ground for Workers

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—The Elm City Laundry company of this city is similar to many other such concerns in forcing its drivers to sign a "yellow dog" contract which says in part:

"Said party of the second part further agrees that he will not at any time while he is in the employ of the said party of the first part, or withing one year after leaving its service, for himself or any other person, persons or company, engage in the laundry business."

This is used also in a warning to other laundries not to "interfere" with the Elm company's drivers. This property right over the lives of employes is partly responsible for the unionizing campaign being carried on among the laundry workers here.

Chicago Pressmen's Election Gives the Berry Gang a Gain

In the election in Chicago Pressmen's Union No. 3 held Saturday, April 11, the adherents of Geo. L. Berry succeeded in winning the positions of president and organizer. President Moran (Berryite) was re-elected and Organizer Van Artzen (anti-Berryite) was defeated by 3 votes by Seppi who can be trusted to use his office for the good of the Berry machine. The result of the elections leaves the anti-Berry administration forces with a majority in the local executive.

Pressmen's Union No. 3 has taken a leading position in the struggle against Berry for many years. It was this local that charged Berry with embezzlement of International Union funds some years ago. The Berry forces have done all in their power to gain control of the local but have not yet succeeded.

The progressive forces in the local now see the necessity of consolidating their forces in order to prevent the loss of the gains they won only after many hard battles. The defeat of Organiser Van Artzen was a blow at the anti-Berry forces, but they are confident of winning in the next elections because of this experience.

JOHNSTON BEING SNOWED UNDER BY THE MACHINISTS

First Run Vote Shows Heavy Defeat

The first run of votes in some of the Chicago locals of the International Association of Machinists shows a tremendous swing away from "B.&O." Johnston to Anderson. Voting continues in all locals for two consecutive meetings, so the figures given below are incomplete, representing only the votes cast at the first meeting.

All left wing members should report the votes of their locals to the T. U. E. L., 1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Local	Johnston	Anderson
83	2	96
84	2	40
113	52	69
126	1	299
128	2	11
134	43	47
185	5	25
199	5	75
337	6	62
366	16	29

The Anderson slate is running strong in District 8, and in fact the whole country as well as can be told at this writing. New York City and San Francisco are reported going against Johnston by about two to one. The Left Wing Committee in Chicago visited many locals explaining the left wing position in qualified support of Anderson.

Collective Bargaining Turned Wrong Side Out by Boss Bakers

NEW YORK CITY.—Bill Green's fondness for "collective bargaining" has been taken up in a new quarter, that is to say, by the Specialty Bakery Owners' of America, the Master Bakers' Jewish organization fighting the Jewish Bakers' Union for "the right to organize."

The spokesman for the bosses says in accents pitiful that "The Jewish Bakers' Union insists on being an association of workmen to protect their interests. They insist on making individual employers sign agreements with the union and refuse to permit the employers' association to represent the master bakers. This we are determined to no longer tolerate. Unless at an early date the union grants collective bargaining and an agreement calling for arbitration, we will close our shops and lock out our workers."

The matter of forcing arbitration by such a "collective" agreement is particularly distasteful to the union men. The association does an annual purchasing business of $200,000,000.

SHOE WORKERS PREDICT VICTORY WHEN JUDGE FREES UNION STRIKERS

NEW YORK, April 16—After listening to all that the owners of the United Shoe Rebuilding corporation had to say regarding the high crimes and misdemeanors of Pascal Cosgrove, organizer of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, and Mike Tesky, one of the pickets in the strike for recognition of the union in the "United" shops, the judge in the Jefferson court dismissed the cases without even calling Cosgrove to the stand.

The failure of the boss in this case has convinced the union that they are on the road to complete victory, and that this boss will soon have to deal with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union if he desires to do any shoe repairing in his seven New York shops.

WHAT WERE THE PRE-WAR UNION INTERNATIONALS?

Losovsky Tells Their Lack of Unity

By A. LOSOVSKY
(General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions)

In the trade union sphere of the pre-war period we have the International Secretariat of Trade Unions, which was created in 1902. Its conferences usually were connected with the international socialist congresses, as these trade unions usually sent their delegates to the latter congresses. This international secretariat was not an international organization in the sense which especially we, the Communists, understand it.

It was not an organization for struggle; but an international organization for the exchange of information. We could easily call it an "international information bureau," an international bureau for sending statistics to each other, an international post-office box, or anything but an international labor union. It lacked the characteristic of a real labor international; that is, the domination of interests of the class as a whole over the interests of separate parts of the international.

The Internationals of Industries

Besides the International Secretariat of Trade Unions, there were international units of trade unions—or internationals—by industries: The International Textile Union, the Metal Workers' Union, the Wood Workers' Union; the Barbers' Union; the Cap Makers' Union, the Needle Trades, etc., over twenty international unions, which could be more correctly called a semblance of international unity than real unity. In fact we cannot remember one time in the international labor movement before the war where any industrial international played a leading role in the international struggle where the unions would take concurrent action in different countries.

Only Fake Internationals

Therefore, if we look at these internationals from the point of view of those problems which an international in general should solve, we must openly state that no such international in fact existed. They were organizations which called themselves "internationals." They had stationery with their names upon it, but they were only indications of the necessity of militant internationals, which they themselves were not. The existance of these internationals proved the necessity of creating real international units. Their weakness characterised the degrees of the development of the working class movement of the world.

Again, if we wish to get a clear understanding of those causes which led up to the disintegration of the labor movement of the world with the beginning of the war, let us see what these labor organizations represented, and what were the connections between them.

The Inner Weakness.

Only after we carefully acquaint ourselves with these organizations, will we understand why 1914 was the year of the complete disintegration, demoralization and disorganization of the international labor movement. The competition between international capitalist groups before the war, was reflected in the industrial international unions, and with the coming of the war, came out more boldly. After the international congress of metal workers in 1914, one of the former delegates at that congress, Merrheim, at that time a revolutionary syndicalist, stated in an article that at that congress the competition between the British and German metallurgy showed itself.

The labor movement of that period, although officially connected in international unity, in fact was filled with national prejudice, national separatism, and national interests. The questions of "fatherland" were superior to the interests of the working class, and the question of "defending the fatherland" was a principle accepted by the whole labor movement.

Coney Island Open Forum to Hear of Communist Women

NEW YORK, April 16—On Sunday, April 19 at 8 p. m., Sadie Amter will speak at the Coney Island Open Forum at 3109 Surf Ave., on the subject of women in the labor movement. Comrade Amter attended the Third Communist Women's Congress in Moscow in 1924.

Comrade Kate Gitlow, secretary of the United Council of Working Class Women, will speak on the duties of working class women in the class struggle. All working class women in the vicinity should attend this meeting to which admission will be free. The meeting will be held under the auspices of Council No. 4 of Working Class Women, Coney Island.

New York Leaguers to Have a General Hike on April 26

NEW YORK, April 16—A general hike of all the branches in the city has been arranged for Sunday, April 26.

This will be the first general hike this year, and we expect that over 1,000 young workers will participate.

This hike will not only serve as a means of entertainment, and the physical well-being of the comrades but will also be devoted to an educational program that is being arranged for by the district executive committee.

Since no definite place has as yet been decided upon, comrades will have to watch in the next issue of the Young Worker, in the DAILY WORKER, Freiheit, Novy Mir, Volkszeitung and Elore for further announcements.

For the present remember the date, April 26, and tell your shop mates and friends.

Comrade Olgin Speaks Tonight at Soviet School

Comrade Moissaye Olgin, the well-known writer and co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir, will speak tonight at 1902 W. Division St., on What Did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants? He will speak in the Russian language, beginning at [illegible] p. m.

GITLOW WILL SPEAK ON WAR AND REVOLUTION IN EUROPE AT SUNDAY MEET

NEW YORK, April 16.—The subject at the Brownsville open forum meeting Sunday night, April 19, which will be addressed by Benjamin Gitlow, will be, "Toward War and Revolution in Europe."

The open forum, run by the Brownsville section of the Workers (Communist) Party, meets every Sunday evening at 1701 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn.

REMEMBER MAY 23!

The John Reed Junior group is arranging a surprise party and dance Saturday, May 23, at 1902 W. Division St. All friendly organizations are requested not to arrange other affairs on that date.

A Tip to Philadelphians.

At the rate the Juniors of Philadelphia are selling tickets for the play, Our Juniors in Action, April 17, which will be produced by the Junior Players' group on April 24, at the Progressive Library it seems that those who will fail to get their tickets before the night of the performance will have a slim chance of getting in.

So get your ticket in advance and also for your friends for a treat of that kind will never be forgotten. Tickets are only 35 cents for grown ups and 15 cents for juniors. Remember, Friday, April 24, Juniors' night.

Many unique features are promised by the committee arranging the program for the big dance on Sunday, April 26 at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch boulevard. In fact there are said to be some suprises that will really surprise—and that will certainly be surprising!

The dance is a joint affair under the auspices of the Mid-City English branch of the Workers Party and Area Branch No. 2 of the Young Workers' League. Put the date down now, Sunday night, April 26.

Program for Hike

The following is the program for the hike on April 19, 1925, starting from Grand and Harlem Aves. Directions to starting point are: Take Grand Ave. car going west to end of line. Comrades will meet in groups at stations outlined below.

Workers' Lyceum (2733 Hirsch Blvd.), 3118 Roosevelt Rd.

Imperial Hall (Fullertion and Halsted), 3116 S. Halsted St.

Cicero and Roosevelt Rd.

From these stations the groups must leave a 9:30 sharp to be on time at starting point for hike. From there the combined groups will proceed to the forest preserves along the Harlem Rd. Marks will indicate the direction of hike for stragglers. Comrades will bring their own food, a shelter will be provided for bundles while games are in progress. Games will be played as arranged below:

Footraces, novelty races, two games of baseball (five innings only), two games of volley ball. Juniors, Workers Party members and friends especially invited.

Comrade Alex. Mletz will be in charge of all committees.

Keep May 17 Open.

The Workers School and the Trade Union Educational League are arranging a joint affair for Sunday, May 17, which will be the great event of the year, both for the school and the league.

All party units and sympathetic organizations are urged not to arrange any other affair for that date.

PRESENT CLASS WAR DRAMA AT INDIANA HARBOR, IND., SUNDAY

A performance, concert and dance will be given by the Workers Party, Local Indiana Harbor, Ind. Sunday, April 19, at Turner's Hall, 3809 Main St., Indiana Harbor, Ind. A drama of the class struggle "The Striker" by L. Rinehold will be staged. A good time is promised to all.

Comrade Peter Herd of the Young Workers' League of America will speak. Dance starts at 5 p. m., performance at 7 p. m. Admission 50 cents.

K. C. RADIO HAS LECTURE ON REDS' HIGH MENTALITY

Says Communists Believe in Education

KANSAS CITY, April 16.—With the hope of condemnation yet with the principle of comparison, Frank S. Larnds, chief scribe of the De Molay in a speech that was broadcast here made use of the high standard of education that the individual Communist has, desiring to rouse the "good" Americans to more educational activity.

He told the fans about 78 delegates going to a Russian Communist convention saying that, "not one knew where he was going nor the others' names, yet every man was a member of the Communist Party and they all seemed to have bad feelings against this country." (He did not say against the workers who are the majority, but the "country" that is owned by a small minority—we compliment him for his accuracy.)

Surprised at Intelligence.

Out of this group that the "country" would like to deport, he said, "24 were Americans and 11 were college and university graduates, one holding the Phd. degree of Columbia, and it seemed to be an intelligent gathering, for they were not the peasant type" as the press would have us believe, "but were of the high student type."

Fearing he said too much, the chief scribe tried to counteract this by telling of acts of violence and of government raids hoping to leave the impression that after all they were horrible fellows. In reality he painted a vivid modern picture of the "Inquisition."

Outraged Americanism.

His Americanism seemed to be offended when he told of the 15-year-old Communist youth that addressed a crowd of 15,000 reds in Madison Square Garden and quoted the youth as saying, "Down with America and up with the Reds!".

The capitalist use the red scare for every conceivable thing in business and now we find their henchmen using it as an educational scare for their group to get busy.

Pershing Promises Bosses to Guard American Interests

General John J. Pershing, in Chicago to stir up interest in a larger army, in his last speech here before the chamber of commerce spoke on "the opportunities for American capital in South America." Pershing has been appointed to head the plebiscite commission to "arbitrate" the dispute over the Tacna-Arica territory now raging between Chile and Peru.

Pershing gave intimation in his speech that he will look after the interests of the American capitalists who are anxious to tighten their hold on South American countries. The dispute has been decided in favor of Chile, so that American capitalists may secure nitrate concessions from that country.

Pershing advocated the establishment of branch banks in South American countries, broaching the plan for domination of the Latin-American countries which has been used by British imperialism. He urged "A union of North American capital with South American opportunities," and increased investments in those countries.

Workers' Sports Club Entertains in N. Y. C.

NEW YORK, April 15.—At last we have it! The first affair of the Workers Sports Club since its organization. And you can bet it's a Jim Dandy. The most novel entertainment that ever a branch produced.

Miss Lee Cohen, a singer of note (high note) will render several selections. Comrade Davidson, an accomplished cellist will delight us with a few numbers. Irving Shoebe is the one who will show us how to play Rackmaninoff's prelude on a saw. A Communist Breitbart will chew up nails and bend iron for our benefit.

Don't forget. The place is 108 E. 14th St. The date is Saturday evening at 8 p. m. Be there early, comrades, for the entertainment will start at eight sharp. Al Furman, organizer.

Strategy of the Communists

The famous letter from the Communist International to the Mexican Communist Party—

In which not only is outlined the policy for the Communist Party of Mexico, based on the facts of the struggle in that country—

But also the strategy for Communists of all countries.

No worker who wishes to understand the fundamental strategy of the Communists should omit it from his reading.

AT WORKERS MAY STRIKE IN NEW YORK CITY

200,000 Will Walk Out Over Hours

NEW YORK, April 16— (FP) — Apartment house elevator men in bondage to 14 hours' night work and 84 hours a week, are being canvassed by the Elevator Starters and Operators Union in a vigorous organization campaign.

The campaign includes the hall boys and the attendants, the starters and the door men, says Michael Fiore, business agent, of Local Union 67 and it has the backing of the firemen's union, the elevator constructors and the building service employes' organization as well as the support of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York.

Many Are Organized.

An up-town office is being opened by the elevator operators' union to facilitate their new campaign.

A strike will be the culmination of the organization drive unless demands now being drawn up are granted by employers, says Fiore. There are 200,000 workers engaged in building maintenance, a minority of them already organized, whose backing will be sought in the movement.

Demand 8-Hour Day.

Reduction in wages of 10 and 15 per cent have recently been suffered by elevator operators and other building maintenance workers, says Fiore. The affiliated unions will demand wage increases of 25 to 30 per cent and the 8-hour day. A minimum of $25 a week will be asked in apartment houses.

Experience in the April, 1920 strike taught the elevator operators the need for industrial co-operation from the other building service employes. The elevator operators went it alone in that strike with disastrous results.

importance to the state," Dr. Hamilton writes in her report on Russian industrial hygiene in the February issue of The Journal of Industrial Hygiene. "It is, however, a surprise to a foreigner to see a system of preventive medicine, diagnosis, and treatment so admirably worked out in so short a time, for it must be remembered that the country has had peace for only a little over two years. Yet there is no city in America so well equipped to protect its working population against the dangers of industry and to care for them they fall victims to these dangers as is Moscow."

Dr. Hamilton's first visit was to the Institute Obuch for occupational diseases, "a large building with dispensary, hospital wards and laboratories which serves the city of Moscow, receiving patients from all the medical centers, whenever it is suspected that the trouble may be of occupational origin. There are thirteen physicians attached to the institute, and five laboratories for clinical pathology and for experimental work."

Guard Workers' Health

At present the institute is making a study of metallic poisonings. Lead poisoning, for instance, is common in the Russian painting trade, because white lead paint is universally employed in that country. "But a law recently passed decrees that by 1930 the manufacture and use of white lead must be abandoned."

In co-operation with the dispensaries attached to the factories the institute is carrying out routine examinations of large groups of workers in various industries, according to Dr. Hamilton. The actual examination is made in the factory dispensary, but if a puzzling case is found, the worker is sent to the institute, sometimes for the day, sometimes for several nights, so that without interrupting his work he may be put thru all the necessary tests.

Health Is First Consideration

Dr. Hamilton next visited the Institute of Sanitary Hygiene which is especially devoted to problems of ventilation, temperature and lighting. One of the chief occupational hazards this institute is fighting, is that of mercury poisoning, common in the hat industry, and known as "hatters shakes." A caustic potash solution has been substituted for the nitrate of mercury used formerly.

Dr. Hamilton tells how "a specimen hat," of white felt, was presented to her. "Candor obliges us to say that although it is perfectly good felt, it is not such felt as an American manufacturer would regard with pride, nor would be persuaded, by examining this specimen, to abandon mercury carrot for any caustic method. But the Russians, who are not interested in display in dress, hold that the beauty of the felt is of minor importance, the health of the hatter is of prime importance.

Another health institute in Moscow is the "Tsect," the Central Workers' Institute. This is devoted to the scientific study of labor, "the effort to fit the work to the man and the man to the work." Here experts are "carrying out all sorts of physical and mental experiments to detremine fitness for certain kinds of work, to develop efficient methods of work, to get rid of fatigue, and to devise ways of discovering individual capacities and incapacities in men and women workers."

Women, as a class, are urged to go into the factory, not only because economic conditions force them to, but because they are considered as "citizens," side by side with men. "The wages for men and women are the same for the same work," although as an actual fact they are usually working on different processes in the factories, and there are special laws relating to them, such as the limitation of night work and the prohibition of certain types of work considered particularly injurious to women.

The desire to substitute the factory for the home leads to the encouragement in every way of the employment of married women. Not only are nurseries provided for the children of working mothers but a very generous arrangement is made for the nursing of the babies and the care of the children when they are sick. A nursing mother is allowed time off to go and feed her baby, and when the nursery is at a distance from the factory this may actually cut as much as two hours out of her day's work.

Nursing Mothers Welcomed and Cared For

"No discrimination against a mother is supposed to be permitted by any factory committee. If a young unmarried man and a nursing mother were to present themselves for employment, they would be treated as if they were equally desirable."

The theory of Soviet Russia, according to Dr. Hamilton, is that labor, industrial and agricultural, is the foundation of the state, and that the life of the industrial workers should center around the factory just as the life of the peasant centers around the farm. "Their ideal is to have in connection with each factory, not only communal houses but also a nursery, a kindergarten, a hospital, an amusement center and whatever else the workers need and want."

Textile Factory Has Best Hospital In Moscow

Dr. Hamilton reports that the best hospital in Moscow belongs to a large textile factory. In another factory there were "wall newspapers" in abundance, and "in addition to the innumerable activities of its own workers, this factory, together with two other nearby factories, had undertaken to play 'big brother' to fifty-two villages in a certain section of the country near Moscow. This particular factory in its effort to increase production was working two shifts; one from 7 to 4 with an hour's break at noon, and the other from 4 to 11, with no break."

In Russia, "It is accepted that the worker's welfare is far more important than what he produces," states Dr. Hamilton. "Consequently, the difficulties which we encounter in this country, when we wish to make a through study of a given factory or a given industry in which we suspect smoe unusual hazard, are unknown in Russia. Here the whole question can be treated as openly and as thoroughly as if it were a problem of pneumonia or typhoid fever."

An Entirely Different Viewpoint

"Given the fact that industrial medicine is recognized as a branch of medical study fully equal in importance to any other, that it is engaging the services of the ablest men and women in the medical profession, and that their work is meeting with enthusiastic co-operation and with no obstacle except the lack of money, it would seem that we are justified in looking for great things in this field to come out of Russia."

POLISH WHITE TERROR MURDERS MANY WORKERS

saved the Polish Deputy Lanzutsky from death. On the heels of the Lanzutsky affair came the bestial murder of two exchange prisoners bound for Soviet Russia. The murder was committed by Polish police officers a half hour before the exchange party was to cross the border.

The day after this crime was committed the Polish courts, thru Judge Krakoff, condemned to death the Communist soldiers Segal and Diffetski, charging that they had issued revolutionary proclamations.

Peasants Are Persecuted

Coincident with its action against Lanzutsky, the Polish diet deprived three Ukrainian members of parliamentary immunity for the purpose of prosecuting them for political activities. The three deputies, Wassilchuk, Chuchmay and Kozitsky have been marked by the Grabski government because of their efforts on behalf of the Ukrainian national minority peasantry, that has suffered intolerably under the Polish regime.

The oppressed Polish masses are moving as best they can against this reign of terror. But on all sides they are met by merciless military force. In the coal basin of Dumbrawa, the police attacked a number of Communists, in the fight one policeman and one Communist were killed. The troops were then brought into action. They proceeded to carry out a gas attack against the workers. 145 Communists, among them 30 women, have been arrested at Lodz.

Police Disperse Crowds

Thruout the whole land, the most violent forms of military oppression and suppression are the order of the day. When thousands of workers gathered about the court room in Przempl, where Lanzutsky was being tried, they were immediately dispersed by the gendarmerie.

The demonstrations to save Lanzutsky outside Poland constituted one of the best international working class protests in history. In practically every town in Europe where the workers' movement has any semblance of legality, monster meetings were held and demonstrations conducted before the Polish consulates.

In Leningrad 200,000 Russian workers gathered in a great protest meeting before the Polish consulate there. All over Russia the Polish consulates are heavily guarded by red army soldiers for fear the indignation of the workers against the Polish white terror might result in violence. In Paris, Berlin, London and all the large centers of Europe, monster demonstrations composed of thousands of workers struck fear into the hearts of Polish representatives abroad and forced the Grabski government to back down on the legal murder of Lanzutsky.

In Washington, D. C., the Polish embassy building was picketed by hundreds of workers. In Detroit a demonstration before the Polish consulate was dispersed by the police, resulting in the arrest of three Communists.

In Chicago a similar demonstration was carried out and in addition a great mass meeting was held in the Polish section attended by hundreds of Polish workers.

Polish Workers Need Help.

The Polish regime of blood is arousing the wrath of the workers the world over. It is still continuing. Thousands of families are left dependant because of husbands and brothers and fathers being dragged off to prison, executed or murdered outright.

The Polish workers and peasants need help. Send your contributions to the International Red Aid which has taken up the cause of the oppressed Polish working class. Checks should be made payable to George Maurer, secretary, American Section International Red Aid, 19 S. Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

BUILDERS AT WORK

MILWAUKEE LEARNS A THING OR TWO FROM MONESSEN

Send Greetings to Our Young Builders

THAT the suggestions of this column are useful to other BUILDERS thruout the country and that even a local like Milwaukee where they are already doing such splendid work, can learn something from our busy young workers in a small coal mining town in Pennsylvania, is proved by a letter from Comrade Shklar, secretary and DAILY WORKER agent for Milwaukee. He writes:

Milwaukee, Wis., April 13, 1925.

The DAILY WORKER, Builders' Column.

Dear Comrades: Inclosed in this letter you will find three new subscribers among them one subscription for the period of one year. This subscription has been secured on credit as the comrade could not afford at the time to pay six dollars. He promised to pay in a few days and I feel sure that he will pay soon. I had similar experience in the past few weeks and I find that it is a very good idea to allow credit on the long term subscriptions and collect the charges at a later date. It keeps our DAILY WORKER agents in closer touch with the subscribers and at the same time insures for the paper long term subscribers. There is very little inconvenience connected with the plan and I feel sure that our members thruout the country could practice it on a much larger scale.

I take this opportunity of extending my greetings to the Young Workers' League in Monessen, Pa., who are putting this plan into effect and are making good.

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

Has your local found "methods that work"? If it has, or you think that you can show how we can more efficiently build "our Daily," get your suggestions and "fire when you are ready." We'll print it to see what other builders think of it.

Wants Democracy for Counts and Liberals But Not for Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 16.—Samuel Untermeyer, the millionaire attorney who argues for free speech in one breath and attacks trade union organizations in the next, delivered himself of a characteristic speech at the convention of the national association of the Jewish baking industry in the Broadway Central Hotel.

Untermyer condemned the gag on Count Karolyi and the conviction of Roger N. Baldwin in Paterson, in the same talk in which he criticised the Jewish Bakers' Union with which his hearers deal. Untermyer thinks the organized workers are too hard on their bosses and argues that the union should sign its contracts with the Jewish bakers' association instead of compelling the bosses to sign up separately with the union.

He further deplored the practice of compelling the boss to get his workers thru the union. His words aroused among the employers much pity for themselves and admiration for the lawyer who is their kind of a liberal.

Let the DAILY WORKER make your arguments every day. Send in a sub for your shop mates.

Soviet Tea Output in Trans-Caucasia Over Pre-War Figure

MOSCOW, April 16—The tea industry of Trans-Caucasia has considerably developed, and great success has been achieved during the last three years. Whereas private organizations had been growing tea before the war on 405 acres, the state is now exploiting 2,700 acres.

The current year established a new record with regard to crops in comparison with the previous years (including pre-war years). The Georgian Gosplan (state planning commission) has framed an extensive program of development for the next five years.

In 1929, it is expected that the area of tea plantations will reach 16,200 acres. Simultaneously with the increase in plantations, etc., factories are being built; in 1926 there will be twenty factories, four with a productive capacity of 50,000 pounds of green tea, and sixteen small ones for the production of partly prepared tea.

Special credits were granted to the plantations amounting to 4,000,000 rubles (£420,000). A number of scientific expeditions are being arranged this year to the world centers of the tea growing industry, viz., British India, Ceylon, China, and Japan. Four experimental stations are now working in Chakva and Ozurgnety.

WIDE RIFT IN BRITISH LABOR PARTY'S RANKS

Labor Weekly Flays the MacDonald Government

responsibility for whatever sins of omission or commission can be charged against that government. They must not be held up to us as the ones who were always on the side of socialist policy and not responsible when the labor government went astray.

Kneebreeches and Swords

We must not in our days of opposition forget that court dress, court functions and social gatherings, such as dinners, luncheons and receptions, were as well attended by the I. L. P. ministers as by other people. The cocked hats, tin swords and other tomfool paraphernalia appeared to be as beloved by some socialists as this sort of guy worship is by tories and liberals. There were some splendid exceptions, but these were exceptions.

During the labor government's existence the party in the house was tied hand and foot, owing to the worn-out methods and rules of the commons. We hope the Easter conference will back up Fred Jowett in his demand for a root and branch change. The whole cabinet system must sooner or later give place to a system which will allow men and women to speak and vote according to conviction and not as now be guided solely by expediency.

"We Are Just The Same"

But they must be prepared to treat their own people to the same measure of criticism as they give to other parties. If we would escape the evils of the past, we must be prepared to face frankly the issues involved. Our view is that the late government did do valuable work for the people, but it was handicapped from the start, because its leaders, with one or two exceptions, like parrots, went about the country declaring that a labor government was exactly like all other governments. Bankers were quite safe, capitalists were quite safe, the monarchy was safe, and so was the empire.

This latter was handed to Lord Olivier and J. H. Thomas, both of whom only appeared too anxious to prove that, so far as they were concerned, the imperialists had no cause to fear. In addition, the prime minister himself, in his first letter on India and his dispatch to Zaglul Pasha, proved that Indian policy and Egyptian policy were very largely to be carried on on lines similar to those already laid down.

Enough of Self Praise

In the things that count most of all, that is in national and international policy, members of the I. L. P. must not attempt to prove themselves more consistent or virtuous than other people. The labor party as a party, including the I. L. P., gave wholehearted support to the ex-premier's foreign policy, which included the Dawes report, the snubbing of Zaglul Pasha, and the statements that the Suez Canal and the Sudan were outside the realm of discussion. The bombing of homes, buildings, and sheep in Irak, India and Egypt, was accepted and defended as a painful necessity by I. L. P. ministers, who were formerly pacifists and conscientious objectors against war. More cruisers were added to the navy almost without protest. This policy also was accepted by out-and-out pacifists. As to India, the Bengal ordinance under the abominable act passed over a hundred years ago, under which people may be arrested without a warrant or charge of any kind, and held in prison for long terms, was issued while Lord Olivier and Professor Richards were at the India office, and was defended by them.

The Cleavage in the British Labor Party

George Lansbury, writing on the record of the British labor party as a government in his weekly of April 4, substantiates every criticism of that government made in the Communist press.

Our English correspondent gives this comment, which is causing a sensation within the British labor party, in detail and it is sufficient here to mention one or two of the most penetrating indictments made by Lansbury. He devotes his attention chiefly to the independent labor party leadership and the fact that he still has hopes of something good for the workers from this aggregation of capitalist hangers-on makes his criticism all the more interesting. He says:

"It (the labor government) was handicapped from the start, because its leaders, with one or two exceptions, like parrots, went about the country declaring that a labor government was exactly like all other governments. Bankers were quite safe, capitalists were quite safe, the monarchy was safe, and so was the empire. . . . . In addition, the prime minister (Ramsay MacDonald) in his first letter on India and his dispatch to Zaglul Pasha, proved that Indian policy and Egyptian policy were very largely to be carried on on lines similar to those already laid down . . . . the bombing of homes, buildings and sheep in Irak, India and Egypt was accepted and defended as a painful necessity by I. L. P. ministers, who formerly were pacifists and conscientious objectors against war."

With George Lansbury, one of the most militant and influential leaders of the British workers, expressing such opinions of its official leadership, it is evident that within the labor party, under the influence of mass pressure resulting from the proletarian disgust with the treachery and snobbery of the leadership, there is arising a powerful left wing movement—a center group in between the Communists and the I. L. P. parliamentarians.

The outcome of these developments will very likely be a coalition of the liberal party and the MacDonalds, Thomases, Hendersons and Snowdens, a purging of the labor party of its most reactionary elements.

Of the greatest influence in this new alignment has been the report of the British trade union delegation on Soviet Russia and the setting up of a joint committee of British and Russian trade union leaders to accelerate the drive for world trade union unity. This militant policy will in time force a more clean-cut struggle with the British government.

In conservative Great Britain the revolutionary movement is making its greatest progress today. The Fifth Congress of the Communist International was correct when it decided to make Great Britain the center of gravity in the revolutionary struggle in western Europe.

Chinese Children and Christian Foreigners

Chinese children 10 years of age and under have had their sentences of hard labor in the textile mills in Shanghai renewed by 300 christian foreign taxpayers who boycotted a meeting where their votes were necessary to endorse a city ordinance making the labor of children of these ages illegal.

Yet the American capitalist press is incensed at the action of Chinese students in boycotting American merchants. The remarkable thing in connection with the growth of the liberation movement in China is not the hostility shown towards foreign exploiters but the small amount of this sentiment.

As far as we are concerned the Chinese students can take the American merchants and shipowners who defeated the child labor ordinance and throw them into the harbor along with their merchandise.

If any protests as a result of such action are made, the Chinese might refer the diplomats to the Boston tea party which seems to us to be a fairly good precedent—established with much less provocation.

Unity Drive Gains Impetus

Unity of the world trade union movement is not a mere catchword with the Russian and British trade unionists. The formation of the Anglo-Russian unity committee with Smillie, Purcell, Bramley and other prominent British trade union officials acting in concert with the representatives of the All-Russian trade unions, the immediate convening of the committee in London on April 6, the adoption of a practical program for reaching the membership of the trade unions in every country over the head of the right wing leaders of the Amsterdam International, all show that the struggle for consolidation of the world trade unions into one powerful body is actually under way.

The British ruling class, by rejecting the miners' minimum wage bill and continuing the war on the trade union movement in general, are furnishing the advocates of unity in Great Britain with their most telling arguments.

Release Crouch and Trumbull

An outburst of popular protest is forcing the reduction of the savage sentences given Privates Crouch and Trumbull of the Hawaiian army of occupation for expressing Communist opinions. It is hinted that the terms will be reduced from 40 and 26 years to 3 years or less.

The DAILY WORKER was the only paper in the United States for weeks that carried the news of this case. The capitalist press paid attention to it only after the trials had begun. The protests must not be allowed to die down. These class-conscious soldiers must be freed.

The Chicago Tribune corroborates the charges made by us to the effect that had soldiers with Communist sympathies been found in the United States they would simply have been given a dishonorable discharge. But Hawaii is a colony, it is "the most important military post in American control," the huge fleet gathered by our imperialist government made Hawaii its base of operations in its latest maneuvers preliminary to its cruise of intimidation in the Far East. Imperialism rules harshly enough at home, but in the colonies it is an open dictatorship.

The workers and their organizations should flood Washington with protests until these soldiers are released. Let the imperialists know that the workers of America are at least alive to the plots and barbarities of their rulers.

Tom Mann Goes to Poland

The Polish embassy has given permission to Tom Mann, veteran of a thousand battles of the working class in a dozen different countries, to enter Poland as representative of the Workers Weekly.

We hope nothing we say will cause the Polish government to change its mind, but if it thinks that Tom can be fooled by any prepared-in-advance prisons which he will be allowed to inspect they have another guess coming. Tom Mann will find out more about the Polish government and its murderous assault upon the workers, its tortures and murders than it knows itself.

That he does not speak Polish is no handicap to Tom. In Russia it is a matter of public knowledge that he can talk with Russian workers and peasants and make himself understood and understand them altho he knows but two words of Russian and they know no English. Tom Mann will turn the torture government of Poland inside out and let the workers of the world see what makes it go.

The fact that he is allowed to enter Poland as a correspondent shows that the world-wide demonstrations of the workers against the terror of the Polish government is having its effect.

Starvation in Stable Roumania

Roumania is one of the little darlings of the allied imperialists, an important link in the chain of kept nations that are supposed to bar Bolshevism from western Europe.

Roumania has had no revolution, the boyars—the landlords—with the backing of French finance and bayonets are in full control—but the workers and peasants are on the verge of starvation.

Across the border the Russian peasants, under the Soviet government, travel each month farther away from the danger of famine and hardship. Soviet Russia has a Communist government. Roumania is semi-feudal but is admitted freely into the congress of civilized nations. Its government is a government of terror. It crushes mercilessly even peasant parliamentary movements.

But the peasants, altho saved so far from the mistake of revolution, are starving nevertheless.

Will the enemies of Soviet Russia who are also the enemies of the whole working class, the Snowdens, Wolls, Greens and Jouhauxes, who wasted so much pity on the peasantry of Russia, please explain why in safe and sane Roumania, an almost purely agricultural country, the people who raise the grain are starving?

"The Mire of Party Strife"

Speaking of the candidacy of General Hindenburg, Fritz Ebert, son of the late German president, remarks:

"We republicans, especially the republican war veterans, are most indignant that the person of the aged field marshal, who was equally venerable to all Germans, is thus dragged into the mire of party strife."

Fritz must be congratulated on his chioce of words if on nothing else. If any one should know what "the mire of party strife" in Germany means, it ought to be the son of a socialist president whose administration sold itself to the big industrialists, to the allied imperialists, to everyone who was willing to pay a certain price, even to Barmat, the banker.

Yes, "the mire of party strife" so far as the German social-democracy is concerned, is black, deep and filthy, stinking with the putrid bodies of murdered workers.

But Hindenburg is able to stand this kind of an odor as well as the most experienced social-democrat official.

The Ungrateful Chinese Students.

The students in the south of China are an ungrateful lot.

After John D. Rockefeller has donated millions for their education in the American style they go right out and boycott honest American businessmen.

No American college student would be guilty of such unbecoming conduct. On the contrary, they make the finest strikebreakers in the world, showing that we Americans are the natural leaders of the backward peoples of the Orient.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I

Continue Discussion of Bolshevization.

MOSCOW, March 29—(By Mail)—At today's session the debate on Bolshevization is continued. Comrade Tondi (Czecho-Slovakia) declares that with constant friction, victory is impossible. The workers will not permit the movement to suffer under personal questions. The workers want unity.

Comrade Pepper (America): "The nature of the problem at present confronting us has not yet penetrated our consciousness. The first period of the Comintern's activities may be called the Mid-European period. The second period is characterized by the extension of the Comintern's sphere of influence to the Far East. Since the Fifth World Congress, it has become clear that the present period is characterized by the acquisition of new territories in the Far West. The main political problem in the Far West is the labor party question—just as the question of the social-democracy dominates central Europe.

Since the Fifth Congress, the tactic of the Comintern has produced new results in England. In the first place—a minority movement which has become a mass movement; in the second place, the crystallization of a left wing in the labor party. In this respect we have noticed a certain opposition on the part of some of the British comrades.

Now it is clear that the tactics of the Comintern were correct. Already the left wing is pursuing an independent policy against the right. All this proves the necessity of developing the British party to a mass party. Our next task therefore is, to find the specific English method of developing a mass party. This can be accomplished of course only thru the collective work of the British party. Gallagher did not at all attempt to bring up the real problems; he spoke on generalities but not on the main problem of how to form a mass party under the given circumstances in England. The Communist Party of Great Britain has done good work in the trade unions, but failed to bring up the most urgent political questions, and the problem of the monarchy and the house of lords.

U. S. Politically Backward.

The United States is politically behind the European countries. In spite of the existence of a huge industrial proletariat, there is in America no mass political party. It is characteristic of the United States that the question of political and organizational independence from the bourgeoisie is in that country still the fundamental problem. There is a wide gulf between the task of the proletariat to break away from the bourgeoisie, and that of the party to become a mass party; and this gulf can be bridged over only by a labor party.

The labor patry is based on collective membership; it therefore represents the most primitive political form of organization. The historical reason for this phenomenon is the early development of imperialism, the early division of the workers into labor aristocrats with closed unions, and lower unskilled masses whom it was impossible to organize because their ablest leaders went over to the bourgeoisie.

The first shock received by British imperialism rendered the trade unions politically active. with the proletarization of the labor aristocracy, it became possible to develop a mass political party of the proletariat. In the United States the division of the proletariat is still sharper because the social divisions are emphasized by racia differences, and because the centralized government had cut down the privileges of the labor aristocracy which had the effect of increasing the latter's political activities.

After the war, it first became possible to form a mass proletarian party in the United States. The task of the American Communist Party is: to build a bridge connecting the historical task of the proletariat with the aim of the party to become a mass party. The speaker says that he will refrain from discussing factional matters before the plenum.

The Labor Party Problem.

The theses on Bolshevization should contain the tasks of the American Communist Party in the labor party The labor party problem also concerns Canada, South Africa, Australia, and perhaps even Holland. The speaker warns against attempting to solve the problems of the Far West with the Mid-European slogans and methods. That would be just as erroneous as to attempt to solve the problems of the Far East with Mid-European slogans. The labor party in the United States may be opportunistic, but we must get into it none the less, for the purpose of taking over the initiative. The process of development of the United States will slow up considerably, since the world is full of conflicts for America, and since there are in the United States a most centralized industry and a powerful proletariat. The American Communist Party must play the role of an initiator and organizer in the labor party; this will make a mass party out of it. (Applause.)

No Mass Party Tradition Here.

Cannon (America): In America there is no mass party tradition. The main task is therefore to carry on Marxist-Leninist propaganda. Comrade Kun's statements on this point are of great significance. The speaker suggests that great care be taken in connection with the slogan "Professional Revolutionary," for otherwise there is the danger that the party may become merely a party of functionaries.

The two problems facing us are: Trade union work and the formation of shop nuclei. The American trade unions are extremely weak; hence the immediate task should be to create trade unions. Shop nuclei are of especial importance in the United States, but they also involve special difficulties; the small party, weak trade unions, a large industry, and the tendency to do everything outside the shop or factory.

The party is divided into language federations; centralization is therefore the first problem. As to the labor party question, a comparison with England is out of place. In England a mass labor party is already in existence; besides, the American masses are not as class conscious as the English. The labor party question is for the present, a question of working in the trade unions. The speaker is not opposed to a labor party as such, but only to its being a parallel organization to the Communist Party. A labor party must be the reflection of the unity of the working class. A labor party cannot at once be formed: our immediate task is to propagate a labor party on the basis of partial demands.

Slogan Against Opportunists.

Comrade Kuusinen: Bolshevization is a slogan against the opportunists, but not for sectionalism. Kreibich declared in the Czech commission that not only was a correct policy necessary but its correct execution as well. The speaker points out that correct policy is the prerequisite for its correct execution. He then cites an article by Thalheimer, on the united front, and another one by Kreibich on the slogan of a workers' and peasants' government, and shows that both of these articles contain erroneous views.

Kreibich did not grasp the revolutionary meaning of the slogan; the speaker also suggests that Thalheimer and Kreibich have misunderstood the decisions of the Fifth Congress on the trade union question.

The parties have already begun the Bolshevization work, but they have as yet not fully grasped the Bolshevist method of concentration of action. The theoreticians give too little attention to the Marxian interpretation of current events.

The daily party work must be better organized, and the reorganization on the shop nuclei basis offers rich possibilities. This also makes possible the extension and education of the staff of new organizers. The speaker then polemizes against Thalheimer and Kreibich, who in their articles treat the question of continuity of party leadership too mechanically.

The mere submission of Comrade Kreibich does not suffice. There are in Soviet Russia many specialists who submit to discipline, but they are not elected into the party executive. The former social-democratic leaders must be Bolshevized thru constant work, but it is not absolutely necessary that the executive should do the massaging. Expulsion from the party is not the normal method of Bolshevization, but it is sometimes necessary, as in the case of Bubnik (Czecho-Slovakia). Formal democracy is just as erroneous as autocratic leadership, or a mixture of formal democracy and autocratic leadership. A party leadership is good if it extends and develops simultaneously with the activization of the party masses. As to the international leadership, the speaker is of the opinion that when Kreibich and Thalheimer opposed the Russian influence in the executive, they were really opposing the Bolshevik leadership of the Comintern. The so-called independent Communists are fighting the Comintern, and Paul Levi who had also followed his own course and found the social-democratic party, should serve as a warning to Thalheimer and Kreibich. Objective criticism for the improvement of the work is desirable, but the leading role of the executive must remain. (Applause.)

WALSH IS KEEN FOR NEW PROBE OF OIL LEASES

Democrat Likes Sham Battle with G. O. P.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 16.—If Senator Walsh of Montana, has his way, the senate will devote considerable of next winter's session to another investigation of government oil leases.

Field Adjoins Teapot Dome.

Walsh declared here today he would demand an investigation of the holdings of the Midwest Refining company in the Salt Creek fields in Wyoming. This field, one of the richest in the country, adjoins Teapot Dome.

The inquiry would air the interior department's part in the leasing of the field. Walsh said the Midwest company, of which Harry M. Blackmer, of Denver, formerly was chairman of the board, had gained what amounted to almost complete dominance of the field.

Works on the Quiet.

At the same time, Walsh announced he also would investigate the disposition of $230,000 in liberty bonds which were traced at the recent Teapot Dome trial at Cheyenne, Wyo., from the defunct Continental Trading company to ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall.

For weeks, Walsh has been working quietly on the Midwest case and said he expected little trouble in getting the inquiry authorized by the senate.

Co-operative Farming Increases.

A tremendous increase in co-operative marketing in the southern states during the past ten years is reported by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture. It reports that in these states there are now some 913,000 farmers who are members of co-operative organizations as compared with 104,000 in 1915.

Deny Envoy Was Punished.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—State department officials deny the charge made in a letter from F. de P. Davila in Mexico City, that Willis C. Cook, minister to Venezuela, has been mysteriously detained in Washington for the past year, and suggesting that Gomez, the tyrant of Venezuela, caused him to be recalled to the United States because Cook reported some of the atrocities of Gomez' rule. Cook is declared to have been in Caracas for many months past. No denial is made that Gomez is an absolute dictator, a terrorist and torturer—the department professes not to know the facts pro or contra.

ed by the allies. He worries about the Germany of the kaiser, Hindenburg, the Barmats, and the Dawes' plan. But what about the Germany of the working class? The Germany that Berger pities, had enough lethal weapons to murder Liebknecht and Luxemburg and thousands of other workers. It had enough guns to shoot down the workers of Halle only a few weeks ago. Berger has no words to waste on the slaughter of German workers by the ruling class of that country.

IT is well that Berger has finally thrown off his pacifist mask. At best that was the extent of his socialism. When the left wing elements left the socialist party there was very little socialism left. But thousands of workers have mistaken pacifism for real socialism. Berger's self-unmasking is useful in disillusioning them. This is important, because Berger stands for the socialism of the second international more shamelessly than any other socialist leader in the United States. Hillquit and the other traitors are too clever to expose themselves as Berger does—for the present.

AFTER reading the poison spread among the workers of Milwaukee by Victor Berger, the importance of increasing the circulation of The DAILY WORKER impresses itself forcefully on one's mind. What effect will Berger's propaganda have on the mind of the average worker who reads it? Some will be convinced that they must defend Wall Street's country. Doesn't Berger say it's their? Others will become disgusted and cynical and will lose all faith in the working class movement, and become potential fascists.

THE DAILY WORKER is the only antidote to the deadly drug carried in the columns of such papers as the Leader. It is more dangerous than the capitalist press. The workers, at least, are schooled to expect nothing that is to their interest from that quarter. But a socialist paper! And when they see a socialist paper come out for a larger air navy, defense, and so forth, you cannot blame them for having a funny sensation inside their think tanks.

WHEN one turns to The DAILY WORKER, with its virile working class tone, its bitter hatred of capitalism and all its works and pomps, its anti-capitalist-militarism, its defense of Soviet Russia, Red army and all, its constructive program for the organization of the working class, its vision of a socialist society where the worker alone will rule—it seems a scandal that during a subscription drive we find only a few miserable subs come in daily instead of hundreds. Let our answer to the treachery of Berger and the rotten socialist party, as well as to capitalism, be a new enthusiasm to put our Communist paper into the hands of the workers. Get more subs and let The DAILY WORKER defend socialism against the socialists.

Last Year's Strike Injunction Jails a Belleville Worker

BELLEVILLE, Ill., April 16—Ninety days in prison are being served by Wm. T. Christopher, former business agent, Belleville Central Trades and Labor Assembly, for assisting girl strikers in the struggle last summer for a union shop. The charge against Christopher is violation of an injunction issued in behalf of the Charles Meyers & Co. pants shop when the strike was called in July, 1924. Eight girl employes, called out by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, and a former business agent of the building trades council were also adjudged guilty of contempt but were let off with fines ranging up to $100.

The strikers demanded a 44-hour week instead of the 50 hours fixed by the Meyers company and asked 15 to 20 per cent increases over the company wages of $6 to $12 a week. The Amalgamated strike had the backing of the Belleville A. F. of L. central body.

Chinese Just Can't Understand Triumph of Reaction in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Progressive leaders who are seeking to reestablish orderly government in China, and to start that nation on the road to a humane administration of industry, are reported, in letters received in Washington from American sources in China, to be shocked at recent tendencies in the United States.

Sun Yat Sen is dead, but his Kuomingtang party and the Chinese students are united in a campaign to improve the conditions under which women and children are employed in the factories in the big port cities, where foreign influence has penetrated. The fact that child workers in American factories are now being denied protection by the federal constitution is a serious blow to this movement, except with those who point to America as a bad example.

The recent strike in Shanghai is reported to have been aimed to compel a cleanup of these bad factory conditions, which are due to merciless competition with foreign plants.

'ANISE' SPEAKS AT SANITARIUM ON SOVIET RULE

Jewish Workers Aid Children's Homes

DENVER, Colo., April 16.— When Anna Louise Strong was here, she addressed among other meetings, patients and workers at the Jewish Consumptive Relief Sanatarium near Denver, Colo. As this is a charitable institution maintained by Workmen's Circle branches and other Jewish organizations, the patients who are mostly Jewish workers who are trying to recuperate from the ravages of tuberculosis, which the wage system has inflicted upon them in their struggle for a livelihood, the patients are incapacitated from earning a livelihood and have very little or nothing themselves.

In spite of this fact in a personal solicitation by a committee which consisted of O. Fine, M. Kronets, Klein, and Mazor, to the patients and workers collected $113.75, which was sent direct to Anna Louise Strong for the children's homes in Russia.

The money was sent by manager of the sanatarium, Mr. Sorkin.

Attorney General Approves Graft.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Attorney General Sargent announced that he will back the United States shipping board in turning the five government steamships operating in the Pacific over to the Dollar Line. Robert Dollar is the notorious open shopper who was largely responsible for the frame-up of Thomas Mooney. The shipping board has moved for dismissal of the suit filed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia by the Pacific Mail Steamship company, which had put in a lower bid for the ships.

The steamers were built at a cost of thirty million dollars and sold for five million dollars.

Scott Reprieved Until July 17.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 16.—Russell Scott, condemned to die on the scaffold in Chicago tomorrow for the murder of Joseph Maurer, loop drug store clerk, was given a chance for his life today when Governor Len Small ordered a stay of execution until July 17.

Alfonso Greets Rotary Head.

MADRID.—King Alfonso received international President of Rotary Hill before the latter's departure for Barcelona last night.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THIS story is given here for what it is worth. "When Dr. Jarres, nationalist candidate for the German presidency, finished his electoral speech at Munich yesterday, Fraulein Scheck, daughter of the popular party's leader, appeared in Bavarian costume and presented the doctor with a jug containing over a liter and a half of beer. The candidate drank this without taking a breath much to the delight of the onlookers, who laughed loudly and cheered."—Paris dispatch.

LET us hope that the following dispatch dated Washington will soon greet our eye: "When Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States had finished addressing a delegation from the Ancient and Honorable Daughters of the Soft Cider Growers' Association of Vermont, Deborrah [illegible] grandmother of the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Cider[illegible], presented the president with a gallon can of cider, which he succeeded in negotiating without letting a drop trickle on his necktie. The old dames feebly applauded the act, and predicted a bull season on apple juice." This would show the Germans how to mix business with pleasure.

FRANK HODGES has written a book entitled: My Adventures as a Labor Leader. It winds up with: "At heart I am still a miner.". A very polite and worthless review in the London Daily Herald informs us that the book gives a good account of the miners' strike of 1921 and the events leading up to Black Friday tho it does not "quite tell the whole story." Considering English sensibilities, this is a wicked wallop and may result in a libel suit.

HODGES considers Philip Snowden, known to fame as the husband of Ethel Snowden, and also as first labor party chancellor of the exchequer, "the greatest man in our political labor movement." Among the photographs in the book is one of Frank Hodges playing golf with the duke of York. Hodges is a "socialist" and it is possible he wore a red necktie while swinging the clubs with the duke, in order to indicate his political beliefs. It is not surprising that Hodges should consider Snowden the greatest man in the British labor movement. Both dearly love their king, and the capitalists.

JOSEPH CAILLAUX is coming back to power in France. He is offered the finance ministry in the proposed Painleve cabinet. It is quite likely that Caillaux will be premier of France before many moons. Only a few years ago, this man was hounded out of the country, because of alleged commerce with the German government. In fact he narrowly escaped the firing squad. Poincare has no reason to feel happy over Caillaux's "come-back." It is not likely that the British government will relish his return to power either.

FRANCE is between the two horns of a dilemma and no matter which side she turns, the grinning face of the Wall Street ogre confronts her. France has two major enemies in Europe, England and Germany. The United States is waiting in the offing with a money bag, ready to relieve France of her financial worries in return for good and valuable considerations. In other words Wall Street is wiling to become France's wet nurse provided France will cuddle up to a Dawes plan.

BEFORE the war Caillaux favored a rapproachment with Germany. Whether he is still in that frame of mind will be shown in the near future.

THIRTY-ONE PRISONERS OF HUNGARIAN WHITE TERROR ENTER RUSSIA

VIENNA, April 17—Under the influence of the International Red Aid a new exchange of political prisoners has taken place between Hungary and Soviet Russia. Thirty-one political prisoners have been taken over the Hungarian frontier by the representative of Soviet Russia. The transport went over Stettin and by ship to Leningrad. They are prisoners who have been sentenced to long terms of hard labor and who suffered already several years in the dungeons of Hungary.

ITALIAN STOCK GAMBLERS RIOT AT TURIN AND FLORENCE EXCHANGES

ROME, April 17.—Disorderly scenes at the Turin and Florence stock exchanges were reported today, following serious disorders at the Trieste stock exchange yesterday. Public apprehension over falling prices caused by governmental restriction in trading was given as the cause of the disorders.

CHARGE WHEELER HOPED TO MAKE MILLION IN OIL

Mysterious Witness Is to Be Called

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 17.—A. H. Furr, Washington lawyer summoned by the government to testify against Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, on trial here charged with accepting a fee to represent a client in the interior department denied that he is the surprise witness talked of by John Slattery, United States attorney.

Slattery declared before Judge Dietrich's court that a Washington lawyer would take the stand and testify that Wheeler proposed an agreement to the un-named lawyer whereby both could "make millions" out of Montana oil lands obtained thru interior department permits. Wheeler is charged with using his office as senator to aid his oil promoter clients.

Attorney For Oil Man.

The plan by which millions could be made, according to Slattery, was thru an agreement by which the lawyer was to handle oil permits for Gordon Campbell, Montana oil man, before the interior department. After permits had been obtained, Slattery said, Wheeler proposed that he and the lawyer should go halves in returns from the oil lands. Wheeler explained, according to the prosecutor, that being a senator, he could not appear before the department because of prohibitory statute.

Wheeler in Conference.

According to testimony before the Borah committee that investigated the present indictment, Furr attended a conference between Booth, Wheeler, Nyce, and Campbell, in the department. Booth said Nyce was consulted to see whether he could get anybody to back Campbell financially in developing oil holdings in Montana. Nyce, a well-known Washington lawyer, has been summoned by the government.

Wheeler admits the main facts charged against him, but his defense will be that he "was merely acting in

Talk of Ford Fleet, Says It Will Be Run as "Open Shop"

NEW YORK, April 17.—Reports in shipping circles are to the effect that Henry Ford will start his own shipping company to carry his motor products over the seven seas. The report says that Ford would pay his seamen 50 per cent over the present average marine wage. But the Ford ship work would be on an open shop basis. Color to these reports is given by the purchase by Ford at Chester, Pa., of the 50-acre site and property of the Merchants' Shipbuilding corporation. Here the base for Ford's shipping and export work is expected to be located. The Ford company already owns five vessels, two on the Great Lakes, two on the inter-coastal trade and one overseas boat, the East India.

ARMY HEADS PLANTED SPY TO GET RED SOLDIERS AT HAWAIIAN POST

NEW YORK, April 17.—How one government spy operated is shown in a letter received by the American Civil Liberties Union from Privates Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull who received sentences of 40 and 26 years by military court martial at Honolulu for radical political sympathies.

"On February 18 we wrote a letter to the Communist International asking for recognition of the Hawaiian Communist League which was the name we had chosen for our club," said the letter. "This letter was written in the presence of four of us, including a new member who had asked to join us and who later turned out to be a government spy planted to get us.

"On the 19th of February the whole league was placed under confinement for investigation because this spy had informed the authorities of our letter to Russia. The authorities had the letter stopped at the post office until they could obtain permission to withdraw it."

The lack of secrecy of the soldiers in what they argue was a legitimate activity is shown by the fact that they had the letterheads for their Communist League stationery printed in the government printing office. The Liberties Union is fighting the case, contending that Crouch and Trumbull had the right to join the political movement of their choice.

MORGAN TO GET SHOALS CURRENT BEFORE NEXT SESSION OF CONGRESS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17.—The Muscle Shoals power plants will be leased to private interests connected with the electrical trust as soon as developed, the war department announces.

The war department sent a letter to the commission appointed by President Coolidge to make recommendations to congress on the disposal of Muscle Shoals. The war department, following out the intention of Secretary of War Weeks to turn the $150,000,000 property over to the Morgan electric trust, declared, "It would be much better for all the power to be sold to one company."

Congress failed to pass a bill disposing of the hydro-electric current generated at Muscle Schoals, and Coolidge is anxious to turn it over to the electric trust before congress is again called into session to ask embarrassing questions.

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED IN BULGARIA

Heavy Death Toll in Cathedral Blast

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 17.—One hundred and forty persons including six generals, was the death toll compiled today for the bomb explosion which wrecked the Sveti Kral cathedral yesterday during the funeral of the fascist general, Kosta Cheorgieff.

The director of prisons was killed in the streets this afternoon and there were other disorders. Martial law has been proclaimed country-wide and curfew invoked.

The dead in the cathedral bombing includes thirty army officers.

Fearing a revolution the fascist government has declared a state of siege and martial law thruout Bulgaria. Troops have been given orders to shoot on the slightest provocation or suspicion. Anybody caught outside at 7:30 p. m. is liable to be shot at sight.

Premier Zankoff and War Minister Kalkoff were wounded. The cathedral was almost totally ruined by the force of the explosion.

The council of ambassadors recently allowed the Bulgarian government to increase the army by three thousand in addition to the 20,000 allowed by the treaty of Neuilly. The troops of Baron Wrangel are also at the disposal of the Zankoff government.

BELGRADE, Serbia, April 17.—The death list will total 200 when all bodies are taken from the cathedral Sveti Kral, at Sofia, which was bombed yesterday, said a Central News despatch from Sofia today. The despatch listed the aide de camp of King Boris among the killed.

Pickets in New York Shoe Repair Workers' Strike Are Freed

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 17.—A manager of the United Shoe Rebuilding Co. who tried to have Organizer Pascal Cosgrove of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union and Michael Pesky, picket, imprisoned for keeping the strike going in front of his plant at 30th street and Broadway used the wrong tactics. Judge Barrett at Jefferson Market court, discharging the union men, told the boss that if he wanted to stop picketing he would have to go to the supreme court for an injunction. Until then picketing was legal.

Revolt in Honduras.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 17.—Nicaraguan authorities, who are under the influence of American capitalists, are aiding Honduras authorities to put down a revolution there.

CAILLAUX IN NEW CABINET BIG SENSATION

Poincare Opens War on His Old Enemy

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 17.—The inclusion of Joseph Caillaux, as finance minister in the cabinet organized by Paul Painleve is the sensation of the hour in France. Even the notorious Bank of France scandal is temporarily forgotten. This, by the way, is the issuance of several billion paper francs without parliamentary authorization, literally one of the most audacious pieces of swindling in history.

The other outstanding figure in the cabinet is Aristide Briand, seven times premier and former member of the socialist party. While the socialists refused portfolios in the Painleve ministery on the ground that they would not accept office with a renegade socialist, they are nevertheless supporting the new government in the chamber.

Against Capital Levy.

Caillaux is not in sympathy with the capital levy plan of former Premier Herriot and is not at all in agreement with the socialists' formula for the solution of the present financial crisis.

Poincare has opened a vigorous attack on Caillaux but it is not likely that he will succeed in view of the inflated reputation of the latter as a financial wizard. The desperate crisis thru which France is passing just now is grist to Caillaux's political mill and he will not be slow to take advantage of it.

Kaiser Sent Cruiser.

Caillaux leaped into international prominence in 1911 when Germany sent the cruiser Panther to Agadir as a gesture against the Anglo-French entente against the kaiser's government in Morocco. Caillaux who was then president of the council, began secret negotiations with Germany which failed owing to a leak in his communications.

Caillaux aimed at the isolation of England on the continent and a Franco-German entente. Poincare succeeded Caillaux. Britain made it known to the French that another Caillaux ministry would mean a rupture in Anglo-French relations. The British foreign office had at this time definitely decided on a war with Germany and was laying the foundations for the world conflagration that broke out in 1914.

Caillaux's conviction on charges of correspondence with the enemy, his banishment and subsequent rehabilitation are matters of common knowledge. He is likely to play a prominent role in future French politics.

BAKERY BOSSES KNIT RANKS AND LOOK FOR FIGHT

Name Is Changed at New York Meeting

NEW YORK, April 17.—The strong Jewish Bakers' Union, American Federation of Labor of New York and Jewish bakers' locals of other cities are facing a battle with their employers when agreements run out May 1, if the master bakers carry out the threats made at the convention of the National Jewish Bakers' Association, held at the Broadway Central Hotel.

In preparation for possible contests with labor and for the purpose of quantity purchases of flour and other materials the boss bakers reorganized into a more closely knit organization, and changed their name to the Specialty Bakery Owners of America.

They Complain Bitterly.

The bosses at the convention complained piteously at the union's strict discipline: There is no escaping the union's rule that all hiring must be done thru the union, it was shown.

A lesser complaint is that the union signs its contracts with individual employers, not with the association. The union's reply is that such a measure is necessary; otherwise individual bosses would drop out of the association and then plead that they were no longer bound by its agreements.

Thousands Affected.

A strike will result if the bosses try to change the agreements radically and such a strike the Jewish bakery workers would be practically certain to win. Their product is consumed by working people, mostly union people, and it has been found by experience that scab bread does not sell in Jewish districts. Thousands of bakers would be affected by the strike.

POINCARE USING POILU HE KILLED IN WAR TO FIGHT HIS HATED RIVAL

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 17.—Police today ordered extra precautions be taken to prevent clashes tomorrow when war veterans will hold a mass meeting at six o'clock in the evening and march to the grave of the unknown soldier at the Arc de Triumph as a protest against the appointment of Joseph Caillaux to the cabinet.

LANZUTSKY WAS TRIED BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Huge Demonstrations Outside Courthouse

PRZEMYSL, Poland—(By Mail)—March 23—March 20 there began before the Przemysl court the trial of Comrade Lanzutsky, member of the sejm. A few details of the trial have now been made public.

Comrade Lanzutsky was brot into the court under escort.

The public prosecutor moved that the proceedings be held behind closed doors, stating as his reason that the trial has aroused great interest in Poland and abroad. If journalists were present they could make use of the trial and certain elements could create unrest.

In spite of the protest of the defense, the court complied and declared that the proceedings should be held in secret.

The court was cleared. There only remained, besides the official functionaries three friends of Lanzutsky.

Great Demonstration.

A great crowd, numbering some thousands, had assembled before the court building.

The police in Przemysl were reinforced.

Great protest meetings took place. Leaflets were distributed. Apart from this perfect order reigned.

After the reading of the indictment Comrade Lanzutsky spoke for three hours.

The Przymysl court heard behind closed doors the statements of seven witnesses, among them being five agents of the police.

The police agent, Pavlovski, whose report had led the authorities to institute the proceedings, admitted that he was not present at the meeting at which Lanzutsky delivered the incriminating speech, but had received reports from other police spies.

Terror Prompted Statements.

Another witness named Chanietchi, withdrew the statements he had made at the preliminary examination, as he had only made these statements under the pressure of terror.

The public prosecutor and the police agents assert that Lanzutsky has a splendidly furnished house. The defense demanded that the house be inspected. The court, the jury and the represenetatives of the accused inspected the house and found that Lanzutsky along with his wife, child and his mother-in-law, occupies an extremely modest dwelling, the furnishings of which he purchased eighteen years ago for one hundred Austrian crowns.

The public prosecutor sought to impress the jury by declaring that the Communists seek to abolish private property and religion, which "would convert mankind into beasts."

POLISH WORKERS CHEER FILMS OF PROTEST AT LANZUTSKY SENTENCE

A large audience filled the Wicker Park Theater, Chicago, during the continuous show from 6 to 11 p. m., and every time the movies of the recent picketing demonstration in front of the Chicago Polish Consulate was shown, especially those banners reading "Long Live the Communist International, and the Communist Party of Poland," there was a roar of applause.

The crowd was composed almost entirely of sympathetic non-party Russian and Polish elements, over eighty-five per cent of the tickets being sold at the box office.

The program consisted of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," "Russia in Overalls," and the "Daily Worker Film Extra No. 6" giving views of the Lanzutsky protest demonstration. The feature had been shown to 5,000 people in Chicago only two months ago so the success of this repeated performance is a remarkable tribute to the interest of the films.

FARRINGTON AND MINE OWNERS CONSPIRE TO FORCE WAGE CUT ON MINERS OF DISTRICT 12

Behind the barrage of deliberately manufactured unemployment and its consequent "starvation cure" for breaking down the resistance of the union miners, the coal mine owners and their agent in the president's office of District 12, United Mine Workers of America, by name Frank Farrington, are preparing an attack on the present wage scale.

A campaign for wage cuts, put out as a means of relieving unemployment is just beginning. This can be seen by the fact that Faker Farrington arrived in Chicago last Friday, April 10, and shortly after, on April 15, the Chicago Journal of Commerce, mouthpiece of the local coal operators, published, under the name of one George Brolin, an article which was clearly dictated if not written by Farrington, attacking Freeman Thompson and John Watt of Sub-District No. 4, and openly hinting that their illegal removal from office by Farrington, opens the way for wage cuts, with which Farrington is in sympathy.

Operators "Defend" Union Against Progressives.

The spectacle of the Chicago Journal of Commerce expressing deep solicitude for the miners' union and defending it against the alleged purpose of Thompson and Watt to "organize a dual union"—as claimed in the article cited, is enough to make any honest coal miner astonished.

Such a phenomenon is accountable only by the fact that the operators depend upon the Farrington machine, freed by his illegal removals and expulsions of the progressive miners from influence in the union, to give them what they desire—wage cuts. It is quite apparent in the article that the operators understand Mr. Farrington and that Mr. Farrington understands the operators in this matter, and that they both see eye to eye in favoring a "readjustment downward" of the wage scale.

The Blessed Three-Year Agreement.

The unlimited "blessing" of the Jacksonville three-year agreement is commencing to become a thing of questionable value, to put it mildly, and the progressive miners who fought against it have good reason to tell the disillusioned miners "We told you so."

One or two startling things in the article of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, should be burned into the minds of the rank and file of District 12. It discloses, does [illegible] Farrington-inspired article, that Farrington's machine in the district board, has in mind a special convention of District 12 to be controlled by the machine after the union has been "purged" of the "disgruntled element"—to force thru an agreement to accept a wage cut.

A District "Annual" Convention May Twelfth.

The article states that "the annual district convention is to be held at Peoria, May 12." This news of an "annual convention" will come as a surprise to the miners of District 12, but

POLICE BREAK UP PROTEST AGAINST POLISH MURDERS

Cleveland Workers Very Resentful

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, April 16.—(By Mail)—Police acting under instructions from Director of Public Safety Berry broke up a meeting held here Tuesday night to protest against the white terror in Poland, this action being taken to prevent the taking up of a collection.

Thousands of leaflets were distributed advertizing this meeting, and a similar one the night before, calling the attention of the workers to the atrocities in Poland, and the necessity of the American workers rallying to the support of their Polish comrades. Evidently the meetings got under the skin of the reactionary element for Berry stated that a responsible citizen had protested against the meeting. There being no reason for stopping them Berry took the liberty to rule that the taking of a collection at the meeting was against the public welfare, and the squad of police at the Monday meeting ordered the collection to be omitted, which was done.

GREEN FIGHTS REVOLUTIONARY WORKINGMEN

Says Also Fights Employers; But Doesn't

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 17.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor is opposed to revolutionary workers, according to a statement made here today while Green was attending the annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Altho Green was among those who refused the request of the Amalgamated to the last convention of the A. F. of L. at El Paso, asking for other crafts to yield jurisdiction over all steel mills to the Amalgamated, he now patters about "complete unionization" of the industry.

Half a Truth—Half a Lie.

In reference to the drive on the "reds" Green said:

"We are fighting revolutionary workers and hostile employers." This is perfectly clear to be true, so far as the fight on the revolutionary workers is concerned. [illegible] Paul [illegible] Assembly in [illegible] ing Jepsen and other reactionaries in Seattle and stands behind Lewis and Farrington in all expulsions of progressive and left wing revolutionary workers.

But that the Green machine is "fighting hostile employers," is indeed news. Green has followed in slavish fashion the footsteps of Gompers. He has preached class collaboration and opposed class struggle. He has sat with the biggest capitalists in the country at the banquet tables of the National Civic Federation, comprising the most hostile of employers, such as Judge Gary and John D. Rockefeller, and has agreed with them that the "interest of labor and capital is identical."

Has Not Fought or Helped Fight Employers.

While Green has given lip service to the principle of no reduction in wages, he has allowed the textile workers of New England to be cut down below the starvation line and given no more than a few sweet words of support to their sporadic strikes, altho the A. F. of L. can summon millions of dollars if it would do so, in aid of such a cause.

This record, even for Green's short term of office, is said by Pittsburgh workers to indicate that his advocacy of a "permanent cure" for the coal industry instead of "temporary remedies," only means that whatever Green says about it, when the coal operators cut wages he will finally be found willing to advise the miners to accept it.

German Communist Author Arrested for Soviet Play

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, April 17.—The Communist author, Ratchle, has been arrested in Stuttgart because he wrote a play that was performed by workingmen. The charge made against the Communist writer is that the "play sets forth in seven scenes the course of a revolt which results favorably to the revolutionaries and ends with the creation of a German Soviet Republic."

The Association of German Authors has protested the arrest, declaring the presumption that a revolutionary play is legitimate if the revolution described in it fails, but not otherwise, is ridiculous.

ILLINOIS MINERS CALL MEETING TO FIGHT UNEMPLOYMENT AND EXPOSE FARRINGTON TRICKERY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., April 17.—The coal miners of southern Illinois are seething with indignation at the tyrannical behavior of Frank Farrington, whom they allege not only has stolen the election by crooked and corrupt means, but has proceeded to remove illegally the officers of Sub-District 4, who were elected by the rank and file in spite of the Farrington machine, in order to continue his deals with the operators unhindered.

The present revolt of the miners against the Farrington machine began with the attempt to oust Freeman Thompson, president, and John Watt, secretary of Sub-District 4, known thruout the nation as honest, fearless and progressive.

Mass meetings have been or are being held in many mining towns, particularly in Sub/District No. 4, while in Christopher, Illinois, the miners—feeling that the illegal removals are but an approach to further betrayals into unemployment, wage cuts and the open shop, have passed the resolution given below thru the last meeting of Local 2376. The resolution reads as follows:

The Resolution of Local 2376.

"Whereas, unemployment is still on the increase in the coal mining industry, and the miners and their families are in desperate circumstances, and the labor fakers at the head of our organization are not doing anything to relieve the situation, and

"Whereas, the district and subdistrict elections have been the greatest fake and steal in the history of our union, resulting in the placing of every cog of the machine in power by illegal means, and where unable to steal enuf votes to place their tools in office they have deliberately ruled out of office their opponents in direct violation of their own rulings on the constitution,

"Whereas, continuous attempts to have this stituation remedied from the district office have resulted in failure, therefore be it

"Resolved, that this Local Union 2376, U. M. W. of A. at Christopher, Illinois, do hereby issue a call for a mass meeting of all the miners, or their representatives in District 12, the same to be held in the old Opera House in Christopher, Ill., Sunday, April 26, commencing at 10 a. m. and continuing all day, for the purpose of taking up the unemployment question and arranging for action in accordance therewith, and further to expose the great danger to our membership and union by the officers' flagrant violations of our constitution, and be it further

"Resolved, that an invitation to address this mass meeting be given to J. L. Lewis, Frank Farrington, Alex Howat, Duncan McDonald, John Hindmarsh, Freeman Thompson, John Watt and Frank Johnson; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the DAILY WORKER and copies be distributed thruout the district.

"Committee on Resolution, Alex Reid, Arly Staples. Signed: Ed. Johnson, recording secretary; Leon Gremling, president."

Conspire to Force Wage Cut

its purpose should also be clear from what it is said will take place there. The article states as follows:

"There is a definite hope of a modification of the wage scale before the summer is over. Union leaders are believed ready to present the issue to the membership. It is expected to come at the annual district convention to be held at Peoria, May 12."

Further disclosures of what the Farrington machine is up to is revealed—for the first time by this operators' journal, as follows: "'The district convention date was postponed by the district executive board February 27. It had been planned to hold the meet March 4, but circumstances necessitated the postponement,' Frank Farrington, president said."

District 12 miners will here read for the first time of this decision of their executive board, but they will know exactly what "circumstances necessitated the postponement," as well as understanding, now that the machine, or so it thinks, gotten rid of those "circumstances" by the illegal removal of Thompson and Watt, how it happens that Farrington wants a district convention.

In fact, Farrington is quoted directly as saying that some mythical referendum on the adoption of the interstate agreement had to be awaited to determine action on the wage scale in the district. The Journal of Commerce says:

Now Farrington Can "Proceed."

"'This is necessary in order to enable us to know how to proceed with district wage scale matters,' President Farrington continued."

The miners of District 12 will be informed thus that Frank Farrington is due to bring up the wage scale in the next convention, whenever he, Farrington, thinks he can call one that he can control—and that he intends to force the miners to take a wage cut.

The Journal of Commerce continues: "He (Farrington) can be expected to carry out his plans despite the irritation from the stormy petrels and whatever following they develop, operators here said."

The "Obstacle" to Wage Cuts.

What these plans of Farrington are is told as follows, in a paragraph attacking Freeman Thompson and John Watt:

"These two cling as an obstacle in the harmonious ways of the organization and threaten to interfere and disrupt plans for a consideration of the wage problem in the near future so that thousands of idle miners can be given employment."

The starvation cure having been figured to have done its work by breaking the will of the miners' rank and file, all that was necessary was to remove the "obstacle" of the progressive left wing which advocated a six-hour day and five-day week with increased and not decreased wages—to open the way for wage cut revision of the three-year agreement. The crocodile tears of the operators over the poor unemployed miners can be discounted by the fact that they have deliberately administered this unemployment to the miners by willful closure of their mines.

Jackey Walker, Chancellor of the Laundry Exchequor.

Another but more ridiculous trick of Farrington is his effort to make everybody believe that the John A. (Jackey) Walker whom he illegally appointed to take the place of Freeman Thompson as president of Sub-District 4, is the same person as John H. Walker, the more dignified labor faker who once was president of the State Federation of Labor.

Miners who are acquainted with Jackey Walker label him as a "helpless moron" who was never the president of anything but who has been "treasurer" for some time of the "per capita tax" collected by his wife at the wash tub. Needless to add that the comparison of this poor fish with the slimy but well-known faker, John H. Walker, leaves him still among the lower forms of life, in the estimation of all honest workers.

Progressives to Fight Wage Cut.

But that these elements are combined with the operators upon a campaign to cut wages of the miners of District 12 is a fact no longer in doubt. The progressives are expected to rally the rank and file against this unholy alliance's attack upon the food and clothing of themselves and their wives and children.

Find a Way to Mine Coal Without Profit to the Private Boss

SYDNEY, Australia—The first coal mine owned and operated by the state of New South Wales will eventually become the largest coal mine in the state. About 600 men are employed and the daily output is 1,100 tons. The coal is delivered to the state-owned railways at the cost of production, $2.50 per ton. The coal barons say they cannot produce coal at less than $5.25 per ton.

FIFTY POLICE WITH GAS BOMBS EVICT NEGRO FOR LANDLORD

Gas bombs were used by the courageous Chicago police, when over fifty policemen tried to arrest Elmer Woodson, Negro worker, living at 3720 Elmwood Ave. The police were aiding the worker's landlord, William Herd, in evicting the Negro worker who had quarrelled with the landlord.

Captain John Stege, of the detective bureau was in command of the half dozen police squads who used the tear gas bombs against the Negro worker. He was locked up, after being rouhly handled.

HOME OF KLUXER BURNED AFTER VICTIM'S DEATH

Stephenson Pleads Not Guilty

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 17.—A few hours after the funeral of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, who died of self administered poison following the alleged attack on her of D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the ku klux klan, Stephenson's home was damaged by a fire of unknown origin.

Stephenson had not inhabited the house for several months, but the neighbor told of seeing lights flash on and off last night several hours before the explosion which preceded the fire.

Stephenson, accompanied as usual by Eph Inman, his attorney, inspected his damaged house. He said he was under such "high nervous tension that I do not care to make a statement."

The house was virtually empty of furnishings.

A spacious garage including living quarters adjoins the residence. Detectives reported finding the garage well equipped and its furnishings arranged orderly, but with indications that some one had occupied the bed only recently.

It was in this garage, according to one of the five indictments hanging over the former klan leader, that Miss Oberholtzer was held prisoner for a short time a month ago upon her return from Hammond, Ind., after the alleged attack. Prior to this the girl drank the poison which caused her death.

Besides being a former power in the klan, Stephenson, until the Oberholtzer affair, was admittedly one of the strongest politicians in Indiana. He has pleaded not guilty to all charges growing out of the alleged attack on Miss Oberholtzer.

Six Red Hawaiian Soldiers May Not Be Given Sentences

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17.—In an attempt to save the face of the military authorities at Schofield barracks who sentenced Paul Crouch to 40 years and Walter Trumbull to 26 years at hard labor for being Communists, the war department is spreading the rumor that the soldiers "enlisted for the purpose of fomenting revolt." The red soldiers were also "dishonorably" discharged from the army.

In the face of widespread condemnation of the severe sentences thruout the country, the war department, thru Maj. Gen. Lewis, commanding officer at Hawaii, has been forced to announce that the sentences are excessive and will be cut down.

It is now hinted by the war department here that the six soldiers who have not yet come before the court martial "judging" their Communist principles, will be "dishonorably discharged" and sent home without sentence.

Similar permission has been obtained, or is being sought, in other states where the lines are operated.

Bulgar Fascist Expects To Go Out Like Match

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, April 17.—The Zankov government has made an extraordinary appropriation for propaganda in foreign countries in view of the latest disaster which befell the fascist dictatorship. The ease with which the government opposition was able to demonstrate its virility despite the iron fist of the Zankov regime, speaks badly for the stability of the present government.

While it is obvious that the plot was the work of the Macedonian organization, as revealed in early dispatches the paid propagandists of the Bulgarian dictatorship have now attributed it to the Communists under instructions from Moscow. The manner in which the tale is told, does not differ materially from the well known style of the American stoolpigeon, William J. Burns, and his school of perverts.

One of the most artistic liars in Sofia, on the Zankov payroll is Walter Collins, whose dispatches are published in the Chicago Daily News and other American publications.

SMALL AIDS CAR MAGNATES AFTER DEVER'S FIASCO

Senate Bill Gives Perpetual Franchise

Mayor Dever, who failed in the recent traction ordinance election to deliver Chicago's traction lines into the hands of the bankers, professed anger today that the bankers have gone to his political opponent, Governor Small, for aid.

The traction franchise now held by the bankers controlling the lines expires in 1927, and they are making frantic efforts to secure a perpetual franchise before that time.

Governor Small, the republican, has come gallantly to the aid of the traction stockholders following the failure of Mayor Dever, democrat. Small's senator, Barr, who has succeeded in putting thru the Small state police bill, has introduced a bill into the senate which would give the state utility commission absolute control over issuing franchises.

Under the bill "terminable franchises" may be granted the bankers, which do not terminate at all. The bill allows the traction magnates to go to the utility commission at any time, and get a franchise which permits the companies to locate on any street or route sanctioned by the commission, without the consent of the city counsel.

Daylight Saving Loses.

NEW ORLEANS, April 17.— Daylight saving was defeated in New Orleans, partly thru the opposition of organized labor which feared longer hours of work.

Problem of the Jobless Tantalizes Capitalist Nations the World Over

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, another squeal comes out of strangling capitalist Austria. Chancellor Ramek, who was to institute a regime of "reconstruction" under the guidance of the league of nations, but who has only succeeded in "reconstructing the budget," sends a rush appeal to Geneva, begging "the league" for a conference of experts to investigate Austrian financial, industrial and commercial conditions.

The chancellor's immediate fear is an army of 200,000 unemployed. He wants to know what to do with them. The bankrupt treasury cannot feed them. There is no work. Austria is ringed about by hostile states that have sky-high tariffs. In order to keep her factories going Austria must export. But her exports cannot leap the enemy tariff walls. That is the situation that the Austrian chancellor seeks to cure thru another "investigation."

• • • •

With the growing jobless army demanding work or bread, the Austrian "socialists" come forward with their solution—union of Austria with Germany. Union with the Germany that the "socialists" placed under the Morgan-Dawes plan. Union with the Germany that the German "socialists" have enslaved to Wall Street.

With these dark clouds floating about, the agents of "the league" have ceased to paint beautiful pictures about their Austrian accomplishments. Instead the eyes of American investors are turned to Hungary, of the fascist Horthy, of which Jeremiah Smith, American commissioner for "the league" says, "It is in excellent shape." Hungary will no doubt need another $50,000,000 loan shortly, to once more "balance her budget."

• • • •

"Socialists" hail President Calles, of Maxico, as theirs. Mexico is rich in resources. It is an economic unit, self-sufficient, like the United States. But in Mexico the "socialist" wing of Mexican capitalism, that is bitterly anti-Communist, also faces an unemployment crisis. In so-called "socialist" Mexico, an official of the Association of Unemployed makes this statement:

> "Unemployment is the greatest problem of Mexico at the present moment. We exist by thousands in Mexico City alone. Starving is at our doors. Something must be done for Mexico's unemployed soon."

The Mexican jobless demand land. But the "socialist" regime of Calles is too busy raising money to pay interest on loans to Wall Street, to set aside funds to help the unemployed start farming. The struggle of the workless is just as bitter in Mexico City as in Vienna.

• • • •

From Australia there comes an outcry against Italian immigration. Italy cannot allow her jobless crisis to grow at home. Mussolini rule is weak enough as it is. So Italy must deport her workers to other lands, cheap labor for other great profiteers. This may slightly ease the unemployment situation in Italy temporarily, but it helps accentuate it in Australia.

The reports for March, from Paris, show that both imports and exports fell during the month. The ability of French capitalism, both to buy and sell, is weakening. It can't keep its industries going, because its markets fail, and jobless workers do not make big purchasers of the imported products of other nations.

• • • •

All this is gleaned from the news development of one day. It is bad news for the upholders of capitalism; for no social system can endure that is not able, in some fashion, to feed, house and clothe its workers. The ability of capitalism to do this is everywhere reported on the downgrade. What was recently said of Great Britain, applies in all nations that capitalism rules, "there is no symptom of improvement."

Only in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, where the last remnants of capitalism are being crushed under the heels of a great nation of workers and peasants marching toward Communism, is the unemployment problem being successfully met. The Soviet Union is taking care of its people. Only the World Soviet Republic can solve the problems of the world's working class and build for the Communist society. The Workers (Communist) Party calls to the workers of the United States that it leads that way.

New Rates on Steel.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Holding that present freight rates on manufactured iron and steel in carloads from points in the Pittsburgh district to St. Louis and destinations in Illinois and Indiana were unreasonable and unduly prejudicial the interstate commerce commission today prescribed a new set of rates. These new rates range from six cents per 100 pounds on distances of five miles and under to 42 cents on distances of 640 miles and over.

Blimp is Safe Anyway.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 17.— The army's big blimp, the TC-3, was tucked away in its hanger at Scott Field today, its damage slight after its four hour clash with the elements late yesterday. The big air cruiser was helpless when the rudder controls became tangled and failed to respond.

Protest Packers' Merger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17.—The farmers' national council has filed a petition with Attorney General Sargent asking him to institute injunction proceedings to restrain the Armour-Morris packing merger.

Traffic Accidents Come High.

WASHINGTON, April 17.— Traffic accidents last year cost the United States more than $1,000,000,000.

REDS PROMINENT IN NEW NEGRO THEATER, FORUM

Lovett Fort Whiteman, the Communist Negro leader, will speak at the open forum of the Shadows Art Theater, 3427 Indiana Ave., tomorrow, Sunday evening on the subject of "Racial Problems in Russia." Comrade Whiteman recently returned from an eight months' stay in Soviet Russia during which he visited many sections of the Soviet Union.

The Shadows Art Theater is a Negro cultural center under the direction of F. L. Holmes, a radical Negro artist who has been active for many years in the little theater movement. The theater is for the production of plays intended to develop Negro consciousness along the lines of the Negro's true relation to society. The special gifts of the African race will be developed.

An open forum on political subjects is conducted every Sunday evening, and Communist speakers are expected to be heard from often. On Wednesday evenings a purely literary forum is held. Lydia Gibson will talk on proletarian art at an early date.

U. S. at Mussolini's Side

ROME.—Premier Mussolini today extended a greeting to the international parliamentary trade conference in the capitol palace. The conference was opened by King Victor Emmanuel, with thirty-five parliaments represented. The United States was represented by commercial attache Milian.

INTERVENTION PLOT RUMORED AGAINST CHINA

Imperialists Secretly Plan Intervention

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, April 17.—A secret movement is on foot among the imperialist powers for armed intervention in China in order to crush the rising tide of national liberation from driving out the imperialists from their zones of influence and exploitation. The imperialists are first trying to agree among themselves as to the division of the prospective plunder. This requires secret diplomacy, but it is known that England and America are deeply involved in the plan.

A Dawes Plan For China.

From Pekin it is rumored that an American advisor to the Chinese government is trying to put over a "Dawes plan" for China, of course to "put China on its feet." Always the benevolent purpose.

The Japanese foreign office in a statement made thru an entirely unofficial channel, covertly throws a little light on this conspiracy of imperialist intervention, since Japan feels that its own imperialist interests will suffer and she is inclined to let the cat out of the bag rather than joining the silent conspirators. The statement says:

Noiseless, Strong Move for Invasion

"Reports show that there is a movement, noiseless but strong, by the powers most interested in China. It is idle to suppose this movement can long remain mute in face of the aggravating condition of China, which foreign intervention seems to foster rather than abate.

"As far as Japan is concerned, it continues to indorse Mr. Shidehara's hands-off policy, but the question remains for serious reflection whether China can be trusted to live up to our expectation."

Example of Unofficial Diplomacy

The above is a master-piece of diplomatic statement, since it clears Japan of any complicity with the bad interventionists which may take away Japan's own recently won standing in China, while it leaves a loop-hole to join in intervention if the other selfish imperialists threaten to crowd out Japan. All neatly but unofficially done.

The fly in the ointment is that the people of China, befriended by the powerful ally of Soviet Russia, may have something to say about who shall come in or stay in, China.

NEW OIL PROBE OF STANDARD TO OUTDO TEAPOT

Walsh Says He Will Investigate in Fall

GREAT FALLS, Montana, April 17.—The investigation contemplated by Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, of the monopoly secured by the Midwest Refining company thru the friendliness of the interior department directly involves the Standard Oil company. The Standard Oil company has had complete control of the Midwest Refining company since 1921.

Senator Walsh, here defending Senator Burton K. Wheeler, on charges of using his office for the benefit of his oil company clients, declared that the Midwest Refining company was able to establish an absolute dominance of the great Salt Creek oil fields.

The inquiry, which Walsh announces he will press at the opening of the coming senate, thru the committee on public lands, will cover all the Salt Creek activities of the Standard Oil corporation. The facts attending the department of the interior's part in the leasing and contractual agreements will be probed.

The inquiry is expected to overshadow the Teapot Dome oil scandal. The Salt Creek fields of the Standard Oil subsidiary are far more valuable than the Teapot Dome lands leased to Sinclair in return for a bribe.

Warn Theatrical managers.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The Actors' Equity Association warns theatrical managers that the union's deputies must receive more courtesy in future. Notice is served that certain managers who have been subjecting the union's representatives to petty annoyances will be disciplined by the organization if trouble continues.

Million Decrease in Hogs.

A decrease of 1,000,000 in the number of hogs passing thru the 11 principal markets in March of this year as compared with the same month a year ago, is reported in the monthly survey of the market issued by the Sears-Roebuck agricultural foundation here today.

Italian Army Restive.

ROME, Italy, April 17.— Premier Mussolini plans "reorganization" of the army, due to the increase of sentiment against the fascisti in the ranks of the regular troops.

NAIL FACTORY IS 'NUT HOUSE' FOR WORKERS

Boys Deafened by Din of Nail Machines

MONESSEN, Pa. April 17.—In a section of one of the Pittsburgh steel mills in Monessen, Pa., called the "nut-house," under terrific noise and at breakneck speed, nails are manufactured mostly by young boys.

Up to a short time ago we were working on hourly basis getting 42 cents an hour now piece work has been introduced. It was bad enough working [illegible] work, now one man is required to do the work formerly done by four or five and still the wages are only [illegible] or 70 cents more a day. The [illegible]any machine operator can make [illegible].00 a day.

"[illegible] House"—Correctly Called

The department is nicknamed the "[illegible]se," there is a good deal of [illegible] the name because that is just [illegible] is. With 300 machines all run[illegible] the same time in one room is [illegible] to drive anyone crazy. Every [illegible]hat the hammer on one of these [illegible]ines hits, a nail drop out. On [illegible] average each hammer hits 300 [illegible]s a minute depending on the size [illegible] the nails, and owing to this terrible [illegible]se the workers have to pack their [illegible]rs with cotton. There is no chance [illegible] talk to any of your neighbors of the [illegible]lper, they wouldn't hear you even if you'd try. Everyone has to make himself understood by the motion of his hands and arms.

Constant splashing of oil from the machines not only covers the machines creating a heavy grease but it also covers the workers and soaks thru overalls and underwear clear to the skin, coating the body with oil. And in this condition the young workers go home, no provision is made to wash up and change clothing.

Each operator runs six and seven machines for 10 hours on day turn and 13 hours on night turn. Who said steel workers have an eight-hour day?

Special Arrangements for Parties on Short Notice

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

There seems to be no salvation for France anyhow. The British and United States capitalists are sitting on the top of the world just now. Even the British are finding Wall Street an uncomfortable partner. France may decide to come to terms with Germany or accept a Dawes plan from the United States. It is coming to a pretty pass when even mighty powers like France must become the wards of still greater powers.

IT looks as if the House of Morgan is about to bolster up the waning fortunes of the Italian fascist dictatorship, established by the sword and supported by force, violence and assassination, by the few against the many. One of the most frequently used objections against the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States, is the fact that a dictatorship of the workers exists in Russia. This democracy is opposed to dictatorship! This is bunk, as the attitude of Wall Street, alias Washington shows.

THOMAS W. LAMONT of the house of Morgan, was in Rome recently. He talked with Mussolini and a few other fascist brigands. The Hearst papers are praising Mussolini. Otto H. Kahn, the banker and art lover, declares that Mussolini is the strong man of Europe. This banker also extols the Italian people for their morale. It makes a difference which dictatorship.

Government Would Shield Rich Office Holders in Tax Case

WASHINGTON, April 17. — The right of newspapers to publish individual income tax payments was argued today before the supreme court of the United States. The Kansas City Journal-Post and the Baltimore Daily Post, two of the many newspapers publishing such returns under the publicity feature of the 1924 revenue law, were indicted by the government for a test case.

The lower federal courts held publications were legal.

The rich men of the country, especially those holding high government positions, were embarrassed by the publication of the amount of their fortunes.

Solicitor General Beck argued for the government.

Senator Reed of Missouri, and former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, representing the newspapers, argued that the law gave the right of publication in the newspapers when it provided that the returns should be opened to public inspection. They insisted the attempt to punish the newspapers for publishing these returns was an abridgement of the freedom of the press, which was prohibited by the federal constitution.

Boston Teachers' Raise Pends.

BOSTON, Mass., April 17.— The house, by a vote of 93 to 46, passed a bill raising Boston teachers' wages 10 per cent. The bill faces a fight in the senate.

TEACHERS' WAGE LOSES IN RACE WITH LIVING COST

Urge N. Y. Governor to Sign Salary Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17.—There was a terrific crush when the 1,000 teachers, parents and friends of the teachers piled into the executive chamber to urge Governor Smith to sign the Ricca teachers' salary bill.

Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners, who has been attacking the teachers' bill in New York City and who expressed such confidence that the governor would not sign the bill after he talked to him, was on hand and brought with him one or two teachers, whom he could use.

In his vitriolic speech he denounced the teachers as a pack of thieves and among other things said the bill had been "kissed" thru the legislature by the teachers. This did not come as a surprise to anyone of the teachers there for Browne has used no scruples in his campaign to kill the bill. One of the New York papers quote him declaring that the teachers are only half educated and lie like pickpockets.

Children Need Good Teachers

Attorney Samuel Untermyer, who appeared for the teachers was the first speaker in favor of the bill. He said it was the duty of the city "to get the right kind of teachers." And in saying this, he added: "I am not concerned about the teachers but chiefly about the children of our public schools."

Supreme Court Justice T. C. T. Crain also spoke for the teachers. He said he had no misgivings about the financial ability of the city to pay the teachers what they ask. He stressed the mental attitude of the teacher saying it was as important as the mental capacity. "Children," he said, "are entitled to have in the classroom not merely one equipped from the scholastic standpoint to impart that which they are required to learn but an undisappointed, undiscouraged teacher with a cheerful outlook upon life. If our children are to have all that should come to them from our public schools it is short-sighted to continue to underpay the teacher."

Mr. Lasher proved by statistics how the teachers' salaries had not kept pace with the decrease in the purchasing power of the dollar. A number of teachers spoke urging the governor to sign the bill. The Women's City Club filed a memorandum in favor of the bill with the governor.

It is claimed that Governor Smith will put the bill up to Mayor Hylan under the home rule law.

Bill Cuts Kid's Hours.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17.—Forty-four hours a week shall be the legal limit for children in factories of New York state hereafter, as the result of the signing by Governor Smith of the Moore bill. The Truman bill, starting compensation payments 14 days instead of 21 days after accidents, was also signed.

MORGAN BANKER AND CAL'S FRIEND PRAISE FASCISTI AT DINNER

ROME, Italy, April 17.—Thomas W. Lamont of the firm of J. P. Morgan and company, and Frank Stearns of Boston, millionaire friend of President Coolidge, were honor guests at a banquet here given by the Italian-American chamber of commerce.

The chamber is controlled by the fascisti, and many senators, deputies, bankers, cabinet members, and aides of Mussolini were present to greet the Morgan banker and Coolidge's friend.

Lamont praised the fascisti government.

McCARTHY SPEAKS IN CLEVELAND NEXT SUNDAY

Irish Rebels Active in Famine Relief Work

CLEVELAND, April 17—The James Connolly branch of International Workers' Aid, Cleveland, Ohio, have arranged for a mass meeting to be held Sunday, April 19, at 2 p. m. at Building Laborers' Hall, 1028 Walnut Ave. for the purpose of responding to the international call of aiding the Irish workers and peasants' famine relief.

Comrade John P. McCarthy, of County Kerry, Ireland, recently arrived and is traveling in this country in behalf of the Irish workers' and peasants' famine relief. He will address the above meeting and give in true detail the conditions in Ireland from the workers' view.

All Irish workers and their friends in Cleveland are urged to attend this meeting inasmuch as we seldom get a speaker from Ireland with international viewpoints.

The Connolly Branch held a successful dance for Irish famine relief April 4. The hall was donated by the McSwiney Club and Uncle Sam Council of the A. A. R. I. R. also the Irish musicians, Messrs Dever, O'Donnell and Kilbane donated their services. The hall for the McCarthy meeting is donated by Local 66, Building Laborers' Union.

To all Irish militants in Cleveland: A general committee meeting will be held under the auspices of James Connolly Branch, I. W. A. at 4309 Lorain Ave., Saturday, April 18, at 7 p. m. There is work to be done in regard to the McCarthy meeting so be on hand.

Connolly branch committee, John Mulgrew, Patrick Loftus, Patrick Mangan and Frank Mulgrew.

No Money for Air Mail.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 17.—Insufficient funds at the disposal of the post office department for expenditure in developing the air mail will prohibit the establishment of a Chicago-New Orleans route for several years, Postmaster General Harry S. New stated in a letter made public here today by W. H. Howard, of the Indianapolis board of trade.

The Workers Party in Action

CHICAGO C. C. C. PLANS COMMUNIST BOOK STORE; TRADE UNION WORK DISCUSSED; NUCLEI BRANCH FORMED

At the city central committee meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago, Wednesday, April 15, a move was invited to start a party book store in Chicago.

The city central committee, together with Comrades Garver, Kuperman, Shechter, Simonson, Berglund, Danta and Chilofsky were selected to work out plans for carrying on the drive for the party book store.

This committee will meet next Wednesday, April 22, at 19 South Lincoln St.

Such a book store would serve as a rallying center for party members as well as a medium for increasing manifold the sale and distribution of Communist literature.

Work Among Negroes.

A local committee was appointed to push the work among the Negro workers and especially toward aiding in making the American Negro Labor Congress to be held this summer in Chicago a success.

Letters have already gone to all party units asking for connections, information as to discrimination against Negroes in unions, etc. Negro comrades will visit party units to acquaint them more intimately with the problems and means of bringing the Negro masses into the Communist movement.

In the trade unions the left wing proceeds with the steady organization of its forces. In the carpenters, the district elections take place shortly and the left wing is batting the Jensen machine and conducting a campaign against agreements of Landis award type, which the class collaborationist officials are accepting. The fight against expulsions is putting a more militant spirit into the rank and file of the carpenters.

In the machinists where elections are now going on, the left wing committee is visiting local unions in support of the Anderson slate against the reactionary Johnston machine, on the basis of agitation against the B. & O. plan, for amalgamation, against expulsions, for independent political action. So far votes cast in 11 machinist locals in Chicago give Anderson 817 votes to Johnson's 293. The left wing in this election will be able to draw many into support of the left wing or T. U. E. L. program.

In the needle trades, local union agitation on the part of the rank and file is greater than ever before. The Levin-Hillman policy of czarism, the rule of the slugger and knife and suppression of union rights, does not increase the popularity of the reactionary officialdom. The rank and file agitation caused by oppression and suppression will result in crystalization of the T. U. E. L. forces. The policy of expulsions and submission to bosses' agreements is being strenuously fought.

The feeders in the printing trades are threatened with wage cuts and as usual Berry is ready to arbitrate, which means to give in to the bosses. Local No. 3 Pressmen held their elections. The Berry supporters elected a president and organizer, altho the anti-Berryites still control the local executive.

The Barbers' Progressive Group is showing decidedly increased life and is carrying on a campaign on the coming negotiations in the barbers. On April 26 at Ashland Auditorium, the barbers will hold a mass meeting where a report on the wage negotiations with the bosses will be given by the union officials.

The T. U. E. L. executive meets Wednesday, April 22 at 19 S. Lincoln St. On the following Wednesday, April 29, is the regular general T. U. E. L. meeting.

Many May Day Meetings to Be Held.

Street meetings will be on in full force by May 1 on which day it is also proposed to hold noon day factory meetings as well as the big May Day celebration on Friday, May 1 at Temple Hall, Van Buren and Marshfield Ave. May Day leaflets will be widely distributed.

Push the DAILY WORKER Drive.

Branches are to participate in the special DAILY WORKER drive from May 3 to May 10. Each branch order a number of DAILY WORKERS for distribution each day.

Every branch should draft special comrades for this drive.

Pay envelopes are being distributed to gather funds for Southern Illinois miners' relief and for Irish relief a big meeting has been arranged for Friday, May 8, at North Side Turner Hall.

There are still many cases of deportation as well as the Michigan cases to be handled and every support must be given to Labor Defense Council. At all party affairs collections are in order for Labor Defense Council.

District Activities Spread.

On the district work, secretary reported Lithuanian branch organized in Chicago Heights. May Day meetings thruout the district, election campaign in St. Louis, miners' relief work in southern Illinois, contributions being gathered for the Negro work.

On the struggle against the closing-in policy of the Farrington machine the left wing and progressives are organizing their forces for a special sub-district convention to overrule the autocratic action of Czar Farrington in removing Freeman Thompson as sub-district president. Also agitation for a state convention demanding Farrington's impeachment is being worked for.

Milwaukee is carrying on a successful drive for the DAILY WORKER. It sent four comrades to the district party school. Its Russian, Ukrainian and South Slav branches are conducting systematic schools. The success of the district party school was repo on.

With the shop nuclei branch organized the city executive will ceed to select factories within the ritory of the shop nuclei branch' attach comrades working therein to shop nuclei branch in an endeavo organize more shop nuclei. Bran will be visited on the shop nu question.

Polish Pogroms and Their Supporters

In no country in the world is the much-persecuted Jewish race and other oppressed races as well, freer from all racial discrimination and safer from murderous bigots than in the first republic of workers and peasants—Soviet Russia.

But in no country is the Jew today more persecuted, more liable to the continual peril of individuals or mass murder by religious and racial and—more particularly, capitalist class—enemies, enemies, than in catholic, white guard Poland.

These facts are or ought to be so well-known that even the most uniformed Jewish worker in the most remote section of the world, ought to comprehend them.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America is an organization largely composed of Jewish workers so predominant in the needle trades. It is largely officered by Jews whose understanding of events leaves no excuse for the pogromist speech of Sam Levin, manager of the Chicago joint board, before the Polish Local 38 on Wednesday night.

It is the natural duty of a labor union official having the necessity of uniting workers of all races who work in the industry, to consciously combat racial prejudice and as constantly to inculcate the idea of solidarity between all workers regardless of race. This is a necessity because the capitalist class deliberately incites racial hatred and nationalist animosities in order to divide the working class and weaken their forces.

The speech of Sam Levin denounced to the whole membership of a Polish local union, H. Bramorski, as one who had "insulted" the unspeakable government of Poland by taking part in a Communist demonstration against the murder by Polish police of two workers and the persecution of Lanzutsky, the railroad worker member of parliament. This inciting of pogroms is a direct betrayal of all working class solidarity and a direct aid to the capitalist class. Bramorski was denounced as an "agent of Moscow" and as opposed to the Polish government.

The astounding connection revealed between the capitalist pogromists of Poland and the Hillman-Cahan-Levin machine is a matter of interest to the Jewish workers in the A. C. W. But the racial phase of the case is far less important than the fact that a labor union official has deliberately incited nationalist hatred and prejudice among members of the union and thereby aided the capitalist class. The A. C. W. members should make themselves heard on this issue.

Tear Gas for Tenants

Fifty policemen and tear gas bombs are used to evict a Negro tenant in Chicago. He was behind in his rent.

In Poland the other day the government troops killed two workers with poison gas when they refused to surrender on a trumped-up charge.

Tear gas and poison gas, when first used in the world war, brought cries of condemnation from the nations who had not yet devised such weapons. The war is over, theoretically, but all of the improved murder methods discovered while it lasted are now used against the individual workers and against the workers as a class.

Landlords and capitalists have only to raise the slogan of the sacredness of private property and the whole force of the government, city, county and national, is at their disposal.

The hired murderers of the capitalists welcome such opportunities as small strikes, and evictions which are resisted to try out their new equipment. It becomes a sort of scientific ceremony and the results obtained are made the subject of long reports, filed away carefully so that a literature of the mechanics of violent suppression is readily accessible.

What is the answer to the growing disregard of workers' living standards and workers' lives?

The answer is the united front of all the workers and exploited farmers against the capitalists. On every issue, no matter how unimportant it may seem, to those who have their eyes fixed only on a classless society, events on which it is possible to arouse the masses to protest and action, there must be unity of all sections of the workers. In the fight for partial demands we get our training for the final struggle.

This is the position of the Workers (Communist) Party of America. It calls upon the masses to allow no individual worker to be forced to wage the fight that should be fought by his whole class, for solidarity in the ranks of the workers in the daily struggle against the capitalists and all their agents.

Tear gas used on a Negro tenant is a challenge to the working class, black and white, because it means that the same method is being tested for use against the workers en masse.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

The Bulgarian Situation

The inevitable has happened in Bulgaria.

The bloody oppressions of the Zankov government, following the overthrow of the Stamboulisky peasant regime, have made the workers and peasants desperate, and the political situation in Bulgaria is a counterpart of that under the czar following the revolution of 1905.

The officials of the Zankov government, generals and cabinet members, make up the most of the casualties. No one will mourn them except the allied imperialists who recently allowed these murderers to add three thousand more degenerates from the remnants of Wrangel's army to the band of assassins, called the national army.

The bomb explosion in Sofia comes shortly after the exposure of an international plot, financed directly by the Zankov government, having for its purpose the murder of all the leaders of the Bulgarian workers and peasants and many prominent officials of the Soviet government. Emissaries were sent to Italy, London and Moscow to murder Russian ambassadors and Communist leaders. The story of the plot was published by us a few days ago.

The Zankov government not only sent punitive expeditions into the villages and tortured and murdered peasants and workers wholesale, but had under way a scheme by which opposition members of parliament were murdered in the streets and in their homes. Life in Bulgaria for the masses is a nightmare of bloody horror.

It is quite obvious now that the Zankov government is not going to last for any great length of time. The Bulgarian masses have had a long training in fighting tyranny and the explosion in Sofia is proof that the mass terror has not stamped out the will to fight back.

The czar could not kill the will to revolt by filling the prisons and slaughtering thousands. Neither can the Zankov government, even tho it is supported by the social-democrats of Bulgaria and the allied imperialists, succeed in saving itself from a mightier vengeance than that of the recent explosion.

Miners' Enemies Expose Themselves

Farrington, president of District 12, United Mine Workers of America, makes a trip to Chicago. The next day the Journal of Commerce publishes an exclusive story in which it is stated that negotiations for a revision of the existing agreement between the union and the operators are in progress and that a district convention of the miners will be called to consider the proposals.

This is the first that anyone has heard of the matters mentioned. Has Farrington been plotting a reduction of wages, dealing with the coal operators' association without the knowledge of the union?

Again, the Journal of Commorce story contains an attack on Watt and Thompson, officials of Sub-District 4, whom Farrington is trying to unseat and expel. The mouthpiece of the coal operators states openly that Watt and Thompson are the chief obstacles in the way of "readjustment" of wages—the euphemistic term for a wage cut.

Here is evidence of something more than sympathetic understanding between union officials and the coal capitalists. It is evidence of a hard and fast alliance by which the coal operators and their press engage to fight Farrington's battles in return for his betrayal of the miners.

The Journal of Commerce story refers to Watt and Thompson as "disrupters," but since when has an organ of the capitalists been hostile to real disrupters? The capitalists always welcome anything and anyone that weakens a union and it is obvious from the tone of the attack on these two militants that they are disrupting the plans of Farrington and the coal capitalists, not the union.

This is the reason why the Journal of Commerce, the coal barons and Farrington join hands in the offensive against them and the fighting program which they lay before the coal miners.

The Barr Cossack Bill

Tho raging with disgust because it could not secure the passage of its pet state police bill, the Chicago Tribune wisely urged its big business supporters to back the Barr bill which is not so good, but is a step in the right direction.

The Tribune deserves credit for exercising sound political judgment in this fight for the state cossacks, which has been waged by the Illinois chamber of commerce representing the employing class of Illinois, for several years. The main obstacle in the way of the state police was the opposition of the organized workers. The labor leaders had to be placated. Governor Small, their Santa Claus, was the only one that could do this. The Tribune reasons correctly, from the big business point of view, that once the opposition of the organized labor movement is liquidated thru the surrender of its official leaders, it will be an easy matter in some future legislature to amend the Barr bill or introduce another bill that will suit the employers down to the ground.

The labor misleaders, no doubt, will brag that they won a victory in defeating the Dunlap bill, which was the favorite of the big business interests represented by the chambers of commerce. But how can they explain the fact that the Chicago Tribune, their bete noir, supported the Barr bill as a step in the right direction?

The fact is that the state cossacks have been put over very cleverly on the workers of this state, with the connivance of the labor fakers who are not so stupid that they could not see what was being done, but whose treachery knows no limit.

The action of the labor leaders in supporting this bill is only additional proof that they have gone over bag and baggage into the camp of the capitalists.

PLUTES PLUNDER POST OFFICE WITH UNCLE SAM'S AID

Workers' 8-Hour Day Goes By the Board

Without flashing a "gat," without uttering a threat of violence, the advertisement dopesters have for the past week been robbing Uncle Sam's post office on a scale compared with which the Roundout and Leonard St. mail robberies were pikers' pickings.

To escape paying the higher rates on circulars that become effective on April 15, these capitalist dope dispensers have for the past weeks flooded the post office with millions upon millions of circulars that ordinarily they would have sent at other times, until the service, the employes, is straining under this unprecedented rush.

Of course, this method of doing the post office out of revenue is perfectly legitimate. Patriotic? Hardly. But, then, business is business, and business knows no patriotism.

In this process the plutes are aided and abetted by the postal department, which not only seeks no way of stopping this leak, but drains its appropriations and human resources working its distributing clerks 2 and 3 hours per shift overtime to dispose of this flood of dope. As the men get no extra rate of pay for overtime, the basic eight-hour day is thus practically abolished for the time being. Even the night tours (shifts) that according to an unwritten law must not be worked overtime on unimportant circular mail is now occasionally being worked 10 hours instead of the regular eight. And all this is legitimate business on the face of it.

Gerald Chapman, he is a piker. He should have become a "business man." He'd be a respectable "citizen" now.

Calvin Cooldge Won't Shake Your Hand But Sam Hammersmark Will

Snappy head, snappy story, snappier dance! This is a good lead to the announcement that the Irving Park branch of the Workers Party is giving a social and dance tonight in Workers Hall, 4021, N. Drake Avenue, near Irving Park Boul (short for boulevard, not to be confused with 'bull.')

"Go to Washington and shake hands with the president" is the slogan of the tour promoters since 'Silent Cal' began to take wrist exercise shaking he fins of the Babbittry.

Sam Hammersmark, the chief factotum of the Irving Park branch will be at the door to extend the glad wigwag to all and sundry who come to shake an ankle and incidentally deposit the infinitesimal sum of 35 cents at the door in return for the pleasure of seeing all there is to be seen eat all there is to eat and meet the comrades, and dancing with their husbands, wives, daughters, sweethearts, etc. See you tonight.

Turks Increase Army As British Incite Mosul Border Raids

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 17.—The Turkish government has called more classes to arms, following the announcement that Great Britain has stirred the Nestorian tribes in the Mosul vilayet who have been raiding Turkish territory.

The 22, 23 and 24 year old classes are already under arms, and the 21 and 20 year old classes will be called immediately.

Sheik Said and his principal aid, Sheik Abdoulah, who were captured by the Turks, are to be beheaded at Diarbekr.

Police Break Up Workers' Protest

touring the country in the interest of the International Red Aid on behalf of the Polish victims of the white terror, and who from his intimate knowledge of the Polish situation, being the editor of Tribuna Robotniczy, the Polish Communist weekly of Chicago, was able to give a strong and well-received address; a resolution was adopted protesting against the white terror in Poland, and demanding that the rights of the Polish workers and peasants be respected by the Polish government.

J. A. Hamilton, local organizer of the Workers Party, who acted as chairman, then told the audience of the police ruling as to the collection, stating that this not only deprived the International Red Aid of possible funds for its work of assisting the 8,000 political prisoners in Poland, and their families, as well as the tens of thousands in other countries; but even prevented the local committee from raising the money to cover the necessary expenses of the meeting, and was an unheard of ruling.

Discrimination Pointed Out

The chairman pointed out that Berry's objection to a collection on the ground that the meeting had to do with a foreign country, was abusurd; inasmuch as large sums of money are raised in the United States and loaned to the Polish and other foreign governments and used to oppress the workers of those countries; also that the U. S. government itself had loaned $187,000,000 to Bakmetieff, the so-called "ambassador" from the ex-Kerensky government of Russia, even tho the government this gentlemen was supposed to "represent" existed only in the hopes of Kerensky and his followers.

Also that Abramovitch is raising money in order to assist the counter-revolutionists now in prison in Russia for their plots against the government of the Russian workers and peasants.

Defy Majesty of the Law

He then stated that he insisted on the right of the committee to give those present an opportunity to contribute whatever they desired to the expenses of the meeting, and together with Geo. Papcun, local organizer of the Young Workers League, started to pass the hat. The police rushed to the front, stopped the collection, and ordered the hall cleared. However, quite a number of comrades made their contributions anyway, during the dispersal of the meeting, and later outside.

The police seemed to be none too proud of the dirty work they were forced to do and representatives of the local press admitted that the Berry ruling was entirely unprecedented and unjustified by any law or ordinance so far as they knew.

A General Danger.

The committee in charge of the meeting calls attention to the great danger to the labor movement if the police action in this instance can be made an established practice, as by a slight extension of application it could be used to prevent the raising of collections for anything which might not happen to suit the wishes of the police department or the reactionary interests controlling it.

The local Irish Famine Relief Committee is already wondering whether the McCarthy meeting scheduled for Sunday, April 19, at 2:30 p. m., in the Laborers' Hall, 1028 Walnut St., will be placed under the same ruling, thus preventing the audience from contributing to the relief of the Irish workers and peasants.

Berry, when questioned on Tuesday over the telephone, was unable to make a very clear explanation of his ruling, admitting that there is no specific ordinance against the taking of such collections, but comparing the collection in this instance with the selling of fake patent medicine; or the selling of poppies on the street by the veterans' organizations.

Moonshine Detecting Department.

He seemed to feel that his action was necessary to protect the citizens from being relieved of their money under false pretenses, stating that he didn't know whether the statements as to the situation in Poland are true or not; he also seemed to be under the impression that inasmuch as the meeting concerned a foreign country, there is something wrong in making a public appeal for funds. But reason or no reason, the collection couldn't be taken.

Cleveland is under the city manager form of government, by which the director of public safety is appointed by the manager, and is not subject to direct removal or instruction by the city council. Such a centralized system to say the least does not handicap the police department in its interference with the rights of the workers.

A New and Bright Idea.

Abramovich had plenty of police "protection" at his Cleveland meeting; the Sacco-Vanzetti meeting on March 1 was attended by a large squad of police, and now the department seems to have developed a new form of suppression, that of interfering with the raising of funds.

The workers of Cleveland will fight to the limit such unwarranted arrogance on the part of the police department. Petitions are out for the nomination of Communists as candidates for city council in the 1925 election and there will be no hesitancy in utilizing all the evidence which the present city administration wishes to provide, that municipal as well as higher units of government under the capitalist system are simply agencies to execute the wishes of the capitalist class against the workers. However, the party in Cleveland does not propose to allow such actions as this to pass merely with the pointing of a moral.

Los Angeles Notes

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—The second anniversary celebration of the Junior section, Y. W. L. of Los Angeles was a great success. There were over 800 people present of all ages and they enjoyed every bit of the big program arranged by the juniors themselves.

There was a three act play entitled "Happy Prince," an operetta "Labor Defence" in four scenes and the "Spirit of Communism" in ballet. The evening's entertainment was an inspiration to youth and adults alike. An appeal by Comrade E. Levin, city organizer, for funds to take care of the arrested workers at the Abramovich meeting whose trial takes place April 29 was met with hearty response.

Join the Union.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—Every unorganized dressmaker, every tailor and all workers in the cloak and suit trade will be given an opportunity to join the union of their trade at a special meeting and concert on Tuesday, April 21 at 8 p. m. at 138½ So. Spring street. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the International Ladies Garment Workers, Local 52. They appeal to all workers to attend the meeting and join up with the organized workers in the trade.

May Day in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, April 17—May Day will be celebrated in Los Angeles by the Workers Party and Young Workers' League by a mass meeting and entertainment, at which Tom Lewis, new district organizer of the party, will be the chief speaker. The juniors will do the entertaining on May Day and promise a program which will equal any that they have yet given. The Young Workers' League will be represented by a speaker who will talk on the significance of May Day.

Due to the many attractive features on the program, including the first appearance of Comrade Lewis in Los Angeles, our friends and sympathizers are urged to turn out one hundred per cent to this meeting, which will take place at the Co-operative Center, Brooklyn and Mott.

Wheeler admits he was employed by Campbell, and that he put Campbell's troubles in the hands of Ed. Booth, the Washington attorney, and represented Campbell in the local courts.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 17.—Frequent spirited clashes between government and defense counsel enlivened today's trial of Senator Wheeler.

Ill-feeling between opposing attorneys broke out heatedly when Senator Walsh objected to presentation by Slattery of detailed formal documents relating to Montana oil and gas permits.

Slattery called W. E. Bennett, registrar of the Great Falls office to the stand to explain the records dealing with permits issued to Gordon Campbell and his associates by the interior department to prospect for oil. Some of the permits went as far back as 1921.

Wheeler is accused of receiving a fee from Campbell to obtain interior department permits.

Barbers Win Increase of $4 a Week After 5-Month Controversy

After five months of consideration of the Journeymen Barbers' demand for higher wages they were granted a raise of $4 a week. The decision was handed down by Charles Bendheim, a commissioner for the United States department of labor.

The new agreement raises the barbers' wages from $26 to $30 a week. The union's original demand called for a raise of $10 a week and shops to close at 7 p. m. At present they close at 8 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the barbers' union April 20, to ratify the new wage agreement.

The Mass Lock-Out in Sweden

By ARVID F. VRETLING
(Stockholm, Sweden)

THE present situation in Sweden is characterized by the fact that the capitalists have commenced a wholesale offensive against the working class. The lock-out, which effects 130,000 workers in the most important branches of industry, is the signal for great social struggles. But in its struggle the bourgeoisie is not only aiming at economic ends, but is making a political attack upon the social democratic government and the Communist Party.

Labor Rule a Farce.

The elections in Sweden which took place in the Autumn led to the overthrow of the right bourgeois Tryggen government. The social democracy succeeded again in getting the governmental power into its hands. But the taking over of the government by the social democracy does not imply a parliamentary victory, based upon a majority in parliament, for the present government is now, as formerly, dependent upon the favor of the bourgeoisie. The capitalists have understood how to adapt their policy and their tactics to the existing situation. They were perfectly aware taht a conflict with the working class would be unavoidable, that the increase in the prices of food was bound to worsen the position of the working class, and that it would therefore be better to form a so-called labor government in order to feed the workers on illusions and thereby keep them quiet. It is much easier to carry out the enslavement of the workers behind the screen of bourgeois democracy and with the help of the social democratic leaders. And in fact the social democratic government has very ably played its role as lackey of the bourgeoisie. The capitalists have made use of the bourgeois slogan of the social democrats, "peace within the country," in order to launch an offensive against the unprepared workers. The effects of the Dawes plan are compelling the Swedish employers to cheapen their industrial products by reducing wages. When the capitalists raised a cry over the necessity of rendering their industry capable of competing in the world market, the trade union bureaucrats, in alliance with the government, agreed with it and thereby warned the workers against taking up the struggle.

When at the commencement of the New Year the collective treaties were concluded between the employers and the workers in the textile and metal industries, the defeat of the workers was obvious. These agreements have resulted in real wages remaining at the same level, as the price of food is rapidly rising.

Fascisti Used to Break Strikes

Some groups of the workers have for long been carrying on an isolated struggle against the exploiters. This is the case with the coal transport workers in Stockholm, the electrical engineers, the workers in the pottery industry etc. In these struggles, as well as in the strike of the agricultural laborers and forest workers, strikebreakers and fascist organizations were made use of on a large scale. In north Sweden it came to regular battles beween the workers and the strikebreakers. This fact provided an occasion for the leader of the financial capitalists in the reichstag, Admiral Lindman, to submit an interpellation, as to whether the government was prepared to protect those who were willing to work, i. e., the strikebreakers.

This interpellation, in connection with the new army discipline bill, is the testing stone for the government. In regard to the military question, the social democrats have already approached very near to the proposal of the liberal party and thereby completely ignored their own election pledges. According to the proposal of the social democrats, the military budget will amount to 120 million crowns. Against this proposal the Communists are putting forward the slogan of the "Workers' and Peasants Militia." But the bourgeoisie is not satisfied with the proposal of the social democrats and the liberals. It wishes to lay more millions upon the altar of bourgeois militarism. The object of this agitation for armaments is an alliance with Finland and the Baltic countries against the Soviet Union, and the arming of the bourgeois state and its fascist organizations against the workers and small peasants.

Moscow Worries Them.

At the same time there has set in an unexampled campaign against the "adherents of Moscow." The so-called Communist Party of the renegade Hoeglund and the social democrats are good allies of the bourgeoisie when it is a question of supporting this campaign. The renegade Hoeglund has already landed in the stinking swamp of social democracy and has set himself one task: to do as much damage to our party as possible. For this purpose he employs the basest and most mendacious means. But Hoeglund has no influence upon the masses and is only a gramaphone of the revolutionary phrases of Paul Levi and other stranded politicians.

The bourgeoisie, of course, makes good use of this treacherous policy of the Hoeglunders and the social democrats in order to proceed more sharply against the dangerous Bolsheviks. Many workers have been condemned by the court for having fought against the strikebreakers, among these is the secretary of the Young Communist League and two other comrades who have received six months and one month imprisonment respectively.

All this shows quite clearly enough that the bourgeoisie has made all preparations in order to undertake a wholesale offensive against the workers. The lock-out by the employers' federations has caused great excitement among the masses. The government immediately intervened—not to support the workers, but instead appointed an arbitration committee consisting entirely of bourgeois people. The chairman is the present ambassador in Helsingfors, Elmkvist. The first result of this arbitration committee was the postponement of the lock-out until the 16th of March. Now, as previously, the government and the trade union bureaucrats will do everything possible to arrive at a compromise and thereby preserve "law and order in the country."

Workers Demand General Strike.

The Communist Party of Sweden has issued the slogan of the general strike, and this slogan has been received with great enthusiasm at mass meetings held in many places. The social democrats are furious and are attempting by demagogic means to hold back the workers from the fight. In spite of the continually increasing cost of living, the slogan of the social democrats is the maintenance of the status quo. The syndicalists have issued the demonstration slogan: occu-

Party Functions of Nucleus Members

By OSSIP PIATNITSKY

IN an article "Nuclei and Local Party Organizations" I dealt with the necessity of continuing the organization of nuclei in factories and of putting before the already existing nuclei all questions connected with the political party and trade union life of the country and all questions appertaining to large sections of workers and peasants.

But here I want to deal only with the work of the nuclei in the factories and with the distribution of functions among nuclei members, which among other things should give an impetus to the activity of all party members, thereby providing an opportunity to draw the best elements of the working class into our Communist Parties.

LET us take for example a medium nucleus of 20 to 30 members in any factory.

At the first meeting, which generally takes place in the presence of the representative of the district or town (in a little town) leading organ of the party, the leading organ of the nucleus (bureau or presidium) is elected. It generally consists of three to five comrades. The latter after, getting to know the members of the nucleus, distribute the work among the, taking into consideration the capacities and inclinations of the nuclei members for this or that kind of party work.

AT its meeting, the nucleus as a whole lays down the lines of work, it draws up the plan of party campigns, makes decisions on contentious questions which are binding for the nucleus, receives reports from the nucleus bureau and from comrades enthrusted with definite functions and defines its relation to them.

All the decisions of the general meeting of the nucleus, and the entire work are carried out by the nucleus bureaus and by various nucleus members. I will therefore deal very fully with the distribution of work among nucleus members.

IT seems to us that the distribution of work within the nucleus should be as follows:

1. If there is a factory committee in the factory including nucleus members, it should carry out the instructions of the party in the course of its work; these are at the same time the instructions of the nucleus.

IN the factory committee they form the Communist fraction which is connected with the nucleus bureaus. But in the event of the factory committee not including any Communists, the nucleus bureau should instruct some of the nucleus members to keep systematically in touch with the work of the factory committee, to elaborate various proposals on questions of interest to the factory workers and to place these proposals before the factory committee and the general meetings of the factory, which proposals should be submitted by the members to the nucleus bureau for approval.

AS these comrades become familiar with the work of the factory committee and with the questions it deals with, they can be put up as candidates to the factory committee when the time for re-election comes, their candidature being promoted either by the nucleus or by a group of factory workers in accordance with the conditions prevailing in the country (in accordance with the legality or illegality of the Communist Party) and in the factory.

2. Abroad there are in factories and works members of various trade unions (for instance in the railway workshops, carpenters and joiners belong to the woodworkers' union, the locksmiths and turners to the metal workers' union and the unskilled workers to the general workers' unions.)

IT frequently happens that there are in the same factroy members of metal workers, wood workers and other unions adhering to the Amsterdam Federation, to the Profintern, to Catholic and other federations. The nucleus bureau of such a factory should appoint one or several nucleus members for work among the adherents of the various trade unions and also among workers of the same trade who have not yet joined a trade union.

Party members entrusted with trade union work must study very thoroughly all questions concerning the respective trade union conditions of labor, wages, working hours, etc. They should watch the work of the administration of the local trade union branch, as well as the work of the national and international administrative bodies. They must be regular readers of the trade union press, etc.

IT is only by familiarizing themselves with all questions connected with the respective union that they will be able to agitate among the workers in favor of adherence to the union, to criticise the activity of the leadership of the unions and to introduce at the trade union meetings of this or that undertaking proposals concerning the unity of the trade union movement and the introduction of necessary changes in the personnel of the administration should the latter be unsatisfactory.

I have dealt in such detail with the work of the nucleus members enthrusted with trade union work in the factories, because it is of the utmost importance at the present juncture to draw all unorganized workers into the trade unions and to agitate among trade union members for trade union unity. We must realise that these are the two necessary conditions for a successful struggle against capitalism, as the experience of the last few years has shown.

IT goes without saying that agitation for trade union unity must be concern of all the members of the nucleus, but the comrades specially entrusted with this work must make a deeper study of this question in order to provide the other nucleus members with the material necessary for agitation.

During elections to trade union conferences the above-mentioned comrades, as trade union experts, can be put up as candidates from the nucleus. These comrades should, and in fact, must be connected with the Communists members of the administration of the respective local trade union who will give them information and instructions concerning trade union work.

THE work of the Communist fraction in the trade union administration will laso be much easier if it can depend on comrades doing systematic work among trade union members, in the factories where the nucleus functions. The comrades should of course work in the factory under the guidance of the nucleus bureau, and if the latter deems it necessary, periodical reports on the results and the methods of work should be presented by these comrades at the nuclei meetings.

3. The idea prevails in some of our sections that election work is not the business of factory nuclei, but is mainly the business of street nuclei in the residential districts of the workers. But this is not so, for work connected with municipal, state and national elections will also require the continuous attention of several comrades.

IT is essential to ascertain in good time where workers live, to have them entered in the lists of voters, to provide them with election literature, to gather information concerning the opponents and to place this information before the members of the nucleus in order to give them material for agitation and to roganize mass attendance of workers at the election meetings of our party, etc., etc.

4. If the said factory has different shops, the nucleus bureau is to appoint a responsible nucleus member for work in each one of the shops. These comrades will have to be in charge of the entire many-sided party work in the shops.

5. If women are employed in the factory, one or several nucleus members should be instructed to work among them in accordance with a plan elaborated by the department of the local or district committee for work among women. Even if the factory does not employ women, efforts should be made thru the workers of that factory to draw their wives and daughters into the Communist movement.

WORKING women and housewives (workmen's wives) can play, and are palying an important role in the labor movement: in the movement against high cost of living, during strikes and election campaigns.

At the recent elections in Great Britain and Germany a considerable number of workmen's wives voted for the conservatives in Great Britain and for the Catholic center ,the social democrats and the nationalists in Germany.

WORKING women and workingmen's wives must be drawn into the working class movement, and the best way of getting at them is in the factories and workshops and thru their husbands and fathers. This work is of the utmost importance and our nuclei must pay due attention to it.

NARRER FRONTS ON MAIN STREET

By DAVID COUTTS.

Ya ever been off Main street, Bo,
Dat goes from Noo Yawk plumb to Chi;
An' keeps agoin' whar ya go,
Until it hits de Rockies high?
An' still goes furder, far dan dat,
'Cause I been out to Frisco town;
An' foun' de folks on Main street sat,
Wid "Native Sons" to hol' it down.

I been on Dumbbell Alley, too,
What runs from No'th to Nu Orleans;
Whar half de folks er plumb Ku Ku,
De odders shy at Darwin's themes.

Noo Yawk? Dat's little Main street, Bo,
Dey hustle 'roun' like crazy men;
To get a job to build or sew,
Ya grab some beans an' back again!
An' jobs! Say, Bo, dat's heaven or hell,
Dey all love work, dat's plain to see;
An' jump a hick from Kewanee.

De boss kin ride 'em rough and raw,
Er starve an' coop 'em in a trap;
Dey'll mill aroun' an' loudly jaw,
But hell, dey're still astandin' pat.
Der unions? Huh! Dey're Main street, too,
A hunnert whar dere shud be one:
Each Babbit craft a stinkin' stew
O' prayer book, graft, an' thug an' gun.

An' Chi? Dat town's Hickville sure,
Dey fight o'er jobs o' nailin' tin;
An' sign a pact made scabbin' pure,
Er sellin' votes fer crooks to win.
Ya talk o' graft? Well go to Chi,
Dey sell dat town just twice a week;
A franchise dere comes extra high,
A thousand han's ya got to heap.

A thousan' union Babbits sell,
The "Right to Work," er no-strike laws;
Each little craft corrupt as hell,
An' Main street unions is de cause.
But talk to dem, dey're wise as owls,
Dey'll tell ya dey have won some fight;
But all ya see's dead hopes and ghouls,
Wi' workers trimmed o' every right.

On Main street when ya look aroun',
Each little soul has goods to sell;
Wi' world all warped an' narrered down,
To countin' dirty coin pellmell.
He sells his soul to hold a job,
His boss de banker an' de trus';
Dey work de game to prey an' rob,
While Main street dies, for die dey mus'.

Kluxers, scabs an' hates galore,
Er bred on Main street's narrer fronts;
An' caste is addin' to dis store,
O' hates what workers bear de brunts.

Dese narrer fronts from coast to coast,
O' craft and caste, O' jobs an' stores;
Er all on Main street, why den boast,
O' Main street every man abhors?

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

Speaks of Sport International

Comrade Podvoysky (Communist Party of Russia) calls the attention of the executive to the Sport International. The sport movement comprises ten million workers and twenty million petty bourgeois youth. This constitutes a vast reserve for the social-democracy and the bourgeoisie.

The Communist parties must influence the sport movement ideologically and furnish good instructors to it. The speaker then announces that in October, 1926, there will take place in Moscow an international Olympiad under the name of "October Spor Clebration;" he therefore asks for support.

Comrade Kreibich (Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia) is of the opinion that Zinoviev's theses are not sufficiently well motivated and that Zinoviev has bound himself up too much with the left. The speaker is also of the opinion that the present analysis of Anglo-American relations was originally that of Comrade Trotsky. Their common fear of the collapse of capitalism, the Eastern question, the colonial and the Russian questions, strengthen the co-operation between England and America. To emphasize this co-operation more than the conflicts between these two countries constitutes no opportunism. Of course, even the Communists are disappointed somewhat with the decline of the revolutionary wave, and because the revolutionary wave was not sufficiently utilized for the Communist parties.

The right danger can be overcome thru democracy and free discussion. The right danger consists of the circumstance that many workers have broken away from the social-democracy, but are unable to pursue a Bolshevik policy. It is difficult to decide which danger is greater—left or right. The left leadership is commiting grave mistakes.

Both the right and left must be fought. The speaker accepts Zinoviev's theses because they contain the concretization of Bolshevization, and emphasize democracy and free criticism. Without adaptation to concrete conditions, Bolshevization remains on paper only. The main error consists in the exaggeration, and forcible execution of Bolshevization.

The main danger facing the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia is not a split but deterioration. The Czech workers need conviction, for they are not as strong in matters of discipline and authority as the German worker. The executive should offer good advice, but should not treat the various questions commissarily.

Neurath (Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia) refutes the idea that stabilization has set in in Czecho-Slovakia. The tax and tariff policy of the bourgeoisie and the discharge of state employes, are directed against the proletariat, the petty bourgeoisie and the small peasantry. The politico-strategic position of Czecho-Slovakia as the lackey of French imperialism, the nationality problem and the agrarian question again hinder stabilization. The Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia strove to carry out the decisions of the Fifth Congress in the trade union question. The party will support the revolutionary trade unions as long as these carry on a fight against Amsterdam; however, the party is against a policy of splits. Kreibich has just spoken against commissary treatment, but there was a time when he was for it. Kreibich spoke of the mistakes made by the left, but he has forgotten the October defeat which was caused by the right. The new party executive did not wish to apply Russian experience and discipline mechanically. The party executive gives to the plenum a report on the activities of the party. The party strove and is striving for Bolshevization; it will carry out the decisions of the congress, and will combat opportunism.

Zetkin Agrees with Theses.

Comrade Clara Zetkin declares that she agrees with the theses, because they accelerate the world revolution thru Bolshevization. She polemizes against Ruth Fisher's allegation that the right accept the theses because they wish to participate in the leadership.

No one desires to discard the present left leadership, but under the given circumstances others must also be allowed to take part in the work.

The Spartacus League has historical merits; during the war it propagated the transformation of the imperialist war in civil war; it created an illegal tradition, and supported the Russian revolution. None the less the speaker has always advocated the participation of the new generation in the party leadership.

The speaker warns against expulsions from the German Communist party. The left party executive has done much creditable work, but there are a few weaknesses, as in the trade union work, where the number of Communist fractions has decreased. The loss of votes in the recent election can be explained partly by the difficult objective situation, and partly by the insufficiently active and concrete struggle against the Dawes plan. The speaker agrees with Ruth Fisher that partial demands are very important, but she denies that Brandler ever wanted to displace revolutionary agitation with partial demands. Brandler has committed other mistakes, not this one, however. The German Communist Party was insufficiently active in the economic struggle.

Situation Is Not Acute.

MOSCOW, March 29—(By mail)—At the evening session, Comrade Varga spoke: "There is at present no acute revolutionary situation; there is no immediate struggle for power on the agenda. The bourgeoisie is convinced that great masses of workers believe in the durability of capitalism.

"The bourgeoisie very cunningly tries to widen the gap between the skilled and unskilled workers, and between employes and officials. It plays off the native and foreign workers against each other. All of this naturally weakens the fighting capacity of the proletariat."

The speaker admits a relative social stabilization, but points out that the economic stabilization is a lower degree. This may be observed mainly in the sphere of circulation as well as in that of currency and credits. The speaker states that the West-European crisis was caused firstly by the growth of productive capacity beyond the limits of the available markets; secondly, by the industrialization of the colonies; thirdly, by the partial elimination of the Soviet Union from the world market. The speaker then proceeds to a detailed analysis of the situation in England. The present situation in England reflects the future of the European industrial countries.

The German stabilization is accompanied by crises. Austria is undergoing an actute crisis in spite of stabilization; it has 300,000 unemployed.

American capitalism is still on the upgrade, but the present boom is nearing its end. The so-called "Scissors" which was the cause of the agricultural crisis, disappeared in the autumn of last year, which fact the bourgeoisie and the social-democrats are wont to interpret as stabilzation. But the rise in prices of agricultural products was only a passing episode, caused by the poor crops. In the last few weeks a new drop in prices set in, thus reviving the agricultural crisis. This crisis can be liquidated only by restricting production. A repetition of the agrarian crisis may be expected in the next few years. The effects of the Dawes plan have not yet been felt on the world market. The passive trade balance in Germany means an improvement in the other countries. However the German payments of interest which are soon to begin, will sharpen competition and the conflicts. The extent and the duration of the stabilization should not be overestimated. There is at the present time no acute revolutionary situation, but the stabilization on the other hand, will not last many years.

Comrade Nestcheriakov (Communist Party of Russia) points out that high prices are a world phenomenon, a fact not sufficiently appreciated by the plenum so far. On the basis of our experience in Germany and elsewhere, the various parties should start extensive campaigns which should include the co-operatives. In Europe the co-operatives alone count 5,000,000 members. This army must be utilized in the struggle against high prices. Up till now, it was the Communist Party of France alone which has made an attempt to carry out the high-cost-of-living campaign.

Conflicts More Acute in France.

Comrade Treoint (France) then takes the floor and points out that in France, the difficulties and conflicts are becoming more acute. France is on the threshold of an acute economic crisis caused by the revival of German industry, by American competition, the "stabilization" of the franc (all of which renders French export more difficult), and, last but not least, by the colonial crisis. It might be possible to increase exports by reverting to inflation, but this would mean the impoverization of the petty bourgeoisie—which is more dangerous in France than it was in Germany. Unemployment is beginning to be felt.

Not all illusions have as yet been dispelled, but a certain disappointment can already be noticed. The approaching crisis sharpens the conflict between Communism and fascism. French fascism is a petty bourgeois movement started and encouraged by the big bourgeoisie, which fact distinguished French fascism from German or Italian fascism. In France, three out of the eight million proletarians are foreigners. The bourgeoisie attempts of course to play off the native and foreign-born workers against one another. The anarchists play the role of white guards. In many places the social-democracy aids fascism against Communism, as for example, in Lille.

Under such circumstances the French Communist Party is carrying on the Bolshevization process; it combats all right tendencies, it reorganizes the party on the basis of shop unclei, it strives to be in close contact with the masses in the struggle against the bourgeoisie, it supports partial demands, and strives to pursue a correct policy in the peasant and colonial questions. The struggle against the right tendencies is meeting with success. Trotskyism has been liquidated, altho Trotsky's influence in our party was strong. Only a small group is trying to develop a right fraction, nationally and internationally, against the Leninist policy. There are no serious leftist dangers.

The speaker then describes in detail the activities of the Communist Party of France, the various political campaigns, the trade union work, the progress made in reorganizing the party on the basis of shop nuclei, the work among the foreigners, etc. The party's recruiting campaign increased the membership by 30 per cent. The party apparatus was reorganized; extensive colonial campaigns (Morocco, Egypt, the Chinese question); the activities of our municipal and state parliamentary fractions; the drawing of the workers' correspondents into party work thru the Humanite.

Our main task at present is: to improve the work of the party apparatus, to render the shop nuclei politically active, to bring the party organization in the province up to the same level with our Paris organization, to intensify our trade union campaign and the struggle against fascism, to improve our work among the foreign workers, to establish better and closer connections with the national-revolutionary movement in the colonies. The active functionaries of the C. G. T. U. who have Communist sympathies, must be won over to the party.

The Communist Party of France will conduct its work on the basis of Leninism. (Applause.)

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time are:

New York, N. Y.—Speakers, William Z. Foster and Moissaye Olgin.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Speakers, Ben Gitlow and Oliver Carlson.

Boston, Mass.—Convention Hall, Garrison St. (Near Mechanic's Bldg.) 7:30 p. m. Speaker, Wm. F. Dunne.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Slovenian National Home, 6409 St. Clair Ave., 7 p. m. Speaker, J. Louis Engdahl.

Warren, Ohio.—May 2. Speaker, J. Louis Engdahl.

Akron, Ohio.—May 3, at 2 p. m. Speaker, J. Louis Engdahl.

Canton, Ohio.—May 3, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. Louis Engdahl.

Toledo, Ohio.—May 4, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. Louis Engdahl.

Chicago, Ill.—Temple Hall, Van Buren & Marshfield, at 8 p. m. Speakers, James P. Cannon, C. E. Ruthenberg, Martin Abern and Max Schachtman.

The Struggle in Nova Scotia

By MAURICE SPECTOR

THE immediate causes of the Nova Scotia struggle were the refusal of the British Empire Steel corporation to restore the credit to the miners at the company stores and to provide work of at least four days work a week. The twelve thousand miners of Nova Scotia inclusive of the maintenance staffs, affecting fifty thousand men women and children, went out on a strike that has already lasted over seven weeks.

But behind the provocative cutting off of credits and sabotage of production was the determination of BESCO to force a ten per cent wage cut below the 1924 rates, a determination in line with the whole past policy of the corporation to reduce the living standards of the miners to the level of coolies and no less in line with the whole world wide capitalist offensive on the miners of the world under Dawes capitalism.

THE present one hundred per cent strike is by no means the first great struggle of the miners against this ruthless corporation. At the present time when the Canadian middle classes, the politicians, priests, parsons, social service workers etc. are systematically confusing the root causes of the struggle and blurring the class issues involved by their "relief" propaganda, it is necessary to shout from the house tops that capitalism and only capitalism is responsible for the oppression, starvation and degradation of the miners.

Nova Scotia is one of the sorest spots in Canadian capitalism. It is dominated by the gigantic British Empire Steel corporation, one of those war and post war products of capitalist, concentration and monopoly.

BESCO was formed by the merger of all the coal, iron and steel and shipbuilding companies of Nova Scotia.

The merger was considerably facilitated by the coal-land leases by which the kept politicians of the provincial government graciously gave to Besco practically all the coal in Nova Scotia —one of the richest fields in the world.

FROM its inception, the policy of Besco has been par excellence to get something for nothing. In the process of trustification, the already inflated capitalization of its constituent companies was still furthered watered to the tune of over $19,000,000. Successive governments have pampered Besco to a sickening degree. It has received over $8,000,000 in bounties and nearly three-quarters of a million dollars in remission of duties at the hands of kindly capitalist politicians who will not hear a word about "demoralizing doles" for the unemployed.

For services to government departments, Besco has received no less than $77,138,459. It has charged the government $39 a ton for rails which it was able to deliver to the foreign market for $24 a ton. But the appetite of a corporation whose aim is to batten by restricting output and intensifying exploitation, is insatiable. Besco demands a still higher tariff from the government and still further wage reductions for the men.

FACED by such an incarnation of capitalism as Besco, the miners of Nova Scotia have been driven along the channels of militancy and class consciousness. Their condition has been that of direct poverty, and semi-starvation. Theirs has been the lowest wage scale of any district in the coal industry of North America. Working an average of about one hundred and fifty days a year in the last three years, the Nova Scotia miner has averaged between $500 and $1,000 a year.

As a consequence of such conditions the miners have been forced to strike for a wage contract every year. As at the beginning of this year, the corporation has always demanded a wage-cut. Their experiences with the policies of Besco has developed these Canadian miners into one of the most radical sections of the United Mine Workers of America and the best class fighters in the Canadian labor movement. To the great alarm of the Canadian bourgeoisie and the trade union bureaucracy, this radicalism manifested itself in the miners' attempt early in July 1923 to obtain permission (refused of course) from the U. M. W. of A. executive board to affiliate with the Red Labor Union International. The Communist Party became very influential in the district.

IN July 1923 about 4,000 steel workers employed by Besco in Sydney went out on strike for recognition of their union and better conditions. At the behest of Besco the government rushed in the militia. The miners demanded the withdrawal of the military and when this was refused, went out on strike. At this point, the government, the military, and Besco were joined by their ally Lewis the bureaucrat head of the U. M. W. of A., who outlawed the miners' strike as a "violation of contract."

The military coerced the miners, the government threw the strike leaders into prison on trumped-up charges of sedition, and Lewis served for his masters by arbitrarily deposing the radical miners' executive and oppointing his own henchmen.

THE strike was mercilessly broken —but let it be remembered, not a murmur of protest from the middle classes and uplifters. They enjoyed the spectacle as cheerfully as the breaking of the militant Winnipeg general strike a few years before.

In September of the same year, the royal commission appointed to investigate the causes of the strike reported among reasons which are irrelevent, the low rate of wages, the long hours, the refusal of the company to recognize the Steel Workers' Union, irregular employment, unemployment and the high cost of living. The report of the commission brought with it, of course, no improvement of conditions. On the contrary, Besco prepared to present the miners with another ten per cent wage cut at the beginning of 1925.

THE miners meanwhile seized their first opportunity when permission was finally granted to hold a convention and to elect another executive which was regarded as left-wing and as likely to continue the fighting policies of Jim McLachlan who since his release from prison has been editor of the Maritime Labor Herald. In spite of the utmost provocation of Lewis, the miners held a firmly to their unity. The One Big Union clique in Winnipeg who while not a union have large funds accumulated from their profitable gambling competitions, endeavored to split the miners away from the U. M. W. of A. but when they did not succeed, they managed to split off a few hundred miners in Pictou county.

Following Besco's announcement that wages must be reduced, the minister of labor, the notorious Jimmy Murdock who had done so much to break the postal workers strike last summer, appointed a conciliation board under the Lemieux act to investigate the dispute. About the same time the privy council in London decided that the Lemieux (industrial disputes investigation) act was invalid as "ultra vires" of the federal house which had enacted it. But regardless of this decision, the "conciliation board" could have accomplished nothing much more than it did—which was merely to shake its head wisely, say it was too bad, and recommend another inquiry by royal commission. While applying for the board, Besco was going right ahead with its provocative arrangements for the lockout.

THE corporation resolved to precipitate matters by the drastic weapon of starvation. Besco ordered its company stores to immediately cancel all further credits to the miners already on the brink of starvation, and to extend its lockout at the southern collieries 2, 4 and 6.

When the corporation refused to heed the ultimatum of the miners' executive to restore credits and immediately provide at least four days work a week, the miners walked out solidly taking the maintenance men with them. John L. Lewis at once wired Premier Armstrong that the withdrawal of the maintenance men was contrary to the laws and policy of the U. M. W. But the miners paid no attention.

THE strike was on—a one hundred per cent strike but from the very outset its leadership has been giving all true working class friends of the miners the gravest concern. The bourgeoisie adopted a way of trying to break the strike, in accord with a changed situation. The directors of Besco itself were unblushing in their frank avowals of determination to starve the miners out.

Vice-President McLurg of Besco in a public interview openly declared his reason for believing that the miners couldn't win to be that "they could not stand the gaff" that is, starvation. But the bourgeoisie as a whole worked more cunningly.

FIRST, there is an election in the offing and military intervention by the King government, would be political capital for the tory opposition thirsting for the fleshpots of office.

The tories have already exploited the Nova Scotia situation to discredit the liberals. Cynical tory politicians have slobbered all over the miners and have demanded from King that he send relief, knowing very well that he would take refuge behind the inevitable British North America act and that they themselves were let out of dong anything.

NEXT, there is the genuine fear among the middle classes of the hold and progress of the ideas of the class struggle among the miners. They have a real fear and hatred of the influence of McLachlan, of the policies of the Maritime Labor Herald, of the prestige of the Communist Party. They remember the application for affiliation to the R. I. L. U. And they remember the militant strike of solidarity on behalf of the steel workers.

So the cry has gone up among them as expressed by Canon Scott in his letter to Premier King that the district must be "saved from Bolshevism." The method of capitalist intervention that has been adopted therefore in this instance is not coercion but throttling the strike with "kindliness."

A HOWL suddenly goes up in the capitalist press and forums that a calamity has struck Nova Scotia. Relief must be sent immediately. The capitalist game is to represent the crisis as due to some sort of natural catastrophe some earthquake or tidal wave or famine disaster—a pure case for philanthropy.

There was never word from these same sudden philanthropists when the miners of Western Canada were starving as they still are from the effects of a five months' long struggle against the western coal operators.

THE trade union bureaucracy has taken its cue as usual from the bourgeoisie. On behalf of the Trades Congress, President Tom Moore donated the paltry sum of $500 towards relief. He visited the scene of hostilities gave it the "once-over" and complacently returned to report in his Congress Journal that the days of "red" leadership of the district were over. Other than that $500—nothing.

This Trades Congress affiliated with the Amsterdam International which in the emergency of the outbreak of war is pledged to declare a general strike, has not even convoked an emergency conference to consider active aid to the miners. The business of the Trades Congress was to mobilize such forces as it had to prevent a repetition of the disaster which overtook the isolated struggle in District 18 (Western Canada) where company unionism has raised its head.

BUT all that Moore can think about is to "save the district from Bolshevism." To the same end Lewis himself jorneys down directly to participate in the negotiations for a settlement.

And what of the leadership of the strike, the present miners' executive? President McLeod obtained his office by virtue of support he received from the militants on the district, who were led to believe he was a sincere sympathizer of the left wing program and of the former Livingston-McLachlan executive, deposed by Lewis.

NEVERTHELESS, consciously or unconsciously McLeod has been abandoning the road of class struggle and has leaned on the charity and the good will of the middle classes and trade union bureaucracy. He went so far as publicly to deny that the policies of his executive and those of the Maritime Labor Herald under the editorship of Jim McLachin, were the same.

This is a one hundred per cent strike but there has not been a single mass meeting of the men called since its beginning seven weeks ago. The maintenance men have been withdrawn but there has been no picketing of the maintenance men, the corporation has maintained.

BUT the worst action of McLeod and his associates on the executive—an action taptamount to a betrayal—and one, that evoked sharp protest from the rank and file has been his behaviour towards the $5,000 that the Russian workers sent in the name of international solidarity.

The McLeod executive had allowed all relief activity to fall into the hands of the bourgeois' citizens committee formed in Glace Bay. The Russian money was sent thru Jim McLachlan to the miners and when he offered it to the citizens' committee, the gang of parsons, priests, politicians, lawyers, etc., who make it up flatly turned it down on the ground that its acceptance would hinder the "public" from giving. This was a bare faced piece of sabotage of the class interests of the workers and internationalism. It was an insult and slap in the face to the Russian workers and the R. I. L. U. but neither McLeod nor any of his executive registered the angry and categorical protest that was due on behalf of the miners.

THESE actions of McLeod's have evoked sharp warnings from the Communist Party. The Communist Party would not and will not do anything that could be interpreted as disrupting the ranks of the miners at the moment of struggle. But that is precisely why it has not been able to remain silent without warning the miners of Nova Scotia against the poison of class collaboration and the example of Sherman in District 18 who was also once elected on a left wing ticket and then went over to the reactionaries.

The capitalist press is already exultantly drawing its conclusions from the "moderate" tactics of McLeod. Whatever the outcome of the struggle, the left wing and the Communists have been a thousand times justified in their program— when they demanded amalgamation, a clean sweep of the yellow bureaucracy from the office, when they demand Canadian trade union autonomy, a Trades Congress with real executive power and international trade union unity.

WHATEVER the outcome of the struggle, the Communists and the left wing continue to make the nationalization of the mines under workers' control more of an issue than ever before. The immediate program that the Communist Party has been propagating, mines nationalization, a six hour day, a minimum wage and closer unification of the miners organizations in Canada must be pushed with the greatest possible vigor.

Labor Exchange Reorganization in U.S.S.R.

By I. RESSNIKOV.

APART from isolated cases prior to the revolution and mainly during the war, we must record that the real development of the labor exchange began only after the February revolution. Labor exchanges came into being as mediatory organs and retained this form also in the beginning of the post October revolution period. In connection with severe unemployment caused by the demobilization of the army and curtailment of industry, the labor exchanges extended their functions considerably, paying doles to the unemployed, organizing dining halls and night shelters for them, etc.

IN the epoch of military Communism when all able-bodied persons were obliged to work (with certain exceptions laid down by law), labor exchanges became state organs for the supply of labor power and formed part of local labor departments such as the sub-department of accountancy and distribution of labor power, which was the title under which they functioned until the introduction of the new economic policy. At that time it was not possible to employ people at will (an exception was made in the cause of persons whose work is of a confidential nature and in the case of experts.)

Since 1921, when the new economic policy began to operate, labor exchanges came again into being; whilst the obligation to engage labor thru the exchange remained in force.

Persons not registered at the labor exchange had no right to be engaged and employers of labor trangressing this rule had to answer for it before the law.

EXCEPTIONS were made in cases demanding political reliability or special knowledge on the part of the person to be engaged, and also in case the labor exchange could not satisfy the demand of the hirer within the stipulated time. In such cases the hired persons were registered at the labor exchange after their engagement.

Thus even in the period of NEP the monopoly of the labor exchange in connection with the hiring of labor, and obligatory registration of agreement remained in force.

Persons registered at the labor exchange could not be engaged out of their turn; this applied to all professions and occupations.

ENTERPRISES and institutions required carefully selected employes with a definite qualification. As the labor exchange had to observe the sequence on the register, it could not always give satisfaction to would-be-employers, and it invariably happened that considerably fewer persons were engaged than were sent by the labor exchange.

In view of this exceptions were allowed for a number of professions and posts when in accordance with specially published lists (such lists were published on several occasions) would-be employers could engage workers registering them subsequently at the labor exchange.

ON the one hand the obligation to hire labor thru the exchange resulted in those who had already found work, who went from one place of employment to another, being obliged to go again thru the labor exchange thereby increasing the number of those on the register.

On the other hand the fact that unemployed received doles and also enjoyed other privileges (they live almost rent free, pay very little for communal services and are almost free from taxation), caused a great influx into the labor exchange of fictitious unemployed, namely people who registered not in order to get employment, but merely to benefit by the privileges of unemployed workers.

HOW large was the percentage of these so-called unemployed can be judged by the results of the re-registration and of investigations which were made almost everywhere. For instance an investigation of all the cases of unemployment was carried out in Moscow in the autumn of 1924. As the result of this investigation 42,117 people were taken off the register of the labor exchange, namely 39.2 per cent of the total number of unemployed.

IT was discovered that among those who had registered as unemployed there were people who kept two servants, were the owners of shops and frequently whiled away the period of unemployment in Crimean sanatoria.

The labor exchanges were full to overflowing, and moreover many of those on the register were utterly unqualified people.

ACCORDING to the date given by Comrade Hindin in his pamphlet From the Labor Exchange to the Employment Bureau, out of the total number of registered unemployed there were on July 1, 1924, 26.2 per cent who had never worked for wages, and 7.8 per cent who had not done any work since Jan. 1, 1922, while 50 per cent of the unskilled workers had never worked for wages.

IN July, 1924, there were in Leningrad among the 146,000 unemployed over 90,000 women, most of them with no qualifications whatever. Out of the total number of unemployed 60,000 were unskilled workers mainly from the villages. To provide work for such an enormous number of people is of course extremely difficult even if it could be done systematically, and the fact that all these unemployed were registered at the labor exchange did not actually help them and greatly impeded the activity of the exchanges.

That is why it was proposed in the summer of 1924 that the labor exchanges be reorganized and be converted into employment bureaus.

The government monopoly in connection with the engagement of workers has been abolished.

PEOPLE may be engaged and can find work for themselves without having recourse to the labor exchange. The labor exchange itself becomes an ordinary employment bureau and registration there is voluntary.

Unemployment doles and various privileges are henceforth not dependent on registration at the labor exchange, but are granted in accordance with the economic position of the unemployed person. Unemployment doles are paid at the proper insurance bureaus and their branches. In order to prevent doles being paid to those who have already found work, the following method has been adopted in Leningrad: when a person is sent to work, or on the registration of that person on engagement without the assistance of the employment bureau, a note to this effect is made in the documents of the unemployed and as the same documents are required at the insurance bureau and for the registration of the contract, hence no abuses can take place.

Experience has shown that such a method is also very convenient for the unemployed, as they need now only to go to the insurance bureau.

REGISTRATION of unemployed at the employment bureau is voluntary. Moreover, the bureau does not register all unemploymed, but only in accordance with the demand. Those who wish to be registered have to undergo an examination as to their qualifications. This enables the employment bureau to send only people for whom there is a demand. The bureau does not give any certificates to the unemployed and is in no way responsible for them. The bureau does not make any charges to the unemployed for its services. A small initial fee is taken from the employers of labor.

BUT the abolition of the monopoly in connection with the engagement of workers does not mean that private employment bureaus can be established. In accordance with the law, the peoples' commissariat of labor and its organs retain monopolist rights as intermediaries in the connection with the engagement of workers.

In the interest of proper control all contracts between employers and workers must be registered.

AS to the control of unemployment thruout the country, trade union members have to register as before with their unions, which will be found quite sufficient. But of course those who are not registered in the employment bureaus, cannot be properly controlled. But if one takes into consideration that there are not more than 5-6 per cent out of the total number of manual and brain workers not registered in trade unions, one can see that only a very small number of people can escape control. Thus, statistics will not suffer much from this reform. Such in general is the character of the reform.

BEFORE dealing with the methods of its application and with its results, it is essential to ascertain what influence trade unions will have under the new conditions on the engagement of labor power, and also to what extent the interests of the organized workers will be safeguarded. For from the viewpoint of the trade unions this is of the utmost importance.

EMPLOYERS have the right to engage labor power to suit their requirements. But factory, workshop and local employe committees register the engagement of every newly engaged worker. Thus, trade union control over the engagement is even stronger than before. Moreover, special paragraphs are inserted into collective agreements making it incumbent on employers to give preference to trade union members, non-members being engaged only in the event of none of the trade union members being able to do the required work. At the same time the engagement of a nonunion worker must have the sanction of the union. These measures are a sufficient guarantee that trade union members' interests are safe, and experience has already given proof of this.

ANOTHER safeguard is that trade unions take a direct part in the establishment of employment bureaus and in the formation of these bureaus' committees. Altho there are representatives of economic and state organs in these bureaus and committees, the predominance of trade union influence in them is thereby guaranteed.

Of course the reform of the labor exchange does not solve the question of unemployment. But it certainly makes it easier to help the unemployed. And we see already that after the reform the number of unemployed sent to work is growing, and this in spite of the fact that those provided with temporary work are not taken into account.

THIS reform is all the more important as it has given an opportunity to ascertain the exact extent of unemployment, which turned out to be considerably less than the number of registered unemployed gave one reason to assume. At the same time it has made it much easier to give the unemployed effective help.

The Struggle of the Workers in Norway

By CHRISTIAN HILT
(Oslo, Norway)

AT the national conference for industrial peace in Oslo at the end of January, the director of the Norwegian State Bank, Arne Rygh, described the results of the wholesale lock-out in 1924 in the blackest colors and sharply opposed a repetition of the industrial conflict in the present year, maintaining that a fresh prolonged conflict would render in vain any attempt to stabilize prices and to raise the value of the currency. In view of the unceasing rise in prices the bank director could not deny that higher wages were justified.

Norway's "Gompers."

The national debt of Norway to the foreign and native capitalists has actually attained such enormous dimensions that a real increase of wages cannot be granted without a considerable reduction of profits. Of the state budget, which amounts to about 350 millions Norwegian crowns, 130 million crowns are devoted to payment of interest. The government has only granted the sum of 4.5 million crowns for bonuses to civil servants on account of high prices. An all-round increase of wages of the civil servants would completely wreck the state budget, which for several years has shown a huge deficit. Private industry, which is not on a high level of development in Norway is working under great difficulties which have been reflected in a number of great bank failures during the last few years. The situation is so serious that a sudden fluctuation in the value of the currency—be it either up or down—would involve disastrous consequences for the state finances and for the whole of the capitalist economic life.

Demand Sacrifices from Workers.

These facts must be borne in mind when judging the present political situation in Norway. For the capitalists and their government the sole question is "restoration of financial life" and therefore the interest of the country is at present concentrated upon the course of the negotiations between the employers and the trade unions regarding the new wage regulations in the collective treaties.

On the day before the commencement of the wage negotiations the chairman of the Norwegian General Federation of Trade Unions Ole O. Lian suddenly died. His successor as the representative of the workers in the negotiations, the chairman of the Metal Workers Union, Halvard Olsen has already in a speech declared himself in favor of the prolongation of the collective treaty without wage increases.

The negotiations after proceeding for a week, were broken off. The national arbitrator will now make his attempts to arbitrate as prescribed by law. And should they also fail, the liberal government is prepared to prevent a strike by an arbitration law. Probably a majority of liberals, agrarians, conservatives and social democrats will pass the law in the storthing. The workers will thus be palmed off with trifling wage increases and the trade union bureaucrats as well as the capitalists, will be able to breathe again.

Communists Demand Conference

The Communist members of the trade unions have attempted to force the discussion of the trade union tactics for the fight against high prices, unemployment and class justice by a national conference until Easter—after the conclusion of the negotiations.

The Communist Party of Norway thereupon applied to the General Trade Union Federation of Norway with the suggestion that the latter should convene a general workers' conference to deal with these questions. This demand was rejected by the reformists. Such serious questions must not be dealt with by unqualified bodies! Instead of this the executives of the trade unions have been called together and when the thing is finally settled, the Trade Union Congress, which would not in the ordinary way be held until 1926, will probably be convened in the course of the summer or autumn in order to endorse the activity of the secretariat and to elect a successor to Ole O. Lian as chairman of the General Trades Union Federation.

Financial Condition Serious.

The death of the reformist leader of the Trade Union Federation, Ole O. Lian, has caused equally profound regret in capitalist cricles in Norway as did the death of the Swedish social democratic state minister Branting and the death of the German President Ebert. The whole bourgeois press recognized in him a gifted leader. The president of the storthing, Lykke, delivered a memorial speech in parliament, on the day of his funeral the employers allowed the workers to cease work at 12 o'clock, the bourgeois State Minister Mowinchel was present in person at the funeral celebrations at the workers' headquarters, and even the king sent a wreath. The chief organ of he Norwegian labor party, 'Arbeitedbladet' in spite of its well-known "Leninist" attitude, took part with the bourgeoisie in lauding Lian. The editor, Tranmael, who as leader of the trade union opposition had for years bitterly opposed the bureaucrat Lian, now fiercely attacked the chief organ of the Communist Party of Norway, Norges Kommunistblad because it had ventured in its obituary article to express the truth that the course followed by the reformist Lian could only result in the ruin of the Norwegian labor movement.

The storthing decided some days ago to forbid speeches and demonstrations in the neighborhood of the storthing. The occasion for this was that Comrade Mauseth, at the end of January as the leader of a deputation of unemployed, after the demands of the unemployed were rejected by the government, in a speech delivered outside the storthing referred to the first president as the "scoundrel Lykke" and called out: "Long Live the Soviet Republic of Norway!" This characterization of President Lykke was quite correct. President Lykke is the chairman of the enlarged board of directors of the Norwegian Commercial Bank, and as such has violated his obligations as president of the storthing in concealing from the storthing the former secret gifts of millions to this bank when the Storthing proceeded to grant it further millions.

When this "insult" of the president by the "seditious" Comrade Mauseth was dealth with in the storthing the members of the labor party and the social democrats, along with the bourgeois parties, sharply condemned this "rude" and "coarse" abuse, and four representatives of the social democratic group even voted for the prohibition of speeches in the neighborhood of the storthing as mentioned above.

The workers of Norway have only one choice: either they must follow the lead of the reformists and help the capitalists "to restore economic life," which means increased exploitation and robbery, or they must follow the Communists and overthrow the capitalists dictatorship. The latter means irreconciliable fight against the capitalists state, against the armed white guards, and before all fight against the reformist trade union bureaucrats, whose task it is to avoid this struggle by every possible means.

ANOTHER FORM OF CHILD LABOR

Recent investigation made by a member of the Cincinnati Juvenile Protective Association brings to light a form of exploitation of children that has not been known heretofore. We are all more or less acquainted with the exploitation in the canning factories, in the textile mills, in the sweatshops. But how many of us know of the way talented children of the working class are being exploited every night in the theaters?

The theater immediately is associated in our minds with fat envelopes. The child on the stage is regarded a fortunate little being possessing talent for which his parents receives big compensation.

But this is what the report tells us:

"Fifty children employed in so-called amateur night performances were studied. It was found that the children were engaged by regular booking agents and paid anywhere from 50 cents to $3 a night. Conditions under which the children work were found frequently to constitute a menace to both health and morals."

Housing Problem of New York Workers

By MAX REISUL.

GOVERNOR SMITH of New York at the annual dinner of the West Chester County Chamber of Commerce held in Biltmore Hotel appealed for support for his proposition ed for support for his proosed constitutional amendment to the New York state constitution to empower the state to issue bonds for $300,000,000 for elimination of railroad grade crossings in New York state.

Mayor Hylan advocates an amendment to the same ill-fated constitution to empower the state to issue bonds for $275,000,000 for subway construction.

About the same time the commission on housing of New York state issued a report advocating a constitutional amendment to the same constitution to empower the state to approprite funds for credits for building houses in New York City since the housing condition here is now worse than ever before, two-thirds of the people who cannot afford to pay more than $9 per room being in a miserable plight.

The Smith and Hylan amendments were introduced in the form of bills in Albany.

Not a move has been made in Albany, not a word has been spoken, by the "friends of labor" who are in power, for the constitutional amendment to relieve the housing conditions.

These "friends of labor," these capitalistic bloodhounds can readily find nearly $600,000,000—they can readily find hundreds of millions of dollars when it comes to hand them over to robbing railroad companies, or to make political capital for themselves.

But when it is a question of actual relief for workers from the sky high rent burden, thru state aid—these same "friends of workers" mysteriously disappear.

Governor Smith says that elimination of grade crossings is necessary to protect human life and not only human life, but also property values. Here is where the cat comes out of the bag; altho he sheds a tear for life, his heart really pangs for property values. He says that in elevent months of 1924, 122 persons were killed at dangerous crossings, and not only that happened, but business development is arrested by present conditions.

We doubt if Governor Smith would appeal for credit of $300,000,000 to protect 122 persons from being killed at crossings if property values were not increased. The report on industrial conditions in America shows that 2,500,000 industrial accidents to workers happened in one year, of which more than 23,000 proved to be fatal.

But Governor Smith never suggested to the state legislature to appeal to congress to end this industrial massacre. But here property values are adversely involved. He does not appeal for an amendment to force the railroad companies to eliminate dangerous crossings so as to protect human life. He does not do that. If he did, thel companies would raise such a howl against which neither Governor Smith nor his party could make a stand.

But he does appeal to the people, under cover of protecting human life, to spend the grand total of $300,000,000 to make possible, thru business expansion the rise of property values.

Mayor Hylan appeal for $275,000,000 for subways. Subways are necessary, no denying that. But of first necessity to workers is cheap rent in modern, sanitary, dwellings, not in New York City fire traps. Such dwellings at the moment are of importance which far behind the question of subways and street car fare.

Mayor Hylan never spoke of credits for house building. He could not; he speaks for the landlords. So he make a noise about 5 cent fare which is only a boomerang. Since workers have to pay for rents nearly 30 per cent of their wages. But he is deaf and dumb about an appeal for funds to build houses.

The workers of New York state can only be protected if the state government will force the railroad companies to eliminate crossings, meanwhile appropriating funds, the same sum total of odd $600,000,000 for which the capitalistic adventurers are claiming,—and use that total to build houses and subways.

But this will never be done by a government which is only the political executive committee of the capitalist class.

Only a workers' government will do that. Working men and working women, demand that New York state shall build comfortable dwellings and rent them to you at cost price.

Demand that the city be allowed means to build subways and run them at cost.

This you can expect only of the Workers Party of America.

Demand it right now and support the Workers Party.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Here's a Great Idea from Moscow via Milwaukee.

Fomenko, Yoker and Meyer of South Bend YOU ARE CHALLENGED!

Comrade Shklar, City DAILY WORKER Agent for Milwaukee, has a dangerous habit: he reads Russian Bolshevik papers! And from them he gets these dangerous ideas (to capitalism):

Milwaukee, Wis., April 14, 1925.

The DAILY WORKER, Builders' Column,

Dear Comrades: Recently in Russia, when the Soviet government was floating the gold loan it was customary for the workers subscribing to the loan to name their comrades in the same city or in the distant point calling upon them to do their share. It was a call and a challenge. It worked something like this. Ivan Ivanovich in Moscow would write: "I subscribe to a ten rouble bond and call upon Stepan and Mary of Leningrad to do the same." I wonder if we could not do the same in our second annual sub-drive? Let me start the ball rolling. I am sending you three subscriptions to the paper and call upon Comrades Vera Fomenko, Yoker and Meyer of South Bend, Ind., to do the same.

What is wrong with South Bend? It used to be a pretty active town. And now they are not on the list. I expect to hear a reply to my challenge in the near future.

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

The Mexican Paintings of Maurice Becker

MAURICE BECKER has for the past ten years been one of American labor's foremost cartoonists. He began his work as an artist on the old Masses, that landmark in the revolutionary literature of America. Becker contributed some of his most smashing and brilliant cartoons to that magazine, and he also served for a period on the New York Call, and for several years was the chief cartoonist of the I. W. W. periodicals in Chicago.

HIS cartoons are remembered for their boldness, their swift, powerful lines, and for their whole-hearted revolutionary fervor and understanding. They ranked with the best work of Robert Minor and Boardman Robinson, and that is saying a great deal; in fact, it is like saying that Maurice Becker was not only in the first rank of the revolution in America, but he was also in the first rank among cartoonists.

For the past few years few cartoons have appeared from the pen of Maurice Becker. One wondered what he was doing, and now the answer comes in the form of an exhibition of his water color and paintings at the Neumann galleries, East 57th street, New York City.

IT always does a lot of good to one who is interested both in art and revolution, and finds it hard to disentangle these two creative activities in his imnd, to visit an exhibition such as Maurice Becker's. For here one finds that the discipline, the passion and the social vision that made Maurice Becker a labor cartoonist have helped him also in being a great artist.

The paintings and water colors were all done in Mexico, where Becker spent the last two years. A sophisticated Greenwich Village artist, with a contempt for workers and peasants and the strong, simple realities of life, could not have caught the spirit of Mexico as has Maurice Becker.

WITH a broad human warmth he paints the faces and forms of the Mexican peon men and women. They are naive people, close to the earth and the sun, but Becker does not regard them as merely quaint or picturesque; he is not that kind of an artist. He regards them as he once regarded workers in his cartoons, as forces of nature, as human beings, as equals. He understands these Mexican peons—their strength and their weakness, their childishness and maturity. He does not prettify them or sentimentalize them; he does not perfume them or pin pink ribbons on them; these are not the well-dressed poster-people in the Zulouoga paintings, for instance, but crude, sweaty, primitive folk—workers, not artists' models.

THERE has been much talk in recent years of proletarian art and bourgeois art. What I feel, however, is that such work as Maurice Becker's falls somehow into the category of proletarian art. It has the glamor and solidity of truth, and it presents a whole race of peasants and workers with the simple understanding of one who is a worker and revolutionary worker himself.

IT is fine, massive work. Becker has learned how to make paint and brush do what he wants them to do. He has not made the mistake of so many proletarian artists of believing that technique is unimportant, and that the spirit of a thing only matters. Becker's spirit is still proletarian, but he has learned the tools of his art. In some of his paintings one gets the impression of a bold young master, slashing his way thru difficulties and speaking with sureness and vigor.

In other paintings, such as that of three peon figures, there is a deep emotion that comes from the roots of the tree of life. The static eternal nature of the Mexican land and the Mexican Indian have been felt here and caught in paint.

HIS water colors were a surprise to me. There is always about Becker's paintings a heavy richness, like that which steams from fresh upturned loam. But these water colors are full of air and delicacy; they are like the light, frangrant wind which plays above the newly polughed earth in spring. They are bright and happy in color; the paintings glow like rich Oriental carpets, but the water colors sparkle like morning dew.

I AM not a professional art critic, but Maurice Becker's work always gives me deep emotional satisfaction, and I know that others find the same emotion roused in them by these deep, sincere paintings of the artist. Is that not a test of great art? What a lot of hypocrisy there is in art, and how much fake emotion a professional art critic has to pump up in the course of a year's exhibitions! But no critic has had to perform this for Maurice Becker—his work has the appeal of all sincere and natural things—it grew in the sunlight and primitive valleys of Mexico, and those who do not like it are those who are not fond of sunlight and clean air.

Maurice Becker ought to receive the congratulations of his labor friends. He has arrived as an artist, but he has lost none of the human sincerity and passion that made him a revolutionist. How rare that is in America!

Michael Gold.

Machine Rhythms Featured in a Dance Satire

By ESTHER LOWELL.

Against a silhouetted factory background and with great cogged wheel designs overhead, sounds of taxis, street cars, whirring machines, the factory girl puppets with their gray masked faces move in the work rhythms of the machine age in Sooner or Later, a dance satire by Irene Lewisohn which the Neighborhood Playhouse is producing in New York. A traffic puppet policeman motions on one side and a puppet tailor gesticulates. A taxi puppet droops and runs his toy machine alternately. A jazz couple of puppets shimmy across the stage. And after the whistle blows they go to their relaxation; a very much gilded revue. The peasant girls wear red, white and blue striped dresses that flash gold. This is Today.

The past's rhythms are shown in a scene of a wild tribe praying and performing a ritual around the headsman. The tribal workmen and women bring their offerings of work done to the headsman and dance again. The future is shown as a crystalline age, the result of the present highly mecnanical and scientific age's development. Crystalline workers are shown at work against a moving light background projected by the clavilux, a color organ which projects colored lights in various evolving forms. The workers are tested for their vibrations before being permitted to attend their evening pleasures, which are mainly by radio.

The preliminary dance interlude of the evening is a medieval scene in which a group of strolling players admirably presents a miracle play in which King David and the Virgin Mary themselves participate in person. This bill of the Neighborhood Players, whose playhouse is in the lower eastside working class district of New York, is one of its most interesting. The 2,000 year old Hindu play, The Little Clay Cart, was also very attractive. James Joyce's play of intellectuals in Dublin (or anywhere) showed the dramatic power of a purely mental struggle on the stage in their presentation.

Skopp, Fine Musician But Lacks Experience to Put Concert Over

Charles Skopp, the young violinist who played a recital at Kimball Hall presented a far from unfamiliar picture—that of the sincere, well-schooled musician with the technique but not the experience to put over a concert in first class shape.

He opened with the first movement of the Paganini concerto, and was obviously rattled during the playing of this long but interested movement by the ill-timed applause of an audience that thot every time he removed his bow from his violin that he had finished.

Following was a long and fairly dry set of finger exercises by Bach, called a sonata but really a suite in four movements. It was unaccompanied, as are many of the Bach violin works. The unaccompanied solo is undoubtedly the most satisfactory sort of solo, viewed from all angles, and, after Skopp had conquered his nervousness during the first movement of the sonata, he carried it off in fine shape.

The compositions that followed, all of them of less pretentious size than the first two, gave the soloist a chance to show the purity of his tone, and the light, fast touch of his fingers and bow. He was especially good in the ballet music of Schubert's "Rosamunde," the chorus of dervishes in Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens," and encore called "The Bee."

When he grows the hardboiled shell of the experienced concertizer, Skopp will be a splendid violinist.

pation of the factories, which however is disregarded by the masses.

The workers wish to take up the struggle now, while the government, with the approval of the trade union bureaucrats, wishes to evade the struggle. This objective and even direct help to the capitalists and their state will destroy the democratic illusions of the working class. Every act of the bourgeoisie will tend to increase the influence of the Communist Party of Sweden upon the masses. The approaching struggles in Sweden and the present position of the workers and small peasants confronts the Communist Party of Sweden with great tasks. The splitting off of the Hoeglund sect with its petty bourgeois and pseudo-revolutionary phraseology was the first step towards the bolshevizing of the party. The struggles which are approaching will be a fiery test for it. The bourgeoisie and their lackeys fear the spectre of bolshevism, but the workers will recognize more clearly that the Communist Party of Sweden is their party and will fight for its slogans.

R. I. L. U. Send Greetings.

Moscow, March 23, 1925.

The Red International of Labor Unions has sent the following telegram into the locked-out workers of Sweden:

The capitalists, strong thru their class solidarity and class consciousness, have declared war on you. It is the duty of every labor organization to render help to their class comrades who are being attacked by capital.

The Red International of Labor Unions and the General Council of the Trade Unions of the Soviet Union send you their fraternal greetings and are ready to support you to the utmost of their powers.

We hope that, thanks to the discipline and the fighting spirit of the bloc of the Scandinavian workers, the attack of the bloc of the employers will be shattered.

Up with the united front against the attack of capital!

Up with the unity of the trade union movement!

AS WE SEE

By T. J. O'FLAH

THERE is a revolt in Portugal. Quite like one of the customary army rebellions against the government, due to lack of pork chops and summer underwear. Of course, the Communist International is getting the credit for it, tho the paid liars of the capitalist press have not yet concocted the particulars of the instructions sent out by Zinoviev, or the exact numbers of rubles with which the army leaders were corrupted. But that will come in a day or two.

• • •

THE capitalist liars are too busy just now forging fake letters from Zinoviev to the Bulgarian Communists, and have not time to "get the goods" on the Portuguese revolt. It was not exactly proper for Zinoviev to order two revolutions at the same time. If the Communist international wants to gain in popularity with the capitalist press, it must select a chair. man who will plan revolutions so that half a dozen of them don't keep happening at once, and then a big long spell without even an explosion in a dynamite factory.

THE bomb that killed 160 fascists in Sofia, is laid at the door of the Communist International. The Chicago Tribune liar in Constantinople goes far as to give the names of the persons who are alleged to have carried out Zinoviev's orders. It gives the amount of money Moscow poured into Bulgaria. It even gives the exact words of the letter Zinoviev is alleged to have written to the Soviet embassy in Constantinople which this lying pervert says is the headquarters for Communist plotting in that region. This is just what we expected would happen.

OUR readers recollect the famous Zinoviev forgery, that was exploded on the British public a few days before the election. The Communist International demanded that the British government prove that its charge was based on facts, but the tories refused to do anything about it once it had accomplished its purpose, which was the discrediting of the labor party in the eyes of enough working class and middle class voters to insure victory for the tories. After the elections were over the British government conveniently forgot the incident, tho it was used in this country and elsewhere by the socialists and the bourgeois press.

THE American workers will not shed any tears of sorrow over the deaths of the murderous crew that fell in Sofia a few days ago. They owe their positions to association thru the dagger, the bomb and the bullet. That they are getting their own medicine back, was to be expected. But assassination is not a Communist weapon and this fact is known to the liars of the capitalist press. Individual acts of terror or violence are denounced by the Communist movement. These were the weapons of the social revolutionaries in Russia and the activist anarchist school. The Bulgarian Com. munists are organizing to overthrow the fascist regime by the use of mass force and not individual terror.

• • •

ONLY recently we published an article in the DAILY WORKER showing that Bulgarian ambassadors in Italy, England and other countries were engaged in a plot to get rid of their political opponents by assassination. Their intended victims were Communists and leaders in nationalist minority movements. Several Com.

Boss Asks Injunction Against Striking New York Shoe Workers

NEW YORK CITY, April 19.—The workers of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union are standing so firm for recognition of their union in the strike against the shops of the United Shoe Rebuilding Co., Inc., in New York, that Arthur Freedman, the president of this company is resorting to the old standby of every boss in trouble, the injunction.

He has applied to the state supreme court of New York for an injunction against Joseph Stano, president, and Pascal Cosgrove, organizer, of Local 64, of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union. The hearing will be Tuesday, April 21.

NEW CABINET TO BOOST TAXES ON FRENCH WORKERS

Levy on Rich Is Forgotten

PARIS, France, April 19.—Minister of Finance Joseph Caillaux, the "strong man" of the new ministry formed by Paul Painleve with the support of the socialists, favors increasing the tax burden on the workers and peasants of France as the only remedy for the French government's financial crisis.

Borah Agrees With Plutes.

The same view is taken by the Wall Street bankers and the financial powers of Great Britain. Officials of the Bank of England stated not long ago that the taxes on the people of France must be increased.

Senator Borah, when he heard of Caillaux's statement said: "Caillaux is credited with saying that he is in favor of drastic measures of economy and heavier taxes. This is the remedy."

The American and English financial power are anxious to secure the billions of dollars in war debts owed them by France.

Repudiate Scheme

Caillaux, in bidding for the support of the radical socialist party said: "The French people will have to make still heavier sacrifices to restore her finances."

The scheme of taxing the capitalists is said to be opposed by Caillaux, and seems to have been shoved into the background.

Differences are already springing up among the various groups represented in the government. Aristide Briand, new minister of foreign affairs, advocates the maintenance of a French ambassador at the vatican, whereas the majority of the French chamber of deputies is opposed to this move.

Former Premier Herriot has agreed to become the new president of the chamber of deputies.

RETAIL FOOD PRICES JUMP FIVE PER CENT IN YEAR WITH CLIMB OF 56 PER CENT IN 12 YEARS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Retail food prices jumped 5 per cent during the last year, from March 15, 1924, to March 15, 1925, alhto there was a decrease of three-tenths of one per cent during March as compared with February, the department of labor announces. For the 12-year period food prices increased 56 per cent.

Twenty-five food articles increased in price, pork chops heading the list with an increase of 23 per cent. Butter increased 10 per cent, bacon 9 per cent and ham 6 per cent.

Among the cities showing increases were: Detroit and Peoria, 2 per cent; Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Milwaukee and Springfield, Ill., one per cent.

JAPAN FEDERATION OF LABOR IS FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY; AIDS WORKERS RELIEF

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, April 19.—A letter received by the international headquarters of the International Workers' Aid in Berlin, from the president of the Japanese General Federation of Labor, Bunji Susuki, indicates that the swing to the left that began in the Japanese labor movement several years ago is still in progress.

Until 1922 the General Federation of Labor had been a hot-bed of conservatism and class-collaboration. Susuki himself was looked upon as a Japanese Gompers. The federation existed by grace of the crown, it was set against strikes, and admitted capitalists into its ranks.

Rapid Change.

But at the 1922 congress of the federation a change took place. A definite stand was taken against capitalists and capitalism and strikes finally regarded as the only weapon of the workers. Susuki, also seems to have changed greatly since the time, a number of years ago when he came as a very welcome fraternal delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention on invitation of Gompers.

For World Trade Union Unity.

Susuki writes, thru Nishio, secretary of the federation, "We eagerly hope for the world-wide unification of the toiling masses of all lands, and are watching with attention and expectation the proceeding of unity of the two international federations of trade unions, Moscow and Amsterdam."

After congratulating the International Workers' Aid on its efforts to relieve suffering and persecuted workers the world over, Susuki says, "As to your request to publish the appeal for help of fellow-workers threatened by hunger and starvation in Germany and eastern parts of Europe, I am very glad to say that I will publish it in the latest number of the official organ of our federation."

The Japanese federation's endorsement of world trade union unity is a sure sign that the Japanese workers' movement has been very much clarified in the last several years.

Surprise Witness in Oil Trial Falls Flat

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 19.—The defense attorneys for Burton K. Wheeler, Montana senator on trial charged with using his office on behalf of oil company clients, will ask Judge Dietrich to instruct the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty, it was learned today.

The prosecution unloosed its heavy gun in the much heralded surprise witness, who turned out to be Edward M. Harvey, of Eugene, Oregon. Harvey missed fire badly, denying he had ever said he heard Wheeler discussing oil permits.

Harvey declared Wheeler was employed by Gordon Campbell, oil promotor, olny to handle a receivership suit against Campbell's company before Montana courts, and not, as

WOMEN MUST WORK TO FIGHT WOLF OF WANT, U. S. GOVERNMENT ADMITS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Women in industry learn to work to keep the wolf of want away, is the confession of the department of labor.

In a survey covering four pivotal cities of the country, Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jacksonville, Fla., Butte, Mont., and Passaic, N. J., the department found that women do not work for money to buy silk stockings, but work because they have to sustain life.

Of the 40,000 women workers in these points, one-half were, or had been married and the majority of these were living with their husbands and enacting the dual role of mother and bread winner, the survey showed.

IRON HEEL OF THE GOVERNMENT AID TO MINE BARONS

Six Miners Held in Jail for Violating Writ

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WHEELING, W. Va., April 19.—Coal miners, out on strike at the call of the United Mine Workers of America, in the four Panhandle counties of West Virginia, are feeling the iron heel of the federal government combined with the coal operators.

Six miners employed by the Richland Coal company are in jail charged with violation of a federal injunction two years old, and the operators are evicting the families of strikers.

Must Put All In Jail

The arrested men are, by the policy of the union, refusing to furnish bond and Sub-District President Ledvinka states:

> "If the operators intend to control the state and county, as they seem to be trying to do, they will have to put us all in jail first."

That a further move which may result in wholesale imprisonment of injunction violators, providing the miners have enough spunk to defy an injunction en masse, is contemplated, is seen in the statement of the operators that an effort is likely to be made to secure a blanket injunction against unionization to cover the entire state. Other operators claim that they want a blanket injunction to run the union out of Marshall county alone.

Ledvinka charges that the Richland Coal company is evicting families of miners without allowing the legal 30 day notice supposed to be given oc-

COMMUNISTS IN BIG SCHOOL FIGHT IN LOS ANGELES

Levin Is Candidate of Party for Board

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 19.—Under the slogans of "Education for Service—Not for Profits," and "Let the Teachers Run the Schools," the Workers (Communist) Party has launched an intensive campaign here for the election of its candidate, Emanuel Levin, as a member of the board of education, at the polls next month.

Workers Listen to Communists.

Hundreds of workers listened to the Communist speakers at the first meeting of the campaign held in Boyle's Heights, corner of Brooklyn and State. In addition to the speech by the candidate, Levin, S. A. Baker also spoke in English, and Comrade Karpiloff in Jewish. Tonight an enthusiastic meeting was held in San Pedro Harbor, scene of the free speech fight during the Marine Transport Workers' strike.

Other meetings have been planned as follows: April 21, Boyle's Heights; April 23, San Pedro Harbor, and April 25, Boyle's Heights.

The party platform, which pledges its candidate to work for "the establishment of a Communist society" is in full as follows:

Ella Reeve Bloor and Tom Lewis, two of the parties most able speakers, are expected to assist during the closing weeks of the Communist campaign.

COAL MINERS OF WASHINGTON FEEL HEEL OF THE DAWES PLAN; SHIPLOAD OF GERMAN COKE ARRIVES

TACOMA, Wash., Apr. 19.—Tacoma workers have received an object lesson in the benefits (?) of the Dawes-Morgan reparations plan. A shipload of coke from Germany has just been unloaded at the Tacoma smelter.

There are several mines within a few miles of Tacoma which produce good coking coal. But because of the long hours and low wages in German coal mines and coke plants, as a result of the Dawes plan, it is cheaper to bring coke half way around the world.

The copper trust's Tacoma smelter is notorious for hard work and low wages. Common labor is always in demand there, for the workers never stay more than a few days. They get a stake of a few dollars, then quit to look for a better job. And then they must buy new clothes, for after one day there not only overalls, but every garment becomes so filled with ore dust that it is ruined for wearing at any other work.

MAINTAIN PASSPORT SYSTEM TO KEEP CHECK ON THE IMMIGRANTS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Notes have been addressed to Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Spain and other nations proposing to abolish passport visas fees on a reciprocal basis, the state department announced today.

The passport system will be retained, however, it was announced, as it is needed to keep a check on immigrants coming into the United States. The abolition of fees will go into effect as soon as any of the individual nations approached agree to abolish fees they now charge to visa American passports.

ZANKOV BANS NEWS; TERROR ORGY REIGNS

Seek to Fasten Bomb on Communists

VIENNA,. April. 19—The. strictest censorship prevails in Bulgaria and only news officially sanctioned by the fascist dictatorship is allowed to go out over the wires. Considerable news is seeping thru the frontiers however.

As far as can be gathered, the Zankov government is raiding working class and peasant homes and arresting and murdering Communist leaders. With orders to shoot suspicious persons on sight, it is feared that the fascists will take advantage of the hysteria to murder the most dangerous of their opponents.

Reported Confession.

One inspired news dispatch declares that the beadle of the Sveit Cathedral where the explosion took place confessed complicity in the affair, and named alleged Communist leaders. This confirms the suspicion that the murder gang now in control of the Sofia government will use the occasion to make another attempt to crush the Communist Party which has been making great headway among the workers and peasants.

All capitalist press agencies are trying to fasten the bomb plot on the Communist but the Bulgarian workers and peasants are too well acquainted with the murderous character of the Zankov regime, to believe this propaganda.

REPORT SAYS LEWIS AND 'BESCO' ARE FIXING CAPE BRETON STRIKE

HALIFAX, N. S., April 19.—Progress was made towards a settlement of the strike in the Cape Breton district, where 12,000 miners are out, according to reports yesterday.

John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Premier Armstrong, and Vice-President McClurg of the Besco Co. where the strike occurred, were decidedly optimistic after a conference.

MEXICANS RAISE ALARM AGAINST U. S. IMPERIALISM

Communist Progress Is Very Encouraging

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MEXICO CITY, April 10, (By Mail)—With the shadow of Wall Street looming larger and larger over Latin America, the third annual congress of the Communist Party of Mexico, which opened in this city on Tuesday, is debating and planning, as one of the vital immediate tasks confronting the Mexican workers, the struggle against American imperialism.

Show International Solidarity.

One of the first actions of the congress was to pass a resolution of solidarity with C. E. Ruthenburg, William Z. Foster and the other American Communists indicted in Michigan. A strong resolution of protest against the contemplated legal murder of Sacco and Vanzetti was also adopted and a copy sent to the American embassy here.

The wide representation at the congress is a sign of the remarkable progress made by the Communist Party of Mexico during the past year. The overwhelming majority of the delegates are workers and peasants, direct from the shops, mines and fields. Among them are one or two notable figures. For instance, Ursulo Galvan, who besides being an active Communist, is the beloved and trusted leader of 325,000 peasants of the state of Vera Cruz, organized in the "Liga de Comunidades Agrarias."

There is also Luis G. Monzon, Communist senator from San Luis Potosi, who recently stood up in the Mexican senate and read off his instructions from the Communist Party, announcing that he was going to carry them out to the letter.

Raise Alarm Against U. S.

Thruout all the discussions the prevailing note is one of alarm against American imperialism. The report on the economic and political situation showed that American capital dominates practically every strategic point in Mexican industry, especially the mines and oil fields, where British capital has already been relegated far to the rear.

The "labor government" of Mexico was shown to be a willing tool of Wall Street, the central points of government policy being the fulfillment of the iniquitous Lamont-de la Huerta treaty and the destruction of railroad unions preparatory to turning the roads back to British and American owners.

In the Regional Confederation of Labor (C. R. O. M.), closely connected with the Calles government thru

Dawes Gets Usual Welcome from His Millionaire Friends

BOSTON, Mass., April 19.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, millionaire gas and oil stockholder, did his stuff again before another chamber of commerce audience. Dawes spoke before the governor of Massachusetts, the mayor of Boston, and several hundred merchants, bankers, shipowners and textile magnates, the latter including Senator William Morgan Butler, one of President Coolidge's advisors.

Dawes advocated change of the senate rules to give the senate less power and the supreme court and president more power. Dawes is always sure of a welcome when speaking before his millionaire friends, and therefore makes most of his speeches before chambers of commerce.

T. U. E. L. General Meet Wed., April 29, 8 P. M.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Trade Union Educational League general group will be held Wednesday, April 29, at 8 p. m., at North West Hall, corner North and Western Aves. An interesting series of reports on the progress of the militants in the Chicago trade union movement will be given. All militant and progressive trade unionists are invited to attend this important meeting.

LOWDEN CONFESSES FAKE FIGURES DO NOT GET FARMERS PROSPERITY

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Despite optimistic statements of eastern financiers, the American agricultural situation has not cleared up, it was declared today by ex-governor of Illinois Frank O. Lowden, following a conference with the president.

Lowden, one of the biggest farmers in Illinois, condemned those "who seek by sets of figures to prove to their own satisfaction, that the farmer is in good shape.

"One of the chief drawbacks to the solving of the farm problem is the refusal of so many responsible men to admit true conditions," he said.

KLUXER, SOUGHT FOR KILLING OF GIRL, MISSING

Dead Victim's Mother Critically Ill

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 19. — David C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the ku klux klan, and well known employer and politician, who has been indicted for first degree murder, charged with being responsible for the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, is thought to be conferring with his attorneys.

Stephenson, together with Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, have been missing since first degree murder indictments were returned against all three by the Marion county grand jury. Gentry and Klenck are charged with being accomplices in the alleged attack on Miss Oberholtzer which resulted in her death after she had taken poison and had been refused medical aid by her captors.

Former Wife Sues.

Dr. John Kingsbury, one of the klansmen's accusers, was the first physician to attend Miss Oberholtzer. He said the girl suffered intensely before her death from three large wounds on her body, alleged to have been received during the attack mentioned in the indictment.

Miss Oberholtzer's mother is critically ill as the result of the shock of her daughter's tragic death.

Stephenson's former wife, Mrs. Nettie Stephenson Brehm, of Poteau, Okla., has brought suit against the klansman for $16,795, charging that he has failed to support their eight-year-old daughter, Florence Stephenson.

Indicted on Four Counts.

Briefly, the indictments charged:

"1. On March 16, the defendants (Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry) placed Madge Oberholtzer in a sleeping car bound for Hammond, Ind., and assaulted her. In Hammond, they forced her to occupy a room in a hotel with Stephenson. Because of the pain and shame she suffered, Miss Oberholtzer swallowed poison.

"The defendants refused to obtain medical aid for her. On March 17, they returned her to Indianapolis in a motor car and held her forcibly until about noon on March 18.

"2. The defendants caused to be administered to Miss Oberholtzer bichloride of mercury tablets which she took thru fear, duress and compulsion.

"3. On March 16 the defendants made an assault upon the body and person of Madge Oberholtzer from which she died.

"4. Altho knowing that she had taken poison, the defendants refused to give the gril medical attention."

Immediately after the grand jury sent down the indictment, the arrest of Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry was ordered. Because of the seriousness of the charges, they cannot be admitted to bail.

Firetrap Home Claims Lives of Family of 5

MARSHFIELD, Ore., April 19.—An entire family of five were burned to death here early today when flames swept their home.

The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hoops and children, Vernon 17, Herman 10, and Ruth 13.

Hopps and his two sons were apparently suffocated while asleep. The bodies of Ruth and Herman were found in a hall way.

Information is given gratis, on all matters pertaining to immigration, also regarding immigrants detained at ports of entry, those stranded in European ports or in transit. This information bureau is open from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m., every day except Saturday, and Thursday evenings until 7:00 p. m.

REVOLT IN PORTUGAL THREATENS GOVERNMENT OF PRESIDENT GOMES; MANY DIE IN STREET FIGHTING

LISBON, Portugal, April 19.—An army revolt, said to be led by Major Filomeno Camara, has broken out here, and street fighting has occurred, in which many were killed and wounded.

A strict censorship has been ordered, to prevent the outside world from learning of the serious nature of the revolt, which aims to overthrow the present government, headed by President Teixeira Gomes.

The DAILY WORKER printed a story on April 16, in which a letter from an army officer declared, "The army may have to drive out all politicians, cleanse all the posts occupied now by thieves and traitors, and hand the administration of the state of Portugal to citizens who deserve that name." The letter declared that "the Portuguese soldiers are starving under their gilt braid."

Los Angeles Communists in School Fight

petuate the capitalist system, I, the working class candidate demand that:

Our school system be changed to train and fit the child and youth to be citizens in a society based upon production for use and not for profit; in a society in which the means of production and distribution and natural resources are in the hands of the workers and farmers.

The working class has no voice or influence in shaping the educational policies of our school system. The existing educational system antagonizes the school children against organised labor.

The text books used, the military training and so-called "patriotic observances" are no more than means to mold the child into an instrument for the interest of the capitalists as against the interests of the working class. This was seen in the world war and in every strike for better conditions in which the workers have been engaged.

The teachers are deprived of their rights to express their views on social and political problems out of fear of losing their positions.

The working class districts are the last in which school improvements are made or new school buildings erected, while the wealthy residential sections are given first consideration.

Buildings are constructed and improvements are made under open shop conditions.

The purchase of school equipment and building construction are controlled by those who are financially interested in the contracts either directly or indirectly.

To realize the benefits the workers should derive from the schools and colleges I propose the following:

EDUCATION

(a) That history text books used at present in our public schools be thoroly revised and only such text books that conform with the established scientific and historical facts be used.

(b) That service to society along the lines of arts and sciences be emphasized as the accomplishment to be sought by our future citizens rather than personal gain and the chase for profits.

(c) Keep religious training and influence out of the schools.

(d) No working class publication should be barred from our school libraries.

(e) Strict enforcement of compulsory school attendance laws.

ESSENTIAL PREREQUISITES FOR TEACHERS.

Courses in working class history and kindred social sciences should be prerequisites for all teachers.

TEACHERS' RIGHTS.

Teachers must be permitted to organize in labor unions. No teacher should be expelled for holding beliefs inimical to the present capitalistic system.

ADMINISTRATION.

Management of schools should be vested in committees elected by teachers with representation from the students in the high schools.

BUILDING CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE.

(a) That strictly union labor be employed in all construction of new schools as well as on repairs and maintenance in existing school buildings.

(b) That only union made school equipment and supplies by purchased.

MILITARY TRAINING.

Military training should be abolished as it fosters militarism which is an instrument in the hands of the capitalists to crush the workers in their struggles for emancipation.

RACE SEGREGATION.

No segregation or discrimination because of color, race or creed.

The candidate running on the above platform knows that the ruling class will not permit the realization of his demands under the present system of society and therefore pledges himself when elected to work for the establishment of a Communist society.

(Signed) EMANUEL LEVIN,
Candidate for Board of Education,
Los Angeles, Calif.

cupants of company houses in the coal camps, imposing great suffering upon women and children, and especially endangering the lives of the sick.

State Supreme Court Killed Protective Law

The operators boast that they have overcome the law containing this provision by getting a ruling from the state supreme court one year ago, entitling them to throw out families of miners from their homes in company houses, whenever the miner quits work.

The operators claim that the state law affording the 30 days protective feature for the miners' families is killed by the state supreme court ruling and that a miner working for any coal company in the state makes his family liable to eviction the day he obeys a strike order and stops work.

Mines Hard Hit By Strike

President Ledvinka states that a protest will be made to Governor Gore of West Virginia, against the violation of the 30 day law.

The mines thruout the four counties of the Panhandle are either completely closed or are working no more than 50 per cent.

The two miners arrested last, are Mike Angelus, arrested at Richland on Friday, and Emanuel George, who surrendered to the U. S. marshal's office when he learned Saturday of a warrant. Four others were previously arrested on the injunction granted the Richland company two years ago by the federal government.

Non-Union Hashhouse Must Pay $12,500

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 19.—Marie Davis, waitress, has won a verdict for $12,500 against the non-union Thompson restaurant for injuries from a fall while employed. Her suit was for $35,000. The John R. Thompson Co., a chain restaurant corporation, is the only non-union lunchroom in East St. Louis.

COOLIDGE'S PAL VISITS FASCIST CHIEF AND KING

Stearns, Millionaire, Talks for Bankers

ROME, Italy, April 19—Frank Stearns, millionaire Boston merchant, and closest adviser of President Coolidge, had a long conference with Premier Mussolini following his interview with King Victor Emanuel. Stearns talked of the foreign policy of the Coolidge government, which is directed by the Wall Street bankers.

Riots on the Italian stock exchanges have again occurred, as a protest against Mussolini's ruling that 25 per cent of the value of all stocks and bonds bought on margin must be paid in cash. The rioting followed a heavy slump in industrial bonds. The quotation boards in Trieste were smashed, and in Florence operations were suspended because of riots. At Turin and Milan the brokers engaged in fist fights and resolutions were passed and forwarded to Mussolini asking that he change his ruling.

A monopoly of radio broadcasting has been sought by the Mussolini government. A private corporation called Ufi has been given the concession of all radio selling and broadcasting thruout Italy, and the broadcasting programs are censored by the government. It was feared by the fascisti that anti-fascist ideas would be spread by means of the radio.

Bishop Guards Profitable Flock.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 19.—"Sheep stealing" by ministers was denounced in a straightforward talk by Bishop Frederick D. Leete, Indianapolis, in the opening address before the delegates to the eighty-second annual Northern Indiana Methodist Episcopal Conference.

The bishop held the minister who goes into other pastor's flocks and urges members to join his church is guilty of "sheep stealing." The larger the congregation the bigger the collection, and nowadays, churches are run on a business basis.

TRACTION ISSUE, VIA SPRINGFIELD, IS BEFORE LABOR

C. F. of L. Endorses the Barr Bill

Yesterday's meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor devoted a few hours to the inevitable traction issue which seems to have more lives than the proverbial cat.

Delegate Walt, of the structural iron workers, introduced a resolution that put the federation on record as endorsing the Barr traction bill now before the legislature.

The motion was passed painlessly and noiselessly and the federation's legislative committees and officers were instructed to meet with the subcommittee of the legislature which holds session today in Chicago and convey to those politicians the views of the federation, being particularly careful to impress on the solons the importance of giving the dear "peepul" the luxury of a referendum on the proposition.

But Delegate Wright, of the printers, who appears to be one of the Dever watchdogs in the central body smelled a pole cat after the motion was issued. It then began to dawn on President Fitzpatrick that William Hale Thompson's boys had slipped something over. A motion to reconsider was made and carried and Delegate Wright introduced another motion which made it quite clear that the federation was not lined up with the Thompson machine—yet.

In Unhappy Position.

President Fitzpatrick admitted that Wright saved him from a confusing situation. He thought the Thompson machine was engaged in a piece of political manipulation. Delegate Madson of the painters, socialist, seemed to support Walt, but as usual, it was hard to know definitely where he stood. He declared the whole business was a joke. Fitzpatrick replied saying the joke was in the meeting. Perhaps the joke is on the workers of Chicago, who are represented by so many jokers who play the game of the capitalists instead of devoting some attention to the needs and interests of the wage slaves of this city.

The federation seems to have very little time nowadays for the discussion of wage and working conditions. The report of the legislative committee was heard and adopted without discussion. This report indirectly praised the Barr cossack bill, by criticising the Dunlap bill and Dunlap.

charged, before the department of interior in Washington.

The defense admitted that Wheeler received $4,000 from Campbell, but insisted the money was for practice in Montana courts, and that Wheeler never agreed to obtain government oil concessions for his clients.

Wheeler in "Fixer" Role.

United States District Attorney John Slattery pointed out that H. C. Glosser, secretary to Wheeler's client who will appear as a witness, testified before the Borah committee in January, 1923, that at a conference with the oil promoters in January, 1923, Wheeler said: "There is nothing to worry about with regard to permits, they can be fixed up in Washington."

Harvey admitted on the stand that he had protested the $10,000 retainer fee on which Wheeler was employed to defend the receivership suit.

Brown to Speak Despite Manning.

NEW YORK, April 19—Despite the order of Bishop William T. Manning prohibiting William Montgomery Brown, bishop of Arkansas, from speaking today in the St. Marks church on the Bowery, Bishop Brown will speak today as scheduled.

Bishop Brown has been convicted of heresay by the episcopal church but cannot be deposed as bishop until the house of bishops meets on his case in New Orleans next year.

U. S. Imperialism Piles 22 Billion Dollar Debt Load on World Labor

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, American capitalist imperialism rapidly breeds new enemies on all the continents. As it faces a world of debtors so it faces a world of foes. There have never been friendly relations between debtor and creditor, especially when the debtor shows his inability to pay. American dollar rule, as a money lender, confronts a whole host of debtor nations unable to pay.

The other day Washington sought to apply a little pressure to Roumania, to pay debts incurred after the war. Roumania immediately responded with the suggestion to have a commission "investigate." And that will be the end of that for the time being. But at the same time Morgan has under consideration plans for a new loan to the fascist monarchy of Spain, to tottering Mussolini rule in Italy, and to bankrupt fascism in Greece.

• • • •

For the war loans of the United States government to foreign nations, with the interest that has never been paid, now total $12,000,000,000.

This is nearly equalled by the $10,000,000,000 of American private investments and loans in foreign countries, compared to a niggardly $2,000,000,000 when the world war broke out in 1914. In 10 years a 500 per cent increase!

The interest alone on these 10 billion dollars of private investments runs up to the staggering sum of $650,000,000 annually. Wall Street is the go-between in floating these private loans, and it is the interest on these loans that is paid, if any, while Washington goes begging.

• • • •

These loans are made to foreign capitalist governments. Nothing has been heard of credits extended to the Union of Soviet Republics.

The ten billion dollars include investments in foreign projects owned and controlled by American investors, like copper and oil properties in South America and Mexico, and private loans to foreign governments and municipalities, such as the Morgan loans to France and Belgium.

Calles, the "socialist" president of Mexico, thru American investments and loans in that country, is as much under the control of Wall Street, as the "radical socialist" premier, Herriot, showed himself to be in France. Herriot had to go when his services were no longer wanted.

• • • •

The par value of foreign securities publicly offered in the United States for the first three months of this year totalled $279,000,000 compared to $238,000,000 for the same period last year. The debtors needed $40,000,000 more this year to keep going. New debts were floated to pay old debts. But the new debts were necessarily larger than the old debts because they must also include interest payments. But in addition to loans to pay off old obligations, big sums, increasing this year, were needed to pay pressing obligations, notably expenditures for financially burdensome armies, navies, air fleets, in great part "to maintain order" at home against restless workers. The league of nations has just granted permission to Bulgaria to increase its military strength to maintain its fascist rule over its workers and peasants.

The money hunger of Western European capitalism is shown by the report that during the first quarter of 1925 it borrowed $139,000,000 in the United States compared to $10,000,000 during the same months last year. The 1925 loans thus far consist of 31 issues. Last year they numbered only 21.

• • • •

There are no doubt those foolish enough to believe that these loans will some day be paid. J. Pierpont Morgan, however, doesn't believe it. More than that, he doesn't wish it. If all debts were paid, which is impossible, Morgan would have to go out of business. Loan making would be at an end. The international money lender would be out of a job.

But Morgan and all the other great financiers of Wall Street know that their jobs are secure as long as capitalism lasts. Just as long as labor permits itself to be cruelly exploited under the lash of the taskmaster, to the last drop of blood, just so long will it be possible for the American money lenders to make new loans and collect an increasing interest toll, now reaching towards one billion dollars annually.

Even the excessive spending of the jazz era of American capitalism absorbs but a small part of the interest on loans and the profits of American industry. New fields of investment must be found for the surplus. Hence new loans. More work for Morgan. Increasing foreign debts to collect interest on.

• • • •

Right now American imperialism is showing the might of its collecting agency, thru the naval maneuvers in the Pacific.

But the army, the navy, the air fleets will fail in time of war, a war to make the workers of other nations pay, if the exploited workers and poor farmers at home refuse to submit, refuse to fight Wall Street's wars. The feeling grows, "No aid to Morgan's collecting agency. No drop of workers' blood to shield Morgan's loans."

Workers of other nations will repudiate the debts owing to Morgan. American workers will, in time, repudiate Morgan rule. Then falls capitalism in the United States of America. Only the world proletarian dictatorship can free world labor from the world dollar dictatorship.

Mexicans Raise Alarm Against U. S.

treacherous leaders such as Luis N. Morones (who is also minister of industry, commerce and labor), the poisonous propaganda of Wall Street is spread side by side with a spurious nationalism, as a result of the alliance with the bureaucrats of the American Federation of Labor. The C. R. O. M. leaders are notorious for their servile telegrams to Coolidge and Hughes and for their campaign of expulsion against the Communists in the Mexican unions, following the example and advice of the A. F. of L.

Among the immediate tasks before the Mexican party mentioned in the report are: Support of the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League, as valuable weapon against American imperialism; exposure of the "labor" government of Mexico as an instrument of Wall Street; campaign against fulfillment of the Lamont-de la Huerta treaty; insistence upon articles 27 and 123 of the Mexican constitution.

Plan to Bolshevize Party.

Reporting for the national committee, the national secretary, Rafael Carrillo, called attention to the need for thoroly Bolshevizing the Mexican party. Balshevization is looked upon as one of the most important points on the agenda. The Mexican party is far from being a mass party as yet, despite the fact that it has considerable influence among the peasant masses, not only in Vera Cruz but in Michoacan as well. The party is still very small, but is growing rapidly. Centralization of activities is proceeding slowly. There are still flagrant breaches of discipline. Nevertheless, great progress is being made toward the establishment of a disciplined Bolshevik party.

Other points on the agenda include the report of Comrade Wolfe, delegate to the fifth congress of the Communist International; trade union report; agrarian report; united front; reports of locals.

EDUCATION FOR COLLABORATION IS BUREAU PLAN

A. F. of L. Fakerdom Rules Conference

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 19.—That the so-called "workers' educational" movement is becoming a systematised effort of corrupting the minds of the workers with the poison of class collaboration is seen clearly in view of the actions taken by the fourth conference of the "Workers' education bureau" which opened here Friday at the newest and finest hotel.

A School For Class Collaboration.

All the speeches of politicians, professors and A. F. of L. labor fakers are in harmony with the surroundings of the conference. Class collaboration in one form or another is the keynote of every speech. This illustrates the truth of the statement made by Earl R. Browder of the Workers (Communist) Party, in his pamphlet exposure on "class collaboration" which says:

"In the so-called workers' education movement, is the combination of a keen, middle class intellectualism with the old-time bureaucracy of the trade unions . . . the official center of the movement is the Workers' Education Bureau."

Real Workers' School Barred Out.

The delegation from the proletarian "Workers' School" of New York, consisting of Oliver Carlson, Juliet Poyntz and William Weinstone, were not seated by the conference and the school's application for affiliation to the Workers' Education Bureau was rejected.

All signs point toward the American Federation of Labor taking over complete control of the Workers' Educational Bureau and the ousting of even such mild progressives as Maurer, Cohen and Brophy from leadership. The leading fakers of the A. F. of L. reactionary bureaucracy are on the job, including Matthew Weil, Perkins and Frey. These fakers are at the head of the most important committees.

The left wing among the conference delegates tried to put up a fight, but it is not unified and is weak by nature.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L. spoke at the conference Saturday, saying in part:

"There is every indication that the organizations of labor are entering upon a new era, one in which education is going to play a greater part." The part that it is to play, however, is covertly stated by the bureau's technical director, Spencer Miller, who said, "The power of labor consists in its power to serve, and not to dominate." In other words, the "historic mission" of the working class is to work. And for a master as a servant.

Professor Shotwell, author of the infamous Geneva protocol, is also one of the speakers.

AS WE SEE IT

munist and nationalist leaders have been slain by these terrorists. But the capitalist press which supports the fascist governments in every country in Europe gloat over these murders as they have glossed over the murder of the Polish workers who were on their way to Soviet Russia and freedom. Murders committed by the fascist assassins do not arouse any horror in the breasts of the bourgeoisie of other countries.

THERE is a certain similarity between the way the capitalist press treated the recent terroristic outbreak in Bulgaria and the way they treated the Wall Street explosion a few years back. The first editions to get on the street after the Wall Street blast attributed the disaster to an accidental explosion of dynamite carried in a Dupont powder wagon. But as this would involve the expenditure of millions of dollars in damages from the powder trust the tale was given a twist and within two hours William J. Burns was out with a carefully hatched plot fastening the blast on the Communist International. What happened to the "plot" is history.

SO with Bulgaria. Early reports hinted that the Macedonian nationalists were responsible. But an opportunity for prejudicing the minds of the masses in other countries could not be allowed to slip by, so the Communist International was dragged in, Zinoviev's picture was dug up and the forgers and liars were ordered to put on full steam. This affair will be used by the fascist murderers to cover up their past crimes, to which the explosion in Sofia was but the inevitable reply. And they will use it to frighten the big capitalist powers into giving them more money and permission to keep a larger standing army. The international solidarity of capitalism is always evident whenever any section of it is threatened by the workers, the common enemy of all capitalist groups.

CHINESE STRIKERS GET SEVERE SENTENCES FOR DISTRIBUTING POSTERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, April 19—The trial of nineteen men arrested in connection with the strike at the Naigai Cotton Spinning Mill has ended.

Three were acquitted for lack of evidence, two were convicted of violence and sentenced each to six months' penal servitude, and eight to a fine of $50 with the option of imprisonment for fifty days. Two alleged poster-distributors were released because of insufficiency of evidence while others were sentenced to a fine of $20 or imprisonment for twenty days.

Those who were accused of intimidating workers who wished to return to the mill were fined $20, with the option of a week's imprisonment.

SMITH HAS A GOOD CASE; BUT A POOR CHANCE

Wobbly Lawyer Asks for Justice

OLYMPIA, Wash., April 19.—Elmer Smith, attorney of Centralia, Wash., widely known for his fight on behalf of the victims of the Centralia raid and frame-up; was disbarred by the state supreme court on Feb. 24. He has now filed a claim for a rehearing. If a majority of the judges approve of his claim, the case will be reopened. If not, he will appeal to the U. S. supreme court.

He charges that an attorney can be disbarred only for misconduct. He was disbarred primarily because of his speeches, made all over and outside of the state, in which he pleaded for justice. The interests who own the government do not want justice. They want to smash not only the workers, but any who dare aid them.

The Sensible Mule

The supreme court took particular exception to a speech in which he compared the intelligence of a mule which would not starve with plenty of food in reach, and of a man who would. This parable proved particularly offensive to the "furred law cats" and while to a private citizen it might seen that they are limited in their jurisdiction to punishing men for illegal actions committed in this state; they felt no hesitation about disbarring Elmer Smith for words spoken in another state.

He charges that two of his three examiners were prejudiced against him. This seems quite natural. Smith made the mistake of believing that a lawyer should fight for truth and justice. Most lawyers realize that their business is primarily to aid in prostituting justice for the benefit of criminal capitalism; and that the more successful at this art they are, the higher they will climb, and the more loudly the press will praise them.

That Old Stuff About Constitutions

He charges that the procedure of his trial violates six amendments to the U. S. constitution, numbers 1, 4 5, 6, 7 and 14. He was deprived of the right of free speech. I. W. W literature, which had been withdrawn from circulation before the passage of the criminal syndicalism law, and which was not his property, was seized without a search warrant. He was denied trial by jury, denied a speedy and public trial, and denied opportunity to answer the charges brought against him. He charges that he was deprived of his liberties and of his means of livelihood without due process of law.

Should the state supreme court deny a rehearing it will be up to the federal supreme court. And should this court approve of his disbarment it will mean that hereafter any lawyer who dares oppose the capitalist ownership of the government, or who dares fight for the rights of the working class, may be disbarred from the practice of law in the kept courts of capitalism.

A Stalling Record

In 1920 the question of the constitutionality of the state criminal syndicalism law came before the court. It stalled along for months. After a reactionary republican victory at election, the honorable court approved the law.

In Smith's case they repeated the procedure. Sometime after the 1924 election they felt safe in disbarring Elmer Smith.

Workers may draw their own conclusion.

The population of Chicago will be 6,600,000 in 25 years, it was predicted by the commercial survey engineer of the Bell Telephone company.

MARBLE STATUE GENERATES HOT AIR FOR 2,500

De Mortuis Nihil Nisi Bunkum

SEATTLE, Wash., April 19.—A monument to the late President Harding was unveiled here. It stands in Woodland Park where Harding gave the oath of allegiance to 30,000 boy scouts, and was presented by the Elks lodge. Only 2,500 were present this time, the reputation of Harding having been sadly tarnished since he was here.

Three Elks presented the monument to the city, and two professional politicians, acting for the city accepted it. The boy scouts had the honor (?) of paying for it.

Among the bunk peddled out by the speakers were such statements as: "nothing better can be done by the Elks than to teach love of country to boys . . . Harding was one of the greatest examples of the greatness of American manhood" (this from a democrat, ex-socialist—wonder what he thinks of Daugherty, Forbes, etc.) " . . . The American people took him from their midst and exalted him . . . because he was so common" (common what?) and was it "the American people" who chose him in that room at the Blackstone hotel at two o'clock one morning in June, 1920?

"Let each of us dedicate ourselves anew to our country, to respect its laws and defend its liberty" (this from a hard boiled republican congressman who has been one of the most consistent foes of the workers in congress.)

Needless to say there were many revealing incidents of Harding's life that the speakers forgot to mention. "De mortuis nihil nisi bunkum" was their motto. And so Teapot Dome, the house of K. St., Charley Forbes, etc. were not mentioned.

Letters From Our Rea

O, Justice, Where Art Thou?

To the DAILY WORKER:—Why is it a greater offense for an army private to distribute literature favorable to another system of government than for a high public official to barter away a nation's oil lands at a time that nation's ships are being converted into oil burners?

Which is the greater treason?

Walter M. Trumbull and Paul M. Crouch, privates in the United States have been courtmartialed and sentenced to 40 and 26 years in federal prison for distributing alleged Communist literature among soldiers at Honolulu.

Indictments returned against Albert Fall, former secretary of the interior, for bartering away the naval oil lands, have been quashed by a judge because he said he had found that an unnecessary person was present in the grand jury room at the time the indictments were returned and because Senator Walsh made a radio speech at the time, which might have influenced feeling against Fall.

Is it more righteous to rob a nation of its oil—its life blood—than to distribute literature regardi system of government. It crime to steal than to tal

PLUTES START NEW PROJECT TO INVEIGLE YOUTH

Organization in the Hands of G. O. P.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 19.— Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, ambitious candidate for governor of New York state in the recent election, is one of the leaders of the new movement for the creation of a youth movement in the republican ranks. Speaking at a republican meeting the other day, Roosevelt made the following statement:

"One of the chief faults of the republican party in recent years is the noticeable absence of young men and women from its ranks. If a party loses its young people that party is bound to crash."

The answer of the Young Workers' League to this attempt of the capitalists to organize white guards, is to extend and intensify its activities among the broad masses of the young workers. Against the capitalist youth organization, we must put forward the Communist Youth organization, the leader of and the vanguard of the masses of the young workers in this country.

Armed Czarist Is Seized Near Soviet Embassy, Well Armed

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 19.—A Russian, who said he was Reinhardt Waldemar, was arrested this afternoon by a detective while loitering outside the Soviet embassy. He was found to be heavily armed and also had four photographs of Ambassador Krassin in his pocket, each taken from a different angle.

At the police station Waldemar refused to explain his suspicious movements, but the police, convinced he was a czarist waiting for an opportunity to shoot M. Krassin when the latter was leaving or entering the embassy building, detained him for further inquiry.

BETTER NOT TO PRACTICE THOSE 'AMERICAN IDEALS'; BETTER JUST PREACH THEM

CLEVELAND— (FP) —If you mouth platitudes about freedom of the press on the Fourth of July you're a fine patriot. But publish the truth about some public officials —with names, dates and amounts— and you're a public menace. This is the way Carl Magee, New Mexico editor who started the expose of Albert B. Fall and his $100,000 black satchel, summed up the fight against corruption in New Mexico. The political ring operating thru venal judges had him thrown into jail for contempt of court and it tried to ruin him by forcing his bank to call the note on his newspaper property.

"It's a perfect parlor game of tiddle-de-winks," Magee said in Cleveland, "to laud American ideals. But it's a he-man's game of knock-down-and-drag-out when one attacks the rottenness of political ringsters. If anyone believes this to be untrue, let him acquire a newspaper and try to do it."

Hillcrest Miners Refuse Scab Wage Contract of Boss

HILLCREST, Alta, Canada.—Blairmore and Bellevue are now working under the new wage scale. Hillcrest has turned down the terms of the new contract, as offered by Hillcrest collieries. If we have to leave the U. M. W., we don't want the boss to tell us what kind of a union we are to have, or how we should run it.

Coleman has been offered the new contract and as it has already been accepted by two camps, chances are they will accept. This contract does not state what the new union shall or shall not do.

Doing Missionary Work For Communism

By Wm. Z. Foster

"IN subscription campaigns the immediate goal to achieve is, of course, to extend the circulation of the DAILY WORKER. But this is by no means the only advantage to be gained. By the very act of trying to sell such subscriptions, whether he succeeds or not, the comrade in question is not only doing missionary work for Communism, but is also gaining valuable organization experience.

"The Workers Party membership must take seriously the necessity for mass participation in the work of spreading the DAILY WORKER. The building of our great English language daily must ever and always be kept in the foreground of our program as one of the most important tasks confronting our party. A DAILY WORKER with a great circulation means tremendous strides towards the building of our organization into a mass Communist Party, a Bolshevized Party, a party of organizers and leaders. Let us work to the end that when the second anniversary of the DAILY WORKER arrives we will have a vast net-work of organizers and militants throughout the party working ceaselessly to extend the circulation and influence of our paper amongst the struggling masses."

From the Daily Worker Jan. 13, 1925.

WORKERS PARTY INCREASES USE OF MOVIE FILMS

Propaganda Value and Financial Returns

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 19.—The Workers Party organization in District No. 5 (Pittsburgh) has thrown full strength to the booking of a movie program thruout its territory and already has booked six dates despite the fact that several pictures were shown there in the very recent past.

The following schedule is announced:

East Pittsburgh, Thursday, April 23, Turner Hall, 8 p. m.

Pittsburgh, Saturday, April 25th, Carnegie Music Hall, (North Side), at 8 p. m.

McDonald, Tuesday, April 28, at the Orpheum Theater, first show 5:30 p.m.

Bentleyville, Friday, May 1, Majestic Theater, 7 p. m.

Daisytown, Saturday, May 2, Finnish Hall, Walkertown.

New Kensington, Wednesday May 6, Columbus Theater.

May Day Movies

Two of these dates were arranged as May Day programs by mail but all the others represent the direct, energetic co-operation of the party office. A careful study of motion picture activity for the past two years shows that the number and success of the booking are in direct proportion to the interest taken by local and district workers. Any active hustler in a district can easily, with the help of the local comrades, get a string of dates and put them thru to a most successful finish. More districts should take up this work, full co-operation is guaranteed from the national office, I. W. A., 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

The program routed in the Pittsburgh district includes "Polikushka," "Soldier Ivan's Miracle," and "Lenin Memorial." All workers should be sure to see these extremely interesting working class films.

Go To Your Class Movies!

In addition to the dates listed above, the following shows should be patronized by the workers in these respective cities:

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 21, Labor Temple, "Russia and Germany."

Denver, Col., "Beauty & Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls," April 28 and 29, Paum Theater, West Colfax and Grove, 7 & 9 p. m. April 30, Barnes School Auditorium, 1410 Clenarm St., 7 and 9 p. m.

Toledo, Ohio, April 30, "Beauty and Bolshevik."

Utica, N. Y., April 30, "Beauty and Bolshevik."

Gleason, Wisc., May 1, Gleason Hall, "Russia and Germany."

Los Angeles, Calif., May 3rd to 8th. "Beauty and Bolshevik."

Sheboygan, Wisc., "Russia and Germany," May 30.

Milwaukee, Wisc., "Beauty and Bolshevik," (return engagement), May 30.

The show in Newark, N. J., has had to be postponed. Seattle and Tacoma Washington will announce their dates in a few days.

Hatband Weavers Win Raise Thru Union

PATERSON, N. J.—(FP)—Paterson hatband weavers, organized in the Associated Silk Workers' Union, independent, win a 7 per cent increase from 12 employers in their agreement provided the rank and file of the workers ratify the pact.

This Is Probably Why Green Likes Mussolini

MILAN, Italy—(FP)—A bill introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies sponsored by Mussolini, makes all labor organizations except the fascist unions illegal. The Socialists and Communists are opposing it.

The Workers Party in Action

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

TRUTH ABOUT SUN YAT SEN IS TOLD TACOMA LABOR

Clark in Tribute to Soviet Sympathizer

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TACOMA, Wash., April 19.— The Sun Yat Sen memorial meeting held here drew a large crowd that showed its appreciation of J. Stanley Clark's speech by frequent and enthusiastic applause.

The speaker dealt with Sun Yat Sen's career at length, showing that the attempts to distort the teachings of the great Chinese leader, by claiming that he was a christian pacifist, had no foundation.

He showed that Sun Yat Sen, while he may have started with a merely progressive attitude years ago, had developed into a great revolutionary leader who realized that there was but one way for China to free herself from the oppression of foreign imperialists, and the native capitalists, who were their tools. Sun Yat Sen realized that as long as China remained feeble and unarmed and pacific, as the christian capitalists and their missionaries adivise her to do, she would more and more become the prey of capitalist imperialism. But when China learned that she must depend on force, that she would begin to be respected and to win her freedom. And he showed that Sun Yat Sen did not stop at this; that he was not working to free China from foreign capitalism that native capitalism might replace it; but that he knew and taught that the only way for the people of China to be really free, was to follow the ideals of Soviet Russia, and to create a Workers' Republic of China. Sun Yat Sen was a hater of western imperialism and a sympathizer of Soviet rule. That was why the capitalists, Chinese and foreign, hated him so bitterly.

The Theory and Practice of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

An important work on Communist theory and practice during the period that Lenin lived and led—the period of Capitalist Imperialism.

This book, issued for the first time in this country, is written by a close co-worker of Lenin, at present secretary of the Russian Communist Party and a figure in the International Communist Movement.

Add this important work, destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature, to your library.

Attractively bound, this book will be a treat to the intelligent worker and the student of the revolutionary movement.

REDS FIGHT TO DEATH AGAINST POLISH TERROR

Two Workers Killed by Poison Gas Attack

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, April 19.—For a long time an agent provocateur, with the name of Kamienski, was working among the workers of the Dombrowo Basin. On Feb. 28 this spy was killed by two Communist workers who knew that he had connections with the police. Later the police succeeded in finding out that both workers at that time stayed in a private house.

The workers, however, did not allow themselves to be arrested and put up an armed resistance. The police ordered reserve forces from Dombrowo and the surroundings. The struggle lasted for hours and the two heroes, bleeding from many wounds, defended themselves furiously against hundreds of policemen. When the fire stopped for a moment one could hear from the besieged house revolutionary songs and cheers to the Communist Party and the International.

The situation of the police became more and more critical. Not only because several policemen were already dead or wounded, but mainly because the policemen were threatened by the workers of Dombrowo for whom the fire was like a signal for fight. Still more military was ordered and when even this did not lead to success, the police took another means, which is unique in the history of class struggle and which proves that the mercenaries of capital shrink from nothing if the workers have to be defeated. This means is poison gas. By means of a pipe this gas was led into the besieged house.

When finally the shooting of the two heroic workers stopped, the policemen and the soldiers entered the house with gas masks and found the two fighters suffocated and bleeding from many wounds.

MEXICAN SECTION OF INTERNATIONAL RED AID ORGANIZES TO HELP VICTIMS OF CALLES-SOCIALIST "DEMOCRACY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, April 19.—The Mexican section of the International Red Aid has just been formed with headquarters in the City of Mexico. To many non-Mexicans it will come as a surprise that a country with a liberal labor government should have need of such an organization, but a small but growing list of worker and peasant political victims attest to the fact that Mexico is not as free as it is painted.

In general, it is the local governments in certain states that are most oppressive, but the federal government, thru its generals, is not far behind. The disarming of the peasants, slow but continuous, and often met with resistance, claims its toll of victims whose families have to be aided.

Vicious Attacks on Peasants.

Where peasants take the land, the federal forces are used to dislodge them. Two federal generals, Lopez in Michoacan, and Mange in Oaxaca, have been particularly brutal. Gen. Lopez attacked the peasants' commune of Naranja, killed one, wounded others, stole various carloads of wheat and dispossessed them of their land. The agitation of the Communist Senator Luis G. Monzon in the senate caused the restitution of the wheat and the land, but there are still the wounded and the relatives of the deceased to care for. In other parts of Michoacan the peasants cannot return to their homes because federal troops are waiting to arrest them as "agitators."

In Oaxaca the situation is much worse, the governor and the federal General Mange uniting to attack the agrarians and Communists. Senator Monzon is now investigating the assassinations and reinclosures of distributed lands there. The Communist deputy to the state chamber, Roberto C. Ramires, is a fugitive from the state in spite of his parliamentary privileges.

Persecute Communists.

In Yucatan, worker and peasant alike are suffering. Many unions are declared illegal, newspapers are closed and workers are arrested for selling the Communist organ, El Machete. The leader of the Electrical Workers' Union is a fugitive in the city of Mexico. The governor of the state, Iturralde, is an arch-reactionary.

In Orizaba and in other parts of the state of Vera Cruz, many members of the Tenants League a militant organisation which has been conducting a rent strike for over a year, has many of its members in prison. The federal government intervened to kidnap its real leader, Heron Proal, and bring him to the capital of the country for trial. The legislature of the state of Vera Cruz has protested for this attack against its sovereignty, but to no avail. The turbulence of the protest demonstrations in the port of Vera Cruz increases from day to day as does the list of the arrested.

Workers Defend Juan de Lara.

Juan de Dios Lara, a member of the Young Communist League is on trial for his life in the same state for killnig General Gonzalez to avenge the lives of countless workers and peasants. General Gonzalez was one of the most brutal of the de la Huertista generals in the recent uprising of Adolfo de la Huerta. Amnestied by the federal government, he left his home city, scene of his terrible atrocities against workers, peasants and young Communists, and went to another part of the state. Juan de Lara, whose comrades of the Young Communist League and whose own father had fallen victims to Gonzalez, followed him and killed him. The workers and peasants of the entire state are forming defense leagues in every town and village.

In the port of Tampico, Ventura Herrera, one of the leaders of the sailors' union, killed the captain of his ship in self-defense. The captain has previously taken many victims being one of the most brutal in the Gulf shipping. The new organization will defend Herrera.

Demand Release of Sacco-Vanzetti.

All the unions in the port of Vera Cruz joined in a gigantic protest in favor of Sacco and Vanzetti last week and announced to the American consulate that if justice is not done they will "speak more plainly."

The new organization will also act as the center for all Latin-America to defend and aid the three thousand political prisoners of Venezuela, the outlawed Communists and syndicalists of Brazil, the prisoners and political exiles of Peru, etc. They have already given one hundred dollars to the defense of the Communist Del Pinal in Guatemala and that amount, plus the publicity begun on a continental scale, opened the doors of his jail after a year and one-half of imprisonment without trial.

The temporary directive committee in Mexico City includes the leader of the revolutionary forces of one of the South American countries*; Heron Proal, leader of the Tenants' Leagues of Vera Cruz; Enrique Flores, of the famous family of the Floras Magons, two of whom spent many years in Mexican and American jails, and prominent officials of the railway unions, leather workers, carpenters and other workers' organizations.

POLISH WHITE TERROR SCORED IN CLEVELAND

Toilers More Oppressed Than Under Czar

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The white terror in Poland conducted against the workers, peasants and oppressed nationalities of that country by the paid puppets of French impérialism was excoriated at a mass meeting held recently in this city. The following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Whereas the doings of the capitalist government of Poland represent an uninterrupted chain of bloody crimes, committed upon the working people;

"Whereas in this so-called independent Polish Republic the working masses are oppressed more cruelly than ever under the rule of Russian czars and German kaisers;

"Whereas the working class of Poland is practically deprived of all civil liberties, the independent labor press being entirely suppressed by the police and courts, the freedom of speech and assembly denied as well as the freedom of working class organization, even trade unions and educational societies being closed down by the authorities if they only faithfully observe the interests of labor, and only those organizations are permitted which betray the interests of labor to the capitalists and their government being led by social traitors;

"Whereas in the dungeons of Poland there is by this time about 8,000 Polish prisoners—workers and farmers—treated by the prison authorities in the most inhuman way which leads to numerous hunger strikes often ending with the death of the victims of this horrible system;

"Whereas the torturing of prisoners with the most cruel methods of the holy inquisition of dark ages is a matter of daily occurrence in Poland under its present regime;

"Whereas the courts pass by hundreds long term sentences of hard labor, for being members of the Communist Party, for spreading labor papers, for any kind of activity against the capitalist exploitation and oppression;

"Whereas in the parts of Ukrainia and White Russia which were annexed to Poland by military force is raging an even more cruel terror and the martial courts pass these hundreds of death sentences;

"Whereas the Polish government tends to spread this hangman's rule over the whole country, as shown by the recent sentencing to death of two soldiers, Segal and Dyffecki, for the crime of being members of a working class party;

"Whereas the workers' deputy to the Polish parliament, Stanislav Lanzutsky was arrested and tried for high treason under the paragraph providing the death sentence for a speech delivered in a union meeting, and, when acquitted by the jury, he was immediately rearrested under another frame-up indictment held in store for the eventuality of his acquittal;

"Whereas the recent murdering of two political prisoners, Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz, which were under way to Soviet Russia in order to be exchanged for Polish citizens sentenced by Soviet courts, and which were shot down by the convoying officer of the Polish police;

"Be it resolved, That we condemn this government of bandits and express our brotherly sympathy to the workers and poor farmers of Poland suffering under its yoke, and

"That we pledge our full moral and financial support in their bitter struggle for emancipation from this bloody yoke.

"Down with the bloody terror of the capitalist government of Poland! Shame to the traitors of labor, shame to the Polish socialist party which supports this bloody regime of terrorism!

"Away with the bloody comedy of bourgeois courts! Stop the torturing of imprisoned workers and farmers!

"Stop the oppression of the national minorities of Poland!

"Release the workers' deputy, Stanislav Lanzutsky!

"Release all political prisoners!

"Long live the revolutionary struggle of Polish workers and farmers! Long live the Communist Party of Poland, their faithful leader! Long live the victorious workers revolution in Poland! Long live the Soviet Poland of workers and farmers!

"Be it further resolved that we call upon the whole American labor for the most energetic support of the heroic stuggle of the workers and farmers of Poland against the unthinkable exploitation and oppression, and especially we call for most generous financial contributions for the aid of political prisoners in Poland and their starving families.

"Long live the International Red Aid!

"Long live the international solidarity of workers and exploited farmers all over the world!"

BUILDERS AT WORK

SHORT ON WORDS BUT LONG ON ACTION

Giving a Picture of Portland Activities

IT is possible to put into few words a picture of a whole local's activities. Here is one by our DAILY WORKER Agent from Portland, Oregon—Harry Scolnick—who in few words tells us how on the Pacific coast our BUILDERS are not only building "Our Daily" but are organized and are further organizing in every way that will build the Communist movement. Read it:

Portland, Ore., April 12, 1925.

Comrades:—Enclosed you'll find subs for the Daily and an order for 1,000 copies of the Special May Day issue . . . also for 6,000 leaflets "Down Tools On May Day".

The C. C. C. instructed the branches to elect DAILY WORKER Agents and I expect to meet with them soon.

At the last meeting of the English branch all members present were instructed to solicit subs and TO REPORT RESULTS AT EVERY MEETING.

I have received the list of Portland subscribers and we will do our best to get in touch with them for renewals.

We have already distributed 5,000 "Strike Against Wage Cuts" leaflets that we ordered from the District Office and now we have committees elected to follow up the free sample copies of the DAILY WORKER that were distributed to get subscriptions.

Fraternally yours.
HARRY SCOLNICK, Portland Daily Worker Agent.

NOW YOU WRITE ONE!

This letter is "short but sweet" . . . and a model for the kind of letter that you can send us. On the basis of this letter the DAILY WORKER can judge what more is necessary and how it can help.

For instance, he says nothing about the Workers Monthly or literature—we'll have to write Comrade Scolnick about this. We will also remind him to be sure to tell us just what was the result of the Branch Agents' meeting (altho he's sure to tell us!). He doesn't mention any sale of the DAILY WORKER at factory gates or at union meetings—we'll have to ask him this too—among other things.

But he did write a lot in just a few words. NOW YOU WRITE ONE!

NEW YORK HOTEL WORKERS' BALL MONDAY, APRIL 27

Entertainment Committe Is Busy Bunch

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 19—The ball and entertainment committee of the New York Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Branch of the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union are the busiest bunch in town these days. They are putting the finishing touches on the arrangements and the very elaborate program for the grandball and entertainment of the branch, to be held on Monday, April 27, at the Palm Garden, (see advertisement).

The proof of the pudding is in the eating and those who have tasted of the kind that the hotel workers are in the habit of offering to their friends and guests, marvel, how the brilliancy of the past affairs, the elaborate and diversified program and high quality of entertainment could possibly be improved upon. And they are looking forward to the coming affair on April 27 with high-strung expectancy.

Those who are stuck on jazz will get all and perhaps a little more than they are looking for, when Jack Shilkret comes with his famous Pelham Heath Inn Orchestra that has the reputation of jazzing the best of their toes. A revelry of grace and symmetry will be witnessed when Earl Lindsay's Strand Roof Revue with his 16 amazing girls in their working clothes, with "Buddy" Kennedy as master of ceremonies will appear.

Lack of space prevents us from mentioning all of the high-class talent and special features which are awaiting the guest of our hotel workers at the Palm Garden on the evening of April 27.

Tickets may be had in any quantity at that branch headquarters, 132 West 51st street, and from members

Rail Merger Draws Near as Opposition in Commission Wanes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The "billion dollar" Nickel Plate railroad merger was defended by John J. Bernet, president of the system, today in the resumption of hearings on the legality of the move before the interstate commerce commission.

Minority stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio vainly attempted to block hearings on the consolidation of five roads into one giant system, in the opening session.

O. D. and M. J. Van Sweringen, central figures in the fight to win government approval of the scheme, again were interested spectators.

Briand, Hun-Hater—Caillaux, Pro-German

The Briand cabinet represents at least a temporary victory for one of the most reactionary groups in French political life, but it is a strange combination.

It is understood that Briand will continue the relations with the vatican as a sop to the catholic royalists and will frown upon drastic taxation of big fortunes. A former socialist, Briand made his first bow to the bourgeoisie by calling railway strikers to the colors and by use of military discipline, forcing them to break their own strike. This was about two years before the outbreak of the world war. During the war French imperialism found in Briand a loyal supporter.

Caillaux, finance minister in the Briand cabinet, has many supporters in the parties of the so-called left and many admirers among the liberal intelligentsia abroad. His foreign policy is of the Germanophile variety as opposed to two other groups which from time to time influence French diplomacy.

One groups wants, and works for, complete French supremacy in Europe and is bitterly anti-English; another attempts to preserve the entente cordiale, the basis of which was an Anglo-Franco alliance against Germany. Caillaux has always regarded Germany as the logical ally of France and considers Great Britain the real enemy.

The system of alliances which brought France and Germany into conflict was always fought by Caillaux. During the war he made a number of attempts to force a cessation of hostilities by working for a separate peace between France and Germany, basing his plans on the joint ownership of many industrial enterprises in the Briey basin.

He went to prison for his pains, but it has been shown since that time, notably by Striet, in his "Where Iron Is, There Is The Fatherland," that the Comite des Forges, the French steel trust, actually followed the Caillaux policy in the Briey basin, and that in that district from which Germany was securing her largest supplies of iron and steel, no offensive was conducted by the allies until the American troops arrived in that sector in 1918. Generals who sent over bombing plans were removed. Nothing was done by the French general staff to disrupt production in this important area whose mines and mills were the joint property of French and German capitalists.

But Caillaux will not be able to effect a rapproachment between France and Germany. Such a policy would have to be based on the sacrifice of reparations and the French bourgeoisie, even those that prefer an alliance with Germany to domination of western Europe by France alone, are not ready to do this.

Neither can Caillaux afford to tax his friends among the industrialists. Briand himself is against a capital levy. With the need for a great increase in the government revenues, with the House of Morgan waiting on the doorstep for payments on account, the Briand-Caillaux cabinet will probably try to raise funds by taxation measures that will hit the working class and the lower sections of the middle class.

The initiation of these measures will transfer the acute crisis from the realm of parliamentary politics to the entire social structure.

We think it can be said safely that the crisis in France is just beginning and that no cabinet combination can hold power for any great length of time.

The Caillaux policy with its emphasis on Germany is the logical one for French capitalism, but the big industrialists have had a taste now of the fruits of expansion since the crippling of German industry and will not easily relinquish what seems to them to be a favored position. Neither will the banking fraternity look with favor upon the cancellation of reparations, the reparations without which the whole French financial system is a punctured bubble.

The masses of the workers and peasantry have remained passive during the cabinet crises that have succeeded one another because they have not been asked to pay for the war. But some government must pass on the war costs to the masses.

None has yet dared to attempt this. Caillaux may be the one to show to the French workers and peasants that the war has not been paid for and that the real rulers of France—the international bankers—have presented their bill.

Paul Revere—1925

Vice-President Dawes, speaking at the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary celebration of Paul Revere's ride, held in Boston, furnished a fine example of what Paul LaFargue meant when he said that the bourgeoisie are torn between two ethical codes—one of business and one of private life.

The American Mussolini, speaking from the pulpit of the historic old North Church, from which we are told the lanterns gleamed that gave the signal for arousing "every Middlesex village and farm" in advance of the British, got the following off his chest:

"The greatest question before the American people today is 'What is our character?' For it is this, and this alone that counts in the long run."

The gents who chronicle the happenings of the anniversary for the capitalist press become almost lyrical as they describe how the hero of the Lorimer bank scandal made a plea for "sharper self-denial in the nation's life," "for cleanliness of mind," "for subordination of the individual to the general good."

The Back Bay aristocracy and the textile barons who heard the speech of Dawes were doubtless greatly moved. So was Senator William Morgan Butler, dauntless champion of the right of the millowners to enslave little children.

Eyes were wet as Dawes pointed out the lesson of freedom taught by the ride of Paul Revere, but the freedom to which they gave homage was freedom to rob the working class of America without interference from or division of profits with the exploiters of any other nation.

Dispatches say that Dawes, invading the Coolidge territory on this anniversary, was successful in lining up the "solid men" of New England behind him. We do not doubt this. Anyone who can combine sanctimonious utterance with complete contempt for the masses, who can justify ruthless exploitation by biblical precept, whose Americanism is that of the rotary clubs, who preaches violent suppression of the workers in the name of the revolutionary founders, can get the ear and approval of the descendants of the "rum, molasses and niggers" aristocracy of New England.

Puritanism has never been an obstacle to profits so Paul Revere's ride becomes an excuse for a Dawes to deify plunderers and cover slavery with a mantle of christian ethics.

The Class War in West Virginia

Coal miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, and many non-members of the uinon, are on strike in the Panhandle district of West Virginia to force recognition of the organization.

The Richland Coal company, one of the biggest concerns affected by the strike, is preparing to evict the miners from company houses. The miners are given no notice, and the company is carrying out the evictions under a court decision that forfeits the right of the miners to the houses the moment they stop work for the company.

The close co-operation of the courts with the capitalists has been commented on in these columns more than once, but in no section of the United States is this recognition by the courts of the mastery of the capitalist more brazen than in West Virginia. The rule of capitalism that a worker is entitled to food and shelter only when he has submitted to a boss, is carried out to the letter in this paradise of the steel trust.

Reports from Wheeling are to the effect that a number of miners have already been arrested for violation of injunctions and trespassing, the legal fiction by which miners are prosecuted for picketing.

On May 3, in Wheeling, the contrast between the lives of the workers who dig the coal and those who live on their labor will be shown in a remarkable manner. A memorial meeting for the 128 miners killed in the Benwood disaster will be held and no blanket injunction, legalization of evictions or prevention of picketing can prevent thousands of miners understanding that under capitalism they live, work and die for the enrichment of a brutal, idle class.

At this memorial meeting any attempt by officialdom to gloss over the class struggle will be treason of the blackest kind.

The miners' fight in the Panhandle district of West Virginia can be won only by raising the standard of the class war that rages there in an especially brutal form.

Foreign Agitators

Portugal in the southwest of Europe and Bulgaria in the southeast, are torn by revolution.

Both little states have been conducting murderous onslaughts against the workers and peasants. Both nations are bankrupt and both have dictatorial governments. The people of Portugal are Latins, of Bulgaria, Slavs. Portugal supported the allied imperialists in the world war, Bulgaria threw in her lot with those of the central powers.

In both countries the condition of the workers and peasantry is pitiable, the economic breakdown complete.

The capitalist press may rave about foreign agitators, but unless capitalism itself has created the conditions for revolution, agitators waste their breath.

What really causes the capitalist press to foam at its collective month is that there is today an international working class political party that connects these struggles of the masses in all countries into a single struggle against world capitalism. This is the Communist International.

Communists are foreign agitators in that they acknowledge no loyalty to capitalism, in the same way that capitalist agitators in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics are foreign agitators.

To the struggling workers, however, Communists are not foreigners no matter what tongue they speak. A revolution in Portugal, a struggle for power in Bulgaria, for which the capitalist press blames the Communist International, shows that a world state—a world workers' state—is in the making—a state in which capitalists and their hangers-on will be the only foreigners.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

MOSCOW, April 1.—(By Mail).—COMRADE LOSOVSKY then reported on trade union unity:

The correctness of the policy of the Fifth Congress in the question of trade union unity is substantiated by facts. These facts are: The result of the British trade union delegation's visit to Russia, the session and the resolution of the Amsterdam executive, the decision of the general council of the British trade unions to convene a joint conference with the Russian trade unions, for the purpose of clearing the difficulties; and the relations of the Barmat-social-democracy to the bourgeoisie.

THERE are two oppositions in the Amsterdam International; a definite revolutionary wing, definitely organized and with a clear ideology, and a second, indefinite opposition with no clear ideology, which however, reflects the discontent of the masses.

After the Ruhr catastrophe, even the Amsterdamers recognized the necessity for new methods in the labor movement. A large number of trade union centers are carrying on a fight against the left opposition. The resolution of the Amsterdam executive has satisfied no one, hence the new conference.

THE fundamental factor of the unity problem is the question whether the fight against the Soviet Union shall be continued or not.

In the guise of the unity question, there is to be found the basic question of old and new relations to the Russian revolution. The difficulties of the unity campaign are as follows: In the trade unions there never was unity; they were always divided according to political, religious, national and racial points of view. It is a question of winning over not only the masses organized in red or yellow trade unions, but also those masses which are organized elsewhere or not organized at all.

THE systematic sabotage of the unity movement by the Amsterdamers must be broken.

The social democrats energetically oppose every attempt at unity, and they reject all such proposals.

In Yugo-Slavia the social democrats have replied that the unity of the political parties must be established first.

In France, the Amsterdamers demand the dissolution of the revolutionary trade union fractions. Unity can be established solely on the basis of the class struggle. The bitter opposition of the Amsterdamers to the unity campaign is explained by the fact that the social democrats reject the class struggle.

THE speaker then points to five essential deviations in our campaign: In the first place, an organizational conservatism; secondly, the idea that the unity campaign was only a maneuver; thirdly, the idea of an unconditional unity; fourthly, the tendency to weaken our struggle against the social democracy; and fifthly, the view that we simply enter the reformist trade unions.

ORGANIZATIONAL conservatism aims exclusively at the destruction of the reformist trade unions and neglects the chief factors altogether. The view that the unity campaign is a maneuver is false. We want unity, because unity is the primary condition for a successful class struggle. In spite of unity, our ideological fight against the social democracy must go on. Unconditional unity is nonsensical, for in every country there are already various conditions. The unity campaign is a matter of a long struggle which may last some years. The reformists demand that the R. I. L. U. be dissolved, but this cannot now be accepted, since unity has not yet been established.

THE speaker enumerates various types of countries: Russia, with a unified trade union movement; countries with a revolutionary minority; countries where the reformist majority can only be sustained with the aid of the police; countries whose trade unions belong to no trade union international at all; countries in which we have a majority.

The speaker then proceeds to describe the trade union unity campaign in various countries. In England there is a unified, well-organized minority movement. It is our task to support and to strengthen this minority, in order to steer the whole trade union movement to the left. The decentralized state of the British trade unions is very deterimental to the movement; it shall therefore, be our task to advocate trade union centralization.

IN Germany there exists an extreme centralism; the local organizations have no freedom of movement and are politically paralyzed. Here we must therefore strive for political decentralization.

In Czecho-Slovakia one-fifth of the workers are with us. The view entertained by certain Czech comrades that it is permissible to establish unity with the social democratic trade unions, but not with the national socialists or christian socialists is essentially false.

IN France the C. G. T. U. has the majority of the organized workers; yet Jouhaux, the leader of the C. G. T. declares that unity is only possible without him. We shall be glad to establish unity without Jouhaux.

In France we must create unity organs, unity committees, and mixed committees in the factories and shops, for the reformists themselves will, after unity is established, try to split the unions anew, because they only want unity with Herriot. In France the struggle for unity must be conducted from below.

IN the United States there are the most reactionary trade unions which openly advocate unity with Coolidge. In that the struggle for affiliation to the Amsterdam International and the campaign against the corruption of the trade union bureaucracy, are of revolutionary significance.

These are the five types of struggle for unity. In order to attain international unity, we must strive to establish unity on a national scale in every individual country. We must rouse the workers in the shops and factories for unity.

A MIGHTY factor in the unity struggle is the co-operation of the British with the Soviet trade unions.

This co-operation began as early as 1920, when the first delegation visited Soviet Russia; it was continued at the Hull Congress and at the 7th All-Russian Trade Union Congress. The Anglo-Russian conference will soon begin, and the representatives of the Soviet trade unions will bring up the question of a joint unity campaign. The Anglo-Russian bloc plays an important role in the struggle for unity. The joint activities of the British and Russian trade unions depend upon the new tendencies in the British movement, namely, upon the latter's development towards the left.

OUR slogan remains: A UNITY CONGRESS.

Special attention should be given to the trade union movement in the colonial and semi-colonial countries like China, Java, India.

The united international must comprise all workers of the world, and not only those in Europe. The reformists who are allied with the imperialists will oppose the affiliation of the colonial trade unions; we must fight for such affiliation.

The struggle for unity is a struggle for the masses, a struggle against the bourgeoisie and the reformists, between whom there are no differences. We are confronted by a capitalist offensive.

NOW that the social democracy and the bourgeoisie have forced the 10- and 12-hour day upon the German proletariat, it is the turn of the British and French workers next. The resistance of the working class must be organized against the capitalist offensive.

Instinctively, the workers feel the approaching capitalist offensive, and they want unity. We must reach the masses by means of unity campaigns for concrete daily demands. We must form as many unity organs, unity committees and mixed committees as possible; we must form a coalition with the left Amsterdam wing in the struggle for unity; we must strengthen and support the Anglo-Russian unity alliance, and consolidate the trade union movement in the colonies and our own organizations.

Between two revolutionary waves, the struggle for unity is a struggle for the majority of the workers, a struggle for the revolution.

HEISS (Czecho-Slovakia) makes the announcement that the general strike in Ostrau was declared against the will and in spite of the prohibition of the reformist trade union bureaucracy.

HAKEN (Czecho-Slovakia) reads the resolution of the Czecho-Slovakian delegation, which supports the Ostrau strike unanimously.

THE chairman, Comrade Dorsey, brings up the motion of the presidium to the effect that the plenum declare its solidarity with the strikers; the motion is passed unanimously.

GALLAGHER (England): The situation in England is favorable to the movement. The urge of the working class to unite the scattered trade unions, and to an alliance with the Soviet trade unions is growing ever stronger. The greatest obstacle is the attitude of the trade union bureaucracy.

Between the December, 1924, conference and the January, 1925, conference, the minority movement has made great progress. The slogans of the minority movement for the centralization of the trade unions, for joint demands of the various trade unions, and for individual membership found a great response among the masses. At the head of the movement are the miners.

The labor government had worsened the condition of the workers, and this strengthened the left tendency even in the general council of the trade unions. The conference of trades councils decided in favor of unity.

The right wing of the trade union leaders is in favor of unity with imperialism. The speaker proposes that the executive test the tactics of the Communist Party of Great Britain.

HARUS (Czecho-Slovakia): In spite of reformist influence, the workers of Czecho-Slovakia has remained on the side of the Russian revolution. To neutralize the influence of the Russian revolution, the reformists have issued the slogan of "Neutrality of the Trade Unions"; however, the workers have realized that the economic struggle turns into a political struggle.

The slogan of unity must be retained. The unity slogan meets with great response from the masses because in economic struggle the workers have a revolutionary perspective. The workers do not want to renounce the revolutionary tactics.

It is the task of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia to increase its influence in the trade unions. The question of trade union fractions is of vital importance. The Communist Party must learn to make a weapon of the Red trade unions.

VIOLA (Italy): The trade union movement in Italy is on the upgrade again. The Communists are heading the movement, whereas, the reformists and Maximalists are sabotaging it.

At the reformist trade union congress in 1924, the Communist proposed a clear policy, but the reformists rejected it, and confined themselves to petty statute modifications. The most active elements were eliminated from the congress.

The C. P. I. has also done some work on the land, and has created peasant organizations. The reformists and Maximalists have only disorganized the movement; they only wish to organize the exploiters.

The reformists are opposed to mass trade unions; to prevent unity, they even ally themselves with the fascists. However, the class struggle is becoming more acute from day to day, as was shown by the metal workers' strike.

The task of the Communists is to form shop committees everywhere, winning over the masses, to establish trade union unity in Italy, and to further international unity.

VILKOVSKY (Poland): The unity campaign in Poland is no mass campaign because even the largest unions have but few members.

The reformist policy and the treatment the Communists receive at the hands of the reformists, compels the masses to leave the unions. The C. P. realizes that the conquest of the trade unions is possible only in mass organizations; hence the efforts of the party to bring the masses back into the unions.

The demand for the formation of shop councils is the best way of creating militant organs. The party does not wish to have the shop councils compete with the trade unions.

THE reformists are opposed to mass trade unions; they therefore split the revolutionary trade union movement and subject them to police persecution. Simultaneously with the formation of shop councils, the party is issuing the slogan, "Back into the Unions," in order there to fight for unity.

Since the Polish trade union leaders are opposed to the British trade union delegation, the party must unmask them.

Unity must be established even with the trade union of the national labor party. The 3rd Congress of the Polish C. P., has concretely formulated the methods of struggle which will lead us to victory.

A Crow Bar or a Toothpick?

By MORITZ J. LOEB.

DO we consider often enuf, in our striving to build the Workers Party into a mass party, how seldomly the party itself as it is now functioning conforms to the most elemental requirements for creating a mass party? A mass Communist Party is not merely an organization of a great number of workers paying dues and accepting Communist beliefs. A mass Communist Party among other characteristics, perhaps most important of any of them, is a party that acts as a mass—all at one time, upon the directions of its leaders.

IN still greater degree, a Communist Party which has yet to become a mass party must meet this requirement. The Workers Party is one of these; its most pressing, immediate task is to build itself into a mass party. It has not taken the first steps toward this goal until it can itself act in the mass, until it can respond as a mass to the directions of its leadership.

TO be sure, our party has not by any means given any evidence of its inability to meet this requirement. Innumerable times, in big campaigns such as famine relief, labor defense in various political and industrial activities, the party has shown how it can act. But much too often, particularly in the everyday work and for the everyday tasks of the party we become spasmodic and irregular, we work in fits and starts, some of us now, others then, some not at all.

A GLARING example of disunited and incoherent work has been the support the party has given to the press in general and to the DAILY WORKER in particular. When the DAILY WORKER was established it was a thrilling new adventure for all of us, the most dramatic and exciting attempt of the party. For a time it received an almost universal support of the entire party membership.

WHEN the first glow of excitement had worn off, the bulk of the party settled back with a sort of sigh of satisfaction, an unuttered semi-conscious thot, "Well that's done. The DAILY WORKER has been brot into being. Now we can go about to look for the next glorious adventure." And the work of maintaining the DAILY WORKER and making it ~~into~~ a mass organ was left to the few here and there to whom the DAILY WORKER was no romantic toy but the most serious weapon for the building of the party and the destruction of capitalism.

NOW, the DAILY WORKER will be nothing and can do nothing unless it becomes an organ of the working class mass. If the party needs a bulletin for party members it can find a less expensive method than that of a daily paper. Yet the DAILY WORKER cannot become a mass organ simply by fighting for the interests of the masses any more than the party can become a mass party simply by reason of its program in the interests of the whole working class.

NOR can the DAILY WORKER become a mass organ by means of the efforts, no matter how energetic and conscientious, of a few DAILY WORKER patriots. On the day when the party as a whole, the party acting as a mass decides to put its mass strength and its mass energy into the building of the DAILY WORKER, on that day the DAILY WORKER will take its first step on the road to becoming an organ of the masses.

WHY is this "mass action" necessary? Why is it impossible for 1,000 comrades by putting forth 25 times the ordinary amount of energy, to accomplish as much as 25,000 party members, each giving a part of their time and energy to the building of the DAILY WORKER? It is not necessary for one to be a professor of psychology to find the answer to these questions. Anyone who has participated in any activity that brings one into contact with people in any number knows the answer. He knows the multiplied effect that mass activity has upon those who are participating and also upon those who are the objects of the activity.

JIMMIE HIGGINS may be the most earnest and untiring person imaginable. He may be resolved to sell DAILY WORKER subscriptions to every Bill Smith he meets and to seek out those Bill Smiths with whom he does not come into contact in his ordinary daily routine. But if Jimmie Higgins goes out alone he finds that most every Bill Smith will either say he isn't interested or if he admits interest will find some excuse for not subscribing. Jimmie Higgins is determined not to become discouraged because he knows the kind of work he is doing counts. But he often does get discouraged all the same. He feels kind of weak and isolated.

BUT when twenty-five thousand Jimmie Higginses go out all at one time they find that there are a lot of Bill Smiths who will think that there must be something in the DAILY WORKER that is too valuable to go without. That must be the case or otherwise there wouldn't be so many Jimmie Higginses reading it and talking about it. Jimmie Higgins himself feels more confident and militant because he knows he has twenty-five thousand comrades helping him. Jimmie Higgins can't get discouraged; there are too many of him; where one fails the other will succeed. Jimmie Higgins feels that he isn't any longer trying to pry loose the earth with a tooth pick. There are twenty-five thousand pair of hands at the end of a crow bar.

FROM May 4 to May 10 the membership of the Workers Party is going to try out an experiment in mass action to build the DAILY WORKER. The entire party, EVERY BRANCH, EVERY MEMBER, is going to popularize the DAILY WORKER with the masses and to sell DAILY WORKER subscriptions ALL AT ONE TIME.

THE details of the experiment are simplicity itself. Every branch of the party will receive a bundle of the current issue of the DAILY WORKER every day from Monday to Saturday. These papers the branch will distribute each day, for a week, taking care that the same houses are covered with all six issues. Then on Sunday the branch will go out in a body armed with determination and sub blanks to visit each one of these houses to solicit subscriptions.

SOMETIMES the party calls upon its members to perform some difficult tasks. Sometimes these are so difficult that there is some excuse when we fail to make a mass response. But this time there can be no excuses. This time we will be acting as a mass to build our chief organ into a mass organ or we will fail because we are lacking in Communist willingness.

ON the day the mass of the Workers Party membership moves to build the DAILY WORKER we will be beginning to build a mass paper. I think that the beginning will be so manifestly successful that the practice will cease to be an experiment but develop into a regular habit.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'F[illegible]ERTY.

ONLY a short time ago the capitalist lie mills had Zinoviev's troops attacking Trotsky's troops and both were having each other arrested or besieged in the Kremlin. A Honolulu editor mistook that ancient edifice for a prominent member of the Russian Communist Party, and when a private in the United States army pointed out his mistake the editor called up the authorities and the private got forty years in jail.

THE discussion in the ranks of the Russian Communist Party on the theoretical position of Trotsky was a hot one, and it is no secret that the former war minister was flattened out like a pancake, politically, after the discussion was over. The counter-revolutionists, the yellow socialists, the liberals and the intelligentzia rushed to his assistance. The 2½ internationalists grasped, like drowning men, at this latest straw of hope that blew their way. Perhaps they might yet be saved from oblivion! Trotsky in the meantime was saying nothing but taking the sun in the Caucasus.

THE latest reports appearing in the capitalist press, regarding Trotsky are not of a nature to give aid and comfort to those who expected Trotsky to sulk in his tent like a disappointed Napoleon and become the center for an international opposition against the Communist International. If the reports are true, Trotsky is slated for an important position in the Soviet government and is again ready for active service. Perhaps the lie factories will have Trotsky arresting Zinoviev in a few weeks from now.

OUR scribblers never seem to realise that what is governing Russia today, is not a little group of adventurers but a powerful, well-knit and disciplined organization, with a program, a theory and a tradition. Piffle-headed historians, who present the history of the human race to us as a series of conflicts between individual leaders, without taking into consideration the social forces behind these individuals; may see in the present situation in Russia only the result of Lenin's "scheming," and not a new era in human development marking the first successful revolution of the workers and peasants against the capitalists and feudal landowners.

COMMUNISTS do not minimize the importance of men of genius like Lenin, Marx, Engels and other intellectual giants who have charted the stormy sea of the future for the working class. They helped to fashion history. But they also know that no man or group of men no matter how brilliant can build an enduring structure on a principle that is not in harmony with economic evolution. The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (how that title must stick in the throats of the capitalist flunkeys who are obliged to use it) is in harmony with evolution. It is established on the principle that those who produce the necessities of life for society, should be the rulers and that those who render no useful service should have the full social value of the product of their uselessness.

IT happens that the useful people are in the great majority, and when this great majority gets the governmental power in its hands, which means the military machine, and has the intelligence to direct that power and is sufficiently conscious of its ability to retain that power, all the bright schemes that were ever concocted could not turn back the wheels of progress one millionth part of an inch. This is the reason why the dictatorship of the proletariat in Russia is growing stronger every day, while the black dictatorships in Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Poland, Spain and other countries are on the verge of collapse despite the support given to them by the millions of Wall Street.

• • •

THE Russian Communist Party, the political party that directs the Soviet government, is perhaps the most remarkable organization in the history of the world. To properly understand present developments in Soviet Russia, it is not enough to read the Communist papers, but a

MURDER RULES BEHIND WALL OF BAYONETS

Bulgarian Government Assassinating Foes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VIENNA, April 20.—Murder most foul is being committed by the fascist Bulgarian government behind the dark wall of silence that keeps the bloody deeds of the Zankov regime hidden from the outside world, except for surreptitious information that filters out thru the barrier of bayonets that this gang of assassins have drawn around the frontiers.

If reports are not exaggerated, a campaign of murder unequalled since the mass slaughter of workers in Finland, is now raging in Bulgaria. The fascist dictatorship, tottering before the growing opposition of the workers and farmers has tried to fasten the bomb explosion on the Communist International, and on the Communist Party of Bulgaria, the only organization that is capable of rallying the masses in the struggle for freedom.

Communists Executed.

Four hundred Communists have been executed, say news dispatches. In fact, so cruel and heartless has been the policy of the white terrorist General Tzaroff, that the army is revolting against his excesses and going over to the revolutionists. King Boris, who is a mere tool in the hands of the fascisti has been made the hero of the latest crisis. The fascisti now hope that thru the publicity manufactured by his press agent relating to his involuntary participation in the first of the latest series of bomb incidents, that the queen of Roumania will allow her parasite daughter to marry Boris.

Court martial law rules in Bulgaria. Sharp fights are taking place all over the country between the revolutionists and the fascisti and it is too early to predict the outcome.

Bulgaria today asked permission of the inter-allied military commission to raise an additional 10,000 troops to enable them to crush the opposition. This indicates the seriousness of the situation. An additional recruitment of 3,000 was recently allowed by the council of ambassadors. Jugo-Slavia is protesting against any further increase in the Bulgarian army.

POLISH PRIEST TO HAVE BEEN EXCHANGED GETS 6 YEAR SENTENCE

LENINGRAD, April 20— Branislav Oussas, the Polish priest who was one of the prisoners to have been exchanged for two Polish Communists murdered while under police guard bound for the Soviet border, was sentenced to six years' imprisonment and strict isolation by the district court here. He was charged with immoral treatment of young girls in his employ.

LEVIN PREVENTS "SUSPENDED" MEMBERS FROM GETTING WORK AND TRIES TO BAR THEM OUT

That the Levin-Hillman gang now trying to hold down the rank and file from revolting at the expulsions of the left wing members for daring to hold political opinions different than Abe Cahan of the yellow socialist "Forward," had their tongues in their cheek when they pretended that the "suspended" members should "apply for work," is shown by the events of the last few days and a conflict yesterday morning in the A. C. W. employment office.

How They Are "Given Work."

Conforming to the instruction to register at the employment office for work, the "suspended" members have faithfully carried out the instruction. But with little employment being given. Helen Kaplan was given a job, but strangely got fired after two days on the excuse that she was "working too fast."

H. L. Kahn got a job substituting for another worker for two days. The same for Clara Shapiro. As for Phil Aronberg, he was sent to Hart, Schaffner and Marx. AMALGAMATION OF ALL WOOL TEXTILE UNIONS OF BRITAIN GOING ON

NEW YORK, April 20.—That the amalgamation movement in the textile unions of Great Britain has reached formidable proportions is testified to in information received here by the Fairchild publications which list as committed to amalgamation into one organization of all unions in the British wool textile trade the following unions:

The National Union of Textile workers, the National Society of Woolcombers, the Wool Yarn and Warehouse Workers Union, the Scottish Textile Workers' Union Dunfermline; the Brechin Mill and Factory Operatives' Union, the Dundee and District Calender Workers' Union, the Scottish Textile Workers Union, Kilcaldy; the Dundee and District Union of Jute and Flax Workers and the Perth Textile Workers' Union. Combined membership of these unions is approximately 95,000.

COMMUNIST FOR SHOW DOWN ON FRENCH POLICY

Painleve Cabinet to Face Deputies Today

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, France, April 20.—The new Painleve cabinet will have to answer the question of Marcel Cachin, Communist leader, "What is the government's general policy?" when it faces the chamber of deputies tomorrow.

This question will be hard to answer, as the socialist bloc ministry, containing minister of finance Caillaux and minister of foreign affairs Aristide Briand, is made up of men with divergent ideas.

Caillaux For Inflation.

The newspapers here declare that Caillaux plans to issue bank notes in exchange for sixty billion francs of short term treasury bonds and twenty two billion francs of long term bonds maturing this year, making the total note circulation 120 billion francs or three times the present figure.

BRITISH MILITIA CALLED OUT TO CRUSH SERIOUS REVOLT IN ORANGE STATE WHERE WALES SEEKS THRILLS

BLOEMFONTEIN, Orange Free State, South Africa.—A demonstration by natives here against the English rule was put down only after the police had fired on a crowd of over four thousand natives, killing a unknown number. The military forces have been called out and the situation is regarded as serious. Many have been arrested.

The Prince of Wales, on his pleasure trip thru Africa, to demonstrate the "love" of the British imperialists for the African natives, is due here in a few weeks.

Bloemfontein is the capital of the Orange Free State.

The Prince of Wales, who is due to reach Capetown on April 30, is now traveling in a special train thru southern Nigeria, en route to Lagos.

GARY GLOATS OVER PROFITS AS HIS STEEL SLAVES MAKE WORLD RECORD

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 20.—Directors of the United States Steel corporation were re-elected at the annual meeting of the corporation here today. There were represented at the meeting 2,383,004 common shares out of a total of 5,083,025 outstanding and 1,452,491 preferred shares of a total of 3,602,811.

Half Billion Surplus Profit.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors, who presided at the meeting, announced that the United States Steel corporation had undivided surplus on hand of $517,061,308. From this amount, he said, there had been invested in new properties $264,070,646, leaving a balance of net working assets of $252,990,662.

Judge Gary told stockholders that the directors of the corporation had made its securities intrinsically more valuable from time to time.

Increased Dividends.

"We increased the dividend on the common stock," Gary declared, "by the payment of extras, so that if continued without interruption it would amount to 7 per cent. We made these

Brown to Speak Wednesday.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Altho Bishop William Montgomery Brown failed to speak in St. Mark's church on the Bowery, where more than one thousand had gathered to hear him, it was announced that Brown will speak Wednesday at the Community church run by Dr. John Haynes Holmes on 34th street. Brown was ordered not to speak in any Episcopal church in New York, by Bishop Manning, but it was thought he would disobey the order.

COMMUNISTS OF MEXICO AND U. S. JOIN IN PLAN FOR SPECIAL WEEK TO WAGE FIGHT ON IMPERIALISM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—(By Mail.)—July 4, marking the independence of the United States from British rule, will henceforth serve as a symbol for the national liberation movements in all countries of the western hemisphere, which are now facing the menace not of Great Britain but of the all-devouring empire of Wall Street.

Accepting unanimously a proposition presented in the name of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, the third annual congress of the Communist Party of Mexico, now in session, went on record in favor of denominating the week ending July 4 as "anti-imperialist week" thruout America.

During this week meetings will be held, special editions of Communist and other anti-imperialist periodicals will be published, demonstrations will be staged in front of American consulates, etc. An effort will be made to enlist the co-operation of labor and peasant organizations, student leagues and all other anti-imperialist groups in North, South and Central America.

Greetings from United States.

Greeting the congress of the Mexican Party in the name of the sister organization of the north, Manuel Gomez, fraternal delegate from the Workers (Communist) Party of America, emphasized the growing importance of a united struggle against American imperialism and presented a number of concrete proposals for common action, all of which were adopted.

The congress also adopted a resolution of protest against the interference of the United States in the Tacna-Arica controversy between Chile and Peru and called upon the Chilean and Peruvian peoples to hold their governments responsible for having accepted such interference. The appointment of General Pershing to administer the plebiscite was especially stigmatized and an appeal to the solidarity of the peoples of the two South American countries was issued.

Another resolution denounced the American occupation of Santo Domingo, Haiti and sections of the territory of Central America by armed forces of the United States.

Bare Crimes in Central America.

The fraternal delegate from the Communist Party of Central America reported on the crimes of the Orellana government in Guatemala, openly supported by the United Statse government. In Guatemala there is no such a thing as freedom of press and even the right to strike is denied. Hundreds of workers have been thrown into jail and submitted to the most extreme tortures for activities in behalf of their class. The Communist Party of Central America is forced to exist as an illegal organization. Even the issuance of a simple strike leaflet is severely castigated. The Communist Party of Central America appeals to working class organizations thruout America to take up its fight for freedom of press and the right to strike in Guatemala.

U. S. Capitalism Dominates.

American capitalists dominate Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama. They won the public utilities, mines and railroad lines. In the banana-producing regions the United Fruit company is lord and master, with the local governments ever ready to send troops in case of working class resistance.

PROTEST ON RED ARRESTS BRINGS SPEEDY ACTION

War Department Will Be More Lenient

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.— Following the storm of protest that swept the country over the barbarous sentences of 40 and 26 years meted out to two Hawaiian soldiers for being Communists, the war department announced today a policy of greater leniency for military prisoners.

New regulations provide that prisoners may become eligible for parole after completing one-third of their sentences, altho nine months must have been served. Prisoners at Governor's Island, New York; Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and Alcatraz Island, San Francisco, are affected.

The extremely heavy sentences given Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, stationed at Schofield barracks, Honolulu, for no other reason than that they declared themselves Communists in sympathy with Soviet Russia, drew the attention of the American workers to the persecution of soldiers by the war department.

SCOTT NEARING IS SAT UPON BY BUREAUCRATS

Education Conference Ruled by Reaction

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 20.— After kicking out the Communists from the fourth national conference of the Workers' Education Bureau by the barring of the delegates of the Workers' School of New York and the rejection of its affiliation, the reactionary machine of the A. F. of L., which has swallowed the bureau from hat to bootheels, began a war on the remnants of the left wing by a vicious attack on Professor Scott Nearing, famous economist and educator who had criticized the class collaboration tendency of the conference.

The Old Gang Knows How.

The Matthew Woll, Perkins, Frey, Maurer machine used their accumulated experience of steam-rolling trade union conventions, to suppress the left wing led by Nearing, who was declared "out of order" when he announced that he wished to "sound a note of rebellion."

The A. F. of L. bureaucracy was aided in its open capture of the conference and the future of the bureau, by the fact that the bureau is financially dependent on the bureaucracy and by its control of existing organizations such as the Brookwood college.

Choice Between Two Leaderships.

This is evidently disturbing to the left wing, which seems unreconciled to the reality that the bureau faced the necessity of either teaching class struggle and thus accepting Communist leadership, or teaching unadulterated class collaboration and falling into the complete control of the reactionary trade union officialdom.

Woll presented and forced thru a new constitution for the Workers' Educational Bureau, which makes it completely subject to the A. F. of L. machine. The new constitution provides that only two out of the eleven executive board members are to be elected by the convention.

Convention Agrees to Surrender Its Powers.

The others are kindly provided by the union officialdom, three to be ap-

Rebel Lisbon Troops Surrender to Gomes After Severe Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LISBON, Portugal, April 20.—Fifteen hundred have been arrested by the government of president Teixeira Gomes, and the revolt of a section of the army has been put down, it is reported. The fighting between troops headed by Maj. Filomeno Camara and the troops of the president lasted for many hours and many were killed and hundreds wounded, dispatches declare.

For a time the president was hiding in the main barracks, while cavalry, infantry and artillery, several hundred strong, under Camara, overthrew the directory, and established headquarters in the Paco da Rotondo. The president's troops rallied, however, and after severe fighting, forced the rebel troops to surrender.

Blue Blood's Dance at Lexington Celebration.

BOSTON, Mass., April 20.— The celebration of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Lexington is being held by the New England business men and public officials will end at three o'clock tomorrow morning when the military ball given by Governor Fuller to a crowd of selected blue bloods will terminate.

JUDGE BARS ALL WHEELER DEALS AFTER ARREST

Ruling Gives Defense Big Victory

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 20.—The defense in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, on charges of misuse of office scored an important victory today in a ruling handed down in federal court here by Judge Frank E. Dietrich.

Upholding a motion by Senator Walsh, chief defense counsel, the court barred the prosecution from introducing evidence or testimony relating to government oil permits that were not actually pending before the interior department in January, 1923, the time when Wheeler's indictment charged he illegally received a fee to appear before Washington authorities relative to permits of Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator and his associates.

Blow to Prosecution.

The decision, admittedly, was a great blow to prosecution, which was attempting to implicate Wheeler in all of Campbell's permits. The government must now confine itself to a narrowly restricted number of Campbell's permits and show Wheeler's activities in behalf of those specific assignments.

Expressing disappointment at the ruling, John L. Slattery, United States district attorney, announced that on the remaining permits held admissable by the court he would prove that Wheeler after elected to the senate actually received $4,000 from Campbell to straighten out oil land troubles in Washington.

Relevancy of the permits was brot up when Walsh moved to bar testimony of H. J. Coleman, attorney for the California Oil company, relative to the company's purchase of a permit assigned to Louis E. Lincoln, employe of Campbell. Wheeler and Campbell attended a meeting here in February, 1923, when there was alleged to have been discussion of reassignment of the Lincoln permit to Tom Stout, ex-congressman from Montana. Approval of the interior department was necessary to make the transfer.

"Don't Worry!" Said Wheeler.

Coleman was to testify, Slattery told the court, that Wheeler assured the oil men:

"Don't worry, there's a Montana attorney in the interior department, Eddie Booth (Edwin S. Booth, former solicitor) who will help out the Montana boys."

This testimony was barred by Walsh's motion.

Booth, here as a defense witness, was indicted in Washington with Wheeler and Campbell on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government out of government oil and gas lands.

Breaks World Steel Production Record

GARY, Ind., April 20.—The Illinois Steel company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation broke the world's record for total steel production in one month's time during March, it was shown by official figures made public last night.

The Gary works in March produced 224,021 gross tons of pig iron, 329,418 gross tons of open hearth steel ingots and 309,676 net tons of coke. This world's record stream of steel was rolled into rails, billets, blooms, slabs, plates, axles, rolled steel wheels and merchants' bars and shapes. The total shipment of these finished products amounted to 254,308 gross tons.

The Illinois Steel company is a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation with 14,000 men in the steel plant and more than 8,000 others in other subsidiary plants at Gary.

Quezon Protest Ship Sale.

Levin Blacklists Suspended Members

foreman told Aronberg to come to work the next day. Levin's brother said nothing while Aronberg was there. But the next day when Aranberg appeared for work, the same foreman said, "Your record was looked up in the office, and I'm sorry, but we can't hire you."

Blacklisted For Advocating Amalgamation

Aronberg's "record" in the Hart, Schaffner and Marx shop is a blacklist against him since 1916, when for union activities, in his fight for amalgamation, put him in bad with the firm. Apparently it has put him in bad now with the Levin dynasty.

Sam Levin and his crowd have continually spread the rumor that the "suspended" members don't want work and even refuse it when offered. The above nails that lie, as does the new attempt, tried yesterday, to prevent the "suspended" members from even coming to the employment office.

The Abe Cahan-Hillman-Levin Espionage Act

Helen Kaplan, was instructed by her local to apply for werk. Yesterday in the employment office the other members gathered around her wishing to discuss the discrimination practised against the left wing and, apparently not conceiving that the officials have passed a little private espionage act, wished to talk with her about the class struggle in general.

Quite a crowd of union members were gathered, when Charles Burr, financial secretary of the joint board, called her aside and told her "You'll have to leave this place."

"Why?" asked Heine Kaplan, as the furtive and mysterious air of Burr seemed to indicate that he had been browsing among the latest pages of some Sherlock Holmes tale.

"Why, you are doing the same thing now as for what we expelled you," he said, forgetting that it was technically a "suspension."

"What is that?" she asked.

"Talking to people." Burr replied, heatedly, "and making them dissatisfied."

"Do they hang persons for talking to people, nowadays, or do they just put them in prison for twenty years." Kaplan retorted.

Burr replied, "I got my orders to put you out of here." Then as the crowd of members got more and more interested, he got more angry and demanded her employment registration card. "Don't give it to him," cried the crowd.

Business agents, began to appear. These worthies who had previously tried, by order of the Levin machine, to take part in arguments, but had always gotten the worst of it, did not appear to be favored by he crowd of workers.

"Who is that fellow, a gangster?" asked one worker.

"No, that's a business agent," replied a second worker.

"But, what's the difference between a business agent and a gangster?" interjected a third worker.

Sam Levin, lord high executioner, arrived, wearing his medal of dishonor presented by the Polish government for loyal services rendered.

Said Levin: "Come along to my office, I want to talk with you."

Helen Kaplan protested that she could be talked to right where she was. "That's it," cried a business agent gangster, "she wants to talk in front of the people here."

"But They Feared the Multitude"

Levin then ordered her to leave the office and told her that she was not allowed there by his orders. "You register, and we will notify you when to come for work."

Kaplan stood her ground. "That's a fake you're trying to put over to start the same lies as before about the suspended members not wanting work. We come here wanting work, because that's the only way of getting it. Then you try to chase us away. You know the employment office is rotten. It is supposed to notify people of jobs, but it never does. Some are given jobs without even registering. Some get jobs out of rotation, just because they are favorites, and it is positively necessary to stand around here and watch the employment office, otherwise one would die of old age waiting for you and your notification of jobs."

Retreats to More Strategic Position

Sam Levin, looked around. The crowd of members were packed about the debate and seemed enthusiastically in favor of what Helen Kaplan was saying. He decided that the czar would abdicate the throne for the time, and took the air.

WORKERS' RELIEF FILM WILL SHOW IN UTICA APRIL 30, NOT MAY 1.

UTICA, N. Y., April 20.—To avoid conflict with a May Day meeting the Italian committee for International Workers' Aid in Utica, N. Y., has advanced the date of its showing of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" to April 30, instead of May 1.

Coolidge to Punish Objectors to Steal of Pacific Vessels

WASHINGTON, April 20—With a radical shake-up in the United States shipping board impending, whichever way the court fight ends, a legal battle was begun here today in district supreme court over the sale of the five big president type liners to the Dollar steamship interests.

Backed by three of the board's seven members the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. went before Justice McCoy to show cause why the sale of the vessels to the Dollar line should be permanently rejected. The Pacific Mail. unsuccessful bidders for the vessels. now have a restraining order, and today's legal fight is to determine whether it shall be made lasting.

President Coolidge has taken cognizance of the shipping board row and it is believed certain that resignations of those bucking the Dollar company will be called for before many days.

The ships were sold to Dollar, a notorious open shopper, for five million dollars, altho their actual cost was 30 million dollars and the Pacific Mail company had made a larger bid.

Los Angeles Show Cancelled—6 More Dates Made by I. W. A.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—When the manager of one of the largest auditoriums in Los Angeles cancelled the contract for the showing of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik", thereby exposing himself to damage suits, the Babbits of the Southern town thought they had put an end to the movie activities of this "pesky" Committee for International Workers' Aid.

But the success of the previous picture, "Polikushka", was so great that the committee was able to book showings for six nights in neighborhood houses, beginning May 3rd. Announcement of time and place will be made shortly.

Four Southern Roads Merged.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 20.—Four railroads will be brot under one operating head, it is announced here. The railroads to be merged are the Union Pacific, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Kansas City Southern, and Louisiana Railway and Navigation company.

Cal Relieved at French Turn.

WASHINGTON, April 20—The Coolidge administration is greatly relieved that Caillaux, the new French finance minister, will not propose a capital levy, but will insist on rigid economy in expenditures.

Abolish Night Baking.

KLUXER CHARGED WITH MURDEROUS ATTACK JAILED

Gives Up After Two Days in Hiding

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 20.—David C. Stephenson, ex-grand dragon of the K. K. K. in Indiana, was arrested at 9:45 o'clock this morning by Sheriff Omer Hawkins on an indictment charging him with first degree murder in connection with the tragic death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, daughter of a respected local family.

He was accompanied by Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, his lieutenants charged with him in the murder indictment.

Habeas corpus proceedings will be commenced immediately as bail is not allowed. Stephenson and his co-defendants spent the week-end in a nearby town.

Indicted After Death.

Already charged with criminally attacking the girl who died from the effects of self administered poison, Stephenson was indicted for murder following her recent death. Klenck and Gentry are Stephenson's lieutenants.

Miss Oberholtzer's death was traced to poison she swallowed after a trip to Hammond, Ind., in a sleeping car during which Stephenson is alleged to have criminally attacked her.

Klenck and Gentry were listed in the indictment as accomplices, but they were held equally responsible with Stephenson for the girl's death.

Refused Girl Medical Aid.

The murder indictment was based on the alleged refusal of the three defendants to allow Miss Oberholtzer medical aid after "causing her to take poison tablets thru fear, duress and compulsion."

While the murder indictment was returned by the county grand jury before noon last Saturday, all efforts to find Stephenson and the co-defendants today were unavailing.

The arrest was made in the law offices of Eph Inman, chief defense counsel. Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry were there awaiting the arrival of Inman, when Sheriff Hawkins appeared. Stephenson explained that the three intended to go to the jail and give themselves up as soon as their attorney arrived.

Taken to Jail.

After the arrest the sheriff escorted the defendants to an automobile waiting outside and hurried them to the Marion county jail. They were locked up, after telephoning Inman.

County Prosecutor Remy was convinced that Inman would attempt to obtain freedom for his clients thru habeas corpus proceedings. In Indiana persons charged with murder cannot be admitted to bail.

Kluxer to Stay in Jail.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 20.—Eph Inman, attorney for D. C. Stephenson, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck, jointly indicted for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, appeared in the Marion county criminal court this afternoon and filed pleas in abatement for each of his clients.

The state immediately filed demurrers to the pleas and Judge James A. Collins sustained the demurrers.

Following the court action, Inman stated that no further action would be taken today nor would any attempt be made to have Stephenson and his lieutenants released from jail.

Misuse Bakers' Label.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 20—The People's Bakery Co., inc., is in court in Minneapolis defending itself against the charge by Bakers' Local 231, of using the union label without authority. The company is using strikebreakers and has an injunction forbidding picketing, but used the label just the same, a misdemeanor under the law. The bakery which broke its agreement with the union, is backed by the open-shop citizens' alliance.

Cashier Suicides; Bank Closes.

OSCOLA, Ia., April 19.—This city was stunned today by the suicide of Roy A. Downs, cashier of the Osceola National Bank, and subsequent closing of the bank by national bank examiners.

The body was found in the city park by James Jackson and James Glass, friends of the banker, who had been searching for him all night.

Plot Against Jap Premier.

TOKYO, April 20.—A plot to assassinate Premier Kato was revealed today, according to the Tokyo vernacular press, when police arrested Takaichi Omichi charged with being the head of the conspiracy. Evidence discovered on Omichi, the police declared, involved opposition politicians.

Jugo-Slavs Plan Naval Base.

BELGRADE.— The Jugo-Slavian government has authorized credits necessary for the enlargement of the Port Sebanico on the Adriatic Sea and the erection of a ship yard, making that city the chief naval base of Jugo-Slavia.

The Intelligent Worker Is the Staunchest Ally of Fight for Communism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY presents an opportunity for comparing the number of voters participating in elections in the United States, under capitalist rule, and in the Russian workers' republics under Soviet rule. The actual figures give the Soviet republic a staggering lead over this capitalist republic. Under Soviet rule the masses are being drawn into participation in Soviet public life, while in the United States many sections of the country show an actual falling off in the number of eligible voters who went to the polls in last year's elections.

• • • •

In making this comparison there is this great difference to be kept in mind. The United States has its list of "eligible voters," a selected list of the "best citizens," native born or naturalized. In many states those who pay certain taxes only are allowed to vote. There are also residential qualifications, while in the South there are many restrictions, of various kinds, on voting by Negroes. The United States, therefore, in its "eligible voters" has a "selected list" to start with.

In the figures for Russian Soviet rule we find no such phrase as "eligible voters." All have the right of franchise, a few bourgeois alone excepted. Even the most backward masses among the peasants, but recently freed from the black oppression of czarism, are drawn into the electoral struggle. Yet here are some of the facts:

In the province of Kiev from 50 to 70 per cent of the peasants participated in the elections.

In some of the districts of the Artemovsk province as many as 80 per cent of the electors participated.

In Moscow province the average proportion of electors participating in the elections to village Soviets held so far is 78.7 per cent of the total men electors, and 49.1 per cent of the women electors, or an average of 63.9 per cent of the total electorate.

Thus the elections under Soviet rule are featured by an increasing number of women and peasant voters being drawn into participation in this phase of public life. Thus Soviet rule is strengthened.

• • • •

But in the United States, with the right of franchise going back to the time that the first settler arrived in this country, and with its carefully "selected list" of "eligible voters" under the capitalist dictatorship that rules today, the figures show that only 50.92 per cent of "eligible voters" participated in the presidential election last November, when millions of dollars were spent "to get out the vote."

Only 31 states show a gain for 1924, over 1920, while 17 states showed losses. Every southern state, with great native-born populations, showed a loss, except Mississippi and Georgia. Yet in Mississippi only 12.9 per cent of the eligibles went to the polls, and in Georgia only 11.32 per cent.

SOUTH CAROLINA, WITH 806,880 ELIGIBLE VOTERS, CAST ONLY 50,751 VOTES, OR A BARE 6.3 PER CENT.

• • • •

When the growth of population is taken into account, even those states that showed slight increases, actually suffered losses. This indicates a startling indifference on the part of the masses under the fraudulent "democracy" of Wall Street rule. This indifference is stirred at times by the "get-out-the-vote" campaigns, with their barrels of money. The "stay-at-home" eligible voters are usually reactionary in politics. They are paid to go to the voting booths when the interests of "big business" are threatened, no matter whether in local, state or national elections. They cast the deciding vote on the side of ignorance and reaction.

• • • •

Soviet rule, however, draws its masses into the elections to win them for the intelligent rule of the workers and peasants. The stability of Soviet rule depends on the intelligence of the most backward masses, especially the most backward peasantry, while American capitalist rule, like the rule of the czars, finds a foothold in the ignorance of the masses, an ignorance that it can call to its aid, whenever its power is threatened.

• • • •

Thus capitalism's pet lie, that Bolshevism thrives where ignorance is supreme, is effectively and thoroly shattered.

The drive toward Communism thruout the Union of Soviet Republics grows in momentum as the emancipating light of a dawning mass intelligence drives out the last vestiges of czarism and capitalism.

An intelligent working class, which means a working class daily growing more class conscious, means a working class aroused against capitalism. It means an increasingly effective struggle against capitalism. It means in time, thru the intelligent exercise of the organized might of labor, the overthrow of Wall Street rule.

Capitalism has an ally in ignorance. The intelligent worker is the staunchest fighter for Communism.

POLISH WHITE TERROR EXPOSED BY RADWANSKI

Large Meetings Hear the Communist Message

Comrade Radwanski, Polish Communist leader spoke at well attended meetings in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and New York recently. The meetings were held under the auspices of the International Workers' Aid and the Polish Federation of the Workers Party.

Comrade Radwanski speaks in Brooklyn on April 23, in White Eagle Hall, 261 Briggs Avenue and in Newark on Friday evening April 24. He spoke at an open air meeting in New York last week and at an indoor meeting last Tuesday.

Comrade Radwanski's meetings have been uniformly successful and were well attended particularly by Polish workers, who were aroused against the white terror now carried on in Poland by the present government of that country.

Senate in Sham Fight for Waning Power in Courts

WASHINGTON, April 16—(FP)—Argument of the suit begun by the late Frank S. Myers, postmaster of Portland, Ore., under the Wilson administration against his summary removal from office by President Harding in 1921, has just been heard by the federal supreme court. Myers raised the issue that since the law of 1876 requires that postmasters of the first, second and third classes are to be selected and removed by the president, "by and with the consent of the senate," his removal without consent of the senate was illegal. The senate consents to a removal by approving the selection of a successor to the office. In Myers' case, no successor was approved by the senate for nearly 18 months. He sued for salary due

At the suggestion of Chief Justice Taft, the senate selected Sen. Pepper of Pennsylvania to join Judge Will King of Oregon, counsel for Mrs. Myers, in upholding the right of the senate to determine whether a first class postmaster may be removed by the president. This assertion of the senate's right to veto removals of a political nature is new. If the president is not upheld, the patronage power of the White House will have suffered a serious curtailment.

HILLCREST MINE IS TIE[illegible]P BY PICKET LINE

Strikers Refuse Scab Wage Cut Contract

HILLCREST, Alta., Canada, April 16.—(By Mail.)—The lockout here has developed into a strike. Blairmore, Bellevue and Coleman have signed up. Their new contract leaves conditions as before except for the wage rate.

Hillcrest men have refused to sign up as the rest of the camps, and the men are determined to save the conditions already won.

Where Wages Are Won.

The first break was when about 50 or 60 men signed up for work at the wage cut scale. The miners called a special meeting and decided to picket the mine next morning—that is today.

About five men went to work in the morning. The afternoon shift stayed at home. The fun began when the scabs had to run the gauntlet of the pickets.

Mr. "Kolchak" Evades Pickets.

One of them got clear, he was an ex-officer of Kolchak's army. Mr. "Kolchak" had better keep dodging the pickets. Everyone is satisfied with the result of the day's picketing and are confident of winning a decent contract.

We are all to be on the job—the picket line—at 6 a. m., a good turnout puts the crimp on the scabs' effort to break our solidarity.

Yesterday at Bellevue, one man met his death by gas, another today got both legs broken. A good start for open shop conditions.

A Postscript on Mr. "Kolchak."

Later:—Only one man worked on the shift just over, and he lives inside the picket lines. And today Mr. "Kolchak" got his trimming. So after all our picket line was very effective.

Charge Fleischmann Yeast Firm Makes Bootleggers' Alcohol

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Attorney General Sargent has announced that the farce of "investigation" of the Standard Oil trust, the Fleischmann Yeast company and the General Electric company, under the anti-trust laws, will be continued by him.

The Fleischmann Yeast company will be investigated for the manufacture and sale of industrial alcohol. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, it is recalled, when testifying before the Cousens committee investigating the treasury department, criticised the failure of the treasury and prohibition department to initiate action against the Fleischmann Yeast company.

The dry unit has evidence, she charged, that the yeast company is manufacturing alcohol that eventually finds its way into the bootleg trade.

DISTRICT 18 SHOT TO HELL BY SCAB SCALE

Starvation Cure with Fakers' Aid Did It

HILLCREST, Alta., Can.—A sample of the crafty coercion that is being used by the coal operators to force over the wage cut in District 18 of the U. M. W. of A. is given in the circular letter sent all the employes of the Hillcrest collieries.

Especially to be noted is the smooth way of arguing that if the miners only take a cut in wages, they will get lots of work. This is the same poison that is being whispered into the ears of workers everywhere now, and it should be spotted by anybody at the moment the boss begins it. The circular, in part says:

Baiting the Hook with Jobs.

"What justification can there be for the present wage of 72c an hour as a minimum for ordinary labor outside the mine, all other rates being higher in proportion? You may hold out for high wages, but you get little or no work as evidenced by the fact that during the past twelve months you have only averaged a total of about 43 full days' pay. The coal operators have lost money and you have depleted your savings, but your paid agitator has flourished thru it all on money you provided him with.

Busting the Contract.

"There is ample precedent to terminate a contract which has availed the worker little, prevented the operator from obtaining business, and is therefore today an ineffective document which was forced upon us last fall against our better judgment, as evidenced by the letter addressed to our employes at that time, outlining the business position of the coal industry.

"It has been suggested that we post a scale of wages conforming to the Fernie wage scale, and this we have no hesitation in doing. You will therefore find the revised wage scale posted at the time keeper's office, and our mine manager will be at his office ready to sign on any men willing to work on this basis. As soon as a sufficient number of men are signed on, we will again open up our mines."

Fakers Don't Care.

In the face of this attack Sherman, the district president, does nothing; John L. Lewis does nothing, and the union is going to hell in District 18.

FAKERS SLEEP WHILE COMPANY UNIONS GROW

Head of Metal Trades Not Interested

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press)

WASHINGTON—(FP) — April 20—Growth of company unions, under whatever name, does not alarm Secretary Berres of the metal trades department, American Federation of Labor. Despite the steady shrinkage in total membership in metal trades unions of the United States, Berres contends that the labor movement is essentially as strong as ever, and when a crisis shall come it will rally in overwhelming force.

Berres' attention was called by the Federated Press to the New York Trust company's announcement that "works councils" have grown in number from 12 in 1917 to 814 at the present time, covering plants which now employ 1,177,000 persons.

"The number of wage earners affected by the works councils," says the New York concern, which presumably is the financial agency of some of the greatest employing groups, "is now approximately 25 per cent of the total trade union membership. In view of the fact that only one-fifth of this country's wage earners are members of trades unions, the rapid growth of works councils suggest the possibility that their development by recognising the mutual interests of employers and employes, has to a great extent removed the necessity for unionism."

That the bank is referring to company unions as works councils is indicated when it states that more than half of the employes affected by the councils are in large establishments of over 15,000 employes each, and that over 25 per cent of them are in the metal trades, while the lumber and printing industries are next in number of these councils.

Three forms of works councils—committee, association and "industrial democracy" or legislative and cabinet organization—are described.

Metal Polishers Gain by Strike in Spite of Police

DETROIT—(FP)—The Metal Polishers' union is gaining strength in its Detroit strike at the C. B. Shepard Co. plant. Picketers charged with assault and battery have been acquitted. The employers are bringing case after case against the union members.

MUCH DEBATE OF NEEDLE WORKERS IN 'MEDIATION'

Governor's Commission a Place of Talk

NEW YORK, April 20.—Announcement of the joint board of the Cloak and Dressmakers' Union, International Ladies' Garment Workers, that the dressmaking shops of New York with their 30,000 workers, will again be on strike unless the sanitary label is sewn into all garments is one of the two features of needle trades news this week. The other is the protracted hearing going on before Governor Smith's mediation commission for the cloak trade.

At the hearings a debate is taking place between counsel for the employers, both jobbers and contractors, and counsel for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, over the issue raised by the details of union control of the shops and the rival demands.

Issues Raised.

A flat increase of 10 per cent in wages is also demanded and the installation of the 40-hour week in the cloak trade as it now prevails in the dressmaking trade.

The issues of piece work and the right of employers to discharge that had been raised by the bosses received much attention in the argument before the commission. Piece work has inherent defects. It means constant bickering over piece work prices. The union had agreed to limitations on the right to strike in return for employers' guarantees against unwarranted discharges. The union stands fast on the principle that no worker may be discharged without adequate review of his case by the two parties involved.

Guarantee of 32 Weeks.

In a formal statement of its demands which the union laid before the commission one of the most important clauses is one insisting that manufacturers deposit financial guarantees for the 32 weeks' work a year called for by labor. The jobber is made the responsible party by the union and is required to guarantee that the workers employed by the sub-contractors to whom he farms out his work, be properly taken care of.

In the case of those jobbers who are organized into the two boss associations—the Industrial Council of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association and the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association—the guarantee is provided thru the pledges of these two bodies.

Hearings are continuing and are keenly watched in the needle trades.

War Plans Speeded.

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 19.—With 58 officers and men aboard, the dirigible Los Angeles soared from its hangar today on a scheduled six-hour test flight which is to determine the fitness of the ship for its second flight to Bermuda tomorrow.

Building Trades of Cleveland May Walk Out with Glaziers

CLEVELAND—Twenty thousand union building tradesmen may be involved in a major strike of the industry in Cleveland within the next 30 days following on a strike of union glaziers, now in its sixth week. The strike began March 1 when the union, with a $1.25 scale and a 44-hour week, was turned down on a demand for a $1.50 scale and the 5-day week. The glaziers immediately organized a co-operative company but the bulk of the glass work has been postponed.

Contractors are considering importation of nonunion glaziers, which it is believed will precipitate a general building strike. The Building Trades Employers' Assn. offers financial support to glazing contractors in their efforts to break the strike.

UNION OFFICERS IGNORE MINERS' JOB COMPLAINTS

Agreement Works Only One Way in Mines

By A MINER (Worker Correspondent)

BENTLEYVILLE, Pa., April 20—Many of the favorable conditions formerly prevailing have been lost by the miners in District Five since the officials signed the last agreement. The excuse given for not fighting the company is bad times and fear that the company will shut down the mines. On the Bentleyville Branch there are ten mines, only four of which are working, but still these cowardly officials say it is better than nothing.

The first condition that the miners lost was a rule in the mines that if a man worked in a wet place he received $5.00 extra in two weeks. One day the company cut off this extra $5.00 and the men refused to work unless they could get their well earned money.

Wet Work Not Paid as Agreed.

They took it up with their committee but failed to reach any agreement with the bosses. They then took it up with the board members and were given the decision that if the bosses wouldn't pay, that they would have to put the men in dry places.

This the men accepted right away. The pit boss put them in other places and hired new men who had been out of work about six months. These men were glad to get jobs under any conditions and none of them received one cent extra for working in water. That was the settlement made by our "good" officials.

The Drivers' Complaint Ignored.

Our drivers had been used to start at 6:30 in the morning to leave the stable. The mine developed so far that the drivers could not reach their working places at seven and the company fired one driver for not starting at 7:00 o'clock as the agreement called for. In fact some of these drivers had a good hour's way to travel underground before they reached their working places.

This was also taken up with the company without any result, so they called upon their board member for help. He notified them that if they could not reach their working places at seven they should leave the stable earlier or else he could not do anything for them in case they got fired and now the boss takes care of the firing part.

Wating for Cars—To Help the Boss.

The four mines still operating are only working from two to four days a week, so the bosses are trying to get as much coal out on these days as possible. To increase their tonnage they have some picked men working every day, mostly the bosses' favored men. They fill all the empty cars in the mine from the coal knocked down by the miners the day before and when the latter come to work they have to wait from two to four hours before they get their first car.

The miners called a special meeting to stop this practice and also to stop the method used by the bosses of doubling up two men in one place. They elected a committee to meet with the bosses, but as usual they failed to get any results.

Again they asked their board member to come and help them in their fight but he told them to do the best they could, he could not help them because the company would shut down the mine if they stop these practices. The company refused to give the miners any satisfaction because they know they can get much more favorable decisions from the officials.

No Protection from the Union.

Every day some new bad condition and not a word of protest from our officials because they say we have an agreement for three years and we should be glad we are working. However the miners are beginning to see the point and getting ready for the fight, if the officials will not fight the miners are apt to take matters into their own hands.

STEEL WORKERS VICTIMIZED BY "SAFETY FIRST"

Open Shop and Speed Up in Pittsburgh

By THOMAS (Worker Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, April 20.—"Safety first" committees have become the pet angel of the steel trust. In reality they are nothing but "open shop" propaganda committees trying to force their dope on the workers, nothing is ever given for the benefit of the workers. Here is how it works out in the mill where I am employed.

There are paid men who go around the mill every day of the week preaching how much better the place is now than it was ten years ago, and try to convince the workers that they are in heaven, but it is the opposite, it is the worst hell it is possible to imagine

"Safety Committee" Always Blames the Workers.

This safety committee is supposed to try to cut down accidents and give reasons when an accident takes place so that men could avoid them in the future. That is what they say they are doing, but there is nothing of the sort. What they do is to put the blame on the shoulders of the workers, for every accident which takes place. Regardless of whose fault it is, the workers are called careless.

There was a young worker fired because he had received a few cuts on his hands in one week. Another was fired because he refused to handle heavy bars with an injured hand. There was another worker whose job it was to oil the rolls over which white hot rails run. He could not oil them while the rails were running, so he told the foreman to stop them, which he did, but not long enough for the worker to finish the job with the result that a hot rail went clean thru his body and killed him.

At the next "safety meeting" a paid speaker of the company came and stated that a man had been killed, and as much as the company regretted it, it is mainly thru his own carelessness and that he had no business in that spot; this, altho he had been ordered there by the foreman, and then the speaker went on to state the difference in the accidents now and ten years ago.

"All Time Want More Work."

A good many of the foreign born workers can see that the safety meeting is a speed-up meeting. I spoke to one today and altho he could not understand the English language very good or even speak it. I asked him what he thought of the meetings he said, "All time want more work." So you see the impression that he got.

The company has its spies all over the plant who will report any talk of a union that they hear, and some excuse is immediately found to fire the one who advocates organization.

The wages are so low that the workers have barely enough to live on and if any sickness takes place they have to trust to charity of others. If you are injured too bad to be able to walk to work, the company will send the ambulance to fetch you and take you home again in the evening in order to keep discontent at a minimum.

The main point is they are afraid the men will organize once again to better their conditions. They have done it once and they will do it again.

It Costs Like Hell But Unions Must Go, Says New Haven Line

WASHINGTON — (FP) — Farming out locomotive repairs by the New Haven railroad, to avoid dealing with its shop unions as ordered by the rail labor board, cost 140 per cent more than the work in its own shops. This is attested by experts for the interstate commerce commission. From July 1, 1922, when the shop strike began, until the end of 1923, the New Haven paid $3,310,798 for contract work, which could have been done in its own shops for $1,397,634. The American Locomotive Co., the Baldwin Locomotive Co. and the Bethlehem Shipping Corp. get most of the loot.

Wage Dispute Kills

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 20.—Three lives were snuffed out when a dispute betwen Peter Totsh, business agent of the Plumbers' Union, and Christpoher C. Givaltney, plumbers' helper, ended in a rain of bullets. Givaltney shot Totsch, and then policeman David Mohler, who ran at him. He himself was killed by detective George Burns. The men were quarreling over $10 owed to Givaltney by Totsch.

PRIZE FIGHTERS AND PREACHERS USED TO KEEP PACKING HOUSE SLAVES ENTERTAINED "PROPERLY"

By TOM MATTHEWS
(Member of Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen.)

The strike of 1921-1922 taught the meat packers many lessons in the art of keeping wage-slaves satisfied and unorganised. The methods range all the way from prize fights to preachers' sermons. "Anything to keep them satisfied" has replaced "Treat 'em rough" as the motto of the packers in handling the slaves.

Thus Cudahy's Omaha plant, for instance, has its "Cudahy Athletic Club." During the winter season boxing matches (prize fights) are put on for the edification of the slaves with popular stars in the fistic art on the programs. The arena is located at the plant, and the workers are duly impressed with the regard the company has for their entertainment and "welfare."

During the summer months baseball games between various departments will replace the prize-fighting exhibitions. The packers have learned that "union loyalty" can be replaced with "department loyalty." So Cudahy's pork butchers, for example, will meet Cudahy's mechanics on the diamond with the slaves from each department rooting for their respective warriors.

Armour Uses Sky Pilots.

Armour's Omaha plant has gone in pretty strongly for "bowling leagues," but since it is obvious that not all the slaves can bowl, that always-ready servant of capitalism, the sky pilot, has been rushed into the breach. In this particular instance the "Reverend Brown" delivers his regular sermon. Like all good, sincere christians the reverend appeals to his hearers to be honest and industrious, which is another way of telling the workers to be loyal wage slaves and put their faith in "god" rather than in the might of organised labor.

Dold Teaches "Co-Operation"

Dold's Omaha plant has its "fifty-fifty club" to emphasize the idea of "partnership" between employer and employe. The latest stunt of this particular company union aggregation is a co-operative grocery and meat market at which Dold's slaves can buy their foodstuffs at wholesale prices. In this respect the Dold Packing company is going a step farther than the Big Five.

"Why should we pay profits to small grocers and butchers, when we can sell to the men at no cost to ourselves and keep them satisfied," is the way the Dold company reasons.

Dold's company union (fifty-fifty club) numbers among its officers workers formerly active in the Butcher Workmen's Union and prominent in the 1921-22 strike. Packinghouse leaders can be bought cheaply, but such company union traitors in the various plants are being exposed by militants of the Workers Party and Trade Union Educational League, who alone know how to combat such class collaboration poisoners.

Swift's For "Welfare"

Swift and company has its "employes' welfare and benefit association." This is a form of group insurance administered by the company in much the same manner as are the company unions in the other plants. Swift's Omaha plant, looks after the welfare of its slaves in more ways than one, as will be related in future articles.

Against organization and class solidarity the packers have mobilized preachers, prize fighters, religious and national antagonisms, company unions, co-operative stores, moving pictures, wage increases, insurance, social clubs, baseball and bowling teams, among the schemes to keep their 200,000 wage slaves divided and satisfied.

Working in close tho perhaps unconscious co-operation with them are the bootlegging and gambling dens such as thrive in all meat packing centers.

• • • •

NOTE:—Packinghouse workers in the various centers are urged to write of their experiences to the T. U. E. L. page of the DAILY WORKER, particularly on such questions as:

Is the 42½ cent scale for common labor adhered to?

Is there any sentiment for organization?

Are such schemes as described above, company unions, etc., used in your district?

Do religious and national antagonism keep the workers divided? Are they used openly by the packers?

Or any other problems or experience which will throw further light on the situation in the meat packing industry.

Chicago Structural Iron Workers May Go on Strike for Raise

Bridge and structural iron workers will meet in the next few days to take action on their Chicago wage scale. The existing rate of $1.25 an hour expires May 31. It is understood that $1.37½ could be obtained without much trouble in the new agreement but $1.50 is demanded. There are 2,500 members in the union, which handles all the important iron and steel construction in Chicago.

White Plains Barbers Win

WHITE PLAINS, April 20. — Boss barbers of White Plains have yielded without a strike to the union's demand for an hour off a day. Shops hereafter will close at seven, instead of eight at night during the week nights and at nine instead of ten on Saturday. Prices to customers will be increased slightly.

ANTHRACITE SCALE CONVENTION SET FOR SCRANTON ON JUNE 29

The United Mine Workers Journal publishes the following notice of an anthracite scale convention to be held on June 29:

"At a recent meeting of the Tri-District boards, it was decided to call the anthracite scale convention for June 29 at Scranton, Pa. International President John L. Lewis will preside at the convention. The present wage agreement between the United Mine Workers of America and the anthracite operations will expire on the last day of August, and the Scranton convention will formulate the demands that will be laid before the operators at the joint conference held during the summer."

WATT SCORES FARRINGTON IN STATEMENT

"Come Personally and Put Watt Out!"

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 20.—John Watt, progressive secretary of Sub-District No. 4, of District No. 12, U. M. W. of A., who has been ordered removed from office illegally by Frank Farrington, district president and his "appointed" underlings, has issued a statement burning up Farrington for his illegal and autocratic rule as president, a position Farrington is accused of having stolen in the last election. The statement follows:

"Frank Farrington has built a fire that surely will burn him before it dies out, and now realizing what he has done, he attempts to mislead the membership of the mine workers union to cover up his illegal action, the kind of action that he so loudly complained of when John L. Lewis took the action that he did in the Alex Howat case. Farrington seems to have forgotten the records made in the Howat case, but he shortly will be reminded of them.

"Farrington forgets the records he made in his efforts to make a district settlement for Illinois.

On Constitutional Rights.

"You talk of constitutional authority, will you kindly explain to the rank and file where you or your board got the constitutional right to do to Freeman Thompson what you did do? In face of former rulings you and your board have made? Will you show me where you and your stool pigeon got the constitutional right to infer that you had thrown me out of office for insubordination? Cite what section of the sub-district law gives you or anyone else that right?

"You say to me that 'failing to comply with these instructions you will be expelled from membership in the United Mine Workers of America.' Will you do that constitutionally or automatically as the other acts of yours have been?

The Back Salary Farrington Grabbed.

"You do not like to come to mass meetings because you would see the membership that is paying your $900 train fare bills for three months, and your $600 hotel bills for three months and your $1,500 telegram bills for three months (while traveling so you state) and also your back salary of over $1,200 for the 1922 strike which you so generously done without (nit). Come out and see what they think of you, their great leader.

"You might explain to the rank and file gathered there whether you 'split' with onyone around for allowing the Lester mine to operate, as was said in letters that were exchanged between you and President Lewis.

Preparing for a Wage Cut.

"You might tell the membership if you are now being used by the coal operators to cause a condition that may bring about a reduction in wages and if you contemplate making a separate wage agreement. Ask Walter Nesbit what he told our sub-district tellers about you and the separate wage agreement.

"I call on you, the mighty, fearless leader of District No. 12, if your are not personally satisfied with the choice for secretary that the rank and file of Sub-District No. 4 has elected, to come over to my office at 221½ South Fourth street, and personally (not by proxy rats) put Watt out of office."

HOW THE WAR INVOLVED THE LABOR UNIO

Became a War Betw Patriotic Unionists

By A. LOSOVSKY
(General Sec'y. of the Red Inte tional of Labor Unions)

Not only by the emptying of ranks of the unions did the war af the trade union movement, but process also changed the old ideol creating a new one, the ideolog the war period. This ideology in ferent countries had different but mainly it was called "war ism." What was the main featu this ideology which was created the leaders of the trade union political movement during the w

We think it can be characteri the following short formula: "Fa land, first of all." Let us remem that at the beginning of the war of the most talkative syndicalis France, Gustave Harve, who tur over to social patriotism with ligh ing agility, has explained this ev tion in the following way:

"The workers" said he, "w caught by the iron hand of the w by the throat, raised into the air thrown back by the strong hand the ground, and they felt first of their own ground. Every one of workers who was thrown by hurricane of events fell to the gro of his own country."

Anarcho-Syndicalists Also Discover A "Fatherland"

We have to say that although reformists of all countries as it w already mentioned in the social have been believers in evolution, in their own personal viewpoint, th have been developing in an entir different way. In this case we m rather use the conception of revo tion than evolution, for they ha been changing their views liter over night.

And this may be said not only abo the reformists but also about a ve great number of anarcho-syndicalis who suddenly, somehow, began to f that they had a "fatherland" altho anti-patriotism was previously th hobby.

The Division on Military-Diplomatic Coalition

The military ideology of the lab movement brought great changes the relation of forces. The moder war is not a war of small groups, small armies. Modern war is a w of masses, a war of nations in th real sense of the word. It is a w of industry against industry. Th tactics of the working class in th war, the tactics of its unions, th methods of struggle, play a decisiv role in the modern war.

Not without reason did the garrul ous Lloyd George in 1916 say to the metal workers, "In this victory on the northern front won by the British army, you, metal workers, played a great and decisive part." Yes, the influence of industry played a decisive role in the war. The growth of military industry explains the numerical changes of the unions beginning in 1916-17.

But, on the other hand, this growth also explains the lowering of the level of the labor movement, for in the war industry, which was the basis of war and which concentrated all workers not gone to the front, the conditions of work were such that those who participated in it were in fact ideological and political participants in the war.

A War Between Unionists

When we talk about the war between France and England on one side and Germany on the other, we have to talk not only about the war between the two groups of bourgeoisie, but also the war between the socialists and trade unions of these fighting countries. Here, the war was not only in the sense that the workers had been organized into unions and sent to the front and ordered to fire at their comrades with machine guns.

The war which began in 1914 started a war also between the trade unions of the allies and the unions of the central powers. It started a polemic and an ideological fight where the representatives of one side—the allies, tried to prove to the German trade unions, that they were traitors to the principles of international socialism when they were supporting the kaiser, and Legien, the leader of the German unions, tried to prove that the traitors were the unions of the allies, because they were supporting the bourgeoisie allied to the Russian czar.

REE STATE OF IRELAND HIDES FAMINE FACTS

cCarthy Tells of the Starving Thousands

NEW YORK, April 20.—The Irish ee State is hiding the true facts of serious famine Irish peasants and herfolk are suffering from on the st coast of the island, says John trick McCarthy, returning from the mine area and now on speaking ur of the United States for the Irish asants' and Workers' Famine Ref committee, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chigo.

The contradiction of the Free State vernment is shown in the fact that r the first time in many years the vernment is supplying school chilren with bread and cocoa lunches hile officially denying the famine. ven the $25,000 sent over by Cardin Hayes from America was sent ack by the Free State government, hich is dependent upon foreign loans nd tries to keep up the appearance f a prosperous Ireland as good seurity for further loans.

Thousands Starving.

Hundreds of families in the Kerry istrict, McCarthy reports from his xperience, are living on one meal a ay and have not seen a potato—the tandard Irish food—on their tables ince November. About 750,000 peole are in the famine area. The longcontinued bad weather is blamed by he peasants and fishers for the famne. For months the rain has poured own daily until the ground is too oaked to grow potatoes or even grass for the sheep and cattle and the storms at sea have prevented the fishing folk from venturing out. The peat fuel has been so soaked that it would not dry and the people have had nothing, but a little furze and scrap wood to burn for heat.

British Steal Fish.

The Irish peasants say that conditions have not been so bad for 75 years. The British steam trawlers, supposedly barred to beyond the 3-mile limit in Irish waters, come right into the bays and destroy the fish or take them so that the Irish fishers must starve. The sheep and cattle are diseased from under-feeding and damp. Thatch roofs are rotting on peasant huts and the occupants suffer from illness and damp. There is no seed for the next season so that even worse conditions are expected next year.

Refuse to Pay Rent.

In Donegal 30,000 peasants have refused for six years to pay rent to the government because of their extreme poverty. In other districts the people are forced to live by begging from more fortunate neighbors.

Many Lepers Cured.

MANILA, April 20.—Four hundred and thirty-five lepers have been cured by chaulmoogra oil in the Philippine Islands during the last four years.

The Workers Party in Action

UNIONS SUPPORT WORKERS PARTY MAY 1 MEETING

United Front Confab in New York

NEW YORK, April 20.—The united front May Day conference held on Sunday, April 12, at the Labor Temple, was successful in bringing together thousands of militant workers of this city for the purpose of presenting a united front on May Day.

There were in all represented about 40 organizations thru 80 delegates, including labor unions, Workmen's Circles, sick and death benefit societies, Councils of Working Class Women, as well as branches of the Workers Party and the Young Workers' League.

Report on May Day.

The conference discussed plans for the May Day demonstrations and listened to reports of the different organizations as to their previous arrangements. The Workers Party under who leadership and initiative the conference was called reported that they they are making arrangements to hold open air demonstrations in every part of the city, and that prominent speakers will address all of the meetings.

The other organizations affiliating with the united front May Day conference reported that they are going to hold meetings in different halls.

The Workers Party will in addition to the many open air demonstrations that will hold, have two large indoor mass meetings, one at Central Opera House, 67th street and Third Ave., Manhattan, and the other in Grand Miller's Hall, Brooklyn. These meetings will both be held in the evening while the open air demonstrations will last all day and end about 6 p. m.

Foster to Speak.

At both meetings, both in Central Opera House, and Grand Miller's Hall, the main speaker will be William Z. Foster, chairman of the Workers Party, the other speakers being Olgin, Weinstone, Lore, Stachel, with Krumbein as chairman in Central Opera House, and Amter, Poyntz, Prseika, Zam with S. Nassin as chairman at the Brooklyn meeting.

Keep this day open, make no other arrangements. Lay down your tools on May Day and celebrate with us.

Watch the press for further announcements and also for schedule of street meetings.

THE ROMANCE OF NEW RUSSIA

by

Magdeleine Marx

Author of "Women"

A book aglow with the color, light and life of Russia.

A picture of the many people the writer has met—working men and women, officials—people of all classes.

We have received but a limited new stock from the publishers.

In the Preface the author says:

You arrive in Russia. Though you know that what has been written about it is pure invention, that the truth has deliberately been falsified, besmirched, and bespattered with gore, still you get a sort of shock of surprise.

You find a totally new relationship between man and things with the majority of people benefiting by the new order. Everywhere not only the signs of resurrection, but resurrection itself. Yet the rest of the world still believes the absurd legends of oppression and disorder that are told about Russia.

CLEVELAND TO HAVE HUGE MAY FIRST PROGRAM

Engdahl, Papcun Among the Speakers

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 20.—The party and league in this city is now busy with arrangements for the most impressive celebration of the international holiday of labor held in many years.

Invitations have been issued to labor bodies in this city to join in a united front celebration. A program is being arranged that will include mass singing by workers' choruses of all nationalities, dancing and other entertaining features.

J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will be the principal speaker. George Papcun, local organizer of the league, will speak in the name of the revolutionary youth, who are already contributing to the struggle for the liberation of the workers both young and old, from the oppressions and exploitation of the capitalist system.

The Cleveland May Day demonstration will be held, in the large auditorium of the Slovenian Workers' Home, 6409 St. Clair Ave. Workers of all ages should be present at this celebration.

Young Workers' Meetings.

A meeting of comrades Y. W. L. that work in the building industry will be held on April 28, at the party headquarters.

The comrades in the clothing industry will meet April 29, at the same place.

This is the second meeting of league members working in these industries.

The following will be discussed: The forming of youth demands for different youth fractions in different unions. All comrades must bring the constitutions and agreement of their unions, and other information that may be available, so that on the basis of it, we may formulate demands. All comrades must attend. No excuse will be taken.

A dance will be given by the Italian central branch of the W. P. May 2, 8 p. m., at the Royal Hall.

The dance will be for the benefit of Il Lavoratore and the DAILY WORKER. All comrades are asked to co-operate with the Italian comrades and help make this affair a success. In addition to the dancing and entertainment, Comrade George Papcun, city organizer of the Y. W. L., will speak.

Gale Creates Havoc in Ireland, Tossing Airship from Ground

PULHAM, England, April 20.—In a terrific gale which swept Great Britain today several men were killed, considerable damage was done and the British army dirigible R-33 with 20 men aboard broke from its moorings and floated to sea.

The air ministry received a wireless from the R-33 at 3:30 o'clock saying it was sixty miles northeast of Lowestoft. It reported the gale was abating, but that the vessel would not try to return until tonight.

At a late hour this afternoon the R-33 was flying 1,000 feet over the English Channel and in the direction of Amsterdam. It was gasoline sufficient to propel it for two days and the British gunboat Godetia was following in its wake.

It's Foggy in New York.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The lives of 1,000 passengers on the municipal ferry boat, Queens, were endangered today when the vessel crashed into the Bronx, her sister ship, which was tied up at Slip No. 1 off the Battery. Owing to a dense fog over New York and vicinity, Captain McCafferty of the Queens did not see the Bronx and was attempting to pilot his vessel into the slip.

Starving Workers Eat Too Much

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—The people are consuming too much, President Coolidge declared in a radio speech on the opening of the women's world fair in Chicago. "The real disaster to a modern community comes when easy and ill-considered consumption prevents the storing away of capital," he declared.

Our Readers' Views

He Boosts "Daily"

To the DAILY WORKER:—I am a reader of the DAILY WORKER and want to say it is the finest paper expressing the conditions under which we workers live. I make use of every possible opportunity to show and talk about our paper to every worker I come in contact with, so be they may be enlightened on the capitalist rule under which we live. I hope for the day when the mass of workers will read instead of shun our paper as some do.—A Reader, Detroit, Mich.

MILWAUKEE CALLS SOUTH BEND TO ACTION!

Milwaukee, Wis., April 14, 1925.

The DAILY WORKER, Builders' Column,

Dear Comrades: Recently in Russia, when the Soviet government was floating the gold loan it was customary for the workers subscribing to the loan to name their comrades in the same city or in the distant point calling upon them to do their share. It was a call and a challenge. It worked something like this. Ivan Ivanovich in Moscow would write: "I subscribe to a ten rouble bond and call upon Stepan and Mary of Leningrad to do the same." I wonder if we could not do the same in our second annual sub-drive? Let me start the ball rolling. I am sending you three subscriptions to the paper and call upon Comrades Vera Fomenko, Yoker and Meyer of South Bend, Ind., to do the same.

What is wrong with South Bend? It used to be a pretty active town. And now they are not on the list. I expect to hear a reply to my challenge in the near future.

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

NOW YOU CALL!

What comrade you know will you call to action?

It doesn't matter WHERE he lives. It can be in your local—or in Zanzibar, Zanesville or Nova Zembla.

Send in a sub yourself and then call upon another comrade to do the same!

If you send in more than one sub call upon more than one comrade.

Use this brick and call a Communist to action!

50,000 WOMEN IN PUBLIC OFFICE UNDER SOVIETS

Percentage Shows Big Growth Since 1921

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Nearly 50,000 women hold public office in elective bodies in Russia this year, according to a bulletin received from Moscow by the Russian information bureau here.

Forty thousand women are members of the rural Soviets, 200 of them being presidents of these bodies. In the city Soviets there are 6,000 women. One thousand women are members of District ("Volost") executive committees, including twenty district presidents, and there are 100 women in county ("Uyezd") executive committees, and 75 in provincial executive committees.

Exclusive of Administration Posts

This does not include the many women who hold administrative posts in the government, among them an ambassador and a woman occupying a high post in the army.

Of these some of the more important are as follows: Krupskaya (Mme. Lenin), chairman of the department of political education; Mme. Trotsky, chairman of the committee for the preservation of art museums; Mme. Kollontai, ambassador to Norway; Mme. Kameneva, chairman of the federal bureau for cultural relations; Mme. Bitsenko, chairman of the co-operative institute; Mme. Lilina, director of welfare activities in Leningrad province.

The Percentage Grows

The percentage of women members in Soviet bodies has increased markedly, as is shown by the following table:

Soviet Body	Pct. of Women Memb. in 1921	in 1924
Rural Soviets	0.0	7.9
District ("Volost") Execut. Committees	0.0	6.0
City Soviets in county ("Uyezd") towns	7.8	17.9
City Soviets in Provincial Centers	3.5	19.9

Vologda leads the provinces with 36 per cent of its elected bodies composed of women this year. The Votek autonomous region is second with 32.4 per cent and Novgorod third with 26.7 per cent.

Brown, former Head of Farmer-Labor Party, Now in Meat Business

SEATTLE, Wash., April 20.—Jay G. Brown, former national secretary, farmer-labor party of the United States, at their Chicago headquarters, is now conducting a meat market in Seattle. He has been initiated into Meat Cutters Local No. 81, Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher Workmen. Brown at one time headed the Timber Workers' International Union, which gave up its A. F. of L. charter about two years ago.

Seattle Memorial to Sun Yat Sen

Yat Sen, held on Friday, April 10, in the Painters' Hall.

The invitation was accepted and a speaker representing the Koumingtang as well as representatives of several other organizations and a large number of Chinese participated in the memorial meeting, intermingling with members of the Workers Party and sympathizers in the large gathering and exchanging friendly greetings.

Lew Kay Speaks for Chinese

The hall was decorated for the occasion with red and black, Chinese lanterns and a large life size picture of Sun Yat Sen on the platform.

Lew Kay, the Chinese spokesman, in a most eloquent, forceful language, narrated the struggles of the Chinese under the yoke of the Manchu dynasty up to the time when Sun Yat Sen decided to consecrate his life to the liberation of the Chinese from the tyrannical rule of the Manchus. He then vividly described the heroic struggle and sacrifice of Sun Yat Sen, his serene life-long devotion to the cause. His exile, hounding by the Manchu tyrants, imprisonment and escape. His conquest and victory; the betrayal by Yuan Shai Kai that led to the formation of the Southern Republic. And finally his continous battle for freedom to the very end of his life.

That the struggle was not in vain, said Kay, is proven by the large and ever increasing number of organized workers on the economic and political field since the overthrow of the Machu dynasty, such as never existed before. He enumerated a large number of strikes taking place everywhere thus showing the progress made. The masses are claiming and asserting themselves more and more. That is due to the life work of and sincere devotion of Sun Yat Sen to the cause of liberation. He concluded by thanking the meeting for the Kuomintang.

Stanley J. Clark speaker for the Workers Party in a very forceful speech eulogized the work and life of Sun Yat Sen whom he said was not a pacifist, as the capitalist apologists are trying to portray, but a militant and revolutionary of the first magnitude. He then elucidated why the Communists are commemorating the death of Sun Yat Sen, who was a nationalist only in so far as the accomplishment of the liberation of China from foreign imperialism was concerned, but in aspiration an internationalist. He then read the message of Sun Yat Sen on his death bed to the Koumintang and the proclamation of the Communist International.

Adopt Message of Condolence

Aaron Fislerman presided at the memorial meeting. At the conclusion of the memorial meeting a message of condolence and sympathy to be sent to the Koumintang, Pekin, was unanimously adopted.

The Chinese who held a memorial meeting on Sunday afternoon April 12 to commemoriate the death of Sun Yat Sen, extended the following invitation to the Workers Party: "Workers Party, Seattle, Wash.—You are cordially invited to attend the memorial services for the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, to be held Sunday noon, April 12th, in the Chinese Opera House at 516 Seventh Ave. South."

The Workers Party members and sympathizers turned out en masse and attended the memorial meeting.

The theater was decorated unusually for the occasion in honor of Sun Yat Sen. The footlights down to the floor was a mass of bouquets of flowers. The stage was decorated with banners of which all kinds of inscriptions were visible. The walls were covered with long wide streamers bearing messages of sympathy and condolence from various organizations and individuals. Along with these on the stage two mourning banners of white and black hung. On the back of the platform on the stage framed banners with large inscriptions and in the middle an easel on top of which a large sign inscribed Sun Yat Sen the founder of the republic hung. All inscriptions were in Chinese.

The procession commenced at the Koumingtang headquarters the paraders marching down to the theater, headed by a large picture of Sun Yat Sen, and a band.

Memorial Lasts Three Hours.

When the procession entered the theater all stood up while the picture was placed on the easel on the back of the platform fronting the audience. Then a series of ceremonies began, the first of which was sixteen representatives of Chinese organizations and the entire audience stood up and bowed thrice to the Sun Yat Sen picture. This was followed by a wreath of red carnations being placed at the bottom of the picture, the frame of which was all covered in flowers. The person who placed it bowed to the picture before placing the wreath. Then scripts of homage were read by every one of the representatives on the platform, each one turning and fronting the picture, bowing first to it then reading the script of homage and bowing again when finished.

After which the band played mourning marches. Several speakers addressed the memorial meeting in Chinese each spoke very eloquently about the struggles and life of Sun Yat Sen. Including among these was the local Chinese council. The entire commemoration was conducted in Chinese, lasting nearly three hours. As the assembly dispersed the band played.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

knowledge of the history of the Russian revolutionary movement is essential. This can be secured by reading the history of the Russian Communist Party, now running serially in the Workers Monthly. It is written by Zinoviev, who is as well qualified to write on the subject as anybody living. Our readers, and all active revolutionists should make themselves acquainted with the story of the rise of the Russian working class. It is more thrilling and interesting than the most daring flight of fancy, that ever came from the pen of a fictionist, all the more so because it is true.

THE capitalists are not done telling strange tales about Soviet Russia. It seems that they have selected the head of the Communist International for their dirtiest slanders. One of the choicest pieces of filth, now making the rounds of the capitalist press, has Zinoviev owning several factories in Leningrad, and so forth. That the capitalist press should publish this literary refuse is not surprising, but one would not expect, even the most reactionary labor sheet to give the lie space in its columns.

HOWEVER there is no cess pool so deep that a labor faker cannot rub his nose on its botton, when digging for material to hurl at a revolutionist. This is doubly so when the faker is a yellow socialist. Therefore it should not cause astonishment among Communists to see the anti-Zinoviev rubbish decorating the pages of the Oklahoma Leader, edited by Oscar Ameringer, the yellow "red," who is also editor of the Illinois Miner the private organ of Frank Farrington the arch-faker who keeps Ameringer's yellow belly filled. Ameringer did not dare peddle the stuff in the Illinois Miner, for fear of the coal diggers but he unloaded it thru his Oklahoma rag.

THERE is no way to prevent the enemies of the working class and their paid journalistic prostitutes from lying about the leaders of the revolutionary movement. Perhaps it is not even desirable. Let them lie. There is something that every class conscious worker should do and can do, and that is to bring the papers that tell the truth about the workers and their leaders into the hands of the toilers. The DAILY WORKER is not able to answer all the lies that appear in the capitalist press. It lacks space. But it flattens the most important ones. And it does not waste its time in dealing with side issues. Put the DAILY WORKER in the hands of your brothers and sisters who toil for a living. They will learn to like it and when a sufficient number of workers read the Communist daily, the Ameringers and similar swine will peddle their filth in vain.

NOVY MIR SHOWS UP RUSS BRASS CHECK EDITOR

Wrote "To Order" For and Against Soviets

By M. A. SKROMNY.

Like thunder from a clear sky came the publication by the Novy Mir, the Russian Communist daily, of a secret letter mailed by the former editor of the Chicago Russian counter-revolutionary sheet to Prof. Pavel Milukov, former minister of the provisional Kerensky government, asking for instructions how to conduct the paper in Chicago and how to organize against the Soviet government.

Calls Himself a Soviet.

When the author of the letter, a man with many aliases, who called himself here Nicolai Kalujin, first arrived in Chicago he proclaimed himself a Soviet doctor. The local Russian paper at that time was more or less liberal. It was at the beginning the property of a Russian peasant co-operative society. But the circulation of the paper was very small and the society went bankrupt. An enterprising Lithuanian lawyer by the name Gugis, organized a private company and bought himself a majority of shares (900) at a bargain, of course, and became the owner of the paper.

This gentleman had already some experience in this kind of business as he had previously captured in a similar way the Lithuanian socialist paper Naujenos. Litigations are still going on in the courts in connection with this affair.

The new owner intended to make money out of this newspaper, he isn't in business for his health. He ordered the editorial staff to turn to the right. As a business man he figured that a newspaper that will fight the bolshevik will have more advertising from big corporations and stores than one that is in sympathy with the bolsheviks.

Former Editor Loses Job.

The editor who was more or less a decent chap refused to obey and resigned. The new arrival, the "Soviet doctor" became editor. Altho a few days before that he was writing in favor of the Soviets, as soon as he became editor, he began an awful attack against the Soviet government.

While still writing in favor of the Soviets under the old editor he sent a letter to Milukov asking for instructions how to fight the Soviets in Chicago. This letter is now published in the Novy Mir.

In the letter this "Soviet doctor" informs his chief in Paris that the owner of the paper offered him the job of editor, and that altho the paper has a miserably small circulation, only about three-four thousand copies, "much can be done under proper instruction and guidence." He also reveals all his names under which he was writing in the different counter-revolutionary newspaper published in the United States and abroad. And to the great amazement of the readers of the local Russian sheet they find out that the "hot discussion" which was conducted for a short time in the paper for and against the Soviets was written by one and the same person. He is a kind of a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.

After this gent became the editor the circulation of the paper fell from the three-four thousand so low, that the owner got scared to death and quickly fired him.

The owner received a practical lesson proving that out right counter-revolutionary stuff can not be peddled profitably to the Russian masses in Chicago.

Present Editor Former Prince?

The owner of the paper changed his mind again. He invited the old editor back as a writer and appointed A. Skopin, who has been a writer under the "Soviet doctor" as editor, with instructions to write in favor of the Soviets but against the Communists. This brass check writer obeyed faithfully the voice of his master and began an attack from a new angle.

N. Kalujin, the former editor, got mad for losing his job and came out with an attack against his former friend Skopin, exposing him as Prince Shujski. Whether Skopin is really the prince or not, he is a bitter enemy of the workers' and peasants' Soviet government.

Now the scheme is exposed and the whole gang stands stripped before the Russian masses who see them in their true light.

MONESSEN, PA., LEADS CAMPAIGN!

Young Workers League Shows Up Older Reds.

IN four weeks—and with eight more weeks to go yet, Monessen, Pa., has completely filled its quota in the Second Annual Sub Campaign. And still they are not finished. Comrade Leo Kauppila, DAILY WORKER agent, writes:

> "Chalk up three more new subs from Monessen, Pa., on the right side of the ledger—and that's our quota. But keep the chalk handy, as we are only half thru our route!"

And the Monessen cmorades will have to keep going if they want to lead. Worcester, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh and Detroit among others are already stepping on their shirt tails in

PENNSY EXPLAINS ITS "HARMONY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A handbook explaining its "employes representation" scheme, thru which it evades dealing with union committees in settling labor grievances, has been issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and added to the long list of publicity pamphlets mailed to Washington press correspondents. In this book the company emphasizes the harmony which it maintains with its workers, by mean of boards composed of equal numbers of officers and employes, with final appeal to a reviewing committee in which the company has nominally half of the membership, but whose decisions require a two-thirds majority.

The "democracy" of this feudal system is disclosed in the confession that the management and the men "jointly" arrange the election machinery by which the employes' representatives are chosen to meet the officers of the company. In brief, the company permits its employes to see the company direct the whole business, and it grants just enough favors to mask its war against the spirit of trade union self-reliance.

London Says Defeat of Miners' Wage Bill Means a Rebellion

LONDON, England, April 20. — The defeat of the miners' minimum wage bill by the combined reactionary parties is termed by F. B. Varley, a moderate, "a direct incentive to revolutionary action." The bill, which was rejected 208 to 143, would have guaranteed a minimum wage of from 10 to 12 shillings a day—about three pounds ($14.34) a week. The miners awaited the fate of this bill before mobilizing their economic power to obtain a living wage. The rejection, according to Secy. A. J. Cook, Miners' Federation, will throw the miners back on their own industrial strength.

SCHOOL FINANCE COMMITTEE NOW TO O. K. RAISE

Lower Group Teachers Get Wage Cuts

The finance committee met again to consider the McAndrew teacers' salary schedule before presenting it to the board of education Wednesday afternoon.

Trustee Julius Smitenka, who held up the decision at the last meeting and said he would bring the whole matter before the board for a "showdown" presented quite a different front at this meeting. He was decidedly solid on the proposition. The finance committee met, officially accepted the schedule and recommended it to the board for passage.

The committee further recommended that the board ask for an increase in the tax rate of $1 for educational purposes. This increase would bring the board's revenue to approximately $50,000,000 as against the present $33,000,000. About half of the increase will be used to meet the higher salaries. The new salary to go into effect Sept. 1.

The elementary school principals get an immediate increase of $1,000 a year— the maximum is raised from $4,800 to $6,250. High school principals are given a maximum of $7,500 as against $5,700, the present salary.

To the teachers, however, the recommendation tells a different story. Those in the lower group will actually get a cut in wages. The teachers in the upper group will fare better. The scale for the teachers is as follows:

Year.	Old.	New.
Lower Group.
1	$1,500	$1,500
2	1,625	1,550
3	1,750	1,600

6	2,125	2,250
7	2,250	2,500
8	2,275	2,750
9	2,500	3,000

The Mexican Communist Party and American Imperialism

The convention of the Mexican Communist Party has outlined a campaign against American imperialism and one would expect that in its country the officials of the trade unions would consider such a move one of the greatest importance to a working class which is doubly exploited—by native capitalists and by Wall Street.

But this is not the case. The officialdom of the Mexican Federation of Labor is tied neck and crop to the policy of the American Federation of Labor which, thru its tool, the Pan-American Federation of Labor, prepares the Mexican labor movement for its daily sacrifice on the Wall Street altar.

In the old days when the Aztec priesthood ruled what is now Mexico, prisoners of war were butchered by the thousands to honor a number of blood-stained deities. They were led up to the top of the teocallis—the gigantic pyramids on which the ceremonies were conducted—stripped, bent back over the sacrificial stone, their breasts cut open and their still beating hearts plucked out by the priests.

A ceremony similar in many respects to the ancient customs, was performed at El Paso. The Mexican workers were led across the Rio Grande, the high priests of Wall Street, garbed in the habiliments of labor, dedicated them to American imperialism and sent them back across the river in chains, to a death slower and less merciful than that at the hands of the Aztec priesthood.

The chains on the limbs of American labor have been forged cunningly and they are not visible to the naked eye. But they are there and their clanking is heard in Wall Street where it causes great joy.

The officialdom of the Mexican labor movement has assisted the sale into slavery of the workers. They have been rewarded with well-paid positions of ease and comfort.

It is for this reason that they look with angry eyes on the campaign launched by the Mexican Communist Party—a campaign directed at their paymasters.

The corruption and decay of the Mexican labor movement is one of the most enlightening events in recent Aemrican history. Once militant, even revolutionary, the Mexican labor movement has been touched by the leprous hand of the agents of American imperialism, the hand that blights whatever its fingers clutch. In the United States, its agents in the ranks of labor are preaching unconditional surrender to the master class. In Mexico they have delivered the labor movement to the oil, copper and timber barons.

The Calles government is a creature of Wall Street and wars on the Mexican working class. The labor Judases give it a protective coloring and fool the masses who fought and bled for it, believing it belonged to them.

It is under such conditions that the Communist Party of Mexico holds its convention and raises the standard of war against American imperialism. In the trade unions it meets the same persecution that Communists in the United States are familiar with, but it operates in a country where the working class has been reduced to a colonial status and its task of exposing the treacherous labor union officialdom before the masses is that much easier.

The important thing is that the Mexican Communist Party has understood the nature of its task and has attacked Mexican reaction at its weakest point.

"Industrial Peace"

The Gary plant of the United States Steel corporation broke the record for production last month. Three hundred and thirty thousand tons of steel were fabricated in addition to 224,000 tons of pig iron and 300,000 tons of coke, in round figures.

This production was in excess by 50,000 tons of the biggest month in the history of the plant.

Let us sell these 330,000 tons of steel at prevailing pig iron prices and thus strike a general average for the entire production. Pig iron is selling around $24 per ton.

The Gary plant and its subsidiaries employ 22,000 men. Each man produced, therefore, 15 tons of finished steel. At pig iron prices this amounts to $360 per man.

The average wage in the steel plants is around $4 per day. $120 per month. Each worker therefore delivered to the steel corporation exactly three times as much steel as he got paid for.

Each worker averaged $120 for the month, but the steel trust, at the most conservative estimate, made $240 from each worker employed.

The stockholders fo the steel trust met yesterday and President Elbert H. Gary reported a surplus of some $517,000,000 after all charges had been met and extra dividends paid. This is an evidence of prosperity, but little of its sifts thru to the steel workers who produce a surplus value of $240 per month.

In connection with this it is enlightening to review the recent convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers held in Pittsburgh. The steel trust secretary of labor, James J. Davis, addressed the convention and urged "industrial peace."

In New York City the other day William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, took lunch with the Civic Federation, of which Elbert Gary is an active member, and also urged "industrial peace."

Well, putting two and two together, it is not hard to see that the steel trust can afford to subsidise labor leaders to talk of industrial peace when peace due to the weakness of labor organization makes it possible to rob each worker of just twice what he receives in wages.

As an antidote to the slimy servility of the labor fakers, read the program for the workers in the steel industry published by the Trade Union Educational League. It will be quite plain then why Gary and Green unite to fight the Communists and the left wing which they lead.

Fascist Propaganda

We have received a copy of a leaflet issued by the Mussolini government in districts taken from Austria. This particular leaflet was distributed to the pupils of a confiscated school and is printed in Italian, French, English and German. For brazen lying it is hard to beat, but the most interesting part of it is the close connection shown between the fascist government and the catholic church. The leaflet is as follows:

> In Italy one works serenely and quietly: the country does not interest itself with the political strife of a negligable minority.
> The national government presided by Benito Mussolini, prides itself in the faith of the crown, senate and house of parliament.
> No incident has ever disturbed for months and months the public order or the public services. For years, Italy has never past such a period of quiet and calm work.
>
> All the contrary voices which have been diffused abroad are produced from the dark maneuvers of our enemies, and adversaries of the church who are trying to speculate on the exchange, and to dissuade the faithful from the jubilee pilgrimage.
> Ask to any honest person of your confidence for information and you will have the full confirmation of such news.

The situation in Italy and its subject territories must be one of great tension when a government feels it necessary to descend to such puerile propaganda as this. But another thing is also evident. It is that under fascism Italy is going back to the dark ages when it was necessary only to brand any movement as an enemy of the church to put it outside the pale.

In connection with this leaflet it is well to remember that Musolini has postponed the elections to the chamber of deputies at the request of the vatican as the latter feared that the inevitable struggle would interfere with its jubilee celebration.

There is light showing thru the dark clouds that hover over Italy, however, but it is not the yellow light of the jubilee candles. It is the red flame of revolt held aloft by the Communist Party of Italy which in spite of the horrible persecutions of its members, has steadily carried on its work of winning the masses for the overthrow of Italian capitalism.

"Trade Union Unity"

We have received the first number of Trade Union Unity, the new English magazine, devoted to speeding up the drive for unity of the world union movement, edited by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam), Edo Fimmen, secretary of the International Transport Workers' Federation and executive board member of Amsterdam, and George Hicks of the Building Workers' Union of Great Britain, also board member of Amsterdam.

The first number contains articles by Fimmen, Purcell, Will Thorne, general articles on the world trade union situation and news of the support of the world unity movement from a half dozen countries.

The magazine is a distinct contribution to trade union literature and its aggressive tone is indicative of the seriousness and sincerity with which the British trade unions have thrown themselves into the work of building a powerful, fighting movement of the organized workers the world over. The first issue carries messages of sympathy and support from members of the general council of the British Trades Union Congress, like R. B. Walker, secretary of the National Union of Agricultural Workers, who was a fraternal delegate to the Portland convention of the A. F. of L.; Ben Turner, president of the National Union of Textile Workers; A. Conley, secretary of the Tailors' and Garment Workers' Trade Union, and Mary Quaile, Transport and General Workers' Union.

The drive for unity of the world labor movement launched by the Red International of Labor Unions has, as Trade Union Unity shows, enlisted the support of the most powerful unions in the Amsterdam International itself. Not the least interesting of the contents are the wails emanating from the right wing organs dominated by the Dawes plan socialists reprinted without comment by the editors.

From time to time we shall reprint extracts from this and other publications devoted to world trade union unity. There is no more interesting and important movement on foot in the world today and upon the American Communists is the responsibility of linking up the American trade union movement with this drive that is directed right at the heart of capitalist reaction.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

MOSCOW, April 1.—(By Mail.)—AT the evening session the debate on the question of trade union unity is continued.

SEMARD (France): In France a great compaign for unity was started among the workers. The reformist leaders are sabotaging the campaign; but there is no doubt as to the sympathies of the workers. The speaker gathers from the various reports that in some countries the unity campaign is absolutely false and Trotskyist. out many deviations.

It is our task to strengthen the left wing in the reformist trade unions. In this way we shall be able to win over gradually, forty, fifty and more per cent of the workers, thus compelling the reformist leaders to effect unity. It is necessary to create fractions everywhere, and to point but on the basis of the program of partial demands that without unity, not even the daily immediate needs of the proletariat can be satisfied.

THE agitation for unity must be begun in those countries where an economic crisis is setting in, as in France, England, Czecho-Slovakia and Central Europe. In France a crisis is on the threshold, and large mass movements are to be expected; this must of course be taken advantage of. In these countries it is our task to discredit the reformist leaders. In France the masses grasp the significance of the campaign, despite the attempt of the reformists to discredit it as a mere maneuver. In Germany the unity campaign is more difficult, because there the social democrats still have considerable influence.

IT is necessary to fight against a large number of trade union centers. In every country propaganda should be carried on in support of the co-operation between the British and the Russian trade unions.

The capitalists everywhere support the reformists against the unity campaign; this should be utilized in our agitation. The speaker proposes that, besides the general resolution, specific recommendations should be made to the different sections.

GESHKE (Germany): Both in the trade unions and in the factories, the social democracy is fighting against the unity campaign with all means at its disposal. The German social democratic party carries on a more bitter fight against the Communist Party of Germany than even the reactionary forces. Those who had been expelled from the trade unions formed, under the Brandler central committee, indepent unions, which, under the leadership of Shumacher, have rejected the unity campaign.

Leading comrades, and unfortunately also workers, had to be expelled from the party. In the independent unions certain functionaries are still opposed to unity.

THE clarification of the trade union problem has lent new strength to the party. Polemising against Clara Zetkin, the speaker declares that the figures cited by Zetkin were not correct, and that she has fallen victim to an unscrupulous machination. The results of the shop council elections are not bad. It is true that the party has lost 35 local units, but then it has gained 52 new ones. The report of the British trade union delegation has done much to counteract the social democratic lies. Factory delegations wish to go to Russia in order to find out whether Purcell or the Vorwarts is telling the truth.

The approaching crisis will accelerate the unity campaign, but it would be wrong to disregard the great difficulties in our way.

DORSY (America): The American Federation of Labor is a comparatively small but strategically important organization, because the A. F. of L. wants to return into the Amsterdam International. At the time Wilson was in favor of the league of nations, Gompers also favored the league; but when the American bourgeoisie opposed the league, Gompers followed suit. At the present time the A. F. of L. is supporting American imperialism. In view of the Dawes' plan, the A. F. of L. pulling back into the Amsterdam International in order there to combat Soviet Russia and the left wing.

The speaker hopes that a strong left wing will be formed in the A. F. of L., thereby neutralizing the latter.

IN his closing speech, Comrade Losovsky states that the Amsterdam International is in reality no international at all, for it is dominated by national tendencies.

We want unity not for its own sake, but as a fighting organization. The right wing combats the unity campaign not only thru agitation, but also thru organizational measures. We must fight energetically against the expulsions.

Up to the present our unity campaign was too abstract. The propaganda for unity must be combined with such daily problems as wages, taxes, housing, etc., and must be elastically adapted to the concrete situation.

THE plenum will adopt a general resolution, also concrete recomendations and practical resolutions for every country. The reformists are opposed to unity because they know that unity is possible only on the basis of the class struggle. It is necessary to fight not only the reformists but also their organized machines. The reformist leaders demand good treatment from us. But it is not a question of politeness, but one of emphasizing the essence of the struggle.

The coming conference should be neither overestimated nor underestimated. The conference will be an historical event, since for the first time, the most important organization of Amsterdam will confer with the Russian trade unions as to the methods of conducting the struggle.

THE negotiations will not deal with questions of principle in relation to reformism or Communism, but partial questions—which circumstance signifies great progress in the question of unity.

The Anglo-Russian negotiations are not a purely Anglo-Russian affair; they constitute the beginning of trade union unity.

The Vorwaerts is already utilising our analysis of the world situation to exult in the cry that the world revolution is at an end for the Comintern. But the social democracy is shouting much too early. If we manage to do a good day's work during the relatively short period of stabilization, then the prose of the daily tasks will become the poetry of the social revolution.

COMRADE SAUVAGE brings in the following resolution in the trade union question:

"The struggle for unity has completely proven the correctness of the political policy of the Fifth Congress. The present development of the class struggle strengthens the urge of non-Communist masses to come under Communist influence, and intensifies the unity movement. The plenum re-affirms the necessity of carrying on a systematic campaign for unity, since the struggle for unity is a struggle against the bourgeoisie and its lackeys.

"The plenum ascribes much importance to the unity negotiations of the Russian and British trade unions, and welcomes the coming Anglo-Russian conference.

"It calls upon the workers of all countries to support the creation of an Anglo-Russia trade union bloc and to fight energetically for international trade union unity."

The resolution is assigned to the political commission.

COMRADE ARISOV (Roumania) greets the plenum in the name of five million oppressed workers and peasants of Bessarabia. He protests against the false appeal of the Roumanian government to "historical rights," and asks for the support of the Comintern, expressing the hope that under the leadership of the Comintern the oppressive yoke of the boyars may be broken. (Applause).

The session is adjourned after Semard's return of greetings.

SCOTT NEARING IS SAT UPON BY BUREAUCRATS

Education Conference Is Ruled by Reaction

pointed by the president of the A. F. of L., three by the international unions, one by the central state labor federations, and two by the present class collaboration "labor colleges." All independent workers' education is to be ousted, especially the Workers' School of New York.

A resolution favoring the recognition of Soviet Russia by the American government was, of course, defeated. President William Green of the A. F. of L. made a plea for "industrial peace" and deprecated strikes, while Professor Shotwell, author of the infamous Geneva protocol, guaranteeing the frontiers of all the quarreling militarist puppet nations established by the robber "peace" of Versailles and the hostile bloc against Soviet Russia, spoke for "security for France and protection of the British Empire."

To this policy Scott Nearing rose in criticism, declaring himself in favor of a policy of class struggle. He said that Green's policy of "industrial peace" was fatal to the interests of the workers and that the Workers' Education Bureau and the A. F. of L. in following such a policy played into the hands of capitalism.

Frey, Woll and Maurer rushed to the defense of themselves and Gompers, attacking Nearing and asserting that they, the officialdom, did fight the employers, but they contradicted this by adding that they opposed revolution and even opposed strikes.

Educate Leaders Only.

They declared that workers' education was solely to train leaders for co-operation with the employers around conference tables, and not to lead strikes. They added that Communist conduct "pernicious work" everywhere and that they would not allow them in the workers' education movement.

The keynote of the convention is one culture for the favored of the bureaucracy and the philosophy of pure and simple trade union technique no class struggle and no special workers' education, but general education only.

"Practical" Chaps Have No Practical Solution.

Paul Fuller, in charge of the chautuaqua work and labor classes told of how in District 2, of the U. M. W. of A., he had taught several hundred students "practical" economics as "related to the mining industry."

But both there and in Massachusetts, where John Van Vaerenwyck, vice-president of the State Federation of Labor, had also found terrific unemployment, neither could explain how to teach the workers who sought to learn the cause and solution of unemployment, any other "solution" than to improve production, which has been "improved" so much already that only 35 per cent of the workers of Massachusetts are working full time.

Communists Unite Against U. S. Imperialism

gress here, pointing out the necessity of immediately taking up the watchword of "Bolshevization." The Mexican party is greatly lacking in discipline and in Marxist-Leninist education. The reorganization of the party on a shop nuclei basis will also have to be taken up in this congress under the head of Bolshevization.

Calles Disarms Peasants.

In the discussion on the immediate tasks of the party it was shown that the Calles government is proceeding systematically toward the complete disarming of the peasants. The party will continue its energetic campaign to prevent this. It will insist on distribution of lands, which the government has allowed to degenerate into a farce. It will also take up the watchword of abolition of private property in land.

There is a noisy religious controversy going on in Mexico between "romanos" and "sismaticos," the latter being a newly organized schismatic body on a national basis, demanding complete separation of the catholic church from Rome. It is believed that the schism is to a considerable extend fomented by the government. Nevertheless, it is another sign of the disintegration of the church. The "sismaticos" are relatively few in number, but include masses of workers. The Communist Party of Mexico will take advantage of the situation to point out the decidedly "unholy" intrigues of both groups and to popularize the slogan of: Religion is the opium of the people.

Build Strong Mexican Party.
By MANUEL GOMEZ.
(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—(By Mail.)—Willingness to face and solve practical problems confronting the Mexican workers, a firm determination to stamp out opportunism in the party itself, an absence of factional disputes and a strong sense of the need for a united, homogeneous organization marked the congress of the Communist Party of Mexico, which adjourned tonight after nearly a week of profitable sessions.

Rafael Carrillo, the "baby" of the congress, who left his post in the Mexican Young Workers' League last year to take over the secretaryship of the party in an emergency, was re-elected national secretary by an almost unanimous vtoe. In one short year he has established himself as one of the two or three most capable Communist leaders in the country. Elected with him on the new national executive committee are: Manuel Ramirez, Bertram D. Wolfe, Javier Guerrero, D. A. Siqueiros and Carlos Rendon.

The third congress of the party may be considered in some ways its first. For the first time the party appeared as an established organization, with actual locals in most of the important industrial sections of the country. Numerically, however, it is still very weak and altogether too loosely organized. Organization remains the primary task before the party.

Paper Has Large Circulation.

Important contacts have been established with the working and peasant masses, especially in Tampico and the states of Vera Cruz and Michoacan. El Machete, the party's excellent weekly organ, has a larger circulation than any other labor paper in Mexico.

In accordance with the program of Bolshevization adopted at the convention, a persistent campaign of Marxist-Leninist education, sadly lacking in the membership, will be begun. Steps will also be taken toward the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop and ranch nuclei.

Carlos Rendon, newly elected to the national executive committee, is an active and well-known figure among the railroad workers, who are now face to face with a life and death struggle, as a result of the determination of the Calles government to break down the railroad unions preparatory to handing over the national railways to private owners. The Communists are taking the lead in trying to galvanize the leaders of the unions into resistance to the wage cuts and systematical scrappling of agreements which characterize Calles' war against the 75,000 organized railroad workers. But the Communists are not relying blindly upon the leaders. Members of the party are agitating in the local unions for the immediate establishment of committees of action, in preparation for the nation-wide railroad strike which has been put off several times but which all believe to be inevitable.

Calles Wars on Railroad Workers.

The Calles government, with the open support of the bureaucrats of the Regional Confederation of Labor, is forcing the railroad workers into a position where they must either strike or give up all the hard-won gains of recent years. This is part of Calles' policy of conciliating foreign investors.

The congress adopted a number of important measures in preparation for the coming strike. The slogan adopted was: "Everything for the big railroad strike!"

Out of the congress comes a decided realization that the class struggle in Mexico is in great measure a struggle against American imperialism. This is perhaps the most important feature of the congress. Stronger and stronger bonds of union are being formed with the Workers (Communist) Party of America and with the other Communist parties of the continent and a basis of common action against American imperialism has now been definitely established.

At the close of the congress, the fraternal delegate from the United States invited the Mexican party to send a fraternal delegate to the next convention of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

Correction.— In our news story from Mexico printed in yesterday's DAILY WORKER, it was stated that there are 325,000 peasants organized in the "Liga de Comunidades Agrarias" of Vera Cruz. This was due to an error in the composing room. The figure should be 25,000.

SOVIET RUSSIA TO INCREASE EXPORT TRADE WITH TURKEY

MOSCOW, April 20.— The people's commissariat of foreign trade has actively taken up the question of the organization of Soviet trading organs in the biggest centers of Turkey, such as Smyrna, Trapezund, Samsun, etc., with a view to promoting the development of Soviet export trade with Turkey.

Communists to Gain in Second Poll in Germany Next Week

GERLIN, Germany, April 20.— The name of Ernst Thaelmann, Communist Party candidate for president in the coming German elections, is printed on the list of candidates with the occupation "stevedore" following his name.

The Communists are expected to materially increase their vote over the two million cast for Thaelmann in the first elections in March, when no candidate polled a majority of the votes, necessitating a second election.

Wilhelm Marx, the candidate of the socialist-catholic-republican bloc, has declared in favor of the annexation of Austria, and other imperialistic measures. Hindenburg, candidate of the fascist-monarchist right wing, who dreams of a return to a monarchy or a fascist dictatorship, is saying little, and has made no speeches in Berlin.

The industrialists are dividing their support between Hindenburg and Marx. They declare the socialists can be dealt with if Marx is elected, and will more readily keep the workers from a revolt than could Hindenburg. Both candidates have refused to put up a fight against the Dawes plan, and have declared that "the foreign policy must remain unchanged."

In a speech before the reichstag, Foreign Minister Stresemann, admitted that American bankers have withheld loans from Germany in an attempt to secure influence over whoever is elected president.

Millions Stolen from Government by Schwab, Is Charge

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 20.—That Charles Schwab, when director general of the shipping board emergency fleet corporation, used his government position as a dollar a year man to turn millions of dollars worth of contracts to subsidiaries and corporations which he headed, is charged by the United States government.

The government has sued the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, of which Schwab is the head, for $15,000,000, alleged to have been overcharged by the Schwab concern.

Schwab has filed a counter suit for $9,000,000 which he charges is still due on ships his firm built for the government. The ships were built on the cost plus basis.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ALL that glitters is not gold. Labor leaders are more often than not labor misleaders. Things must never be judged by their names, no more than the worth of an individual can be judged by the button he may wear on his coat. An institution known as the Workers' Education Bureau is now holding a convention in Philadelphia. Another case of mistaken identity. The intellectual hash that will come out of this goosestep institution will not be workers' education, but the kind of dope that lulls the minds of the workers into a satisfied sleep.

SCOTT NEARING tried to inject a breath of the class struggle into the foul atmosphere engendered at this conference by the capitalist agents, Matthew Woll, Frey, Perkins and Maurer. He created as much consternation as if he had appeared on the platform, with a smoking bomb in each pocket and squirted liquid fire into the eyes of the respectable labor fakers whose mission it is to disembowel the Workers' Education Bureau, extract everything that smells of the class struggle from its system and leave nothing but the bupass. This could be conveniently dropped after a while, as William Green dropped Chester Wright and other liabilities inherited from Gompers.

WORKERS' education, in the opinion of the bureaucrats of the American Federation of Labor means nothing more or less than a course in industrial etiquette, which would teach the workers how to behave in the presence of their masters, beat their foreheads on the ground without however impairing their ability to produce surplus values, and grasp the theory of class collaboration which tells us that the interests of the capitalists and the workers are identical, leaving the management of those interests to the bosses as well as the determination of how much of the product of industry should go to the worker.

THIS is the kind of stuff that will be injected into the minds of the workers by this goosestep university of [illegible] point of view was as repugnant to Woll and Perkins as it would be to Nicholas Murray Butler. Yet this is the conference that Dennis Batt, only recently a member of the national executive committee of the proletarian party, hailed in his fake sheet, the Detroit Labor News, as marking a "new epoch in the American labor movement."

* * *

BATT was once so revolutionary that the Workers (Communist) Party looked pale pink in his eyes. At the first convention of our party Batt and the two other leading members of the proletarian book stores company, stood on their toes and hurled revolutionary brimstone at the "reformists" who brought the Communist movement out of its illegalised existence, where it was driven by the Palmer raids in 1920. But the Workers (Communist) Party is today the only American section of the Communist International, while Batt is a highly appreciated member of the republican party, and one of the most slavish bootlickers for the labor fakers on this continent.

HIS editorial in a recent issue of his paper, which fulsomely praises the Workers' Education Bureau is headed, "A New Era in the Unions." The gist of the editorial is that education has been neglected in the past by the labor movement of this country. Our labor leaders were obliged to gain their knowledge from personal experience. Other educational movements of a working class character were too narrow in scope, but the W. E. B. has the A. F. of L. behind it. It may have shortcomings "real or imaginary." Obviously imaginary, according to Mr. Batt, and no doubt

[illegible]DER BULGAR [illegible]UNIST AND PEASANT CHIEFS

British Press Opens War on Russians

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

VIENNA, April 21.—The veil of censorship that has enshrouded Bulgaria for several days has not yet been lifted and the world is in the dark as to what is happening behind the frontiers, excepting for an occasional story sneaked out by some refugee who has escaped the fascisti cordon.

The authorities are continuing to murder Communist and peasant leaders but evidently all the bullets are not flying one way as the government is making frantic appeals for permission to conscript ten thousand more troops as it is not in a position to pay a volunteer army.

Britons Worrying

LONDON, April 21.—The British capitalists are using the latest crisis in Bulgaria as an excuse to open an attack on the Russian trade union delegates who have recently held a conference with a committee representing the British unions, with a view to bringing about unity on an international scale in the labor movement.

One of the papers, The Daily Telegraph, warns the government that many dangerous Communists entered the country recently. The British ruling class fear revolution in the colonial countries and the spread of Communist propaganda among the colonial slaves of Britain is causing much uneasiness in Downing Street.

Arrested in Berlin

BERLIN, April 21.—The German political police today arrested two Bulgarian students charged with complicity in the Sofia explosion. The students immediately went on a hunger strike.

Paid Liars Active

RIGA, April 21.—There is feverish activity among the Czarist emigres here indicating that another big wave of anti-Communist propaganda is brewing. Several well known white journalists who specialize in forged documents and lies were seen visiting the British consulate, which is the headquarters of the counter revolutionary elements in this country.

EXCHANGES OF ITALY CLOSED BY SHARP BREAK

Gamblers Face Second Shutdown in Month

ROME, Italy, April 21.—The stock exchanges thruout Italy will be closed today. The government issued a decree authorizing the exchanges to remain closed yesterday, and as today is a holiday, to celebrate the founding of Rome, the exchanges were kept closed.

The order closing the stock exchanges was issued after orders to sell at any price poured in from all sides. There being no buyers, a heavy slump in prices followed and the exchanges were closed.

The exchanges have passed resolutions condemning Premier Mussolini's order that a large proportion of the business must be done in cash. In spite of the protests, however, Mussolini has let it be known he will not rescind the law.

The stock exchanges were closed by a similiar slump a few weeks ago.

FIRE FIGHTERS OF SALT LAKE IN WALK OUT

92 Resign in Protest Against Fossil Chief

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SALT LAKE CITY, April 21.—Compelled to give up their organization by tyrannical city commissioners, who permit the city Fire Chief Bywater to blackguard and abuse them in every way, the fire fighters of Salt Lake City are resigning wholesale as a protest against their helpless condition, which will remain helpless unless they organize together with all other city employes and launch a real fight on the autocracy of the city officials.

Some Class Solidarity.

That there is a sentiment of solidarity prevailing among other city service employes, is shown by the fact that when thirty or forty city truck drivers were called to the office of Street Commissioner Burton, and asked to scab on the firemen, ten refused flatly and were fired.

"Either leave your jobs in the street department or say you will go to fill the places of the firemen," was Burton's demand, and when ten refused, he said, "They were disloyal." The usual bunk put out by those who think that scabbing is "loyalty."

Ninety-two Firemen Quit.

The resignation of 92 fire fighters were filed after repeated efforts to remedy abuses heaped upon the men had failed. Instead of correcting or discharging the antediluvian fossil at the head of the fire department, the city officials upheld him and refused to do anything.

Fire Chief Bywater, 67 years old, and a relic of feudalism mentally, is in the habit of calling the men curs, dogs and other names not mentioned in print. He persecuted those men he could not bully and charges of graft on purchases are made in detail.

The men filed a petition for a public

WHOLESALE FIRING OF BRITISH RAIL WORKERS THREATENS BIG STRIKE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, April 21.—The position of British railway labor is causing increased anxiety. The Great Western company, which is a large coal carrier and is suffering serious reduction of receipts owing to the diminution of coal traffic, is proceeding forthwith to dismissals of its operating staff. This action holds all the germs of a serious dispute.

HINDENBURG IS FOR DAWES PLAN OF ENSLAVEMENT

Admits Foreign Money Controls Germany

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, April 21.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, war lord and monarchist friend of the former kaiser has indorsed the Dawes plan and declared he will not disturb the activities of foreign financiers in Germany if elected president next Sunday.

Hindenburg frankly admitted that no matter who is elected, the head of the republican government will not control Germany's economic relation to foreign countries.

It is the German industrialists and bankers who have made deals with the allies and America, and who have used the politicians as their tools.

"I have positive data for my opinion that the financial world problems as they relate to Germany have nothing whatever to do with the election of the nation's head," Hindenburg stated.

There is little chance of the monarchist being elected, it is thot here.

Kurds Routed Again

CONSTANTINOPLE, Apr. 21.—The state of seige adopted against the Kurdestan rebels has been extended to May 7, when parliament reopens. The rebels were routed from Silvan by Turkish regulars.

JAIL PALLS ON INDIANA KLAN POLITICAL BOSS

Finds One "American Institution" Irksome

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 21.—Once considered one of the state's most formidable political generals, David C. Stephenson, also a former ku klux klan power, was accustoming himself today to the drab routine at the Marion county jaid where five steel doors bar him from the outside world.

Charged in the first degree with murdering Miss Madge Oberholtzer, who swallowed poison out of shame and pain after criminal attack charged to Stephenson, the former klan organizer is in "federal row" awaiting the next effort of his counsel to have him admitted to bail.

Eph Inman, chief defense counsel, intimated this next step might come this afternoon but he declined to state what form it would take. Inman lost the first skirmish to free Stephenson when Judge James A. Collins in criminal court, overruled pleas in abatement late yesterday.

Judge Collins said today Stephenson and his two co-defendants Earl Gentry and Earl Kelnck, charged as accomplices but held equally responsible with Stephenson would not be arraigned until May fourth, unless they wished to enter pleas immediately.

Meantime a dozen women's clubs have adopted resolutions condemning Miss Oberholtzer's assailants and demanding that punishment be meted out to the guilty. Also, a campaign was well under way for raising funds with which to prosecute the offenders to the fullest extent.

Construction Starts on 24 Tin Plate Mills at Indiana Harbor

HAMMOND, Ind., April 21.—Actual work towards the construction of 24 new tin plate mills by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., at its Indian Harbor plant was begun today in the laying of tracks into the steel company's site by the Indian Harbor Belt Railway Co. Construction of these mills is a part of the Youngstown's $20,000,000 extension program of the local plant.

ALL SIX DELEGATES EXPELLED FROM SEATTLE LABOR COUNCIL RE-ELECTED BY LOCAL UNIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., April 16.—(By Mail.)—The six Communist delegates to the Seattle Central Labor Council, Paul K. Mohr, Marius Hansen, W. H. Jones, Joe Havel, H. G. Price and J. C. Carlson who were declared unseated by corrupt procedure of the council's president, Jepsen, were re-elected by unanimous vote of their respective unions and sent back to the council. Not only did their locals re elect them, but each were given a vote of confidence.

Two of the credentials, those of Paul K. Mohr of the Bakers' Local No. 9, and H. G. Price of Machinists' Hope Lodge No. 79, were presented at the previous meeting of the council and after having been read by the clerk, Secretary Doyle stated that he had anticipated the matter would come up and how the chair would rule, so he wired to Green for advice.

Green's Illegal Ruling

Then he proceeded to read the following wire received: "It is my opinion that the decision of President Jepsen and the Seattle central body in unseating delegates to the Central Labor Council becomes effective immediately and that suspended delegates are ineligible to the seats in the central body pending decision on their appeal to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, William Green."

Jepsen then turned over the chair to the vice president and in half minute apologetic speech of his decision said that he was supported by Green as the wire proved, and that the matter was out of the council's hands and he will not obligate the two delegates. No one from either side spoke, but all looked on curiously and did not care for what was said in Green's wire nor what Jepsen said.

Delegates Report Revolt Against Expulsions

Under reports of delegates to the council, Brown from machinists stated that a variation of opinions is prevalent in his local, yet toleration of the highest degree is predominating. That the largest attendance was had at the last meeting of his union with two international officers present, nevertheless their delegate H. G. Price, was elected by unanimous vote to succeed himself in the council.

He regreted to see that Jepsen has refused to act on the credential according to the rule of the council and that while he could not at the time say what action his local would take next, he, however, was satisfied that his union will continue to fight until Price would be seated.

Delegates from Bakers' Local No. 9 stated that their delegate Paul K. Mohr was one of the oldest members and had a high standing in the local labor movement. That considerable discussion was had at the meeting in his local union regarding the unseating, and by unanimous vote his local decided to re-elect Mohr to succeed himself as they were of the opinion that it was their local's right to choose whom they should send to the council and not for the council to choose their delegate. He characterized the action of Jepsen as "foolish" in refusing to seat their delegate Paul Mohr. And he stated that, from the expression of the membership, a fight was on the way.

All Expelled Delegates Re-elected

Delegate Neilson of the machinists stated that the opinion expressed in the machinists regarding the unseating of delegates was that it is detrimental to the organizational work of their local.

At last night's meeting of the council three more credentials were presented. M. Hansen and W. H. Jones who were elected by unanimous vote of their local and given a vote of confidence which in part says, "in all their membership in the brotherhood, they have always done their utmost to uphold and serve the principles of trade unionism," and the credential of J. C. Carlson who likewise received the unanimous vote of his local. The credentials after being read were not acted upon.

The credentials of Joe Havel from the bookkeepers who was also not only re-elected by his local to succeed himself, but given a vote of confidence, has not as yet been received by the council.

The meeting of the council last night was attended by barely a quorum. Apparently the unseating of delegates and the manner in which they were declared unseated by Jepsen has caused a feeling of deep resentment.

FRENCH PREMIER READS MESSAGE TO NOISY CROWD

French Chamber Hoots Painleve's Nostrums

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 21.—"Blackguards," "bums" and other riotous declarations and shouts of derision punctuated the ministerial message of the new cabinet when Premier Paul Painleve read it in the chamber of deputies today. The message advocate maintaining a French embassy at the vatican; the security of France first and the working out of financial problems as of secondary importance.

So great was the confusion that Painleve was forty minutes reading six pages of the message. The only applause was from the right when he demanded maintenance of representation at the vatican.

Despite opposition of the radical socialists to his proposal that the French ambassador at the vatican be continued, the premier proposed the maintenance of diplomatic representation there.

"All other problems vanish before two heavy responsibilities:

"Firstly, to preserve France's security; secondly, to [illegible] her financial stability," Premier Painleve's statement read:

Its Tough, Says Premier

"It is a bitter disillusionment for France, seven years after a victorious war, to undergo such worries as she now suffers. But we wish to face the facts," declared the premier.

Painleve criticized the preceding government's obstinate hope of obtaining unrealizable reparations and rejecting possible solutions.

"The country is tired of illusory hope," he said. "It's universal suffrage has made known its sovereign desire for peace in security and in respect and the maintenance of treaties in a regime of economic stability and fiscal justice.

"These wishes were inspired by the Herriot government. These will be our guide."

A forerunner of the new French attitude regarding its debts to America and England was given when he said: "In coming to international negotiations, the government intends to develop the execution of the Dawes plan and at the same time settlement

PHILLIPS, ORGANIZER OF NEGRO YOUTH TO SPEAK IN CLEVELAND

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 21.—H. V. Phillips, Negro organizer for the Young Workers League, will be the principal speaker at a meeting to be held Thursday in Hanna Hall, 5311 Woodland Ave. The subject of the meeting will be the American Negro Labor Congress, to be held in Chicago this summer. This congress will have delegates from the trade unions, and many organizations of Negro workers.

Phillips is an active organizer of the Negro working class youth of Chicago.

J. D. Whitlow, a member of the Cleveland Building Trades Council, will also speak.

CHICAGO WORKERS TO DEMONSTRATE AGAINST WAGE CUTS AND THE OPEN SHOP AT BIG MAY FIRST PROTEST

May Day is a day not only of celebration but of demonstration and protest. That is the point of view of the Workers (Communist) Party and it is from this point of view that the May Day demonstrations are being celebrated by it.

On Friday, May 1, the workers gathered in the Temple Hall, Van Buren and Marshfield Aves., will be addressed by a number of nationally known speakers; James P. Cannon, C. E. Ruthenberg, Max Shachtman for the Young Workers League, and Martin Abern. These speakers will review the events

MARCUS GARVEY'S IMPRISONMENT IS PART OF CAPITALIST PLOT, SAYS WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

NEGRO WORKERS OF AMERICA!
WHITE WORKERS OF AMERICA!

COMRADES! The Workers (Communist) Party of America calls your attention to the persecutions which the United States government is inflicting upon a large mass organization of Negroes, the Universal Negro Improvement Association.

For four years the United States government has been persistently trying to destroy this Negro organization.

The persecution began in 1921 with a series of arrests and prosecutions of the organizers of the association.

IN 1923 the police agents of the government suppressed the annual convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association by methods of terrorisation, including the arrest of the president of the organization who was held in prison without bail during the period of the proposed convention.

Again in August 1924 the government tried to disrupt and disperse the "Congress of the Negro Peoples of the World" in New York City by means of arresting the president of

COOLIDGE AIDED PROSECUTION OF HAWAIIAN REDS

State Department Sent "Evidence" to Officers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 21. — The department of the secretary of state, evidently with the consent of President Coolidge, took part in the prosecution of Paul Crouch, United States soldier sentenced to 40 years at hard labor for being a Communist, details of the court martial reveal.

Documents furnished by the state department containing what it was claimed were instructions of the Communist International, were introduced as evidence by the prosecution at the court martial. Following the introduction of this "evidence," the prosecution asked for a "sentence that will sing thruout the army and teach a lesson to the reds."

Takes Nothing Back.

"I had no wild schemes for the immediate overthrow of the government such as have been printed in the capitalist press," Comrade Crouch told the court martial. "The bulk of my propaganda was efforts to combat the lies about Soviet Russia which appeared in the local press.

"A forty year sentence at hard labor does not look like a very bright future for me," Comrade Crouch said after the sentence was imposed. "But I had rather serve every day of it than be a traitor to the working class. So-called constitutional rights do not apply to the Communists in the army. Such was the real meaning of the verdict which sentenced me to forty years at hard labor for belief in Communism and my efforts to combat lies about Russia."

Prosecution Attacks Foster.

During the cort martial, the prosecution made a bitter attack on William Z. Foster and other Communist leaders, and declared that the principles of Walter Trumbull, who was sentenced to 26 years, and Crouch were similar to those of Foster.

The prosecution, during the court martial, declared Esperanto to be the "Bolshevik language," because Paul Crouch was a teacher of the international language. "Esperanto is prejudicial to good order and military discipline," the prosecutor said, "and all who have engaged in the study of it may be suspected of revolutionary propaganda."

Cards Stacked by Officers.

Previous to the trial of Crouch, the president of the court martial, declared that Crouch was "a very dangerous person." It was this man who was to give Crouch a "fair trial."

Creque, who had been arrested as a member of the Hawaiian Communist League, has been released without trial. Lieutenant Colonel John B. Murphy, assistant chief of staff, G, 2, Hawaiian division, said to Creque: "I wish I could stick you, but I haven't the evidence to take you before a court martial and do it."

Corporal Eugene Fisher, principal witness against the Communist soldiers, and official stoolpigeon for Murphy, declared at Crouch's court martial that "Col. Murphy told me to get evidence against Crouch, and to use any method I considered desirable."

Trumbull Had Good Record.

Walter Trumbull, who was sentenced to 26 years at hard labor and dishonorably discharged, has been in the army for nearly three years, and it was admitted that his services have been very satisfactory with conduct above the average. Trumbull was only recently recommended by his officers for a commission. Trumbull, who was in the 21st infantry band, in civilian life had been a wood carver and sculptor. The man who was his guardian is the chief custodian of the museum of fine arts, Boston, a master of oriental languages, and formerly a professor at Harvard University.

Paul Crouch was a regimental supply clerk in the 21st infantry. He has been intersted in the radical movement since childhood. Crouch was a journalist in civilian life.

Crouch should be addressed: Paul Crouch, care Police and Prison Officer, 27th Infantry, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. It is requested that newspapers, books, letters and magazines be sent to him at that address.

Chicago Labor Plans for May First of the past year and place before the assembled workers the tasks of the immediate future.

In 1886 three hundred fifty thousand American workers struck for the eight-hour day. In 1925, the workers of the United States find their wages cut, and are facing further wage-cuts, unemployment, no relief in sight for child laborers, "open shop" campaigns by the employers. Reaction still rules from the office of the White House down to the offices of the labor bureaucrats. Militant workers are still in prison. The foreign-born workers and the Negroes are suffering under the abuses generated by capitalism to keep the working class divided. Even the little children of the schools, in addition to the doped-up propaganda they receive under the guise of "education," are to be given daily potions of religion to ensure their growing up into good slaves for their capitalist masters.

The Dawes plan has enslaved the German workers and failed to keep tottering French capitalism steady. Elaborate preparations are being made by all the capitalist powers for new wars on a grand scale.

Some rays of light pierce the darkness of this picture. Soviet Russia is stronger than ever and is steadily improving her internal conditions and her foreign relations. The labor movement of the eastern countries is assuming definite form and consciousness. The movement for world trade union unity is steadily marching on and holding our great possibilities for the world working class. The British workers show a decided drift towards more militant class action.

In the United States the workers are beginning to wake up from their Coolidge and LaFollette nightmares. Despite increased persecution by the labor bureaucracy, the left-wing movement is thriving and growing into a formidable weapon in the hands of the class conscious workers against the class collaborationists.

The possibilities for the coming year are great. Every worker in Chicago should come to hear the messages of the speakers to the May Day mass meeting. Good music and singing, in addition to the speaking, are part of the program. Come and demonstrate!

Against wage cuts!
Against the "open shop"!
Against child labor!
Against persecution of foreign-born workers!
Against race discrimination!
Against religious training in public schools!
Against militarism and imperialist wars!
Against the Dawes plan!
For amalgamation!
For shop committees!
For freedom of class-war prisoners!
For International Red Aid!
For world trade union unity!
For recognition of Soviet Russia!
For a workers' and farmers' government!

Fire Fighters of Salt Lake City, Utah, in Walkout as Protest hearing, at which they presented overwhelming evidence to justify Bywater's removal. The fire chief did not dare to take the stand to oppose it. But the scabby city attorney frothed around about there being a union in the fire department, and stated the usual excuse that all the trouble was due to "union labor agitators."

After the hearing the men waited a week, then sent a committee to Mayor Nelsen, who refused to do anything. The resignations followed, giving the legal week's notice. The fire fighters are more than half convinced that altho the statement about there being a union in the fire department was a lie, they wish that it were true and that the other departments of city employes would take common action in a general walkout for a raise in wages for all.

American Troops Land in Honduras to Menace Natives

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—The heel of American imperialism came down on the republic of Honduras when 16 marines were landed from the United States cruiser Denver in the port of Ceiba. The landing was ordered by Captain W. N. Jeffers, commanding the Denver, after George P. Waller, American cousul at Ceiba, requested the troops.

The announced purpose of the landing was to "preserve foreign life and property." A revolution headed by Gen. Ferrera, defeated candidate for president, has been making considerable headway in Honduras. In the past eight years every presidential election has been attended by a visit of American battleships, which continually menace and intimidate the workers of Honduras.

Anti-Klan Candidate Favored to Win in Herrin's Election

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HERRIN, Ill., April 21—Herrin went about its mayoralty voting with a docile placidity today that contrasted strangely with the heated campaign of the last few months that saw bombing squads and private riots in action.

A record vote was forecast in Herrin's mayoralty election today with political workers feverish in the klan and anti-klan race. Betting favored the anti-klan mayoralty candidate Marshall D. McCormick, whose grocery was recently bombed. McCormick was formerly a klansman, he explained in his campaign speeches, but left the klan following Glenn Young's violence.

McCormick was opposed by Thomas Welty, klan candidate.

Early voting had brot no violence but every precaution was being exercised during the day with the unexpected always a menace. Scores of private citizens of both factions were deputized and patrolled the streets.

Illinois Cities Hold Municipal Elections in Rain

Questions ranging from the advisability of removing the town hitching posts made obsolete by the flivver to propositions involving changes in taxation and methods of conducting the government were being settled at the polls today in hundreds of towns and incorporated cities thruout Illinois.

The state legislature adjourned to permit its members to take part in the elections.

With a heavy rain, which started shortly after the polls opened, falling in a wide path across the state, many sections reported a light vote.

WORKERS' SCHOOL IN STATEMENT ON CONFERENCE

Refused Seats by the Executive Board

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 21.—The refusal of the chair to put to a vote a resolution favoring diplomatic recognition of and trade relations with Soviet Russia, on the ground that it was "extraneous to the prerogative" of the Workers' Education Bureau, was typical of the reactionary character of that bureau's fourth national conference just closed here.

Opposing Slogans

The second typical example of the control exercised by the trade union officials over the organization, was the attack upon Professor Scott Nearing because he criticised the speech of President Green of the A. F. of L. by saying, "Industrial peace is the slogan of the bosses. Industrial war must be the slogan of the workers."

These signs of reactionary control followed the refusal of the executive board of the bureau to seat the delegation from the Workers' School of New York City, and the refusal of the board to consider that school's application for affiliation. Compelled to appeal to the delegate body by circulars distributed at the final session, the workers school issued the following statement:

A Statement by the Workers' School Delegation

"The application of the Workers' School for affiliation to the W. E. B. and for representation at this conference has been denied and rejected by the executive board of the W. E. B. The credentials committee refused to act on our credentials. The affiliation committee likewise refused to act on our application.

"Altho the conference has already almost run its course, the executive board has not given its 'supplementary report' to the conference as was promised on the opening day, which would bring our case before the body of the conference. Our delegation has found itself gagged and blocked at every turn to present its case before the assembled delegates as well as to participate in the deliberations of the conference.

Refused On Three Counts

"Affiliation has been denied us, we are informed by Secretary Miller, upon three counts. One of these is purely technical—the question as to application not being made within the 30-day limit. The second point is that our school is not under trade union auspices. We maintain that the W. E. B. constitution makes provision for the affiliation of workers' study classes, with nothing being said about the necessity of their auspices being exclusively trade union.

"The third point is that we propagate particular doctrines, and the W. E. B. is against such a policy. This, we say, is a fundamentally false outlook. In the field of social sciences one must of necessity either have and develop a pro-worker or pro-capitalist viewpoint.

"The Workers' School is a bona-fide workers' educational institution, strictly working class in its student body and in its educational program. It has been in existance for two years. It has several hundred registered students, and functions all the year around.

For Class Struggle and Revolution

"We are forced to make our case known to the delegates in this fashion because we cannot speak in the convention. Ours is a growing, functioning school which declares for such working class education as will fit the workers to carry on the class struggle on all fields for the emancipation of the workers, the abolition of capitalism, the establishment of a Communist society.

"There is no constitutional provision on 'doctrines.' To make this a reason for our rejection is to discriminate against our school.

"We emphatically protest against the treatment accorded us and our school by such ruling of the W. E. B. executive, and call upon the assembled delegates to have the convention move to accept the Workers' School into the W. E. B. and instruct the executive accordingly."

The New Officials

The executive which is to serve the Workers' Education Bureau for the future is composed of James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, who is to be president of the bureau and Spencer Miller was re-elected secretary, while the executive board is hand picked by naming John Kennedy of the U. M. W. of A., Thomas Burke of the Plumbers' and Steam Fitters' international, John Brophy of the U. M. W. of A., District 2; Fannie M. Cohen of the International Ladies' Garment Workers; David Saposs of the Brookwood College; John Van Vaerenewyck, vice-president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor and three additional members to be named by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

Giving Up His Castles

LONDON, April 21.—The late Lord Curzon, president of the privy council, bequeathed the historic Tattersall and Bodian castle to the nation, it was learned today.

May Day Calls for Class Solidarity of Labor in War Against Capitalists

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the cracks and the holes in the tattered democratic party organization become increasingly apparent, in spite of the mending process that has been energetically pushed since the disaster suffered at last November's elections.

The donkey followers couldn't even eat their "Jeffersonian Dinner," in memory of the founder of "the democracy," under the same roof. So "the south" and "the west," with the Bryan brothers, "Bill" and "Charlie," as headliners, put on their feast at Kansas City, while "the east," under the wing of Tammany Hall, gathered in New York City.

Thus the democrats, almost exclusive spokesmen for the irresolute middle class elements, since the LaFollette movement went into practically complete collapse, are unable to develop unity even when they are on the outside trying to get in.

• • • •

The strategy of "the democracy" of "the west" seems to be unfolding in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, at Great Falls, Montana, where his chief defender, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of the same state, who was chairman of last year's national democratic convention in New York City, announces new "oil exposures," a new "oil scandal." The democrats are going to try to smear some more oil on the republicans.

If the "oil stuff" had gone over, politically, it would have shown its effect on the election returns last November. But "Cal" Coolidge, as "the principal," linked closely with the oil scandal, familiar with the robbery of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves, at the time the looting took place, was kept in the White House. The great mass of voters, the workers, saw both capitalist parties smeared equally thick with oil graft, but picked the political agent of the biggest thieves, the strikebreaker occupant of the White House, because they were fooled, by republican gold carefully distributed, into believing that their jobs would be better insured under a continued Coolidge regime.

• • • •

The New York World, court organ of "the democracy," backs up Walsh's threat of new scandals, in this menacing tone, "In court or out of court—and the oil industry might as well reckon with the fact—this business will be sifted to the bottom."

The oil business was sifted under Roosevelt, years ago, when Standard Oil was "busted." It got a thoro sifting under Wheeler's investigation when, in the words of the World, "one year, two months and 26 days ago Edward L. Doheny admitted under oath that he had sent $100,000 in a black satchel to Albert Fall," as secretary of the interior, with all the accompanying details, that dragged in not only Sinclair, but also the head of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, who recently fled to Mexico and South America to avoid testifying at the trial in Wyoming. But the investigation is now almost forgotten, the legal proceedings have been dropped, Doheny recently paid a "friendly visit" to Fall at his comfortable home in the picturesque far Southwest, and all that remains is the court persecution of Senator Wheeler out in Montana, with another indictment returned in the city of Washington.

• • • •

Wheeler believes in the capitalist system. He not only fights Communism, but makes war on every developing symptom of class consciousness of the workers and poor farmers. His trial will not turn him against capitalism, any more than the facts brought out in the oil scandal made him revolt against Wall Street rule. The indications are that the attack on him will only serve to beat him into line for the money power he hypocritically denounces, just as the carefully directed capitalist attack against LaFollette, has blunted the edge of the Wisconsin senator's so-called "radicalism" and kept him in the republican party, even as Wheeler remains in the democratic party.

New oil scandals, new attacks on Wall Street, new exposures of corruption cannot interest the workers and poor farmers except as they are followed by definite action. That action will never come from the republican party, the political expression of the greatest capitalists; from the democrats, torn to shreds in their efforts to speak for conflicting middle class elements, or even from isolated "third party" elements wandering in the political wilderness, fearing the slightest touch of the class struggle infinitely more than their feigned hatred for all the heaped-up crimes of capitalism's bloody rule.

• • • •

Action can only be secured under the leadership of America's Communist forces organized into the Workers (Communist) Party. All class conscious forces of labor, in the industries and on the land, find their logical place under that leadership. It is a good thing for workers and poor farmers, the nation over, to ponder this situation with the rapid approach of International May Day, the world holiday of labor, when mighty millions over the face of the earth demonstrate on behalf of the class interests of the oppressed. It is a good time to join the swelling Communist ranks to wage victorious class war against the whole front of the capitalist social order, from the Coolidges, the Butlers, the Morgans, at one end, to the LaFollettes, Walshes and Wheelers, at the other, including the dollar's faithful labor lieutenants with their copious supply of class-collaboration poison. Only thru its class might can labor conquer. Every developing phenomenon under capitalism proves this Communist declaration.

SAN FRANCISCO REDS HOLD FOURTH ANNUAL PICNIC APRIL 26.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 21.—Tom Lewis of Portland will be the main speaker at the fourth annual picnic of the Bay district branches of the Workers (Communist) Party at East Shore Park, near Richmond.

The picnic will be held Sunday, April 26. There will be singing, dancing and entertainment, in addition to the speeches.

WHEELER IN OIL GRAFT, SURPRISE WITTNESS SAYS

Offered to Influence Interior Department

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 21.—The defense began its fight in federal court here today to free Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, of charges of misusing his office by receiving a fee to represent a client before the interior department.

With more than 15 witnesses ready to testify, the defense planned to consume at least two days in completing its case.

Because of the sensational testimony of George B. Hayes, New York attorney, and surprise witness of the government, Wheeler's lawyers today abandoned plans to move immediately for an instructed verdict of acquital. Hayes testimony, coming as a complete surprise, sent Wheeler's counsel into a conference that lasted until early today to map out new methods of combatting the government's evidence.

Involved in Oil Millions

John L. Slattery, United States attorney, called Hayes to sustain his charge to the jury that Wheeler proposed an agreement to "make millions" out of oil lands obtained from interior permits.

Hayes declared he met Wheeler in a New York hotel lobby on March 10, 1922, a day before Wheeler sailed for Europe. The conference was arranged by telegraph by Edwin S. Booth, former solicitor of the interior, Hayes said.

"We discussed permits of Gordon Campbell," Hayes testified. Wheeler is accused of representing Campbell, a Montana oil operator.

"Wheeler said he would split his fee with me if I would handle Campbell's troubles before the department," Hayes added. "He said he was a United States senator and could not himself appear before the department. I think Wheeler stated the fee would run to a very considerable figure, I think he mentioned millions."

Hayes declined the offer.

To Represent Wheeler

After this talk, Hayes said he went to Washington and saw Booth, who declared, "I was very foolish because I would have very little to do; that he (Booth) would keep me advised about all of Campbell's transactions, and would help me."

"I was merely to represent Wheeler on Campbell's claims," Hayes declared.

Wheeler announced today he "never made any such proposition to Hayes."

Defense Recalls Hayes.

Opening its fight to acquit Senator Wheeler, the defense attempted to smash the testimony of two of the government's witnesses.

As it's first move the defense recalled George B. Hayes, and H. C. Glosser, former secretary to Campbell.

Walsh and Hayes engaged in a rather bitter tilt and soon were fairly shouting questions and answers. Finally, able to draw little from Hayes, Walsh excused the witness.

Glosser, who previously testified Wheeler promised Campbell "to fix up things in Washington" followed his previous testimony, remained unshaken.

Tom Stout, ex-congressman and chairman of the state democratic committee, next was called by the defense. He testified that he conducted the negotiations leading to Wheeler's employment to defend a receivership for Campbell, in Montana courts only.

Got Ten Thousand a Year.

"Wheeler agreed to represent Campbell at a retainer of $10,000 a year," said Stout. "Wheeler stated flatly that it would have to be understood that his services would apply only to work in Montana courts and would be unable to represent Campbell in any public land affairs."

Washington Sits Tight

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Advices from Paris to the effect that the new Painleve-Caillaux ministry is going to approach the problem of war debt adjustment by proposing that the United States and Great Britain accept German reparation notes in lieu of Franch demand notes now held, left official Washington absolutely cold today.

Such a proposition, it was explained at the treasury has been advanced several times during the last four years of debt dickering, and always has been turned down by this government. A similar fate will meet it again if it actually is put forward by M. Caillaux.

"French ministries may come and go," it was stated by one official, "but the policy of the American government on this question remains fixed."

THE T.U.E.L.

Represents the Left Wing of the Labor Movement. Its Purpose Is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions Into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

DEMAND SPECIAL SUB-DISTRICT AND DISTRICT CONVENTIONS; SAY FARRINGTON STOLE HIS ELECTION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 21.—That the rank and file of Sub-District 4, of District 12, knew that Farrington was planning to oust illegally Freeman Thompson and John Watt in order to cover up the violation of the union laws of the district tellers who stole the Illinois district election for him, is shown by the following resolution which was adopted prior to the Thompson's "removal" by Local 2553 on March 25.

In this resolution the call is put forth for a sub-district convention, which can be called by five locals petitioning the sub-district president, and also a special district convention is demanded to take up the "irregularities" of Farrington's election and the unemployment problem. The resolution, in part, follows:

"To the Officers and Members of Local Union No. 2553, U. M. of A.:

"Brothers:—The district executive board has appointed a committee of board members to investigate supposed irregularities in the last sub-district election and rumors are that the purpose of such an investigation is to throw out enough local union votes so as to defeat President Freeman Thompson and to place his opponent in the office of sub-district president.

"This movement in our opinion is a gross violation of the laws of the United Mine Workers of America, because the courts of the sub-district organization have been ignored and the committee that was appointed to handle this case was appointed without either of the local unions that are involved or the sub-district officers being allowed to appear in defense of the question raised to the board, but the board on request of one side to the controversy appointed a committee to investigate the sub-district election.

No Right to Take Sub-District Jurisdiction.

"No where in the international district or sub-district laws does it grant the right to the district union to take jurisdiction of a sub-district election, as the sub-district election is held under certain specific election laws and they must be obeyed if a contest of any local union's votes are desired, in fact President Farrington has so ruled that the district executive board is without authority to take action in the sub-district elections as that is a matter left solely within the confines of the sub-district organization.

"The district tellers of election up to this day have made no official report to the local unions of the results of the district election held December 9, 1924, altho the district constitution is very plain and very precise about such report. Section 21, of article 11, reads as follows:

> "The vote of each local union shall be tabulated separately and consecutively, the entire totals given and the complete report printed and sent out to the local unions by the district tellers not later than February 1 of each election year."

To Cover Up Farrington's Stolen Election.

"We believe because of this gross violation of the district constitution, the move that is now being made on the present sub-district officers is to distract the attention of the membership from what the district officers are doing themselves in regard to their own elections.

"Gross irregularities have been reported from many parts of the district, and up to today over 100 days have elapsed since the district election was held and no report has been given to the membership, and it appears that all the officers are going to succeed themselves on the first day of April, because no report of the election will have been given, and they will automatically go into their positions on that day.

"We believe that it is about time the rank and file of the Miners' Union should awake to what is going on; men who oppose certain officers are expelled from the union, and officers who do not agree with the policy of throwing our miners on the scrap heap are being made the victims of this machinery that even goes so far as to violate their laws when it suits their purposes to do so.

Demands Special Sub-District Convention.

"We feel that now is the time to demand a special sub-district convention to take such action as is outlined below, and which convention can be called by five local unions petitioning the sub-district president.

"First: To consider reports of irregularities in the last sub-district election, and that the candidates who have raised the contest be ordered to appear in such convention to explain why they have taken such appeal to the district executive board and also that Vice-President Fishwick be ordered to appear to defend himself in appointing or allowing to be appointed a committee of district board members to handle sub-district matters.

"Second: That the convention will formulate charges to be brot against the district tellers for violating Section 21, of Article 11, district constitution, and demand that such officers be expelled from the Mine Workers' Union, and that such election be declared null and void and a new election held immediately.

Also Demands Special District Convention.

"Third: To formulate plans for the calling of a special district convention to discuss the irregularities that happened in the last district election and also to take up the matter of the unemployed mine workers of this state and some way to assist them.

"Fourth: That we request all local unions in sub-district No. 4 to indorse our action in the calling of this special convention and for the purpose as named herein, and that also all local unions that have the unemployed problem to face be represented in such convention when called so that this matter may be discussed from every angle possible.

"Endorsed by Local Union No. 2553, U. M. W. of A.,

Frank Cook, President,
L. E. Rawlings, Secretary."

Farmer Writes of the Need of Eradicating All Race Prejudices

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—Dear comrades of the Trade Union Educational League: As this is my 79th birthday, I started to philosophise when laying on the sofa to rest. I commenced to think of you, educating the workers.

One great education you must spread, is to break down the prejudices between the workers of different nationalities and races. My white neighbor, who picks quarrels with our Negro neighbors, has made himself two enemies, while between these same Negroes and me, there is only friendship and fraternity.

That is what I think you must try to teach if you succeed in impressing your students, that there is no need of love or hate, but just a plain case of justice toward your fellow worker, no matter what race or nationality he may belong to.

I am glad that the Chinese workers are waking up, and find out that not all white people are "white devils." Signed—The Has Been Farmer.

The Rowan Split in the I. W. W. Gets Out a Paper in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore.—The split-off of the I. W. W., which claims to be the real I. W. W., of course, has started a paper which aspires to general circulation. It is called the Industrial Unionist.

The editor is James Lance and True Tuttle is business manager. It says that the "Emergencies," which is the laconic term applied to those of the I. W. W. who have followed the Rowan split, are going to have a "general convention" on July 15 at Ogden, Utah.

The third page carries a burlesque prayer, which might spring a laugh by itself altho it is old as the hills, but an introduction to it is a key to what may be expected from the Rowan leadership. It says:

"The following contribution is printed, not thru any desire to belittle prayer or the belief in the efficacy of religion, but because of the gleaming vein of satire which runs thru every line of it."

Just a good joke among thoroly religious fellows, you understand, much a a jolly priest might tell a new version of the episode of Lot and his daughters, without forswearing the cloth.

The amusing end of the publication is an article by Rowan, putting forth the strange claim that the "Emergency Program" is not at all aimed to split the I. W. W. because it doesn't ask only some unions to join in, but asks them all! A split, to Rowan, is not a split if it takes away a large chunk, but only when it takes a little one.

The regular I. W. W. are recommending to Rowan that he profit by "the efficacy of religion" and use prayer that his "Emergency Program" be answered, altho his "prayer for an injunction" to the capitalist courts last summer did not turn out very successfully.

CARNEGIE STEEL COMPANY USES FINGERPRINT BLACKLIST AND A SPEEDUP SYSTEM AT BRADDOCK

By THOMAS, Worker Correspondent.

BRADDOCK, Pa., April 21.—Reading of the terrible conditions in which the workers of Braddock live, forces me to write of the damnable conditions under which they work. It is the Edgar Thompson plant of the Carnegie Steel company in which I work, but I think the conditions are a fair example of the steel industry in Pittsburgh. You have a taste of the iron heel as soon as you enter the employment office.

Finger-Print Workers For Blacklist.

Before you can start a job or even get one you are asked several questions, among which is: "Do you now, or did you ever belong to a union?" After that your complete description is taken down on a form especially made for that purpose. Also your finger prints are taken down.

The form next goes to the office where the blacklist is consulted and if your description or finger prints happen to be on there you are turned away. If not you may get the job provided you can pass the company doctor. You are then put thru a physical examination and if you are not in the best physical condition you are turned down, as the company does not require men who cannot keep up with the terrible pace set in the mill.

A Speedup Hell.

Many a night I have returned home from work to drop into the bed and remain there until time to get up the next morning. The conditions all over the mill are the same. Some of my particular friends have to do that same thing every night or they would be completely exhausted and unable to earn a living.

There are a number of workers here who are chained to the mill for life altho quite young, from thirty to forty years. They have been so broken that they dare not say a word or quit the plant as they know they wouldn't be able to get a job anywhere else in the condition they are in.

We are forced to start when the whistle blows and keep on until it blows to finish. It used to be the custom to allow a few minutes for the men to change and put their tools away but they put a stop to that. If you quit a few minutes before the whistle you are docked one hour, not only that but they are forcing the men to produce double what they need to do.

How They Force the Speed Up.

One of the methods which they used to get the men who are working three turns, (that is the eight hour men) to produce more is this: They get a few men on one of the three turns and pay them more so that they will go out and break the record previously set. For example: In the mine tie section it was a good day's work to turn out 2,500 ties in one turn, but they put a dirty scab on with a spell screw and they go and make 4,000.

The extreme heat prevailing in the mills makes it necessary that the men work in turns with regular short intervals for rest to avoid complete exhaustion. While a crew is at rest the spell crew takes their place.

The regular crew came back on the turn and they were forced to keep the same record set by this special crew, without anybody to give them a spell.

The Same Old Bunk.

Of course, the bosses had to come around and tell the men that the works are "not paying," and unless they could quicken the pace they would have to shut down; a few of the slowest ones got fired and finally they got the men to go like hell and maintain the record. The workers of this plant have not yet realized that these are all lies by the boss to get them scared so that they will do double work.

CARPENTERS OF DETROIT DEFY 'CZAR'S' ORDERS

Hutcheson Tools Grab Funds of Union

(Special to the Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Michigan, April 21.—On April 2, Czar Hutcheson submitted a proposition to the Carpenters' District Council of Detroit instructing them to hold "orderly" meetings and to exclude one, William Reynolds from any further participation in the affairs of the Carpenters' District Council as the said William Reynolds was not a member of the International Union, having been expelled in January for membership in the Trade Union Educational League by the general executive board.

The communication stated that the district council was to take a roll call vote on this proposition and that delegates voting against it not only jeopardized their own standing in the Brotherhood, but also that of their local unions. It further instructed G. E. B. member, Potts, who submitted this statement, that in the event that the district council voted against the proposition he was to suspend the district council and reorganize both the district council and the local unions. In spite of the fact that Hutcheson threatened the most drastic action within his power, the vote was 23 to 4 against his proposition and a flat defiance of his arrogant order.

Since then, the district council records and funds have been taken over by Potts, Sharrock and Fish, the district council officials, who have turned traitors to the rank and file, have been put on the payroll of the general office, and threats have been made against the various local unions that unless they repudiate the action of their delegates, they too shall be suspended.

To Punish Loyal Delegates.

The latest proposition put forward by Potts is that the local unions must elect entirely new delegates to fill out this term and the next term, which means that these representatives of the rank and file who presume to question the imperial will of Czar Hutcheson are to be humiliated and disqualified for the office of delegates to the district council until July 1926. This is the reward that the local unions must mete out to their delegates for fidelity to the sentiment of their local unions, according to Hutcheson.

Altho Hutcheson has been defeated in every battle with the district carpenters and received a crushing repudiation in the last act of the district council, which he sought to gag and then strangle, he is as arrogant in his attitude as the ex-kaiser at Doorn castle, who joins his ancient enemies the social-democrats in sputtering dire threats against the revolutionary German workers. The likeness goes further, for Czar Hutcheson is treading the same path which led Wilhelm to Doorn castle, and his prototype Nicholas to his fitting end.

Trample on Union Laws.

The carpenters in Detroit have seen Hutcheson and his lackeys trample the constitution in the mire, have fought the capitalist police and courts to sustain their rights. They have seen their chances for a better wage scale for 1925 and 1926 thrown to the winds by the traitor Sharrock. They have become callous to treason and hopeless of any fair dealings from those whom they have elected to serve them. But they are determined that those who spoke their will in the district council shall not be humiliated by Hutcheson, and that the implacable foes of the rank and file with whom Hutcheson has surrounde himself, and of whom Hutcheson is the logical leader, shall be fought until their attitude toward the organization in Detroit has undergone a healthy change or until the rank and file are forced to "eat dirt" thru defeat and not thru any craven fear which Hutcheson's highbinders hope to inspire by empty threats.

Hutcheson has started a fight in Detroit and the carpenters in Detroit are determined to see it thru. Their attitude is "Let's go, Hutch. Do your stuff." If he continues true to form, his stupdities must inevitably annihilate him. Someone has said that "the result of the stupidities of tyrants are always beneficent." The carpenters in Detroit find that each succeeding stupidity of Hutcheson further unites and educates the rank and file.

BIG DEMAND FOR ORGANIZING N. Y. YELLOW DRIVERS

Workers Are Dissatisfied with Conditions

NEW YORK, April 21.—That the unionizing of the open shop Yellow Taxi corporation, which is run by a relative of Mayor Hylan is possible, if attempted seriously, is the opinion of many of the workers of that company.

The Yellow Taxi corporation, which has over 3,000 chauffeurs on its payroll is the lowest paying company in the city. Its men only receive 33 1-3 per cent of their bookings, while those who work for the independent taxis receive at least 40 per cent.

The Union Broke Up.

Two years ago the Brotherhood of Taxi Chauffeurs, an independent union, organized all the drivers except those working for the Yellow Taxi corporation. Before the strike they had received 33 1-3 per cent, but due to their victory they raised it to 40 per cent. Later the union broke up, due to the inefficiency and lack of organizational experience on the part of its leaders.

Neither the Brotherhood of Taxi Chauffeurs, or the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs' and Helpers' Union, has ever made a serious attempt to organize the Yellow Taxi corporation in spite of the fact that the men are only waiting for someone to take the lead.

Hylan's Favored Darling.

The Yellow Taxi corporation which is the favored darling of the Hylan administration, has all the vantage points thruout the city, is so far as stands are concerned, including the railroad depots, leading hotels, baseball grounds, etc. The chauffeurs of the Yellow Taxi corporation must work these stands, while the others cruise along any part of the city.

At the Union Square stand, of the Yellow Taxi corporation, 14 out of the 15 drivers wanted to know when the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs' and Helpers' Union was going to organize them.

When interviewing the chauffeurs at the Astor Hotel stand, at 45th St. and Broadway, in the midst of the theatrical district, beween 10 and 11 o'clock, just prior to the home going theater rush, about 45 out of the 60 present, stated that they wanted to be organized into the union.

When the day men were going home from the 49th St. and First Ave. garage of the Yellow Taxi corporation, one of them said the following: "Well, its about time that those organizers did come down here. Conditions here are terrible. Men aren't making a living. The sentiment is strong for a union."

Has Waited Three Years.

At 60th St., near First Ave., where they have two garages, one chauffeur said: "I've been a driver and a stockholder in this company for over three years, and I'm a member of the union at the present time, and I've waited for three years for help in organizing the men. I'm willing to do my share, but I don't receive any co-operation from the union officials."

At the Waldorf Hotel stand, 34th St. and Fifth Ave., a new driver had the following story to tell: "This company (the Yellow Taxi corporation) broke me in, helped me get my license, and promised that my commission and tips would average about $50.00 a week. But try and get it! I'm damned lucky if I can make $28 to $30 and believe me, I have to work darn hard to make that much."

Men in Receptive Mood.

The men are in a receptive mood for organization, and the next step is up to the union officials, who have a fertile field for work. The workers on the job are willing to do their share.

EXPULSIONS OF RADICALS BY SEATTLE LABOR REACTION IS DENOUNCED AT MASS MEETINGS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., April 21.—Denouncing in most vigorous terms the action of the "machine" in the Seattle Central Labor Council, emphasizing that the corrupt procedure of Jepsen is a vicious usurpation of the council's rules, and characterizing the policy of expelling trade unionists who are favoring the strengthening of the organized labor movement and progressive measures, as a deliberate attempt to block progress and check the growth of the labor movement, the six Communist delegates under expulsion from the council spoke at a mass meeting here, the first of a series of meetings.

Great stress was laid on the fact that a good deal of the expulsion policy is due to the open shoppers and employers who have failed in their attempt at the open shop scheme, are now resorting to control the unions on the class collaboration plan.

Elect Jones Business Agent.

Joe Havel, delegate from the Bookkeepers' and Stenographers' Union, the first of the six to address the meeting, stated that no overt act has been committeed by any of the defendants.

The fact that one of the defendants, W. H. Jones, has been elected business agent of the painters, one of the large and progressive unions of the city, has thrown fear into the camp of reactionary business agents who foresee in that the slipping away of their jobs into the hands of progressive militant trade unionists.

This he declared had a great deal to do with their expulsion. They could not make an attack on Jones without including others, he stated.

"Socialists" Play Repulsive Role.

The most disgusting part of any of them in the expulsion of radicals from the labor movement, is being played by the "yellow socialist," he said. "It is he who is ready to do the dirty work."

He cited David Levine, petty shopkeeper, who has been playing the most conspicuous part in this instance, as one of the "yellows."

He openly bragged, Havel said, that the reason he belongs to the labor movement and several fraternal organizations is to further his business by attracting sympathetic customers from the labor movement and fraternal organizations.

He is a "leader" of the reactionaries in the council and is chairman of the strike and grievance committee and vice president of the council. Another one of these, he said, is John Belanger a former "wobbly," who is more interested to preserve his job as business agent than in the progress of the labor movement. Emphasising the necessity of staying within the labor movement, he concluded by urging members of the organized labor movement to continue the fight against expulsions and for the rights of trade unionists to have political opinions of their own.

Attack Has Long Roots.

Morris Hansen, delegate from the painters, in forceful terms said that while a large number of trade unionists and delegates are of the opinion that the election of Jones, business agent of the painters, who is a militant trade unionist, has to do with the expulsion, nevertheless, the root of the expulsion policy that is being pursued in the labor movement is deeper than that.

"We must seek for an explanation of expulsions, deeper than that," he said. The working of the capitalist class within the unions on the class collaboration plan, to which the militant and progressive forces in the labor movement are bitterly opposed, explains it.

He cited the instance of the German trade union leadership who worked with Stinnes and others on the class collaboration plan followed by wholesale expulsions of Communists and betrayal of the organized labor movement.

The Communists, however, kept on fighting and built up their forces counting now millions. He urged the fight by trade unionists be kept up, regardless of consequences, for the future is with them.

Convicted Without Trial.

J. C. Carlson, delegate from the shipwrights, said that they were convicted before being given a trial if Jepsen's ruling is to be taken seriously. Doyle, the secretary of the council was not authorized to confer by wire with Green, but he did just the same. Like the previous speakers he concluded by urging trade-unionist members to keep up the fight for the strengthening of the labor movement.

H. G. Price, delegate from the machinists, said that the machinists of this city are progressive and stand for the rights of everybody to express one's political convictions. A number of trade union leaders, he opined, are controlled by the bosses. "If you want to do something worth while, do it within the labor movement" he concluded.

Business Agents Hate Radicals.

W. H. Jones, delegate and business agent of the painters, said the building trades is controlled by the business agents and these business agents do not like radicals.

They did not dare to expel by the simple method so a farcical trick was enacted. The duty of the radicals is to stay within the unions, he urged.

The bosses are exercising their influence in the election of business agents within unions.

"It is up to the membership of the trade union movement to make the organized labor movement a real labor movement," he said.

In Same Boat with Bosses.

Paul Mohr, delegate from the bakers, and veteran of the local labor movement, said that one of the reasons for the expulsion of radicals and militants is because of the education they are carrying on and which the machine resents.

In this respect they are following the tactics of the capitalist class who are resorting to persecutions. The ruling of Jepsen is contrary to the council's rules and corruptive, he said. Under pressure Jepsen admitted on the floor of the council that he was instructed, but refused to divulge by whom. It is up to the delegates of the council to reassert their militancy and bring the Seattle Central Labor Council to its former self, he concluded.

Stay in the Unions!

Norman Tallentire, district organiser, stated that it was the duty of trade union members to stay in the unions and fight against expulsions.

Stanley J. Clark stated it was a battle for the clarification of the labor movement.

COOLIDGE SPEEDS UP POSTOFFICE WORKERS NULLIFYING PAY BOOST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—Speeding-up of postoffice workers has been intensified since the new postal wage scale took effect, although the strain on the employes was already excessive, says Sec'y.-Treas. Flaherty of the Federation of Postoffice Clerks. Weighing of the output of distributers is established in Chicago, Boston and Rochester offices, and is now starting in New York City.

On the other hand Postmaster General New has issued a press circular referring to the increased postal charges as being due to congress' decision to grant higher pay to postoffice employes. The fact is that the employes opposed the enactment of higher charges, contending that with the higher wages they would within three years produce sufficient new income at the old rates. Their bill, passed by congress in June and vetoed, failed to overcome the veto last winter.

Night Work in U. S. Bakeries Continues Despite Inventions

NEW YORK, April 21.—Night work in bakeries will not be necessary in this country within a few years, the Workers' Health Bureau reports, as the result of the invention of a Swiss union baker, Jean Matti, of a new process which keeps bread fresh two years. Bakers now work under health destroying conditions such as dusts bad air and gases, which night work intensifies. Bakers' unions in 19 countries have succeeded in getting laws passed prohibiting night work in bakeries but there are no such laws in the United States.

Matti's invention, the result of years of experimentation, is based on the fact that he has succeeded in paralysing the destructive germs which make bread ferment. Recently his invention was tested and analyzed at the Cantonal laboratory in Lausanne and found satisfactory. Sealed tins in which bread had been placed were opened after three months and the bread found to be in perfect condition. The multi-millionaire Pifaretti, Cardiff, England, has bought the invention for use on steamship lines.

Matti has fought for years for the abolition of night work in bakeries. However, as long as night work is cheaper for the employers, science will not be used to raise the living standard of the workers.

I. W. W. MARINE WORKERS STILL OUT ON STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—The tide of M. T. W. red buttons is growing on the Philadelphia waterfront as the longshoremen's strike enters the second week. The six steamship lines are still tied up by the strike of 1,200 I. W. W. longshoremen over the recognition of the M. T. W. red button.

Every ship has been late in leaving the port from 24 to 60 hours due to the difficulty of replacing the strikers with scabs.

In the meantime the M. T. W. membership is growing by leaps and bounds. This strike is a part of the intense organization campaign being conducted on the waterfront by the I. W. W. and is accomplishing the task. The longshoremen have many grievances that the stevedore companies will hear about in a short time.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

CHINESE OF LOS ANGELES JOIN IN SEN MEMORIAL

Levin Speaks for the Workers Party

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—Three hundred Chinese assembled last Sunday at noon in an old Chinese theater in Los Angeles to commemorate the death of the leader of the Chinese workers and peasants, Dr. Sun Yat Sen. There were many addresses delivered by representatives of Japanese and Chinese organizations, following a parade thru the Chinese quarter of the city.

Emanuel Levin, city organizer of the Workers Party addressed them in English in the name of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Communist International. He told them of the identity of interests of China and the world revolutionary struggle against imperialism, of the mutual friendship of Sun Yat Sen and the Kuomintang party which he led, with the Russian workers and peasants. He quoted the last words of Dr. Sun about the necessity of following in the footsteps of Soviet Russia in order to free China from imperialist exploitation. Comrade Levin told of the proclamation of the Comintern upon the death of Sun Yat Sen calling upon the Chinese workers to continue the fight that he began.

There is a large group of adherents of the Kuomintang party in this city, and many sympathizers, as the Chinese people thruout this country have always had implicit faith in Sun Yat Sen, and always aided his revolutionary activities when he was an exile and needed their financial help to overthrow the Manchu regime in 1911.

Big Plans to Make Novy Mir, Our Russian Daily, Better Fighter

Beginning May 1 the Novy Mir will be enlarged to eight columns instead of the present seven. The paper will also move into new headquarters. This is connected with extra expenses. Besides the big deficit which was left over from the old administration, money will be needed for these extra expenses. The Central Bureau of the Russian Section of the Workers Party appealed to all the Russian branches for funds. At the meeting of the Chicago branch held last Thursday $80 was collected and mailed at once The next day was the lecture of Comrade Olgin and $185 more were added. For two days the branch sent to the Novy Mir $265.

The next big affair of the Russian branch will be held in the middle of May. It will be an unusual Vetcherinka or banquet where the main speakers of the evening will be people well known all over the world.—Comrades Lenin, Trotsky, Lunacharsky, and others. Phonograph records of speeches by these comrades will be brought to Chicago by Comrade Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section of the Workers Party. He is touring the country now and will be in Chicago in the middle of May. All who are interested to listen to these speeches, and who want to attend the lectures and affairs of the Russian branch are invited to send in their names and addresses to the Chicago office of Novy Mir, 1113 W. Washington Blvd.

SHOP NUCLEUS IN UPHOLSTERY FACTORY STILL FIGHTS BOSS

By JACK STACHEL.

NEW YORK CITY, April 21.—The strike which was called by our shop nucleus in the Greenspan Upholstery factory at 202 E. 100th St., is now, after about six weeks, still proceeding full speed with the workers determined to force the boss to submit to all of their demands.

When the strike was called after a member of the shop nucleus was fired, none of the workers in the shop belonged to the union. Thanks to the shop nucleus every worker in the shop joined the union, and today the Upholsterers' Union, Local 76 is conducting the strike, and is paying every striker $10 per week strike benefit.

Nucleus Active.

But without question the leading force in the strike is the shop nucleus which is most prominent in the picket line and is doing everything in its power to keep the lines intact. The shop nucleus is calling meetings of all the strikers, and is in general utilizing the strike to acquaint the workers in the shop with their problems and how they can be solved.

The shop nucleus is at the present time conducting a class consisting of its own members and any other trusted sympathizers that may care to come. The subject matter of the class worked out by the district executive committee is designed to acquaint the members of the nucleus with the principles and tactics of the Young Workers League and how they must carry on their work.

Busy Season Starting.

Now that the season is about to start it is expected that the strike will soon come to a successful finish. One thing is certain that the workers will continue to fight until they gain recognition of the union, the reinstatement of all those fired for their activity in the shop and a minimum living wage, based on the union scale.

One of the strikers who was sent by the union to work in another factory in Brooklyn has already gained over three other sympathizers, and is ready to form another shop nucleus in the same industry.

This strike has shown to all the comrades that thru the reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei the league will actually become the leader of the young workers' struggle.

MILWAUKEE CALLS SOUTH BEND TO ACTION!

Milwaukee, Wis., April 14, 1925.

The DAILY WORKER, Builders' Column,

Dear Comrades: Recently in Russia, when the Soviet government was floating the gold loan it was customary for the workers subscribing to the loan to name their comrades in the same city or in the distant point calling upon them to do their share. It was a call and a challenge. It worked something like this. Ivan Ivanovich in Moscow would write: "I subscribe to a ten rouble bond and call upon Stepan and Mary of Leningrad to do the same." I wonder if we could not do the same in our second annual sub-drive? Let me start the ball rolling. I am sending you three subscriptions to the paper and call upon Comrades Vera Fomenko, Yoker and Meyer of South Bend, Ind., to do the same.

What is wrong with South Bend? It used to be a pretty active town. And now they are not on the list. I expect to hear a reply to my challenge in the near future.

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

NOW YOU CALL!

What comrade you know will you call to action?

It doesn't matter WHERE he lives. It can be in your local—or in Zanzibar, Zanesville or Nova Zembla.

Send in a sub yourself and then call upon another comrade to do the same!

If you send in more than one sub call upon more than one comrade.

Use this brick and call a Communist to action!

CLEVELAND NEGRO DEATH RATE 29.1 PER THOUSAND

Four Times Rate of Native Whites

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 21.—The death rate for Cleveland Negroes in 1924 was four times as great as for native born whites according to a recent survey by the city health department.

The report gives this information:

Total Cleveland population (1920 census) 805,427.

Native-born whites, 529,090 or 65.7 per cent.

Foreign-born whites, 241,444, about 30 per cent.

Negroes, 34,529, over 4 per cent.

Chinese, Japanese, Indian and other races, 364 persons.

Mortality rate per 1,000 (1924):
Native-born whites	7.9 ptc.
Foreign-born whites	11.8 "
Negroes	29.1 "

The report goes on to say: "Most preventable causes of death are equally preventable among all population groups when adequate prophylaxis is practised. It is probable, however, that prophylaxis among certain population groups entails many difficulties not encountered among other groups."

Enlarge Scope of the Russo-Oriental Chamber of Commerce

MOSCOW, April 21.—It is proposed to amend and supplement the statutes of the Russo-Oriental chamber of commerce, with a view to enlarging the scope of the chamber's activities in the internal markets, as well as promoting the commercial influence in oriental countries.

FRENCH CAPITALISTS DODGE TAXES, PREACH PATRIOTISM TO WORKERS TO ACCEPT LOW WAGES

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How French capital preaches "my country first" to farmers and workers while its own slogan is "my fortune first" is illustrated by events leading up to the political and financial crisis. By concealing the amount of its income and by immediately abandoning the country whenever the government attempted pressure French wealth has avoided paying its share of the war.

Rich Export Their Capital.

Recently the French Herriot government made a last minute attempt to make the monied class share in saving France from bankruptcy. For six weeks it tried to check up on individual incomes by requiring every coupon clipper to register his name, address and amount received on cashing the coupon. But the big security holders exported their capital and smuggled their coupons abroad to be cashed by foreigners not subject to the tax.

Senator Berenger estimates the amounts of coupons held back to avoid this checkup at 2,500,000,000 francs (1 franc, 5c), the hoarding of bank notes at 7,000,000,000 and the exportation of capital to Switzerland, Belgium and England at 20,000,000,000. All, he says, from the attempt to stop evasion of taxation reckoned at 400,000,000 francs.

Cash Goes to the "Terrible Hun.

Loucheur, a figure in the French steel trust, admits the rich have been sending their wealth out of France to escape taxation. He says Swiss bankers have recently made large loans to German industry out of money sent from France for this purpose.

This spirit of the wealthy has hastened bankruptcy by forcing the government to borrow for the expense of their jingo foreign policy. Rich plums to corporations for reconstruction of the devastated areas further increased the swollen debt. The government was forced to authorize more paper currency, causing a steady increase in cost of living.

High Cost of Living Rouses Workers.

The proletariat cries for relief. The workers are demanding wage increases to meet the cost of living and stabilization of the franc to end the inflation in which wages always lag behind prices. The average purchasing power of French workers in October was about 75 per cent of the purchasing power of English workers and only slightly over 1-3 of American workers. French mechanics were getting about $1.50 a day while cotton mill operatives were getting from 70c to 85c a day at current exchange rates.

A levy on wealth would deflate the excessive claims the rich hold against the income of France as a result of the huge national debt. This would mean relief for the workers. But the prospect of a big business government with the possibility of a Dawes plan delivering France to the international bankers hardly offers much hope.

Near-Tornado Hits Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, April 20.—With property damage approximating $1,000,000, scores injured and many narrow escapes from death reported, the Pittsburgh district today counted large losses from the near-tornado which swept over western Pennsylvania Sunday afternoon.

Administration of Chinese Eastern R.R. Highly Satisfactory

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HARBIN, April 21.—The local papers report that the delegates sent to Mukden by the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway to felicitate Marshal Chang Tso-Lin and bring him birthday presents met with an excellent reception from the marshal, who had a friendly chat with the members of the delegation. The latter included Mr. Grant, Soviet consul-general at Harbin, and Mr. Liu Tche, both members of the board of directors of the railway.

The president of the C. E. R., General Pao Kui-ching, who was staying at Mukden, was host to the Harbin delegates at a specially arranged banquet. In a speech of welcome, the president stated emphatically the entire satisfaction felt with all the work done by the new administration of the railway.

Breaks Another Air Record

DIJON, France, April 21.—Captain Clauseel of the French air forces today captured a weight-altitude record formerly held by Lieut, Harris of the United States. He ascended to 9,325 meters with a load of 250 kilos. Lieut. Harris' record was 8,980 meters made March 27, 1924.

RUSS CO-OPS BUY HUGE QUANTITIES FARM MACHINES

10 Years to Make Country Garden Spot

(By Co-operative News Service.)

CLEVELAND, O.—Give Selskosoyus another 10 years and agricultural Russia will be one of the earth's garden spots. This promise, made by enthusiastic executives of Selskosoyus—the abbreviated form in Russian for the All Russian Union of Agricultural Co-operatives—seems not a bit exaggerated when the report for 1924 is read. In one year membership jumped 55 per cent, while the total trade turnover exceeded $65,000,000 or thre times that of the previous year.

Huge Implement Consignments.

But the most hopeful part of this report—which deals in millions with the ease of a metropolitan bank statement—is the schedule for the distribution of farm machinery in 1925. To replace the antiquated farm tools which are the curse of Russian agriculture, Selskosoyus will turn over 125,000 plows, 25,000 harrows, 6 500 drills, 500,000 scythes, 22,680,000 pounds of seed and 3,000 tractor parts this spring.

The pitiable spectacle of women drawing plows thru the hard soil of the praries will be ended within this decade, far-seeing agricultural directors hope. American aid in the form of tractors and farm machinery is being sent over by Russian Reconstruction Farms, Inc., to help Selskosoyus and the co-ops do ther big job of revolutionizing farming in the largest agricultural country in the world.

Soviet Developing Electrification of All Russian Industry

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON — (FP) — Russia, with water power resources of 70,000,000 horsepower awaiting development under the plan proposed by Lenin, is this year completing the first step toward the first 3,000,000 horsepower for which definite distribution has been arranged, according to the Russian Information bureau. By Oct. 1, the Soviets will have expended $70,000,000 in establishing seven regional power stations and in rehabilitation of all the existing plants, which represent a production of 1,500,000 horsepower. The 1,500,000 horsepower to be developed by new construction will require 30 new plants. Four are in partial operation. All will be federal enterprises. City governments are erecting plants with a capacity of 30,000 kilowatts.

Of the new regional stations, one in the Don region in the south will use small anthracite fuel, while one near Moscow will use peat and coal waste. Large portions of the country will be served more cheaply by fuel-fed plants than by bringing power from hydro plants. The plan for electrification of Russia calls for an investment of $7,700,000,000 and for the production of 15,000,000 kilowatts. This will require 25 years for construction.

Boys "Beating Way" Hurt

Louis Roberts, 18, of Latrobe, Pa., was injured, probably fatally, and John Lancaster, 18, of Milwaukee, narrowly escaped today when the two were brushed from a Chicago and North Western freight train at the Diversey Parkway bridge here. The boys said they were "beating their way" from Tampa, Fla., to Milwaukee.

BUILDERS AT WORK

VARIOUS WAYS FOR VARIOUS LOCALS

The Los Angeles System

MANY methods—mostly good—are being used by our DAILY WORKER agents and BUILDERS. We bring to your attention something that is little spoken of in this column and something our agents seldom use: local circularization.

But this circular letter by Comrade Globerman, city agent for Los Angeles, gives in addition to a brief, well written letter, also a payment plan connected with it, which properly followed makes a splendid plan to build "our daily." Here it is:

> Dear Friend: It is about time that you should co-operate in building up a powerful national DAILY WORKER which should be able effectively to resist all the abuse perpetrated against your class.
>
> The DAILY WORKER contains all the news of the world of labor. It is the only daily in America that fights for the interest of the working class. Quit reading the capitalist press only—read your own also! If you want to understand what is going on in Soviet Russia, Italy, England, in every part of the world—READ THE DAILY WORKER!
> HOW TO GET IT:
> One year subscription costs $6. But you are a worker. It is probably hard for you to pay all the money at once, so we have arranged a payment plan: a payment of $1 down, and the balance of $5, to be paid $1 each month. Fill out this blank:
>
> DAILY WORKER, L. A. Agent,
> P. O. Box 1788, Los Angeles, Cal.
> Enclosed find check (or money order) for $1. Send the DAILY WORKER for one year. I agree to pay balance within the following six months.

This means your local can reach socialist registered voters, trade union lists and others. But if you have the names and CAN'T AFFORD to circularize them—by all means send them to the DAILY WORKER. We simply must reach working class elements OUTSIDE of our party.

BATT seems to think that the rank and file of the American labor movement have not sufficient confidence in their leaders. He did not say whether this lack of confidence was due to the ignorance of the leaders or because of their corruption. The W. E. B. will set this to rights. Listen: "If properly conducted, and there is no reason why it shouldn't be, it will radiate better understanding among the rank and file of organized labor, and with better understanding among the rank and file will come better leadership." Batt did not have to take a course at the W. E. B. to learn that there is more to be gained by the ambitious self-seeking careerist by coming to a better understanding with the labor leaders than by being in the opposition for the sake of principle. He has made his peace with the A. F. of L. bureaucracy and is drawing his reward.

RENEGADES like Batt are worth their weight in gold to the master class. By mouthing revolutionary phrases they gain the confidence of the most class conscious of the workers, only to betray that confidence when the workers are most in need of guidance and assistance. This is what Batt has done. He represents a type that is common in America and in all countries. When the Batts begin to slip, they rarely stop on this side of hell. There is no task too filthy for them, provided there is money in it. Even Batt's worst enemies do not charge him with being a fool who would join the republican party and line up with the extreme right wing of the A. F. of L. machine for nothing.

HINDENBURG is getting more applause than came his way since the days when a patriotically crazy population were driving nails into a wooden figure of the victor of Tannenburg, at so much per nail. He was then one of Germany's favorite popular heroes. But the war ended disasterously for Hindenburg and those who are driving nails in a wooden statue of him during the days of victory would drive them into his skull after the defeat, but for the socialists who saved the marshal's neck and the capitalist system in Germany.

THE socialist president having performed his historical mission, died, and the monarchists are having lots of fun. Even a nice bloody slaughter feast is by no means out of the reckoning. The monarchists are getting cocky. Former Crown Prince Wilhelm has been exonerated of the crimes he was alleged to have committed during the war. If Hindenburg gets more votes than Marx, no doubt the kaiser will be waxing his mustache in Potsdam in the near future. This is not a prediction, but should it come to pass, the socialists alone are responsible. There is no danger of the czar coming back. The Russian workers and peasants took care of that.

Costly Laces for Fine Ladies Soiled with Workers' Sweat

By LAURA BRANNIN.

VENICE — (FP) — Venetian point lace is perhaps the most exquisite and the most expensive lace made in Europe. But in the miserable little island of Burano, an hour's ride from Venice, where the finest lace is made, the highest skilled workers at this trade are paid 9 lire (1 lira, 4½cts.) per day of 8 hours. The local Babbitts swell with pride as they relate how under the patronage of the good queen mother Margherita, the art of lace making, which had been almost lost, is being revived. Burano is a very poor fishing village. In almost every home lace is made by the mother and young girls.

A lace handkerchief at the queen mother's school on which a woman works for a week, sells for $10. A large piece of lace on which three women spend a year, receiving about $120 each for their labor, sells for $2,000 at the school which keeps the change.

Workers' Education

The Workers' Education Bureau, an adjunct of the American Federation of Labor, baptized at the Portland convention as a legitimate child of American trade unionism, meeting in convention in Philadelphia, has remained true to its sponsors by barring Communist schools from affiliation.

The Workers' Education Bureau, beginning as labor colleges endorsed by city central labor councils, was brought into being by the activity of left wingers. It was not long before officialdom of the American Federation of Labor sensed a danger to its control in these institutions which, for the most part, were dominated by Marxists.

The American Federation of Labor has, since the day of its organization, frowned upon anything in the nature of what it calls "abstract education." In this phrase is included whatever relates to the class struggle and it is because any course that is worthy of the name of education must deal with some phase of the class struggle, that the official trade union movement made no provision of any kind for systematic education of its membership.

It is a fact too well known to need extended proof that whatever knowledge of the underlying principles of the capitalist system, the class struggle, the revolutionary role of the working class, has been obtained by members of the trade unions has come from other organizations—working class political parties and the syndicalist unions.

But new times bring new methods and since the world war there has been a great skepticism manifesting itself in the labor movement, a questioning that would not be stilled.

Following the jesuit principle of "what we cannot destroy we must control," the labor officialdom, reluctantly and with many misgivings, gave the Workers' Education Bureau its endorement. It is supposed to be modeled after the Workers' Educational Association of Great Britain and, it must be said, has in its leading organs many types reminiscent of the "pure" intellectuals who in Great Britain send the youth scurrying down the path of knowledge in quest of "pure" truth. Anything savoring of revolutionary working class education is taboo.

The educational activities of the American Federation of Labor are safely under control now. They train workers, not for combat but for negotiation. The ideal of the "educators" is that of the liberal middle-class economists who spend their lives gathering data, but never daring to arrive at a conclusion.

The Workers' Education Bureau operates within the confines of capitalism and woe to the unfortunate student who mentions Marx. Marx and Engels are not respectable, they cause doubts as to the stability of capitalism to arise and naturally enough their works cannot become textbooks in courses that touch only the fringe of capitalist society.

In short, the Workers' Education Bureau is engaged in turning out labor fakers lacking even the physical courage of the two-fisted roughnecks who fought their way up from the rank and file. The emphasis in the Workers' Education Bureau is on respectability. The future trade union fakers must be gentlemen.

It was to be expected that an institution established to counteract Communist activity and education would not admit representatives of a Communist school. The last ones to expect this were those Communists who attended the convention in Philadelphia. But here as elsewhere the workers have had an opportunity to see the difference between the Communist theory of education, education for struggle against capitalism, and that of the capitalist tools in the labor movement who are simply fitting men and women to fool the workers with a little more efficiency.

That Communist education is a factor in the lives of the American workers is shown by the trouble and expense to which the officialdom of the trade unions have gone to counteract it.

Bloody Bulgaria

The terror in Bulgaria is no more a purely Bulgarian than the Finnish, Esthonian or Polish terror.

It is an incident in the war of world capitalism on the revolutionary sections of the working class. Were the issue in Bulgaria merely between the ruling class and the peasantry, the Bulgarian murder government would not last twenty-four hours. Probably in no other country, with the possible exception of Russia just before the overthrow of the czar in 1917, has the population been so much a unit against the tyrants.

But the Bulgarian regime is backed by allied imperialism. A successful revolution in Bulgaria would mean the loss of the entire Balkan territory to European capitalism. It would have a tremendous effect in Greece, Roumania, Italy and Poland. With a Soviet government in the Balkans the line of imperialism between Europe and Asia Minor would be seriously endangered if not broken completely.

Just as the Finnish revolution was crushed by a German army under Mannerheim, so is the war on the workers and peasants of Bulgaria conducted by the scourings of the capitals of Europe, from the troops of Wrangel to the gunmen who took part in the separatist movement in the Ruhr.

Bulgaria was an enemy nation in the world war, her army was reduced after the armistice and severe restrictions were placed on her by the allies. Today she appears as a friend in need. Her request for additional troops to turn loose on the workers and peasants has been granted and the sympathetic tone of the dispatches to the capitalist press indicate that the Bulgarian government has the full support of the allies in its murderous work.

In addition to the support given the bloody Zankov government, the European capitalist press, with that of Great Britain sounding the keynote, is opening a new campaign of slander of the Communist International and the Soviet government.

Poland has recruited 170,000 additional troops and in all the border states, backed by allied finance and bayonets, there are evidences of feverish military activity.

Is a new war on Soviet Russia in the offing? Perhaps. Certainly there is need for the greatest watchfulness on the part of the working class everywhere.

As for the Communists in Bulgaria, they are hounded and hunted like wild beasts, but the very ferocity of the Zankov government is proof of its weakness. Even the capitalist press is forced to admit that troops are going over to the revolutionists and that in many districts the government has been routed.

Whatever comes out of the struggle in Bulgaria, victory or defeat for the workers and peasants, it will be only a prelude to a greater struggle in eastern and southeastern Europe between the masses led by the Communists and the terror governments of capitalism.

Textile Workers' Needs

Nine textile unions are amalgamating in Great Britain.

A few years ago, when the American textile workers read of the conditions of the British workers in the same industry they could and did congratulate themselves on the difference in their favor. They did not organize—at least not to any extent.

Today, the textile barons have the industry completely controlled. Textile towns have the same meaning as coal and copper camps—they are communities where the capitalists of the local industries are supreme. Wages are low, employment precarious and working conditions bad. The mill owners are reducing the wages of the American textile operatives to a starvation scale.

The Trade Union Educational League of the textile industry is calling a conference in Lawrence next Sunday, April 26. The purpose of the conference is to establish a united front of all the workers and organizations in the industry, to organize the power of the workers against that of the textile capitalists, to prepare the way for amalgamation of the many feeble unions in the industry and a great organizing campaign.

The British textile workers have set an example for the American industry. Let next Sunday mark the beginning of a new era for the textile workers—an era of organization and struggle that will end with the unionization of every textile mill on the continent.

Shop committees, amalgamation and industrial unions—these are the immediate goals for the victims of the textile capitalists.

Guns and Workers

Chief of Police Collins, of the peaceful American city of Chicago, called in his police captains and told them to have their cops wear their guns in front. After a short speech on the necessity of added vigilance in order to check the crime wave, the chief ordered the captains to go out and search the camps of MEXICAN laborers, who, he said, have been getting guns lately.

This little incident is revealing in the insight it gives us into the mental process of the bold and fearless man-hunters of capitalist government.

There are probably a hundred thousand inhabitants of the Chicago underworld who carry guns but it is to Mexican laborers that the chief of police directs the attention of his underlings.

All of which is proof of our contention that a gun in the hands of a workingman is considered a thousand times more dangerous by the bosses than a hundred thousand in the possession of actual criminal elements.

It's as hard to expel Communist delegates from central labor bodies as it is to turn back the tides of the seven seas. Pretty soon the fakers will give up trying.

Now is the time to order a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S International May Day Issue. On May First it will be too late!

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

Moscow, April 2 (By Mail).

COMRADE BUCHARIN on the peasant question: Altho it is the fashion nowadays to call oneself a Leninist and to renounce Trotskyism, many comrades are of the opinion that the peasant question is, in the more developed capitalist countries, of secondary importance. This view is aboslutely false and Trotskyist.

According to Trotsky's theory of the permanent revolution, it should have been impossible for the Russian proletariat to maintain its power without the aid of the well-organized West European proletariat. This theory is false, because after the world victory of the proletariat, the agrarian question will reproduce itself on a higher scale.

The agrarian question is just as much the problem of our epoch, as that of the seizure of power by the proletariat. The colonial question is in reality but the struggle of the colonial peasantry against the imperialists.

The elimination of opportunism is closely connected with the peasant question, because it is only by means of the surplus profits from the colonies that the bourgeoisie is able to render the upper strata of the working class bourgeois.

THE Chinese problem is but a question of organizing the Chinese peasants against the imperialists. The economic weight of the peasantry is also important, because the positions of France and Britain are determined by their colonial possessions. At the present time there exist three decisive social forms:

Firstly, the big bourgeoisie and large estate owners.

Secondly, the proletariat.

Thirdly, the peasantry. The peasantry constitutes the decisive factor in the relations of power, whereas in the most important industrial countries, we have almost no influence whatever on the peasantry.

THE speaker gives a thoro analysis of the peasants' organizations in Germany, where the "Reichslandbund" (National Land League) comprises two million peasants and even half of the agricultural proletariat, under the leadership of the large landowners. In France the situation is no better, since the peasants are influenced by the big landowners, and the peasants' co-operatives are connected with the banks. The larger the peasant organization, the more reactionary is its leadership.

As to the conquest of the peasantry—we are as yet at the beginning of our task; which fact, in a period of temporary stabilization, is very depressing. Our balance on this field is unfavorable, altho the seizure of power without winning over the peasant reserves is problematic.

THE bourgeoisie has recognized the importance of the peasant reserves, as may be seen from the statements of many bourgeois economists who consider the peasantry as the main support of conservatism.

The war and post-war periods have dug deep into the peasantry and have changed the character of that section of the peasantry which is not so much bound up with private property—just as they have changed the character of the proletariat. The process of development is of course slower among the peasantry than it is among the workers.

We must win over the poor peasantry. The present epoch is characterized by the struggle between the bourgeoisie and the proletariat—for the conquest of the peasantry. The bourgeoisie understands this better than the Communists; they form the united front with the peasants in order to win them over to their side.

THE fascists and the social democrats also work among the peasantry; we—the least of all. The bourgeoisie is striving to agrarianize the world, and to develop agriculture at the expense of industry—in order to prevent the social revolution. The bourgeoisie at times opposes the improvement of agriculture technique, in order to prevent land-Communism.

The bourgeoisie is carrying out the united front tactic, as may be seen from its land reforms. The measly land reforms arose under the pressure from the peasantry; however, they give rise to illusions among the peasantry.

THE bourgeoisie organizes the agricultural credits thru the peasants' co-operatives which in turn are closely bound up with the banks.

In Finland the co-operatives are dominated by two banks.

In the United States, the banks are ruining the farmers on the one side, and are financing the co-operatives on the other.

In the question of protective tariffs, the large estate owners have succeeded in winning over a section of the peasantry to their side.

THE bourgeoisie in general, is trying by all means to win over the peasantry. Our occupation with the peasantry should not be considered a sickness of the Communist parties. The fundamental error of Trotskyism is the underestimation of the peasant question. In this respect, the practical activities of many Communist parties are not Leninistic. The Russian discussion was extremely important because the correct tactic in the peasant question has been found.

THE speaker then proceeds to characterize the prejudices of the Communist parties in the peasant question. The underestimation of the work among the peasantry has its roots in the craft ideology of the workers in industrial countries. We must make an effort to overcome this ideology.

In the organic phase of capitalism, it was necessary to clear the obstacles hindering the devolpment of capitalism. At present the immediate task is the conquest of power, and the question of allies is the most urgent one in our whole policy. To refuse to work among the peasantry is to capitulate before craft opportunism.

THE great problems of peasant policy must be treated differently according to the given epoch, and in accordance with the concrete situation. The main cause of the overthrow of the Soviet dictatorship in Hungary was the absolutely inadmissible policy pursued in the peasant question, namely, the failure to parcel out the large estates in favor of the small peasantry.

Some Hungarian comrades do not yet grasp the significance of this fundamental error. The negative experiences of the Hungarian revolution and of the Italian government, and the positive experience of the Russian revolution, should be thoroly studied and applied, since we have to deal here with a strategic problem of the first order—without which victory is unthinkable.

THE speaker then passes to an analysis of the present situation. The growth of the relative importance of the land in relation to the city, in economic, social and political respects, is a fundamental fact. The second phenomenon is the agrarian crisis, the third, the growth of peasant activities in all countries, the fourth, the differentiation of the peasantry and its organizations.

On this basis the peasant movement is developing contradictions, between large landowners and peasants, and between the peasantry and big capital. The form of these contradictions is as follows: the struggle for land; the demand for protective tariffs, and the tax question.

MANY Communist parties have not yet realized the necessity of approaching the peasantry with empirical demands. The main demands of all peasant organizations revolve about the tax problem. Taxation policy is state policy; hence the necessity for taking advantage of this circumstance, in order to bring the peasantry into conflict with the bourgeois state.

It is very important to fight the trust-industry for lower prices of industrial goods. On this basis it is necessary to combine the struggles of the workers and peasants.

Our tasks in the field of organization differ with the circumstances, whether in the particular country any peasant organizations exist or not.

THERE are two kinds of peasant organizations: political parties, and peasant leagues. Our tactic is, to support the left wing, and split it off when the situation has matured.

In those countries where the organization of the peasantry requires our initiative, it should be the rule not to form political parties but peasant leagues. It is the great mass of small peasants that has to be won over, and not the small Communist peasant sects; for this work, peasant leagues are more suitable.

THE Communist parties neglect the study of the peasant question, and are too little informed on agrarian reforms. The Rote Fahne and the Internationale in Germany seldom write about the agrarian question; similarily with the press of the other parties. The bourgeoisie studies and understands the peasant question better, and pursues a better policy. There can be no victory without winning over the peasantry, and there can be no real Bolshevism without a correct agrarian policy. (Stormy applause.)

Garvey's Imprisonment Is Capitalist Plot

the Universal Negro Improvement Association which had called the congress, and by direct efforts of federal officers to terrorize the delegates on the floor of the congress.

An effort is now being made in the courts to take away from the organization its New York meeting place, "Liberty Hall," as a further inducement to it to disband.

THE president of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, Marcus Garvey, is in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, with a five-year septence and the prospect of deportation as an "undesirable alien" at the end of that term. The federal court of appeals and the United States supreme court dispensed with their usual custom of long-drawn-out delay and acted with unheard-of speed in condemning this Negro leader where those courts would have been only too gentle in finding loop-holes for a big criminal of the ruling class and the so-called "superior race."

Defend Negro Right to Organize.

THE Workers (Communist) Party calls upon all class conscious workers, both white workers and the Negro workers everywhere, to join together in protests and demonstrations against the persecution of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and against the imprisonment of Marcus Garvey. We demand Garvey's immediate release from the capitalist prison, and the stopping of all persecutions against the organization.

In fighting against the imprisonment of Marcus Garvey, the Workers (Communist) Party does not endorse the leadership of Mr. Garvey. Many times we have directed the severest criticisms against his leadership, and we intend to continue to do so. Ever since the memorable convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association in 1920 Mr. Garvey has steadily "progressed backward" by seeking more and more each year to evade the vital issues of the wrongs of the Negro people. The Workers (Communist) Party has been obliged to point out that Garvey refused to fight for the Negroes' rights in the labor unions, altho he was instructed by the 1920 convention of the Negro organization to do so.

WE have severely criticized Mr. Garvey for refusing to fight against the peonage of the Negro agricultural laborers and the Negro "share-croppers" and tenant farmers in the southern states. The splendid spirit of international solidarity of the American Negroes with their oppressed brothers of Africa and other lands, has become in Mr. Garvey's hands a miserable excuse for shirking the struggle of the Negro masses for emancipation in the United States, or, in effect, anywhere.

By appealing to white capitalist Negro-baiters for money support on the ground that he would teach the Negro masses not to aspire to social and political equality in the United States, Garvey has degraded the dignity of the great Negro people and injured their cause. In the convention of the U. N. I. A. of August, 1924, Garvey persuaded the convention to refuse to make a stand against the ku klux klan, which habitually murders, tortures and terrorizes the Negro people. The Workers (Communist) Party does not endorse the leadership of Marcus Garvey, but severely condemns it.

BUT the imprisonment of Marcus Garvey is a political question having nothing to do with the personal deficiencies of the man. The brutal manner in which this Negro leader was treated upon the occasion of his arrest, the flouting of his "legal" rights both while on trial and while under bond, as well as the fact of his imprisonment, are intended as an insult and an injury to the 12,000,000 Negro workers and farmers of America. This is a direct attack by a capitalist government against the Negro masses whom the government fears and hates. It must be made a lesson to the Negro people, that the capitalist government which suppresses their efforts at organization is the bitterest enemy of the Negro people and of the working class.

A GOVERNMENT which exists for the purpose of robbing the masses of the products of their toil, a government run by thieves for the benefit of a thieving class and even headed at present by the thieves of Teapot Dome, cannot persuade us that it has become the protector of the masses from robbery. If Garvey has swindled his people it is for his people to judge, and not for the capitalist government which is the enemy of the Negro people.

The real reason for the arrest of the president of the Negro association is the crude belief that this will cause the organization to fall to pieces.

Importance of Organization of Negroes.

THE Workers (Communist) Party takes this occasion to point out to white workers as well as Negro workers the importance of organization of the Negro masses of this country. The Negro population is composed almost entirely of wage workers, agricultural workers and the most severely exploited class of farmers, often landless. In addition to the ordinary forms of exploitation and persecution under which the white workers and farmers suffer, the Negroes have to endure the terrible burden of race persecution by which the capitalist class intensifies its class exploitation of the Negroes and also succeeds in dividing and weakening the exploited classes.

IN America and internationally, in the world-struggle against capitalist-imperialism, the Negro movement is destined to play a tremendous part. The epoch of the world revolution which opened with the Russian revolution, is also the epoch of the rise of the darker races, and the two form one inseparable whole. A movement among the Negro workers and farmers of the United States must be considered, not only in the light of the class struggle within this country, but also in connection with the anti-imperialist struggles of the millions of West Indian Negroes and the 150,000,000 natives of Africa, and the awakening of the 400,000,000 of China and the 320,000,000 of India.

THE widespread awakening of interest among American Negroes in international questions, as shown in the desire to take part in the strengthening of the African Negro republic of Liberia and the winning of independence for the natives of Africa generally, is a guarantee of this historical trend.

This newly awakened interest of American Negroes in international affairs, which found confused but earnest expression among the rank and file of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, was one of the causes of the government's brutal attack upon the Negro organization. The diplomatic ministers of the United States, Great Britain and France brot about the outlawing of the Universal Negro Improvement Association from African soil. The president of the Liberian republic has publicly admitted that "obligations to the great powers" had something to do with the exclusion of the Negro association from all activities in Liberia. A concession for rubber lands, claimed by the Negro association, was withdrawn and given to a big American corporation, (the Firestone Tire Co.), thru the machinations of an American diplomatic minister at the same moment that the United States government made its final assault to break up the Negro association. Here we see the sharp fangs of American imperialism determined to enter and ravage the African continent just as it ravages Haiti, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, etc.

THE Workers (Communist) Party, composed of Negro workers as well as white workers, and standing for the solidarity and emancipation of the working class on terms of equality of all races, cannot stand idly by while the capitalist dictatorship attempts to destroy a mass organization of the exploited Negro people. We cannot consent that the Negro should be denied the right of organization.

The Workers (Communist) Party calls upon the workers, both Negro and white, to protest against the persecution of the Universal Negro Improvement Association.

We demand the immediate and unconditional release of Marcus Garvey.

We demand that Marcus Garvey shall not be deported.

We demand an end to the looting of the treasury of the Universal Negro Improvement Association by the courts of law.

We demand that "Liberty Hall" shall not be taken away from the Negro association.

We demand that the bloody hand of American imperialism shall not strangle the African peoples.

We demand that the full and free intercourse of American Negroes with their brothers of the African continent shall not be interfered with.

We call upon the Negro workers and the white workers to hold mass meetings and demonstrations together to voice their protest against the persecution of Negro workers.

We call for a united front of white workers and Negro workers as a guarantee and a promise of the solidarity of the working class, both black and white, which will bring the emancipation of the exploited classes and races of the world.

MEXICO'S REFUSAL TO JOIN ARMS DICUSSION DICTATED BY SLIGHTS OF BRITISH AND U. S. IMPERIALISM

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—The refusal of the Mexican government to take part in the league of nations traffic in arms conference was prompted by numerous discriminations against Mexico practiced by British and American imperialism which controls the league. In a note to Geneva, the Mexican government recalls some of the slights of the world powers, suffered by Mexico.

The league of nations barred Mexico, when it was originally constituted, because of objections by Wall Street, which used Woodrow Wilson as the mouth piece of its ruling.

Just a few weeks ago, it is recalled, the International Labor Bureau refused to admit Mexico until she joined the league of nations, in spite of the fact that Germany, Finland and other countries have been admitted to the organization altho they are outside the league.

When the American imperialists finally withdrew their objections to Mexico's entrance to the league of nations, objections were made by Great Britain, and the resentment of Mexico against this treatment by the world powers has steadily grown, the note shows.

BULGARIA is very much in the news today. It is today the chief bourgeois slaughterhouse, where the workers are being annihilated merely for being workers. There is no protest against this reign of terror in the capitalist press. The governments that used to keep the wires hot in denunciation of the defensive measures of the Soviet government, approve of the actions of the murderous white assassins of Bulgaria.

THE Bulgarian government, known among the workers and peasants of Europe as the "Government of Assassins" is the creature of Britain and the favorite political puppet of Austen Chamberlain. It seized power with the connivance of the British government and has held office since then by the support of the same government. Zankov, the present premier, had Stambulisky murdered; 15,000 peasants lost their lives in the insurrection he provoked in September, 1923.

• • •

THIS assassin gang suppressed the Workers' Union, with a membership of 40,000, and the Workers' and Peasants' Co-operative Society with a membership of 70,000 was declared illegal and all its property confiscated. When this fiend Zankov thought he had the country pacified in 1924, he ordered an election, but tho the socialists had bargained with him as to the number of deputies both should have, the Communists and peasants polled over 200,000 votes and elected 25 deputies. Zankov then made up his mind to eliminate his enemies by means of assassination.

SINCE then Zankov has assassinated, at a conservative estimate, at least 500 Communists and peasants, not to speak of the thousands he has executed in mass. Bulgarian revolutionary leaders who managed to escape from the country have been tracked down and assassinated in foreign cities. The following letter, written by Zankov's right hand man, Stancheff, to the Bulgarian minister in Rome, openly boasting of one murder and planning other is illuminating. It reads:

• • •

"I WAS overjoyed at the news of the death of the traitor Tchanleff. I am sure that Dmitroff (leader of the outlawed unions) will suffer the same fate. He is now in Rome and I shall not sleep in peace until he shall have perished. We shall get rid of Dr. Maximoff, as well as Kosturkoff (leader of the bourgeois opposition to Zankov's regime). Yesterday at Lazaroff's (commandant of Sofia garrison) I heard about Vlahoff. We are going to send our men down there to settle their account, as well as Kolaroff's. Lambieff has left a fortnight ago for London to put away Rakovsky (Soviet envoy in London). Don't worry about money. All will be paid. I am sending you to carry on your work 5,000 lire. Thousand greetings. Stancheff."

IN the month of January alone 150 political assassinations were commited by Zankov fiends. One of the most prominent of those was a young school teacher. He was taken to a police station by detectives and was found later strangled with wire on the streets of the capital.

THIS information does not come from a Communist source. It is the summary of a letter sent to British working class organizations and was published in George Lansbury's Weekly. Note that the socialists had a united front with the fascisti. Some of our readers might not believe this, attributing the charge to Communist malice. But George Lansbury is not a Communist. He is a member of the independent labor party, and a member of the British parliament.

THIS government of murderers is now trying to use the latest act of retaliation as an excuse for a fresh orgy of executions. And it is not sur-

SOVIET ORGAN SCORES PRESS ON BULGARIA

Big Revolt Reported Is Against Fascisti

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 22.—The Izvestia today denounced the capitalist press for its lying campaign in blaming the Sofia bomb explosion on the Communist International. The paper declared that the reported order from the Communist International ordering a revolution in Bulgaria on April 15 was a clumsy forgery.

The King a Prisoner.

VIENNA, April 22.—The king of Bulgaria is reported a prisoner in his own palace, as firing squads are kept busy executing Communist and peasant leaders thruout the part of the country where the Zankov government rules.

All the news coming over the wires out of Sofia is censored, but enough is learned to indicate that the fascist regime is tottering. The wholesale executions carried out by the Zankov regime have inflamed the peasantry against the government and a general uprising is reported to have taken place.

Blamed the Communists.

The fascist government issued an official statement today blaming the cathedral explosion on the Communists. The Roumanian royal family have made arrangements to receive King Boris in the event of his position becoming untenable in Bulgaria.

It would not surprise anybody here to learn that the Zankov ministry has fallen. It is believed if it goes down that the members of the present government will never come up again.

INDIANA KLUXER FILES PETITION TO OBTAIN BAIL

Accused of Murderous Attack on Girl

INDIANAPOLIS, April 22.—Marion county jail will be the temporary home of David C. Stephenson, deposed ku klux klan organizer, at least until next Monday, when he will be brought into criminal court for a hearing on his petition to be allowed bail.

This became certain today with the announcement of Eph Inmnan, chief counsel for Stephenson, who is charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer, 28. Attorney Inman said no further attempts to obtain freedom for Stephenson would be made until after the hearing.

At the hearing Monday the prosecutor must unravel in court the mass of evidence he claims to have warranting Stephenson's retention without bail pending trial. The hearing on the bail petition was exepected to develop into a virtual trial itself with a score of witnesses to be heard.

Among those who will be called to testify against Stephenson will be Mrs. George E. Oberholtzer, mother of the girl Stephenson is alleged to have attacked in a sleeping car, causing her to "swallow poison tablets out of shame and pain."

Mrs. Oberholtzer was seriously ill at her home today and it was said she might be unable to testify Monday. In this event, at the request of the defense, the hearing will be postponed.

SOUTH AFRICANS MOVE TO BOYCOTT WALES AS PRINCE DANCES GAILY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 22.—The increasing restlessness of the South African natives, as a result of the approaching visit of the prince of Wales, is seen in a move here to boycott the prince's visit when he arrives.

The outbreak at Bloemfontein, where British police killed four and wounded several other Africans during a demonstration, is but one sign of the resentment of the South Africans at the oppressive rule of British imperialism.

The "shows" which have been put on by the African natives, to entertain the prince, have been staged wholly by native troops, commanded and officered by British soldiers.

PRINCE GAY AND UNCONCERNED.

LAGOS, Nigeria, April 22.—Reports that the natives are showing displeasure at the "royal visit" have not perturbed the prince of Wales. He danced every number of a ball here, staying up until well into the morning. He stayed in bed most of the day to recuperate.

WORKERS PARTY ASKS FOR UNITY OF LABOR ON REAL PROLETARIAN EDUCATION FOR CLASS STRUGGLE

The complete surrender of the Workers' Education Bureau, which took place at its fourth national convention at Philadelphia, to the theories and practice of class collaboration, and the capture of the convention by the reactionary bureaucracy of the A. F. of L. has elicited from the educational department of the Workers Party, the following statement upon workers' education and the role of workers' schools:

A Statement of the Educational Department of the Workers Party.

The Workers Party on the occasion of the fourth annual convention of the Workers' Education Bureau, meeting in Philadelphia, feels it important to point out the vital task of labor education in the United States and the issues affecting groups and representatives of workers gathered to promote workers' education.

What is Workers' Education?

The activities of the W. E. B. during the period of its existence raises the entire question of workers' education. What is workers' education? It is self-evident that workers are compelled to organize for their own education because the educational forces of the present system are being perverted and prostituted to misrepresent the facts of our social life; to instil in workers a consciousness of the permanency and superiority of the present capitalist system; to prevent the workers as a class from uniting in opposition to their position as wage laborers.

No proof is necessary for the assertion that our schools, universities and other educational agencies are the

WHEELER'S AID HELPED OIL MEN AT LAND OFFICE

Secretary of Senator Did Dirty Work

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 22.—Denials that Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana ever practiced as a paid attorney before the interior department were made by a number of defense witness in the trial of Wheeler for alleged misuse of office, in federal court here today.

The first was Richard A. Haste, Washington, secretary to Wheeler, who testified to the habitual practice of members of congress in interesting themselves before federal departments in behalf of constituents.

Secretary Before Interior Department

"Wheeler had an unusually large number of departmental cases, but I handled practically all of them for him," said Haste, who added that he took Gordon Campbell, Montana prosecutor, whom Wheeler is accused of representing, to the interior department for the first time.

"Campbell was having some land troubles, and I took him to the interior department and introduced him to officials there," declare Haste.

"Wheeler was in Europe at that time."

Previous to Campbell's arrival in Washington, however, Haste testified he accompanied Wheeler to the interior.

"Were Campbell's oil permits discussed?" asked John L. Slattery, United States district attorney.

"Not at all," replied Haste. "So far as I know Wheeler never discussed or wrote about oil permits for anybody."

Banker Aids Wheeler

It was learned today that Frank A. Vanderlip, financier and Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney are gathering defense witnesses in New York who will be sent here to testify regarding George B. Hayes' character. Vanderlip organized the citizens' research committee to assist Wheeler in prosecuting the senator's investigation of the department of justice.

Wheeler scored an important victory when his lawyers forced the government to give up letters favorable to Wheeler which had been seized in the offices of Edwin S. Booth, former solicitor of the land office at Washington. The letters were a contradiction of the statement of Hayes that Wheeler protected Campbell's oil interests before the land office.

Friends of Wheeler are busy raising

LONDON LABOR DAILY ASSAILS SOVIET CRITICS

Gives Union Record of Russian Delegates

LONDON, April 8—(By Mail)—Today's Daily Herald carried an interesting story on the Soviet trade union leaders who went into conference with their British comrades this morning to thrash out the knotty problem of bringing about the international unity of the working class in the trade union movement.

The following with the heading "Workers All" is the Herald's story:

The conference between the representatives of the British Trades Union Congress and the Russian Trades Union Congress opens this morning at Eccleston square.

The meeting is the sequel to the efforts made by the British delegation at Amsterdam in February in the cause of unity.

On instruction from the general council of the T. U. C., the British delegates urged that an unconditional preliminary conference should be held between representatives of the International Federation of Trade Unions and representatives of the Russian unions, in order to discuss frankly the situation and the difficulties in the way of unity.

This proposal the other members of the I. F. T. U. council were not prepared to accept. They insisted that

Unemployment in Steel Mills Shown by Total Wages Paid

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 22—The banks here have announced a wage distribution in Youngstown of $6,476,668 for March. This is about $400,000 less than the February payroll. This was declared to be an indication of irregularity in steel mill employment.

The payroll for the first three months of this year was $20,074,822, but in 1924 for the same period it was $21,257,655.

ANTI-KLAN CANDIDATE IS ELECTED MAYOR OF HERRIN BY 199 VOTES

HERRIN, Ill., April 22.—Marshall G. McCormack, anti-klan candidate known by his own words as "the reformed klansman," will be Herrin's new mayor, official tabulations showed today.

McCormack, former coal miner who has deserted klan ranks because of their terroristic acts, was elected over the klan candidate, Tom Welty, by 199 votes. No violence of any kind was reported. 4,890 votes were cast.

HERRIOT HEADS CHAMBER ONLY AFTER BIG ROW

Communist Leader Begins Amnesty Drive

PARIS, April 22.—Former Premier Eduard Herriot today was elected president of the chamber of deputies. His election followed dissension on the part of those opposed to the ministry of Premier Painleve. The opposition for a time held up the election.

Joseph Caillaux was the centre of royalist and right wing opposition in the chamber of deputies when he strode into his old seat on the ministerial section which he occupied in 1913.

While Painleve was talking the chamber was howling. Marcel Cachin Communist leader, however succeeded in calming the deputies while he bitterly arraigned the Painleve declaration, in an unusually long speech.

Abandons Two Points

"The government says it follows the lines of the preceding cabinet" said Cachin "but it abandons two of its important points, that of the vatican and Alsace and Lorraine, and among the members of the cabinet is Chaumet, who contributed to Herriot's defeat. Francis Marsal who launched the attack on Herriot in the senate, is a banker utilizing his influence as a senator for the service of the banking interests. Herriot told you that the government lost its independence to the bankers.

"With Caillaux as minister we must have complete amnesty for all or there will be an intolerable scandal. What does the government think of women's suffrage after parliament has voted on it twenty times?"

GARY MAYOR TO FEDERAL PRISON AS BOOTLEGGER

Elected by the United States Steel Co.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 22. —Roswell O. Johnson, former Gary (Ind.) mayor, and the forty co-defendants in the Gary liquor conspiracy case, probably will be taken to Leavenworth, Kans., federal prison next Saturday to begin serving sentences passed by Judge A. B. Anderson in March, 1923, it was announced at the United States marshal's office today.

Prison warrants will be turned over to the marshal tomorrow, the clerk said, and notices sent to all the defendants who are out on bond, to appear at the marshal's office here.

Several defendants in the Gary case have completed or are serving their sentences.

Mayor Johnson was elected to office with the backing of the United States Steel corporation officials. He protected their interests while in office. When fatal accidents occurred in the mills, Johnson helped suppress the news of the extent of these accidents. The names and number of those killed were generally withheld.

SOUTHERN MOB MURDERS NEGRO ON GIRL'S WORD

Another Negro Is Being Chased by Whites

CARTHAGE, N. C., April 22.—Following on the heels of the lynching of William Buckley, an 18 year old Negro, near McComb, Mississippi, comes the word that a mob is chasing Dock Roberts, another Negro, in the woods near here.

Two Negro women found a girl who had been returning from school, in a wood, with a strap drawn tightly around her throat. Roberts is accused of attacking her, altho there is no evidence against him.

The 18 year old Negro boy was murdered in Mississippi, on the statement of a six year old girl that she was attacked by him. Buckley, however, had been released from jail by the sheriff on a small bail bond, as it was thot the girl might be using her imagination.

After Buckley had returned home, he was taken out by a mob and lynched.

COMMUNIST FOR MAYOR

DAN STEVENS
Communist Candidate for Mayor of Minneapolis, Minn.

DEPT. OF WAR WITHHELD NEWS OF RED ARRESTS

Hawaiian Papers Under Strict Censorship

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 22.—Proof that the war department suppressed for many days the news of the arrest of seven Communist soldiers at Schofield Barracks, near here, has just been furnished.

Altho the seven Communists were arrested on February 19, the news of the arrests was not printed in the Honolulu papers until April 3. Even then, the news was incomplete.

The Honolulu Star Bulletin, on April 2, in a story under the headline, "Five Soldiers Implicated in Alleged Plot," declared: "Notwithstanding the fact that courts martial are public trials, the newspapers were given no notification of this trial until it closed. The first news published was sent out from the intelligence office at Schofield late Friday afternoon, altho Private Crouch was sentenced to forty years in prison.

"This news failed to state that others had been implicated and that the trial of a second man was to begin Monday. Strong objection was raised today to the publication by the Star Bulletin of the latter."

When this dispatch was published, the secret trial of Walter Trumbull had already been going on two days, and all news of the trial was suppressed.

The report goes on to state, "The charges against Private Crouch were filed March 10. His trial started Monday or Tuesday of this week and ended Thursday, officials of the army intelligence office declaring that they 'did not pay much attention to it after completing their part of the work.'"

The above paragraph was in bold faced type. The newspapers did not then know that Crouch, Trumbull, Nadeau, Creque, Ebert, Schwartz and Domagalski were arrested on February 19, and held incommunicado since that date.

The Star Bulletin further complains, "The arrest of the enlisted men alleged to be implicated in the plot, the filing of the charges against them, and their trial was surrounded by secrecy by officials of the army intelligence corps at Schofield, who have assured the newspapers at various times that it was their purpose to assist them in gathering the news of the army here, for the people of Honolulu and Hawaii."

MINES CLOSING DOWN AND MONESSEN STEEL MILLS ON PART TIME

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MONESSEN, Pa., April 22.—More men wer thrown into the ranks of the unemployed, when the mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. at Pricedale, near here, was closed. Several other mines near here are going to close down, according to rumors. Many mines in this district are being dismantled and rails are being removed from the entries.

This is a delight to the steel barons when there are so many unemployed, it is their chance to slice down the wages of the steel workers.

The mills here are not running very good, many men are being laid off, and many work at part time. This is Coolidge's "good times."

COMMUNIST IS UP FOR MAYOR IN MINNEAPOLI

Stevens to Open the Campaign May Day

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April [illegible] Dan W. Stevens, president of Painters' Local Union, No. 186, and [illegible] Communist leader, today filed as [illegible] candidate for mayor.

Several weeks ago the local Communist organization sent out letters to all labor unions and other working class organizations calling for a [illegible] conference to agree upon a slate of local candidates to run in opposition to the present capitalist candidates.

It is generally understood that the conference failed to materialize because of the opposition of the conservative labor leaders who desired to support the present republican mayor for re-election.

Fought For Unity.

In filing Dan W. Stevens, the Workers (Communist) Party issued a statement in which it said, "Our party first fought in the trade union movement to unite all of the forces of labor behind one working class candidate. Our efforts in this respect were defeated by reactionary labor leaders who were more concerned in serving capitalism and its political henchmen than they were in fighting for the interests of the working class. It therefore, became our duty as a Communist organization serving only the interests of the workers to file a candidate who will utilize the campaign as a means of rallying the workers in the immediate struggle against the citizens' alliance and the "open [illegible]" bosses of Minneapolis and if elected will utilize the mayor's office to serve only the interests of the workers. In filing Dan W. Stevens, we have a candidate, who, by his record in the labor movement of this city, has proven his fighting qualities as a labor leader."

Well-Known to Workers.

Stevens is well-known in the local labor movement. After returning from the Spanish American war in which he served in the Philippines and received his first taste of the aggressiveness of American imperialism, he joined the Painters' Union and has been an active member ever since, having held every office in the local organization and now serving as president of Local No. 186.

For 17 years he served as a delegate to the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly, fifteen of which he was an officer and from 1921 to 1924 he served as an organizer of the assembly. He was recently unseated as a delegate by the reactionaries because of his membership in the Workers (Communist) Party and because of his criticism of the failure of these reactionaries to adopt a militant program of action against the attack of the bosses in their effort to cut wages and reduce the workers' standard of living.

During his activities in the labor movement he, like most militants, came to understand that the present capitalist government was an instrument in the hands of the capitalists to be used against the workers. In 1920 he was imprisoned for contempt of court after he had refused to respect an injunction issued by Judge Bardwell, forbidding the moving picture operators the right to picket a local theater. Stevens, after the in-

N. Y. WOMEN FIGHT LAWS ATTACKING FOREIGN-BORN

Meeting Wednesday at Hennington Hall

NEW YORK, April 22.—There will be a mass meeting to protest against the new deportation bills now pending before congress, the purpose of which is to further shackle the foreign-born workers in this country, Wednesday, April 29, 8 p. m., at the Hennington Hall, 214-216 Second street, New York City.

The speakers will be: Margaret Undjus, a member of the Lithuanian Women's Progressive Alliance of America; Rose Barron, representing the Labor Defense Council; Fanny Warshefsky, a member of the Furriers' Union.

The United Council of Working Class Women, which is arranging this mass meeting, invites all other working class women's organizations to participate.

"Take notice that you are requested to have the lands of Lismoyle cleared of all stock and crops on or before November 1, and if not it will be cleared for you. You are also requested to surrender said lands to the lands committee, who will have it distributed to those people who are justly entitled to it; those people whom you went behind their backs and grabbed this land while they were endeavoring to secure it for division among the uneconomic holders of the district. They intend no longer to allow any hound to gobble up their rights and seek to live among them after you came to the district a mendicant and built yourself up by grabbing from your neighbors. If you fail to comply promptly with this notice you can prepare for the bullets. Remember Latimer's land is divided and yours will be divided when the devil has you. Your life or the land.—(Signed) Fair Play."

Escaped in His Shirt.

The landgrabber took no notice of this epistle until a bomb sent him out thru the window altogether, but dressed only in his shirt. Not relishing the idea of being subjected to such thrills he finally decided to comply with the demands of the peasants' committee.

The victory of the Free State forces put the landgrabbers in good humor again, but in isolated spots the decrees of the Dublin officials do not count for much.

Gralton, during his brief visit to South Letrim carried on revolutionary propaganda and copies of the DAILY WORKER are in great demand, and other revolutionary papers are read with interest there today.

Rock Pile for Prisoner.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., April 22.—West Plains has never maintained a rock pile as an adjunct of the police department but one was being installed today for the special benefit of James Johnson. James was sentenced to the rock pile for sixty days on a wife beating charge. When the court was told no rock pile existed he ordered one built.

Ask Wall Street to Give Up Road.

MADISOIN, Wis., April 22—A resolution asking congress to empower the government to take over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, which recently passed into the hands of Wall Street bankers thru bankruptcy proceedings, was introduced into the legislature here.

Wheeler's Aid Helped Oil Men funds to pay for expenses incurred during the trial.

Wheeler Ttakes Stand.

Senator Wheeler of Montana took the witness stand in his own defense.

Wheeler flatly denied the charges in the indictment that after election to the senate he illegally received a fee from Gordon Campbell, Montana prospector, to handle government oil permits before the interior department.

"I had nothing whatever to do with Campbell's oil permits and never practiced before the interior," said Wheeler.

Deep silence settled the court room, as Wheeler testified in a quiet leisurely voice. The jury strained forward to catch every word. Senator Walsh, Wheeler's colleague and chief counsel, conducted the examination.

Wheeler Denies Everything.

Wheeler repudiated the testimony of George B. Hayes, the government's "surprise" witness.

"I never met Hayes in New York, and did not meet him until he came as a witness to the senate committee that investigated the department of justice of which I was a member," said Wheeler.

"Did you ever discuss Campbell's government oil permits at the interior or with anybody else?" Walsh asked.

"No, I never did."

Walsh then returned to questioning regarding Hayes' testimony. Hayes said he talked with Wheeler between 4 and 7 o'clock on the evening of March 16, 1923, the conference being arranged by telephone by E. S. Booth, formerly solicitor of the interior department.

Was With Colonel House.

"I could not have talked with Hayes at the time he said," Wheeler declared. "My wife and I spent all that afternoon shopping preparatory to going to Europe the next day and were at our hotel only a few minutes. That night we attended a dinner and the opera with Col. E. M. House, Mrs. Borden Harriman and Colonel Stone. After the theater I went to Col. House's club and he gave me letters of introduction to European officials."

DRY AGENTS IN MELLON DEPARTMENT ARRESTED FOR BOOTLEG TRAFFIC

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Continuing their roundup of members of an alleged "alcohol conspiracy ring" government authorities today arrested Thomas A. Nolan, Pittsburgh dry agent, when he reported for "work" at the treasury department.

Nolan was the seventh man arrested in conection with the operation of a ring charged with selling denatured and grain alcohol to bootleggers from factories in Washington and Baltimore.

Treasury department agents also were prepared to make further arrests in Baltimore, Annapolis, Philadelphia and Indianapolis.

Those arrested and admitted to bail include: Col. Winfield Jones, Washington newspaperman, his brother, Newfield T. Jones, former assistant prohibition director of Georgia, Morris Caro, Isadore Glasser and Simon Kellner of Washington, and Joseph Reiner of Baltimore.

JAIL TERMS TO 48 CINCINNATI BOOTLEG COPS

Higher - Up Politicians Escape Punishment

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 22. — Lieut. Aubery Houston, commanding a relief squad at the fourth district police station and brother of Barney Houston, chief of the Cincinnati fire department, was sentenced to serve eighteen months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta today on the charge of accepting money to protect bootleggers.

Houston is the highest ranking officer of the 48 members of the police force who are now being sentenced, one by one, by United States District Judge Smith Hickenlooper. The "higher-ups" who directed the bootleg gangs and the big politicians involved, escaped punishment.

Government investigators declared Lieut. Houston had accepted $9,000 in graft money. Houston who pleaded guilty, said this figure was exaggerated. Judge Hickenlooper told him the amount made no difference. He scored Houston for setting a bad example to his men.

Detective Got $17,000.

Louis Sunderman, a member of the flying squad of detectives, who also pleaded guilty received the same sentence. It was charged that Sunderman's graft amounted to $17,000.

Students Threaten Strike When 6 Joy Riders Are Expelled

DEKALB, Ill., April 22.—A student strike at DeKalb normal school was threatened today in an effort to force the faculty to reinstate six students, expelled following an automobile party to Dixon.

A petition to the dean, signed by 200 students, sets forth that all have bene guilty of the "offense" for which the students were dismissed and requests that "each individual be treated impartially."

Three Injured in Oakland Fire.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 22.—Ten blocks in the heart of Oakland were threatened today by fire which destroyed the Key Route Garage and drove scores of guests from the nearby Key Route Inn. Three persons were injured, one fireman sustaining serious burns.

Los Angeles Goes to Bermuda.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 22.—The arrival of the navy dirigible Los Angeles from Lakehurst, N. J., early today aroused almost as much interest as it did upon its first trip from the United States.

FOUND GUILTY FOR CARRYING ANTIQUE GUNS

Judge Said Lads Might Change Their Minds

NEW YORK, April 22.—The three young Communists, members of the Young Workers League, Comrades Winogradoff, Zalon and Diamond, were found guilty of having "firearms in their possession." The learned judges declared that "while it appears that the possession of these guns on this occasion was for a lawful purpose, still we think the law takes into account the possibility that on other occasions men might similarly possess guns for lawful purpose and then use them for an unlawful purpose."

This is the most ridiculous decision. Having guns in their possession for theatrical purposes indicates that these same workers "might use them for an unlawful purpose." Well, the actors at the Metropolitan Opera House, many of whom are foreigners, also use guns in the performances before the wealthy class of New York, but no judge has yet declared that they might be used for an "unlawful purpose."

Class Decision.

The decision rendered by the three august judges of the New York criminal court, is a clear class decision. Three young Communists who were to participate in the Paris Commune pageant and who used obsolete rifles that had long lost their power to be discharged—as the judges were forced to admit — were convicted of a "crime." The law requires that no foreigner shall possess a firearm: the court declared that using them for theatrical purposes is "possession."

This decision is only part of the campaign against the foreign-born workers in this country—particularly if they are radical or revolutionary workers. The three lads did not deny that they were Communists and members of the Young Workers League. Hence the capitalist court had an opportunity to deal a double blow at the foreign-born and the Communists.

Nevertheless, the judges suspended sentence — otherwise the situation would have been even more ridiculous. The Labor Defense Council, New York Section, who are conducting the defense, have decided to appeal the case. The Communists will give more performances and demand the same right to use firearms as the playboys of the rich. The Labor Defense Council is determined to put the courts of this country again on record as confirming that there is one law for the rich and one law for the workers.

Funds will be required for appealing the case. All sympathizers and class-conscious workers should send their contributions to the Labor Defense Council, N. Y. Section, 108 E. 14th St., New York City.

Hang 14 Kurd Rebels.

LONDON, Eng., April 22.—Fourteen Kurdish rebels have been hanged by the Turkish authorities, after being condemned by the council of war at Diarbekir, states a Constantinople dispatch.

CREW OF JAPANESE STEAMER SAVED JUST BEFORE SHIP SINKS

BOSTON, April 22. — A race against time, sea and death was won when the liner Homeric reached the side of the Japanese steamship Raifuku Maru and rescued the crew of thirty men just before the big freight liner sank.

Wireless stations here picked up a message going from the Homeric to New York, saying:

"Ship sunk, crew taken off."

The Homeric was one of half a dozen steamships and tugs which raced to the aid of the Japanese steamship, whose wireless operator had broadcast an S. O. S. of "Maru in danger like dagger. Hurry quick."

BESCO STILL INSISTS ON WAGE CUTS

Miners Stand True Despite Starvation

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, April 22.—Twelve thousand miners of District 26 U. M. W. of A., locked out by the British Empire Steel corporation March 13, have not yet returned to their slave pens.

Roy Wolvin, president and McLurg, vice president of Besco, John Lewis, International president, McLeod, MacKay, and Hayes, president, secretary and International board member, respectively, of the district, attended the conferences extending from April 14th to 18th, presided over by Armstrong, premier of Nova Scotia in Halifax.

After four days deliberations the conference adjourned without any agreement being arrived at.

The rank and file insists on the 1924 rates. The company insists on a 10 per cent cut and concessions on the part of the men, as far as conditions are concerned. As is always the case, the increased tariff of 36 cents on coal coming in from U. S. A. granted by the Canadian government does not mean a thing to consumers or producers of coal in Canada.

Approximately thirty thousand dollars has been sent into the mining sections by workers of Canada, U. S. A., Newfoundland and Russia. Considerable goods, books, clothes and bedding, etc., has also been sent in.

The advantage of independent political action on the part of the working class is being demonstrated in as much as Way, Steele and Morrison, labor members in N. S. parliament are discussing daily in the provincial, and Woodsworth and Irving in the dominion parliament, the strike situation, at the same time as tory and liberal members of the same constituencies are silent.

Jim McLachlan, deposed secretary of the district as editor of the miners' paper, the Maritime Labor Herald, is pointing out the way to a successful finish and it is to be hoped that organized labor will send help to ensure a real offensive struggle, as the indications at present point to a long fight. The company can be put on the defensive. If the spectre of starvation is kept a distance from the miners' families and the class issue is kept to the fore.

The premier of Nova Scotia, Armstrong, (liberal), who advocated the abolition of the upper chamber in 1922 and 1924, states that dangerous doctrines such as the nationalization of mines were being advocated and the necessity of the house of lords is now apparent to guard the sacred contracts of the coal company.

Carpenters, iron workers and laborers are being worked ten hours on government work in this city and are receiving for same, carpenters 40 cents, iron workers, rock drill men and laborers 30 cents per hour.

McANDREW'S FAKE TEACHER'S SALARY BOOST POSTPONED

The board of education at its regular meeting voted to defer action on the teacher's salary raise recommended by Superintendent of Schools McAndrew until a special meeting which the board called to meet next Monday for the purpose.

The board, at yesterday's meeting adopted the budget of 66 million dollars to pay for educational expenses in 1925. It was recently disclosed that this budget is heavily padded.

The salary raise, altho boosting the salaries of principals materially, in reality reduces the salaries of the elementary grade teachers, as for the first few years they will receive less than they are now paid, if McAndrew's plan is approved at Monday's special meeting.

Standard Oil to Be Tried Here.

On May 8 the government will appear before Circuit Judges Evans, Page and Anderson here, to commence proceedings against the Standard Oil company and about fifty subsidiaries and allies, charged with monopoly of the patent right covering the "cracking" process of refining.

Thru control of these patents, the department of justice holds, the oil companies control the production of gasoline.

Martial Law in Lisbon.

LISBON, Portugal, April 22.—Martial law and the suspension of the constitutional guarantees will be continued for two weeks, the chamber of deputies decided, as a result of the revolt of several army regiments. The regiments, which took part in the rebellion staged by Maj. Camara, will be dissolved, and the 150 officers arrested will be tried.

U. S. Withdraws From Honduras

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The landing detachment of 165 United States marines has been withdrawn from Ceiba, Honduras, it is claimed.

Wall Street Picks Its Candidate in Fight For Presidency of Germany

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the international bankers in Wall Street tune in on the German election campaign, pick their candidate, and dare the German working masses to vote for anyone else.

Under the Morgan-Dawes plan, the great financiers of America become just as interested in an election in Germany, as the American sugar trust is concerned in Cuban or Hawaiian electoral struggles, or the American fruit trust in ballot box or revolutionary results in Central America. Germany is the fountain source from which reparation payments gush in order that the Versailles allies may pay their debts to these same world bankers.

• • • •

Wall Street has black-balled von Hindenburg and picked Wilhelm Marx, the coalition candidate of the socialists, catholics and so-called republicans, as its choice. They threaten the German masses with the refusal of new loans if Marx is not elected. Not that von Hindenburg has not pledged loyalty to the Morgan-Dawes plan. He has; just like every other anti-labor element in Germany. But the coalition back of Marx, with its socialist traitors, offers a better center from which to attack the mighty working class power enlisted under Communist standards. The socialists betrayed the revolution when the kaiser fell. They are continuing that betrayal, with Wall Street's applause, under the Dawes plan.

• • • •

Washington says it has heard nothing about Wall Street's declaration on the German elections. It also feigned ignorance originally of the negotiations that resulted in the formulation of the Dawes plan. But in due time "Cal" Coolidge made it known that the republican administration was heartily in favor of what the Dawes commission had accomplished, and it was voiced in no uncertain terms that the whole power of the United States, even to the use of the army and the navy, could be depended on to see that its enslaving provisions are complied with. So now Secretary of State Kellogg innocently announces that all he knows of the bankers' backing of Marx is what he has read in the daily newspapers. That is dollar diplomacy wearing its mask of innocence.

• • • •

Not that Wall Street objects to Hindenburg! Perhaps it will back him in the next election, if the workers can be held in leash to the monarchist's political chariot. Wall Street is putting its money on the fascist dictator, Horthy, in Hungary, and on the fascist dictator, Mussolini, in Italy. It feels that the bloody dictatorships of these two letters of working class blood, are the best bets in these two countries. It feels that they best uphold the pillars of crumbling capitalism in Hungary and Italy. Therefore it supports them. That is why it supports Marx in Germany.

• • • •

American workers should study carefully the fact that there is one candidate in the German elections toward whom Wall Street casts no flirting glances. That candidate is Ernst Thaelmann, the dockworker from Hamburg, the great German seaport. This is easily understood when it is known that Thaelmann is the Communist candidate. Thaelmann is the standard bearer of the war for the destruction of German capitalism and militarism. But he is more than that. He is also a soldier of the Communist International in a struggle that is part of the world fight against capitalism.

Thaelmann is not only the standard bearer of Communism against Von Hindenburg, against Marx, against the allied anti-labor political parties of Germany, against German capitalism. He is also the standard bearer of the German workers' fight against Wall Street, against American capitalism. American workers can enlist on the Communist side of the German electoral struggle, by enlisting in the Workers (Communist) Party of America, and joining the war against capitalism in this country. Wall Street is anti-Communist in Germany, just as it is anti-Communist in the United States. An increasing Communist strength in the United States will be a growing aid to the Communist struggle of the German workers. The class war is a world war for the extermination of capitalism everywhere.

Thousands of Cab Drivers Join Union in New York City

NEW YORK—(FP)—Wholesale applications to the Teamsters' and Truck Drivers' union pour in from taxi drivers of the city. More than a thousand have been received by Local 267 since the municipal assembly voted to turn taxicab regulation over to the police. The Yellow Taxicab Co. is the leading enemy of the organization in New York. There are 37,000 licensed taxi drivers in New York and more than 20,000 cabs.

Railroads Bring Pressure on Cal to Increase Rates

WASHINGTON, April 22.—All railroads operating west of the Mississippi river today united in filing a joint brief with the interstate commerce commission warning it to "proceed with caution" in the investigation of freight rate structure of the country, ordered by congress.

The carriers declared they could not stand "any further curtailment in their revenue," and asked that the freight rates be increased.

More Fish, Fewer Jobs.

MONTREAL.—The Canadian fishing industry, which in 1900 employed 99,269 persons, in 1923 employed 68,969. But in 1923 the market value of the catch was double 1900. Only 30 per cent of this increase in value was accounted for by the increase in prices.

COOLIDGE PLANS STRICT BAR ON FOREIGN WORKER

State, Labor, Treasury Officials Confer

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A complete revision of American immigration rules, with virtual elimination of all immigration stations along the Atlantic coast in an effort to further restrict the admission to the United States of foreign-born workers was considered today at a conference of state, labor and treasury officials.

The proposals before the conference would virtually wipe out Ellis Island as an immigration station and would erect extraordinary safeguards against the admission of "undesirable" aliens.

To Watch Japanese

The conference considered plans for the establishment of an immigration inspection service in all American consulates abroad, the assignment of immigration and medical inspectors to all trans-Atlantic liners and the tightening up of the vise regulations, particularly in regard to students. It is under this designation that many Japanese are admitted to the United States.

The various government agencies represented at the conference were urged to apply "more strictly" all laws relating to admission of aliens as "non-emigrant" visitors. This stricter enforcement would be extended too to aliens claiming the student status.

The conference, held in the office of Secretary of Labor Davis, was attended by Davis, and assistant secretaries Henning and White, commissioner general of immigration, Husband, assistant secretary of state, Carr, several state department attaches and Surgeon General Cummings, representing the public health service.

Spies on Ocean Liners.

One subject discussed at the conference related to the feasibility of having immigrant inspectors and medical examiners on vessels from foreign ports to ports in this country conducting examination of aliens aboard the vessels during the voyage.

The stricter rules are seen as an effort to bar foreign radicals from this country.

War Paint Monopoly to Be Seen Sunday; Shin Kicking Barred

When the savage Sioux once wandered o'er the prairie, and to lift a scalp was often well inclined, he would never let the squaws get too canary, and insisted that they should not paint their rind.

But—Lor' luv us, how things have changed! The poor male today is not only forbidden from painting up for the war dance, but the flappers monopolize all the war paint and there's no role left for the unsuspecting man but to be the victim. If you don't believe us, come to the massacre that is to take place on the occasion of the Springtime dance next Sunday evening, at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard.

Do Not Get Living Wage.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Statistics of the department of labor are quoted to prove that the cotton mill hands in this country are not getting a living wage, on the average. Mill wages in Georgia are around $12 to $13, and in Massachusetts $19 to $20 average per week.

WORKERS PARTY ASKS FOR UNITY FOR EDUCATION

Proletarian Schools for the Class Struggle

servants of the employing class of this country and are instruments for turning the workers into robots, into helpless tools at the beck and call of the industrial lords of present day society.

Workers' education faces this inescapable fact at the very outset.

Workers' education has for its purpose the awakening of labor to the consciousness that as a class of wage earners, it is doomed as long as capitalism exists, to labor under its yoke r a mere pittance.

Workers' education must lead the workers to an understanding of the nature of the system under which labor works, so as to conduct a more intelligent and a more aggressive struggle against the ever-increasing capitalist oppressions with a view to their complete liberation from such conditions.

Workers' education must teach the workers the necessity of following independent political action.

Workers' education must expose the institutions of capitalism, intellectual as well as political as agencies for the suppression of discontent and the perpetuation of the power of the capitalist class.

What Policy Has the W. E. B. Been Pursuing.

The W. E. B. is entirely failing to meet these fundamental requirements of workers' education. In its present policy and under its present leadership, the W. E. B. is only another instrument to suppress any idea that the position of workers rises or falls as a class; it systematically minimises, ignores or completely denies the existence of the class struggle; it has pursued a policy of educating the workers to a policy of class collaboration with the capitalists, a policy which can lead only to the liquidation of the labor movement; this conception and policy results logically to the suppression of any militancy in the labor movement.

An examination of the activities of the executive of the W. E. B. fails to show any realization of the fact that the capitalists are growing more powerful, more reactionary and are combining to an ever greater extent for the suppression of the labor movement. They closed their eyes to the fact that American capitalists are monopolising not only the economic resources of America, but are stretching out for economic supremacy over the entire world.

The leadership of the W. E. B. ignores the menace to the life and future of the working class that lies in the imperialist war-breeding policy of American capital. The W. E. B. leadership has failed to teach labor the necessity of unity against this menace to its welfare.

The literature issued by the W. E. B. tends both in point of view and selection of subject to support the program of feeble reformism and collaboration with the employers under the guise of impartiality. It in many cases assumes a definitely capitalist viewpoint.

Reactionary Leadership of W. E. B.

This policy of education is pursued by the W. E. B. today, because its leadership is in the hands of the most reactionary group of the labor movement of this country, who pursue in the field of education the same path that they have taken in the field of trade unionism. On the trade union field the Matthew Wolls, Perkinses, Greens, follow the reactionary policy of Gompers, eschew any militant class policy and help the capitalists to chain labor firmly to the wheels of exploitation. These reactionary officials have entered the field of education with the sole purpose of snuffing out any spark of class consciousness which the growing oppression of the present system makes inevitable and thus they make of workers' education a spiritual bulwark of capitalist reaction as well as an adjunct to maintain their policy of rule or ruin in the trade union.

These labor bureaucrats have entered into the agreement to sponsor the W. E. B. at the price of the complete subjection of the W. E. B. to their reactionary policies. These officials saw that the existence of an organized workers' educational movement might lead to the dissemination of ideas more in harmony with the interests of the working class; that it might furthermore lead to the creation of of groups of trained workers who challenge their stagnant and oppressive leadership in the labor movement and they made speed to get this movement safely into their hands.

Policy of Exclusion.

In the course of the establishment of their control the bureaucratic officials excluded such large bodies of labor as the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. They eliminated the mildly radical Rand school. They denied the affiliation to the militant Workers' Educational Association of Detroit and to the Boston School of Social Science and upon the eve of the convention, refused affiliation to the Workers' School which for the past two years has been conducting a true working class education with a student body numbering several hundred.

In its efforts to make the W. E. B. aboslutely air tight against any ideas of real working class struggle, it is not difficult to predict that these reactionaries will not stop here, but will proceed to complete elimination of all forces in any leading capacity who are not part of the official A. F. of L. bureaucratic machine.

Tho prating of freedom of thought these reactionaries will go even further and will apply their policy of elimination even to the student body in the exclusion of students from the schools who show the least signs of militancy, following out in education that policy of expulsion that they have applied to the most active and devoted trade union members.

The Bankruptcy of Socialists and Liberals.

The Workers Party must also call to the attention of the workers to other groups participating in some position of leadership whose policies have contributed to the false program of education conducted by the W. E. B. to date. These groups consist of liberals, socialists and intellectuals. As a whole these groups have uncritically accepted the policies and leadership of the reactionaries.

The socialists have abandoned entirely their original socialist position on workers' education, as education for the class struggle which even their European comrades still cling to verbally and have passed over entirely into the camp of yellow labor leaders or the futile bourgeois phrasemongers. They are ready to accept any program of workers' education provided it does not lead to the promotion of more aggressive class struggle.

The liberals and reformers, irrespective of their protestations of freedom of thought, etc., serve as a helping mate to the reactionary leaders and themselves disseminate an ideology which serves for the perpetuation of the oppressive capitalist system. Among the intellectuals there are some who realize full well the hopeless future of the workers' education in the hands of the present reactionary leadership, but these take no steps whatever to combat the false policies of such leadership.

These intellectuals who have in many cases entered into labor education in order to avoid open spiritual degradation, which capitalist policies demand of them in the capitalist educational institutions, but they are instead falling into the position of spiritual servants to these yellow labor leaders.

These intellectuals who have every interest in common with the rank and file of the workers in the labor movement, instead of allying themselves with the workers in the class struggles and making a clean breach with capitalist and semi-capitalist ideology and education, have become the allies to the labor bureaucrats and are working against the real interests of the workers.

The Position of the Workers Party.

The Workers Party calls upon every honest worker interested in real working class education to adopt an aggressive militant policy. It calls upon all those who realize the necessity of uniting labor for more effective struggle against domination to organize against the present stagnant leadership, and unite with the Workers Party for real working class education.

The Workers Party believes that the purpose and curriculum of the W. E. B. must be unequivocally working class in character, so as to mobilize the workers spiritually against their capitalist enemies.

The Workers Party is opposed to the policy adopted by the labor bureaucrats of excluding workers' study groups from affiliating with the W. E. B. and calls upon all to see that the doors of the W. E. B. are open to all working class groups, aiming to disseminating working class education.

The open reactionary course of the imperialists of America and their labor lieutenants calls for the unity of all workers in an educational policy which will raise the fighting morale, the understanding, the confidence and the will to action of the great body of American workers.

KALININ SEES RAPID GAIN IN SOVIET GEORGIA

Visits Scene of Comic Opera Revolt

MOSCOW, April 22.—Since the adjournment of the session of the central executive committee of the U. S. S. R., recently held at Tiflis, Kalinin, president of the C. E. C. of the U. S. S. R., has been touring different regions of Georgia, visiting numerous towns and villages, in particular some of the vilages where farmers had taken part in the menshevist rising of August last

In conversation with a Rosta corrsepondent, Kalinin, while on his way back to Moscow, remarked that he believed the government of the Soviet Socialist Republic of Georgia had, up to quite recently, paid too little consideration to the initiative of the broad circles of the Caucasian peasantry, who, stressed the president of the executive, ought to come in for a much larger part in the work of local administration.

Then, he said, the authorities must be more careful in regard to the question of religion. His profound impression, however, was—Kalinin concluded—that the present mood and sentiments of the Georgian rural population contained all the necessary premises for a successful economic and cultural development.

After visiting Soviet Armenia, Dagestan, North Caucasus and also the oil works of Grozny, the members of the government and of the local central executive committee of the Union journeyed to Moscow via the Ukrainian Soviet Republic.

prising that the capitalist press and the capitalist police in every large country in Europe should be at the disposal of the Bulgar fascists. They are all in the same boat and show their fangs in the same way when circumstances force them to extreme measures. The working class of the world could very quickly call a halt to the murder reign in Bulgaria.

SECRETARY of COMMERCE HOOVER, in an interview to a capitalist reporter expressed his displeasure with the Soviet government over the arrest and imprisonment of several "workers" who accompanied the American Relief Expedition to Russia during the famine period. Hoover declares that they were not spies, and that even the Soviet government does not believe the charges preferred against them. Until those people are released, says Hoover, there cannot be any talk of Soviet recognition. This is almost amusing.

NOT so very long ago, one never heard of such trivial obstacles standing in the way of recognition. It was dictatorship, refusal to recognize the czar's debts, Communist propaganda. Perhaps this is a nice way to break the ice. However, Hoover's protestations of innocence concerning his "workers" will be taken with a grain of salt by those who remember the boasts of his agent Gregory, who claims that the Soviet government of Hungary was overthrown by this very same Hoover by means of his relief organization.

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED - BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

Y. W. L. MEMBERSHIP MEETING, LOCAL CHICAGO, PLANS INCREASE OF NUCLEI IN HEAVY INDUSTRY

By VALERIA MELTZ.

The membership meeting of the Young Workers League, Local Chicago, last night at the Greek Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., was one of the best attended, enthusiastic and constructive meetings ever held in Chicago.

Comrade Natalia Gomez presided at the meeting. The agenda of the city executive committee was read and accepted. The report for the city executive committee was given by Comrade Meltz and in all its points showed improvement and increase in the activities, since the last city convention.

The dues payment are becoming more regular, branches are clearing up their debts to the city office. The Chicago league leads the whole country in the sub campaign, some 120 subs have already been turned in, literature sales have increased considerably since the Young Worker is coming out weekly, all of the copies are now being sold and a greater percentage is being sold at the shops than ever before.

A quiet, slow but definite growth and proletarianization of the league can be noticed. Half of the executive committee are already workers from the shops and stores, the same with an even greater percentage of shop workers in the city central and all leading committees of the Chicago league.

There are possibilities of immediate organization of nuclei in 15 large Chicago shops where two or more league comrades are working.

City executive members and other active and responsible comrades have been assigned to each nucleus to officially establish them, to arrange for a definite meeting time and place and to lay out a plan of activity for each.

The make up of our membership at the present time is indeed very encouraging with approximately 20 per cent engaged in the clothing industry, 32 per cent in mail order houses and department stores, etc. This large percentage is due to the campaigns carried on in this industry. The remainder is divided almost equally among metal trades, building trades, leather workers, food workers, printing trade workers. Unemployed form a very small percentage and only 8 per cent are students.

With the organization of working area branches covering territories of Pullman and South Chicago and with the establishment of two nuclei in this territory, and with the campaign which is being contemplated by the city executive in the heavier industry, the percentage of members in the heavy industry will be considerably higher.

The branch committees were urged to pay more attention to the organization of all possible nuclei within their territory, so that as quickly as possible, the working area branches may cease to exist and nuclei branches take their place.

On the trade union economic activity, Comrade Harvey reported of holding two industry group meetings thus far, one of mail order house and department store workers and another in the clothing trades. Committee was elected to supervise the work of the branches in the mail order houses and department stores to see that the branches keep up the campaign, retain all the connections until the situation is more favorable to conduct a city wide campaign which will be started about June 1 and will lead up to a conference of all workers employed in this industry.

In the clothing workers captains were elected for two Amalagamated locals, one international and milinery workers and instructed to immediately call a meeting of all members in those locals, organize them into fractions and lay out a plan of work for them. Specific youth demands are being worked out for the industry and thru the fractions the comrades will conduct a real fight for these issues.

Comrade Mass reported on our work among the Negroes. Definite plans for work among the Negroes youth, election of a committee to take charge of the work in Chicago and activity for every branch in this phase of our work will be discussed more thoroughly at the city central committee of the league which meets today.

On the anti-militarist activity a committee is being proposed to the city central committee to take charge of this work and a mass meeting scheduled on anti-militarism, covering also the recent Hawaiian affair.

Work among the Juniors and our sports activities were touched upon, comrades were urged to send in to the weekly Young Worker news of their shops for publication, announcements of activities were made, collection taken to pay the cost of the rent and the meeting adjourned at 10:30 p. m.

Danish Unions Ready for Transport Strike to Combat Lockout

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 22.—Labor conflicts in Denmark are becoming serious. The negotiations begun before Easter ended Sunday with the refusal of the unskilled laborers to accept the findings of the government arbitrators. This means that the organization of employers who postponed several lockouts in other trades will now make those lockouts effective.

The union of unskilled workers threatens to carry out several serious strikes. It is connected with both the Scandinavian Transport Union and the International Union of Unskilled Labor in Amsterdam.

The Danish union will ask for the support of these organizations and it is probable that henceforth Danish ships will be boycotted in foreign harbors. Such a situation would paralyze Danish exports to England.

The Scandinavian Transport Union is to hold a meeting this week in Copenhagen at which the future action will be decided.

Soviets Study Sakhalien.

HABOROVSK, April 22.—The Association for Oriental Studies has charged the member of the Far-Eastern section of the association, who has left for Northern Saghalien, to organize a Saghalien branch of the association. It is expected that, within a very short time, the Far Eastern section will have at its disposal exhaustive information covering Saghalien.

Postpone Trial of Picket.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Issuance to all members of trade unions in Washington of a "fair list" of stores employing union salesmen, is under consideration by the Central Labor Union. Trial of the woman picket arrested in front of a clothing store has been postponed.

Fascists Slaughter Colonists.

ROME, Italy, April 22—Italian troops in Cyrenaica have been slaughtering Mohammedan native tribesmen, using bombing planes to attempt to crush the north African colony into submission. Two hundred and fifty workers have been killed by the fascist troops.

Klan Is Issue as 200 Illinois Towns Elect City Tickets

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—Several hundred Illinois towns elected mayors and voted on municipal issues thruout the state. The ku klux klan was an issue in many towns. In Herrin the anti-klan forces won, despite bombing of homes previous to the election by the klan forces. Sixty two mayors in Cook County were elected.

In Des Plaines, the ku klux klan burned fifty crosses thruout the town, in celebration of the election of their candidate as mayor. In Belvedere the ku klux klan forces also won by a small margin.

Typos in Capital Nominate.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Eugene F. Smith, incumbent, and E. W. Morcock, representing the "regular" and "progressive" groups respectively, have been nominated for president of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101, in the capital. Election will take place on May 27.

Mexican Agricultural Workers Form a Union and Strike for Raise

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Over a thousand farm hands in the state of Durango are on strike and ten plantations are tied up for lack of labor. The farm workers formed a union and demanded two pesos a day. When the demand was refused, they struck, destroying the agricultural machinery. Unless the strike is settled in a few days cotton valued at several million dollars will be ruined.

POLISH DAILY OF 'SOCIALIST' REACTION DIES

Dziennik Ludowy' Dies Without Mourners

Dziennik Ludowy, a Polish socialist daily paper published in Chicago for more than 19 years is out of business. The last issue was out on April 20, carrying an announcement that it was the last issue and that the whole concern was in the hands of a receiver.

This "socialist" paper was one of the bitterest enemies of Soviet Russia. Day after day it carried nothing but a mass of lies about Soviet Russia. The workers evidently got tired of this capitalist bunk and stopped reading the paper.

Supported Every Reactionary.

It supported not only the Cahan-Hillman-Levin machine, but also Gompers and Lewis in their fights against the revolutionary and left wing progressive workers.

During the war the Dziennik Ludowy supported the central powers, and when the United States joined the war it flopped over and supported the United States and the allies, carrying advertisements of government war bonds. When Abramovich, the counter-revolutionist came to America, it supported him.

The circulation dropped to a minimum. In the last issue they appeal for funds to reestablish the paper, but they do not appeal to workers, only to the bourgeoisie, to the followers of Pilsudski. They are also appealing to the Garland fund for a $20,000 loan.

Polish Workers Turn to Workers Party.

The yellow socialist Polish paper is dead. The other Polish paper, Glos Robotniczy, pubished in Detroit by the proletarian party is also counting its days. This clearly shows the trend of sentiment among the Polish workers.

The Trybuna Robotnicza, official organ of the Polish section of the Workers Party is gaining a new field every day. Polish workers, especially since the demonstration before the Polish consulate to save the life of Comrade Lanzutsky, see that the Workers Party is a party of action, a party of Lenin, a party that leads the workers to victory.

Fire Fighters Win Twice.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Baer of the International Association of Fire Fighters announces that special referendum elections in St. Louis and in Green Bay, Wis., have secured wage increases to the firemen in those cities of approximately $25 a month. Eleven hundred men in St. Louis and 120 in Green Bay are benefited. In both cities petitions were initiated by the fire fighters' union locals, and the voters upheld them by 4 to 1.

Organize Nucleus in Steel Car Works at Hammond, Ind.

Another nucleus has just been organized in Lake County. It contains at present ten members, formerly members of Russian and South Slav branches. This nucleus is organized in the Steel Car Works at Hammond, one of the biggest plants there, and the comrades have made out a long list of activity which is bound to result in the growth and effectiveness of this nucleus.

The Workers Party in Action

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

SPRINGFIELD TO HAVE BIGGEST MAY 1ST MEET

Organizations Join W. P. for Demonstration

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 22—The Workers Party of Springfield, the Young Workers' League, Branch No. 716 Workmen's Circle, the Women's Educational Club, the Russian Progressive Club, the Italian Freeman Club and the Lithuanian Women's Club will participate in the tremendous May Day mass meeting and concert to be held in Springfield on Sunday, May 3 at 8 p. m. at Liberty Hall, corner North and Ferry.

Comrade Oliver Carlson, director of the Workers School of New York, will be the principal speaker. Comrade Carlson has been in Europe and spent considerable time in England, Russia, and Germany studying the economic conditions there. Comrade A. Crisafi of New Haven, Conn., will speak in Italian.

The concert arranged by the Y. W. L. will liven up the meeting with music and singing.

The hall is a good sized one and we expect to fill it to capacity.

Seattle Debate Stirs Audience; Series of Street Meetings Held

SEATTLE, Wash., April 16.—(By Mail).—A debate on the subject, "Resolved that the program and tactics of the Communist Party proved the best means for social progress in America," was held in the Labor Temple under the auspices of the Labor College.

Norman H. Tallentire, district organizer of the Workers Party taking the affirmative and W. D. Lane former city councilman and a progressive, the negative. An unusually large audience was present, thus demonstrating that Communism is becoming the issue of the hour.

Tallentire gave an able and fine presentation of the affirmative side and Lane a characteristic presentation of the social democratic view. Neither of the debaters, however, indulged in personalities as is customary with some debaters.

Stanley J. Clark has been conducting a series of public street meetings since the first of this month meeting with great success. He also spoke at several hall meetings here as well as in Tacoma and Mount Vernon. He is booked for several out of the city meetings during the last week in April.

Norman Tallentire will address a meeting on Friday under the auspices of the Workers Party in the Painters' Hall on the subject of "The world wide assault on Communism."

Youth Spring Dance to Wind Up Indoor Sports in Chicago

The last dance to be held indoors will be the Youth Spring Dance given by the Young Workers' League on May 9 at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. the place of many enthusiastic league gatherings and affairs.

The famous I. Letchinger's Mid-West Syncopators have been secured by the social committee to play for the affair. On their retinue of music, they will have a variety of dances, from the Russian Trepak to the Turkey in the Straw, in which the league members and all young workers there will participate with the same enthusiasm and energy as they do in the sale of the Young Workers and distribution of leaflets at factory doors during the week and in carrying on their daily agitation in the shops.

Besides the dancing there will be a very short program with a few selections from the League Orchestra and a few individual ballet dances as well as a short talk on the league by one of our speakers.

The social committee is meeting regularly and promises a lively time for everyone.

Workers Unite in Utica for Biggest May Day Meeting

UTICA, N. Y.—A number of workers' organizations in Utica have constituted a committee for the celebration of labor's international holiday the first of May this year to rival anything that has ever been done before for the occasion.

A meeting will be held Wednesday, April 22, at 7:30 p. m., at the Hibernian Hall, 896 Bleecker street, of representatives of all co-operating organizations to definitely wind up the organizational plans for the celebration.

The preliminary plans of the committee are for an international mass meeting, speeches in several languages, with singing and music, to take place at the Labor Temple, 714 Charlotte street, May 1, at 7:30 p. m.

STEEL TRUST TO ENLIST IN WAR ON COMPETITORS

Huge Profits Are Held in Reserve

The $715,000,000 undivided surplus profits of the United States Steel corporation will not be drawn on as dividends to stockholders, Elbert H. Gary told the annual meeting of the corporation here yesterday.

"We increased the dividend by the payment of extras, so that if continued without interruption it would amount to a rate of 7 per cent a year," Gary told the stockholders. "Since the war, competition in the United States has been increasing, and while I will not say it has been desperate, it has been decidedly strenuous.

"With new firms well equipped financially entering the business, the United States Steel corporation is holding large depreciation reserves to meet this competition, as it has always been ready to meet rivalry in this or any other country."

The large reserve is to be used to freeze out competition by means of temporary price cutting, monopoly of raw material, and other means which are at the disposal of the steel trust. The independent steel firms are usually quickly annexed to the trust.

Proletcult to Be Topic for Forum

An interesting topic will be discussed this coming Sunday evening, April 26, at the Harlem Open Forum at the Harlem headquarters, W. P., Local New York, 64 East 104th street. Comrade Eli Jacobson who is known as a Communist educator, and who has lectured extensively on literary subjects from a proletarian standpoint will open the discussion on the subject, "Proletrian Culture." This subject has not been treated before in New York at any forum and for this reason it is expected that a crowd will be there to listen to the talk and to take part in the discussion. This will be the last discussion evening of the highly successful Harlem Open Forum. Those who have not attended so far should come Sunday evening so as to be present at least once at one of the best open forums conducted in New York. There will also be recitations of poems of Simon Felshin, John Lassen, etc.

Classes in Harlem.

The Harlem section of the W. P., Local New York, conducts a number of fine classes at the headquarters, 64 East 104th street. Registration is open now. The classes are: Fundamentals of Communism, teacher Ray Ragozin, Friday evenings.

Principles and Tactics of the Communist International, teacher, Rebecca Grecht, Tuesday evenings.

Elementary and Advanced English, teachers, Sonia Ginsberg and Sophie Mensil, Monday evenings.

Registrations should be sent to Sonia Ginsberg, 935 East 179th street, Bronx, New York.

Lettish Comrades Plan May 1st House to House Canvass

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 22—The Lettish Branch of Portland has ordered 300 copies of the special May Day edition of the DAILY WORKER and 1,000 leaflets. All the comrades in the branch were mobilized for a house to house distribution of literature on May Day. In addition to a collection of $56 taken up at the meeting every comrade of the branch donated a day's pay for a fund which will go for local propaganda, Michigan Defense, the DAILY WORKER and the political prisoners in Latvia. Appeals have been sent to all the Lettish population for this fund.

Our branch has also formed a Russian-Lettish Dramatic Club and an entertainment committee and we are planning a number of entertaining and lively affairs for the near future.

FIFTY THOUSAND HEAR SUN YAT SEN'S VOICE ON PHONOGRAPH RECORD

CANTON, China, April 22.—Fifty thousand students and workers attended memorial services for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, held here at Kwangtung university. Those in the gathering represented all parts of the province in which the first president of China was a dominant power for so many years.

Dr. Sun's testamentary address to his followers, reproduced in the Cantonese dialect by a phonograph, was a part of the memorial program. Hu Shung Ching, educational commissioner, delivered the principle address.

Barney Mass Speaks at Area Branch No. 1, Meeting Friday

At the next meeting of Working Area Branch No. 1, Friday, April 24, at 166 W. Washington St., Room 506, Comrade Barney Mass, acting national secretary of the Young Workers League, will speak on "The Purpose of the Citizen's Military Camps."

There should be much discussion on this subject. With the sentencing of our Hawaiian comrades to long term sentences for their belief in Communism, the sending of warships to Hawaii, the white terror in Europe, particularly Bulgaria, Poland, etc., and the co-operation which such enterprises receive from our bosses, makes this subject of the utmost importance to the league members so that we can make it one of our best agitational points in our shops and unions. An activity on which we can rally thousands of adult and young workers.

It is hoped that all party, league and sympathetic workers will attend this meeting and take part in the discussion.

Attention Chicago Y. W. L.

SUN YAT SEN IN LAST MESSAGE GREETED SOVIET

"Lenin Showed the Way to Freedom"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKIN, April 22.—Feeling the approach of his death, Dr. Sun Yat Sen called the members of the central committee of the Kuomintang and had the following message drafted to the central executive of the U. S. S. R., signing it in his own hand:

"To the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics:

"My Dear Comrades:

"As I lie here, with a malady that is beyond men's skill my thoughts turn to you and to the future of my party and my country.

Lenin Points to Freedom.

"You are the head of a union of free republics which is the real heritage that the immortal Lenin has left to the world of the oppressed peoples. Thru this heritage, the victims of imperialism are destined to secure their freedom and deliverance from an international system whose foundations lies in ancient slaveries and wars and injustices.

"I am leaving behind me a party which I hoped would be associated with you in the historic work of completely liberating China and other exploited countries from this imperialist system. Fate decrees that I must leave the task unfinished and pass it on to those who, by remaining true to the principles and teachings of the party, will constitute my real followers.

For Russo-Chinese Alliance.

"I have, therefore, enjoined the Kuomintang to carry on the work of the national revolutionary movement in order that China may be freed from the semi-colonial status which imperialism has imposed upon her. To this end I have charged the party to keep in constant touch with you, and I look with confidence to the continuance of the support that your government has heretofore extended to my country.

"In bidding farewell to you, dear comrades, I wish to express the fervent hope that the day may soon dawn when the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will greet, as a friend and ally, a strong and independent China and the two allies may together advance to victory in the great struggle for the liberation of the oppressed peoples of the world.

"With fraternal greetings.
"(Signed) Sun Yat Sen."

COMMUNIST-CHILDREN'S-COLUMN

Phila. Juniors Will Entertain Comrades with Concert and Play

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 22.—The Junior Young Workers' League concert and play will be held Friday, April 24, at 8:00 p. m. at Progressive Library, 4035 Girard Ave. The play to be given is unusually good. It portrays the youth of the Communist movement engaged in the daily struggles against the capitalist system. The musical program as well as the play will be conducted entirely by the Juniors themselves. Much interest is shown by the party members and sympathizers in the coming entertainment especially by those who attended the first affair held by the Juniors. and a big crowd will surely attend.

Now It's "The Lenin Group."

WEST ALLIS, Wis., April 22.—The West Allis Junior Group has changed its name to "Lenin's Group." The comrades from different groups of Milwaukee and West Allis came to speak of what they thought the group has accomplished and what it should do in the future. The comrades of the group gave recitations and a play, "An American Boy in Russia." The group received a collection of $12.61. We thank the comrades from different parties who spoke and also the other comrades for helping us celebrate the changing of the name.—West Allis Junior Group.

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

Tone Poem by Strauss Symphony Offering

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

"THUS Spake Zarathustra," a tone poem by Richard Strauss based on Nietzsche's book, was the big offering of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra on its semi-final program at Orchestra Hall. This is the work, which, if I am not mistaken, Deems Taylor called the "uebermenschen-walzer," waltz of the superman, which is not such a bad description for the last part of the poem.

On the whole it has the fault of many works that try to express philosophy in tone—it is incoherent, vague and overdrawn, because it tries to portray in tone an abstract thot. Music and metaphysics mix very poorly.

This was followed by an awful mess by Edward Elgar called an overture From the South, in which that blundering Englishman tries to express the beauty of an Italian landscape. He succeeds in expressing something between a stomach ache and the itch.

Then came two excerpts from Moskovski's first suits for orchestra the intermezzo and the Perpetual Motion, which last is probably the best of the banalities sold under this title. The program said Moskoviski died some five weeks ago, but added a footnote to the effect that a German paper has published a rumor to the effect that he didn't die at all. If so the memorial programs played for him all over the world will have to be played all over again some day.

Then came the rhapsody Midsummer Wake, by Hugo Alfven, as brilliant an dcharming a piece as this Swedish master of light and joy has ever written.

"From Dixie to Broadway."

The products of the Russian stage become one of the stopping off places in the trip of the Negro musical comedy, "From Dixie to Broadway," when excellent imitations of "Katinka" and "The Wood Soldier," feature attractions of Balieff's "Chauve Souries" are given.

Florence Mills, who won national fame in "Shuffle Along," another Negro musical show that went across big, starting in Harlem, New York, heads the "Plantation Steppers," and they show themselves much more lively, especially with their feet, than Balieff's outfit.

But it is this imitation of other productions that does much to displace any interpretation of Negro life from this piece, something that "Shuffle Along" accomplished much more effectively. While here the show appeared at the Auditiorium, the biggest theater in town. It is on tour, playing the bigger cities of the north as well as the south.

THE ROMANCE OF NEW RUSSIA

by Magdeleine Marx
Author of "Women"

A book aglow with the color, light and life of Russia.

A picture of the many people the writer has met—working men and women, officials—people of all classes.

We have received but a limited new stock from the publishers.

In the Preface the author says:
You arrive in Russia. Though you know that what has been written about it is pure invention, that the truth has deliberately been falsified, besmirched, and bespattered with gore, still you get a sort of shock of surprise.
You find a totally new relationship between man and things, with the majority of people benefiting by the new order. Everywhere not only the signs of resurrection, but resurrection itself. Yet the rest of the world still believes the absurd legends of oppression and disorder that are told about Russia.

HEARING ELICITS STRANGE EXCUSES FOR CONTRACTORS

"Master Mechanic" Is Plea for Parasite

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, April 22.—The sub-manufacturers, the little contractors, who are parasites on the clothing industry and who add nothing to the value of the product, existing solely by getting the cloth, already cut, from the jobbers and rushing about hiring workers as cheaply as possible to make it up, and thus pocketing a part of the profits without contributing a single useful function, are making some unique pleas for their existence before the commission appointed by Governor Smith to investigate the clothing industry.

"Master Mechanic" at Exploiting Workers.

A manager of such a sub-contractor, one Mr. Uviller, had the gall to claim that the sub-manufacturer should be permitted to pirate on the workers thus, because he was a "master mechanic." The fact is that all the mechanical ability required for these contractors, is a smooth line of talk in haggling downward the price he pays the workers, often sweatshop workers, for doing the work which he turns over to the jobber and gets the full price for.

The sub-manufacturer, however, had a grievance against the jobber. While he thinks it is perfectly all right for the sub-contractor to make the workers actually bid against each other to get the work for him, the sub-contractors feel a righteous indignation against the jobber. Mr. Uviller asked the commission to assist in doing away with the "auction" system in which jobbers pitted contractor against contractor in an attempt to lower the price of their "work" on the garments.

Bosses Want no Employment Guarantee.

The manufacturers attacked the demand of the union for a guaranteed period of employment per season, and attacked any regulation as "artificial tampering which would bring serious harm to the industry."

The commission is near the end of its hearings, and may issue a preliminary statement of its findings soon, to be followed by a later complete report.

St. Louis Workers Invited to T. U. E. L. Meeting Next Monday

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 22.—The Trade Union Educational League will hold their regular meeting to which all left wing and progressive minded workers are invited, on Monday evening, April 27, at the Metal Trades Hall, 200 South Broadway. Every worker who comes should make an effort to bring along one friend among his fellow workers who can be interested in the T. U. E. L. and its work among the unions.

Talk it up—your shopmate will subscribe!

Labor Daily Assails Soviet Critics

before a conference could be held the Russian unions must ask to be admitted to the I. F. T. U.

This was reported back to the T. U. C., which at once decided to convene an Anglo-Russian conference "for the purpose of discussing the difficulties arising from the Amsterdam international council meeting."

This conference it is which opens this morning.

The Russian representatives are: Messrs. Tomsky, Michailoff, Melnitchansky, Leboff Aviloff, and Lepse, and Mrs. Tchernichova, with Mr. Yarotsky as interpreter.

The British representatives are: Messrs. Purcell, Tillett, Walker, Swales, Hicks and Bramley, and Miss Julia Varley.

This business-like method of tackling a working class problem has caused intense agitation in the tory and liberal press, which has taken upon itself the task of protecting trade unionism against the wicked plots of the wicked Reds.

Newspaper Attacks.

"Red menace to trade unions," cries the Daily News, "Red plotting in Britain," cries the Daily Mail, and weeps crocodile tears over the thot that there might be a split in the British movement.

The British delegates, according to the tory-liberal papers, are "innocents abroad," helpless children in the hands of the adroit and Machiavellian Russians.

The Russians, of course, are desperate red plotters disguised as trade unionists. They are not trade unionists (for, says the Morning Post, there are no trade unions in Russia.) They are not workers, have never done a day's work in their lives, but are "firebrands creeping in under false pretences" — "spreading subversive propaganda under a transparently fraudlent cloak of trade unionism."—(Daily Mail.) They are "cunning tools, trained in the arts of intrigue."—(Yorkshire Post.)

Let us examine the records of these "wasps" (Daily Mail), who have crept in here disguised as trade unionists, thus affronting Lord Rothermere and other stalwart champions of trade unionism.

Michael Tomsky, leader of the delegation, started work at an early age as apprentice to a lithographer, and has been a trade unionist for over 20 years. A member of the Workers' Council in Reval in 1905, he was, a few years later, sentenced to five years' hard labor for his trade union activities. Then he was exiled for life to Siberia. He was set free by the revolution, and is now chairman of the Russian (or rather Soviet Union) Trade Union Central Council.

A Leader at 18.

G. Melnitchansky began work at the age of 11, and at the age of 18 was a trade union organizer. He, too, had five years in prison and escaped Siberia only by escaping to America, where he worked at many trades before joining Trotsky's paper Novy Mir. He has been secretary of the Metalworkers' Union and chairman of the Moscow Trades Council. Now he is chief of the organizing department of the T. U. C. Central Council.

V. Michailoff began work as a glass-blower's apprentice, then became a bookbinder. A T. U. organizer since 1912, he is chairman of the Moscow Trades Council and a member of the executive of the printer's union.

I. I. Lepse began work as a pattern maker. In 1907 became an organizer for the metalworkers. He has been chairman of the leningrad metalworkers and of the Leningrad Trades Council. He is a member of the Metalworkers' Union.

N. Leboff Aviloff is a compositor who has been ten times in prison and three times in Siberia for trade union activities. He is chairman of the Leningrad Trades Council.

Began Work at 11.

Olga Tcherinchova began work as a cotton weaver at the age of 11. In 1917 she was elected chairman of the factory committee at one of the biggest Leningrad cotton mills. Then she spent two years fighting with the Red Army as commissar of detachment. Now she is a member of the Trades Union Central Council.

B. Yarotsky, the interpreter, is the only one of the delegation who did not begin life as a manual worker. He is a graduate of the Sorbonne and a professor of Moscow University. But he has worked in the trade union movement as an organizer since he was 19 years old. He was sentenced to death in 1907, but escaped abroad. After the revolution he returned and resumed trade union work for the Distributive Workers. He is a member of the E. C. of the Teachers' and Art Workers' Union, and head of the publishing department of the Central Council of Trade Unions.

These are the plain facts about the Russian delegates. And the plain fact about today's conference is that it is not a sinister plot to split the British movement or to turn Eccleston square into a Communist propaganda bureau. It is just a business meeting of trade union delegates to discuss important trade union matters.

Hall That Saw Hitler Beer Barrel Revolt, Hears Thaelmann Talk

By CARL BRANNIN.

MUNICH, Germany—(FP)—In the same enormous beer hall here where the Hitler-Ludendorff putsch was launched and as quickly squelced nearly two years ago, E. Thaelmann, Communist member of the reichstag, spoke on behalf of his candidacy for the presidency of Germany. More than 1,000 working men and women came to hear an exposition of the Communist program.

Thaelmann, a sturdy working man above average height, began by a recital of the massacre of nine Communists at the Halle meeting. The speaker also told of the arrest of himself and 44 other Communists in a conference near Stuttgart. All were released except two citizens of Bavaria held on a charge of "attempted high treason."

In discussing the Dawes reparations plan Thaelmann reminded his hearers that all the loans from American financiers would have to be repaid. The speaker appealed to his hearers to vote the Communist ticket as a symbol of the coming dictatorship of the 90 per cent workers and peasants over the 10 per cent of parasites.

Thaelmann is 38 and belongs to the Transport Workers' Federation of Hamburg. The Catholic politician Wilhelm Marx and the aged von Hindenburg are the principal contenders in the election April 26.

Imperialist Puppets of Guatemala Want To Kill Organizers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Labor leaders sent from Mexico to Guatemala for the purpose of organizing labor unions have been denied admission by the Guatemalan authorities, according to information. Two are being held prisoners aboard a ship at Puerto Barroios, the advices said.

Guatemalan officials under the regime of bribery and terrorism of the imperialist interests of the United States, have expressed the determination not to permit the formation of labor organizations in their country, and the death penalty will be applied to all who seek to stir up the working classes.

BIG N. Y. THRONG FIGHTS RELIGION IN THE SCHOOLS

Protest Imprisonment of Soldiers in Hawaii

NEW YORK, April 22.—One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held here by the militant workers was the meeting held Friday, April 17, at Stuyvesant Casino, called to protest against the introduction of religious training in the schools and against the imprisonment of the members of the United States army stationed at Honolulu for the only reason that they are Communists, and for the further crime that they tried to organize the natives of Hawaii. The meeting consisted of 90 per cent young workers and children of school age.

The meeting was opened with the singing of the International, a member of the Junior section providing the music. Then the chairman, Comrade Jack Statchel, the district organizer of the Young Workers League of District 2, stated the purpose of the meeting and introduced Comrade Herbert Zam as the first speaker. Comrade Zam pointed out that out of 1,000,000 school children in this city 260,000 attend parochial schools where religious instruction is part of the curriculum, and about 60,000 more attend Sunday schools. He pointed out that not only must we fight against religious instruction in the schools, but also the religious propaganda that is being spread thru clubs, movies, etc. Then Comrade Motel Gertner spoke in Jewish. He gave a brief history of religion and how it was used by every ruling class to keep the opressed in enslavement.

Great applause greeted the appearance of Morris Spector, city organizer of the Junior section. He began with a description of how religion is actually being taught in the schools. In the assemblies the reading of the bible is universal. The children are given the choice of going to some religious school or to stay in the public school and perform the most arduous and unpleasant tasks. In many of the other schools religious training is given directly in the class rooms. He concluded by an appeal to the workers present to join the Workers Party, the Young Workers League and send their children to the Junior section.

Comrade Darcy spoke at length about the Hawaiian Communists who were given terms of imprisonment. Already we see that in the army, the very heart of capitalism, soldiers are organizing under the leadership of the Communist International and are organizing the natives against American and world imperialism. This, he said, is a happy moment in the history of our movement. Everywhere the workers are organizing under the banner of the Communist International and will overthrow the capitalist system and in its place erect a Communist order of society.

A resolution pledging a fight against religious training in the schools, and another resolution demanding the immediate release of Comrades Crouch, Trumbull and the other six indicted Communist of the U. S. army stationed in Hawaii was adopted unanimously.

Court Approves Ship Graft.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22—The sale of the five government steamship lines to the Robert Dollar Steamship company for five million dollars, twenty-five million dollars less than their actual cost, was approval by the District of Columbia supreme court. Judge William Hitz dismissed the complaint on which the Pacific Mail, a rival company, had been granted a temporary restraining order preventing the sale by the shipping board.

BUILDERS AT WORK

RUTH REYNOLDS OF DETROIT—YOU ARE CHALLENGED!

FOLLOWING the splendid example set by Comrade Builder-in-Chief Geo Shklar of Milwaukee, (who learned the trick from our comrades in Russia), Comrade Gregory Prodinich also of Milwaukee, hurls a wicked challenge at Comrade Ruth Reynolds of Detroit, with this letter:

April 18, '25.

Builders' Column:
Comrades:

I am sending today thru Comrade Shklar one subscription to the DAILY WORKER and I challenge Ruth Reynolds, 5513 Maybury G. D. Detroit, Mich., to secure a subscription to our paper.

Since Comrade Reynolds' brother is a builder by profession, I hope that Comrade Ruth Reynolds will also join the Building Trades by hurling several bricks to the DAILY WORKER office.

Fraternally yours,
Gregory Prodinich.

• • • •

But we warn Comrade Prodinich of Milwaukee, that he has here attempted to take unfair advantage of Comrade Ruth Reynolds. If he really wants to have the right to hope "that Comrade Ruth Reynolds gets SEVERAL bricks" he himself must hurl SEVERAL.

One brick—one sub challenge Comrade Prodinich!

(P. S.—We also hope that she gets several!)

• • • •

NOW WHO'S NEXT?

Who will send in a sub and challenge another Communist? Or who will send in more than one sub and challenge more than one Communist?

WHITE RUSSIANS IN POLAND ASK END OF TORTURE

Resolution on Terror Argued in Sejm

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

VIENNA, April 22.—The followin
news arrived from Warsaw. In th last session of the sejm the Whit
Russian fraction presented a motio dealing with the maltreatment
White Russian peasants in the fro tier districts. Among the argumen for the motion there were descriptio of quite a number of cases of mo serious maltreatment. A peasant h died from the consequences of th maltreatment on his body, 35 seriou wounds were found.

In another case an officer and sergeant of the frontier guard ha maltreated the teacher Beganski a his sister. The teacher was compl ly undressed and beaten with sticks. His sister was tortured in terrible fashion. Pins were put und her nails in order to force her make false confessions. Despite the tortures Beganski refused to sign t minutes. The sergeant finally dr ged the only half-conscious teach to the table and led his hand, th forcing him to write down his sign ture, but still against his will.

In their motion the White Russ fraction demand the immediate a pointment of a commission of inv tigation for the maltreatment of t peasants in the Polish White Russ and they demand from the gover ment measures which will make su tortures impossible in future.

It is naturally an illusion to dema from the "democratic" government white Poland that it should abol the maltreatment which takes pla on its own instruction and is carri out by officials who have been sy tematically incited against the Wh
Russian peasants.

The New Code—"Guilty Until Proven Innocent"

The deportation proceedings in New York against Emanuel Vajtauer, Czecho-Slovakian worker, have revealed the fact that under the immigration law of 1924 there is no such presumption of innocence of the accused as is found in other statutes based on the established legal code.

In other words the burden of proof rests on the accused. The defendant is presumed to have entered the country illegally, or to have violated the immigration law in some other manner until he can prove otherwise.

This complete reversal of the very foundation of criminal processes in all Anglo-Saxon countries will doubtless astonish many well-meaning people who believe all the bunk about the impartiality of laws and courts that they read in the school books and the capitalist press. It is a cold fact, however, established by the decision of Judge Hand in ruling on an application for habeas corpus in the Vajtauer case, that in its war on the foreign-born workers, the capitalist government of the United States has abolished the right of trial by jury and placed every foreign-born worker at the mercy of the spies and stoolpigeons which infest the ranks of the workers and particularly the labor unions.

The New York Times states that a member of a union furnished the government with the information resulting in his arrest. If this is true it shows that just as during the war period, the membership of the trade union is being debauched and turned into spies and informers.

The purposes of such laws is to divide the labor movement—to create suspicion and dissension among and between the native-born and foreign-born workers. No one profits from this except the capitalists and it is enlightening to note that the loudest shouter for drastic regulation and registration of foreign-born workers is James J. Davis, the steel trust tool who is secretary of labor in the Coolidge cabinet.

The Communists suffer most from these exceptional laws at present, but it is the labor movement against which they are directed and which they are designed to cripple by cowing the most militant of its members—the foreign-born workers.

The New French Cabinet

The French cabinet received a vote of confidence, 216 to 36, but the real weakness of the new combination was revealed best by the fact that Marcel Cachin, Communist deputy, attacked the government in the longest speech ever delivered in the chamber while the other parliamentary blocs remained silent.

Painleve, in his opening speech, showed that the new cabinet is a creature of the bankers and this point was emphasized by Cachin. Painleve clings to the old demand for a security pact from which Germany will be excluded and thus continues the conflict with Great Britain, altho he admitted that the probability of substantial reparation payments was becoming dimmer.

The Communists are preparing huge demonstrations for amnesty for political prisoners all over France and the government is in a delicate position as a result of Caillaux's elevation to the post of finance minister after having been convicted of treason and amnestied.

The deportation of immigrants and the war on foreign-born workers, including Roy, leader of the Communist Party of India, upon whose head the British government set a price, is also being made an issue by the Communists. There are some 800,000 foreign-born workers in France, many of them refugees from the fascist terror, and the right of political asylum has been denied them. The Painleve cabinet is not in a position to stand much criticism on this score and the Communists know it.

The cabinet is called upon to raise funds to liquidate $1,000,000,000 worth of short-term notes, which fall due this year, and any disturbance of the population will most certainly prevent this.

The reception of the new government by the chamber and the press do indicate a very long life for it.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Company Unions

The growth of company unions is one of the dangers that confronts the labor movement, but safe and sane labor leaders deal with the problem by closing their eyes to it.

In interview after interview which they give on the subject they declare either that company unions do not exist, that they are but a passing phase of the period, or that they are no menace to organized labor.

It is wrong to say that all the labor leaders close their eyes to this problem for many of them, like "B. and O. Bill" Johnston of the International Association of Machinists, are the most active workers for the company union plan.

Latest figures show that 1,177,000 workers are now organized in company unions—organized, that is, for the boss. This is about a third of the present membership of the American Federation of Labor and shows the strides made by these openly capitalist-controlled bodies. In the United States these unions occupy about the same place in the social structure as the christian unions of Europe. They not only make militant organization difficult in the industries in which they are formed, but they also are a reserve army that can be shifted around and used as strikebreakers.

The spread of these company unions is due to the lack of interest in organization work displayed by labor officialdom. To say that the great bulk of the American workers are unorganizable is to admit that we must surrender to American capitalism.

The labor officialdom takes this viewpoint. It furnishes them with an excuse for adventures in financial enterprises like banking and insurance schemes, it gives them a sort of protective coloring and they can pose as saviors of the working class whom the ignorant mass will not recognize. But whenever the resistance of the labor officialdom to systematic organization campaigns like that in the steel industry has been broken down to some extent, the unorganized workers have responded.

The truth of the matter is that the labor bureaucracy in this country wants no more organization of the workers. It has enough to furnish huge salaries and to finance profit-making schemes that bring in added returns. It sees in the rise of the company unions the working out on the industrial field of its class peace schemes in banking, etc.

The labor bureaucrats have quit fighting the bosses with whom the fakers are on good terms.

There is no other possible explanation for the speeches and articles clamoring for industrial peace that emanate from high officials and the official journals of the labor movement.

The organized workers are to be sold out to the capitalists after being lulled to sleep by talk of industrial peace.

To expose this conspiracy is the urgent duty of the left wing of the labor movement and more and more proof of the nature of the plot is disclosed every day, ranging from the united front of the miners' union officials with the coal operators to that of Hillman and Levin with the terroristic government of Poland.

German Government Aids Zankov

The German government comes to the support of the bloody Zankov regime of Bulgaria by arresting 38 Bulgarian students in Berlin, charged with conspiracy in the uprising. The students have been given the third degree and all the documents found are to be turned over to the Bulgarian government.

If any country in the world should be willing to give asylum to refugees from terror governments it should be Germany. The allied governments that now back the murderous Bulgarian government in its war of extermination against the workers and peasants blockaded Germany and starved thousands of people to death—children for the most part.

The German government calls itself republican, a popular government, but its latest action shows it to be merely a tool in the hands of international counter-revolution. The insincerity of the protests against the international organization of workers under the leadership of the Communist International is evident when we see every capitalist government acting in concert and particularly when such action is in support of a government based on mass slaughter of the workers and peasants—a slaughter so merciless that even the capitalist press is sickened and at which the professional soldiery revolt.

Denmark's General Strike

The lockout in Denmark has developed into a strike affecting 200,000 workers.

In Denmark there are 240,000 organized workers so the strike is evidently a national one.

We have commented before on the comparatively peaceful development of the class struggle in Denmark due to the lack of heavy industry producing more than the domestic needs, but the general strike shows that, as in all the European nations, the struggle is being sharpened and ever wider masses of the workers brought into the fight for the maintenance of living standards.

Nothing could show better the increasing intensity of class antagonisms in this period than this general strike in a nation whose principal exports are butter, cheese and other dairy products.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

MOSCOW, April 2.—(By Mail)—ON April 2nd, the Agitprop conference was opened in the Kremlin. Comrades Treint (France), Winterich (Germany), and Bell (England) were elected into the presidium. Almost all sections of the Comintern were present.

The conference began with a short report by Comrade Bela Kun. He touches upon the need to bolshevize the Communist mass parties, the time has arrived when every party must place on the agenda the question of Marxist-Leninist education.

This conference should answer two questions: firstly—what the content of our propaganda should be, and secondly—what the organizational forms of our educational work should be. Leninism must not remain the monopolistic property of the leaders; it must become the common property of membership masses, and the members must be developed into real members of the Communist party. The main task is to establish elementary party schools for the education of the membership.

The second task is, to develope a competent party cadre for the purpose of establishing central party schools.

AFTER the report of Comrade Volk on the bolshevization of the party press, the conference heard the reports of the Czech, English, Italian, French, German and Polish parties. For the purpose of thorou examinations of the various fields of Agitprop activity, sub-commissions were appointed.

IN the debate on the report of Comrade Bucharin, the Yugo-Slavian Comrade Boshkovitch describes the situation on the Balkan, where the feudal agrarian conditions have not yet been fully abolished by land reforms.

In Bulgaria, Zankov is liquidating Stamboulisky's agrarian reforms; in Roumania the land reforms have sharpened the situation; in Macedonia and Dalmatia feudal agrarian conditions prevail. In Greece there are no land reforms; in Albania Akhmed Zogu represents agrarian reaction.

STAMBOULISKY'S peasant government has proven that the peasantry cannot create a strong solid power; that a peasant government accelerates the class differentiation on the land, and that without an alliance with the workers the peasantry cannot maintain power.

The speaker then characterises the peasant organizations in the Balkan countries, and points out that the peasant masses are steering towards the left. The Communist parties must support the Peasants' International; they must support the left wings in the peasant parties, and discard tho social democratic prejudices in their own ranks.

BELA KUN declares that he fully agrees with Comrade Bucharin's critique of the peasent policy of the Hungarian Soviet dictatorship. The overthrow of the Hungarian Soviet Republic was predetermined by the absence of a Communist Party as we understand it now; also by the world situation and by the strategic position.

But the main cause of the overthrow of the Soviet government was the role played by the peasantry. The Hungarian Soviet government had turned the large estates into agricultural productive co-operatives. The land proletariat therefore felt no real change. In the Red army the demand for land distribution became loud.

The speaker is convinced that had the Soviet dictatorship continued to exist, it would have been compelled to distribute the land. The opinion of some comrades, that the slogan "Workers' and peasants' government" is applied to agricultural countries only is false. The Hungarian social democracy has opposed the workers to the peasantry.

The Communists must promote the alliance of workers and peasants, otherwise be threatened by great dangers.

VARGA: Does not agree with Comrade Bucharin's statement that no peasant parties should be formed. The speaker favors the formation of peasant parties under the leadership of the Communists. Peasant leagues are not analagous with trade unions, since they conduct a direct fight against the state in questions of taxation, etc.

POWERS (America): The American farmer has become a universal figure. America is no only the largest industrial country, but the largest agricultural country as well. The devastation caused by the American agricultural crisis can hardly be imagined. One fourth of the farmers have been ruined. The proletarianization of the indebted and bankrupt farmers is progressing very rapidly. The proletarianized farmers are streaming into the industrial towns, thereby changing the whole outlook of the American proletariat. It is one of the main tasks of the American Communist Party to continue the work among the farmers. Unfortunately the party has not, in the year just past, worked as intensively among the farmers as in 1923, when we attained considerable success among the farmer masses. The party must correct this deficiency as soon as possible.

BOBNER (Czecho-Slovakia): Describes the frightful condition of the peasantry in Carpatho-Russia, where a few big landowners and a handfull of Jews own three-fourths of the land, whereas the peasants own one one-fourth.

MESTCHERIAKOV (C.P.R.): Calls the attention of the parties to the methods of work among the peasantry.

GRIECO (Italy): Describes the difficulties of emigration after the war. The return of the city proletariat to the land has intensified the agrarian crisis. This explains the creation of an independent peasants' party "Popolari," after the war. This party is however dominated by the large landowners.

The Italian socialist party did not understand the agrarian question, and was unable to co-ordinate the occupation of the factories by the proletariat with the occupation of he land by the land workers.

Fascism has not solved the agrarian problem. The speaker describes in detail the present activities of the party, the formation of workers' and peasants' committees, and expresses his belief that the agrarian problems in Italy can be solved only by the revolution.

BRUNEVITCH (Poland) emphasizes the preponderance of agrarian population in Poland, and describes the misery of the peasantry, the prevailing poverty, the heavy tax burden, the economic crisis, unemployment, and the bad harvest.

The revolutionary ferment is growing and in the border districts of Poland, peasants' revolts, guerrilla warfare and tax-boycotts are the order of the day. The last party congress of the C. P. P. has decided to correct old errors and to pursue a real Leninist policy.

DOMBAL (Poland): Declares that he is not in favor of forming peasant parties, but that Bucharin's viewpoint is not quite clear, since peasant parties were coming into existance anyway. We must know what to do with them. He proposes the formation of transitional organizations of the peasants.

Bucharin, in his closing speech polemizes against Varga, who advocated the creation of peasant parties. Peasant leagues are a more suitable form of peasant organization than political parties, because the league represents economic and political demands, has a looser organisational form, permits the activities of different parties, and requires less discipline.

The peasant league enables us to reach greater masses than the political party. The small party organizations of the peasantry cannot displace the mass organizations.

POLEMIZING against Mestcheriakov, the speaker states that the agricultural workers' unions may join the peasant organizations. The bourgeoisie has demonstrated its ability to bring peasants and landowners together. This we must also learn.

Polemizing against Varga's foreword to "Data on the Agrarian Question," the speaker points to two, dangers: firstly, the danger of a passive attitude on the peasant question; secondly, the danger of being absorbed by the peasantry. The role of the party, and the hegemony of the proletariat must not be forgotten. Varga disregards this factor; which is theoretically false and politically dangerous.

TRACTION BOSS AUTHOR OF BARR FRANCHISE BILL

Len Small Backs Insull Trolley Steal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—The "terminable permit" bill now before the Illinois legislature, which was introduced into the senate by Richard Barr, lieutenant of Governor Small, and which has the backing of Governor Small's delegation, was written by J. R. Blackhall of Joliet, general manager of the Chicago and Joliet electric company, president of the Joliet chamber of commerce, and chairman of the joint committee of the three Illinois public utilities associations.

Insull Prompted Bill

The "joint public policy committee", of which Blackhall is chairman, is composed of representatives of the Illinois Gas association, Illinois Electric association, and Illinois Electric Railway association. These three associations are controlled by Samuel Insull, the open shop public utilities magnate, and comprise practically every gas, electric, and electric railway company in Illinois and neighboring states. On the "joint committee" are Britton I. Budd, and G. A. Richardson, employes and close associates of Insull.

"Blackhall has been a friend of mine for years," Senator Barr admitted. I went over the bill as Blackhall gave it to me and I agreed to present it."

Bankers Influence Legislators

The law which took from Chicago the sole power to give franchise as vested the power in a state commerce commission was signed by former governor Edward F. Dunne, in 1913. Governor Dunne who was against the Dever traction ordinance which was defeated this month, himself signed the bill which allowed the Barr bill to be presented to the senate.

Both the Dever traction ordinance and the Barr bill give the public utilities corporations a perpetual franchise, and they were in favor of both measures. The Barr bill allows these corporations to extend their franchises to any street, at will.

Millions Lost in Stores Fraud

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Federated Food Stores company of chain groceries has been declared bankrupt in an involuntary petition filed in federal court in Brooklyn. It is charged that the company defrauded investors out of over a million dollars, and made huge loans on fictitious securities.

The liabilities of the corporation, which, operated 200 stores, were placed at four million dollars.

junction was issued, assisted the workers in their struggle. He was arrested together with three others, sentenced to six months' imprisonment and actually served three months before released.

Stevens today issued the following statement: "I am filing as a candidate for mayor at the request of the Workers Party and of many militants in the labor movement of Minneapolis. During my campaign I will endeavor to point out to the workers the struggles that lie before them and to organize them for that struggle. The capitalist class of this city, as well as of the world, are doing everything within their power to force the working class to accept lower wages, longer hours, and working conditions that border very closely on actual slavery. These conditions will continue to become worse until such time as the workers thru their own organizations wage a militant fight against these capitalists for their own demands.

"The Workers (Communist) Party, of which I am a member, and upon whose program I am running, is the only working class party with a candidate in this campaign and the only party that will wage the fight against the present capitalist government and for a workers' government such as has been established by the workers and peasants in Russia.

"The Workers Party not only fights for the ultimate establishment of a working class government, but participates in every struggle of the workers for improved conditions now. It advocates the formation of a labor party, which together with a party of farmers, will fight for the political needs of the workers and farmers.

"It points out the weakness of the present trade unions and calls upon the workers to amalgamate their craft unions into industrial unions. It states emphatically that before the workers can even start their fight for improved conditions, they must organize their forces, the unorganized must be brought into the unions and a militant struggle waged against the bosses. Various schemes of class collaboration, such as supporting republican politicians as is being done by so-called labor leaders in this campaign, the establishment of labor banks, and co-operation with the boss must be fought by the workers.

"Capitalism thruout the world is on the decline. The attack that is being launched against it by the workers together with its own inner difficulties will lead to its fall. The workers can wage their fight successfully by organizing their forces. As a candidate for mayor and as a member of the Workers (Communist) Party, I will aid in organizing the workers for the successful struggle against capitalism that lies but a comparatively short distance ahead."

Stevens will deliver his keynote speech at the May Day celebration to be held at Moose Hall, 236 Fourth St. So., Sunday afternoon, May 3.

DECIDE SALARY, BILL ON MERITS, URGE TEACHERS

Passing Buck to Mayor Won't Do It

NEW YORK, April 22.—Letters and petitions are being secured on a large scale calling upon Governor Smith not to sacrifice the interests of the schools at the behest of the realty associations.

From all indications and from reports in the press it seems the governor is planning to pass the buck to Mayor Hylan by vetoing the Ricca teachers' salary bill. Whatever reasons he may give, such a move can not help being interpreted as a direct response to the powerful propaganda of the realty associations thru their attorneys and press agents.

The teachers' maintain that they expect the governor to reach a decision on the case "solely on the basis of the needs of our public schools and the economic needs of the teachers" and they say the signature to the Ricca bill will be the strongest proof thereof.

Hunt Escaped Convicts.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 22.—More than 75 police officers searched in Sacramento's residential districts today for Joe Tanko and Floyd Hall, escaped San Quentin prison murderers. The men shot and probably fatally wounded Patrolman Clyde Nunn late yesterday and are believed to have killed at least one other person and robbed several others since their escape from prison.

TWO CLEVELAND SOCIETIES HIT AT CHILD LABOR

Workers Party Campaign Brings Results

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 22. — In the drive against child labor conducted by the Workers Party in Cleveland resolutions were adopted by Lodge No. 346, Knights of St. Nicolas, signed by Elias Dauculovie, chairman and Ely Latincij, secretary and Lodge No. 47, Croatian Women's Society of St. Mary, signed by Johanna Jekinovis, chairman and S. Studen, secretary. The resolution adopted were in part as follows:

"That since the child labor amendment is meaningless without government maintenance of the school children of the workers and poor farmers, the state and federal legislatures shall pass a law providing full government maintenance of all school children of workers and poor farmers, the funds for this purpose to come from special taxes on high incomes.

"That the trade unions delete from their constitutions all discriminatory clauses against equal rights in the unions of young workers; also that the admission fees and dues be made lower for young workers to enable them to become members of the unions which will thereby become strengthened in their struggles against the bosses."

Party Members Are Invited to Attend Young Workers' Meet

The branches of the Young Workers League, local Chicago, realize fully the importance of bolshevising the league. One of the examples of the work that is being carried on to accomplish it, Area Branch No. 5 is having its regular educational meeting Friday night devoted to the study of Leninism.

A lecture on Leninism will be given by Comrade Manuel Gomez tomorrow, 8:15 p. m. at the temporary branch headquarters, 19 So. Lincoln St. (Local W. P. office). Everybody is welcome.

THE ex-minister agrees with Rear Admiral Fiske that war is a good evil for the nation. It bridged the gulf between the "clawses" in England. The aristocrats and the laborers are now one, he said. Some of the aristocrats are broke it is true, but so far, they have not showed up strong at the unemployment offices. They have sailed to the United States to hunt up ambitious American heiresses. "Today there is great fellowship in England and the son of an earl working for his living is regarded fraternally by those who have always worked for a living," declared Mr. Topping. That's that. One of the most interesting cartoons I have ever looked at was that of a Russian duke, picking a banana skin out of the gutter in a Berlin street. He was starving. That's the kind of a living I would like to see an English earl making.

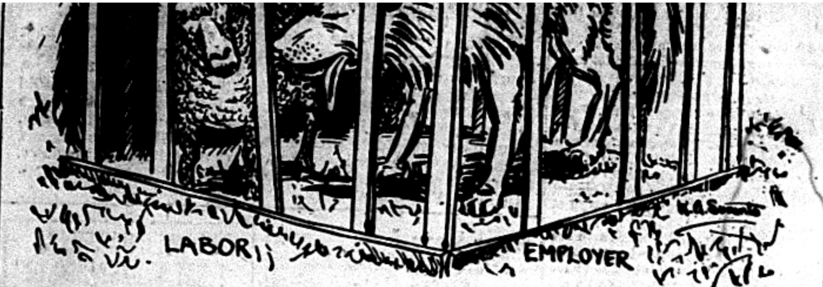
Americans in Peru Cable Protest on Coolidge Decision

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Coolidge has received a cable protest from American residents in Peru against his arbitration award in the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru, it was announced at the state department today.

The American residents in Lima, Peru, it was stated, joined in a cable to the president protesting that his award was "unduly favorable" to Chile and asking that he amend it to place the plebescite, which he ordered, under the sole administration of Americans.

MOB ATTACK ON WORLD WAR VET IN WEST VA. CALLED "SIMPLE ASSAULT"

NEW YORK, April 23.—Only a "simple assault," the Pocahontas Co., West Virginia authorities report to Governor Gore of the mob assault which officers of the law led on Lawson McMillion at Marlington, April 10. The report has been relayed to the American Liberties Union which had called on Governor Gore to investigate and punish the mobbing of McMillion for his opposition to the ku klux klan. The county authorities conclude their report to the governor with the assurance that the matter "has been taken care of." It has been "taken care of" by the dismissal of the charges against the mobbers.



DETROIT COMMUNISTS PLAN TO ROUSE WORKERS OF AUTO CITY FOR HUGE MAY DAY CELEBRATION

DETROIT, Mich., April 23.—Rebels of all shades of red—from light pink to deepest red—will join with the members of the Workers Party, the Young Workers League and the Junior section of the Y. W. L. in a May Day celebration that promises to surpass anything yet undertaken in Detroit.

Thursday, April 30, will witness the distribution of the "Down Tools on May 1st" leaflet before the factory gates. On Friday May 1, the membership will be mobilized for the real propaganda event of the year. Twenty thousand of the special May 1 edition of the DAILY WORKER will be handed out at the factory gates. This is certain to give a tremendous impetus to the movement here, as well as to place the DAILY WORKER in hands that will hold it for the first time. When the proposition for so great a distribution was first advanced, involving the raising of $280 for papers alone it appeared to be a forlorn hope. But the branches received the announcement enthusiastically and came forward with their pledges. The 20,000 distribution is now assured.

In the evening of May 1 all those conscious of the significance of May Day will gather in the House of the Masses, 2646 St. Aubin, for the mass celebration. Jack Johnstone, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, will speak for the Workers Party, and H. V. Phillips, Negro organizer for the Young Workers League, will speak for the Y. W. L. There will be appropriate vocal and instrumental numbers, and a group of Finnish athletes will add a novel touch to the program.

May Day in Detroit will go over big this year. Admission is 25 cents.

Bogey of Security Still Bothers France

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 23.—Speaking on the subject of France's liabilities, Edouard Herriot, newly elected president of the chamber of deputies declared in the chamber today that "France does not wish to repudiate her debts."

Debts, the former premier said, have weighed heavily on France for years. But France desires to progress resolutely forward and can do so only if her children are "willing to sacrifice their material interests for the joys of lightening the nations burdens."

The French foreign office said it was possible that Premier Painleve and Minister Briand would go to London shortly to discuss with the British government measures looking toward France's security from invasion.

700 CLOTHING WORKERS STRIKE AT BRIDGEPORT

Fight Open Shop Firm with Solid Front

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 23.—After two weeks of waiting the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Local 223, has received a refusal of the demands they presented to Abraham and Wolf, and have struck 700 strong.

This firm has come out frankly for the open shop as a countermove against the demands of the union. The demands for which the Bridgeport clothing workers are now striking are as follows:

Demand Wage Cut End

The 44-hour weekly work system; the reduction in wages accepted last December of $1 a week for those receiving not more than $30, and $2 a week for those getting over $30 to be made up at this time in accordance with the promise that the wage cut was to continue for only a few months.

A minimum wage of $12 is asked for all women apprentices and a $20 minimum for men. Before a discharge is made the case must be taken up with the greivance comittee, and sanitary conditions must be established with an emergency rest room.

No Abuse From Foremen

The workers demand that the practice of foremen in using abusive and profane language to workers shall cease, all offending foremen when the abuse is proven, to be discharged.

The union demands that experienced cutters, operators and pressers shall be hired thru the union office, but if the union is unable to supply the operator within 24 hours, the firm may hire directly.

Workers Party Members Rouse Workers

The strikers have made it a 100 per cent walkout and are standing solid. Great enthusiasm was shown when the Workers Party members among the shop employes led the way for a complete strike by militant speeches for unity and struggle.

King Alfonso of Spain Admits Fear Of Soviet Power

MADRID, Spain, April 23—The military directorate of Spain was formed to prevent strikes and to keep down the growing power of the Communists, King Alfonso of Spain admitted here.

oth Hindenburg and Marx uphold Dawes plan which has put the man workers at the mercy of the erican bankers. Both candidates, nly admit that the German im- ialist cannot keep down the re- t of the workers and the establish- t of a workers' and peasants' gov- ment without aid from foreign im- ialists. Without protest these can- ates have seen Germany sink to level of a colonial possession, and declare themselves satisfied.

he newspapers are printing long patches from New York and Wash- ton which declare that no loans l be advanced to Germany if Hin- burg wins. The American bankers against the establishment of a narchist dictatorship, of the Ger- n bourgeoisie, some say, preferring weak socialist coalition which y can more easily manipulate. On other hand, Hindenburg has stated t foreign influence in Germany will be diminished if he is elected.

ope Does Not Object To Socialists

The nationalist press, supporting ndenburg, charges that the pope ob- ts to the coalition of the catholic rty with the socialists. Cardinal parri, however, in a widely pub- hed interview, states that the pope no objection whatever to the ialists and catholics.

The socialist newspapers predict Marx will be elected with 14,- ,000 votes as against 12,450,000 cast Hindenburg.

JOBLESS AND HUNGRY DISHWASHER SMASHES WINDOW FOR FOOD

NEW YORK, April 22—James Nealey, 36 years old, who lived in a lodging house at Third Ave. and 123rd street, had searched all day in vain for work as a dishwasher and last night he stood in front of the State Cafeteria at 205 West 125th street, because it was the kind of place he had once worked in and because there was food in the window.

In the center of the display of things to eat was a big strawberry shortcake covered with whipped cream and studded with red berries. Nealey gazed at it for a long time and then walked to the curb, picked up a brick and hurled it thru the glass. Patrolman Vincent Tracy caught him immediately.

"I haven't had a thing to eat all day," said Nealey, and he was taken to the West 123rd street police station and locked up.

SOVIET RUSSIA NAMES LARGE STRETCH OF LAND AFTER LENIN

MOSCOW, Soviet Russia, April 23.—Vladimir Lenin Land is the new name to be given to the large stretch of land discovered by the Russian Arctic explorer Velketzky in 1913, and originally named "Nicholas II" land. The land lies along the eightieth parallel at 100 east longitude.

The Soviet government plans to send an expedition to the islands soon under Professor A. Panegin to hoist the red flag of the Soviet Union and make geological and geographical surveys of the entire region.

Woll Tries to Banish Class Struggle

of making themselves look ridiculous by bringing in a constitutional provision that "no class or institution which carries on propaganda shall be eligible for membership." This brought forth a considerable amount of discussion and made of the Sunday morning session the only one during the entire conference which wasn't as dead as a prayer meeting.

Some of the delegates pointed out that the term "propaganda" may be used to cover almost anything, that in fact, the trdae union movement and its members must be propagandists for that idea and hence a grave danger would ensue from the adoption of such a provision which today was used for barring the Communists and lefts might at some future date be used to bar anyone or any group that did not completely fall in line with the conceptions of the ruling body.

Lefkowitz-Woll Combination.

Lefkowitz, of the teachers' union, put the case clearly. He said that he opposed the proposed constitutional amendment, but on the other hand thought they should come out clearly and definitely in their statement to bar Communists. On this, he, a socialist, was in complete agreement and would do all he could to aid them in putting over such a proposal and in seeing to it that it was put into effect.

Lillian on the Fence (It Was a Strong Fence)

Lillian Herstein of Chicago wanted the "truth" pure and unadultered to be taught to the workers, not from any class viewpoint!

Ray Ragazon of the Brooklyn Co-operative School was the lone fighter for opposition to the "propaganda" proposal on class lines. She said that she was against the resolution because she was in favor of propaganda, working class propaganda; that she recognized the class division of society and viewed workers' education as education that taught the workers their interests and prepared them for a struggle against capitalism. To speak of workers' education being impartial is nonsense.

Workers Party Statement an Irritant.

The Workers' School delegation, which had been denied the rights of voice or vote at the convention, prepared a lengthy statement of their non-admittance and on the Workers Party point of view on education. These were mimeographed and distributed to all delegates and visitors at the convention. They caused quite a flurry in the ranks of the reactionaries and also aroused bitterness among the wishy-washy socialists and liberals by its severe criticism of their complete bankruptcy and surrender before the A. F. of L. machine.

The term "working class" was taboo at the convention, even the socialists falling in line with the more respectable "people." Capitalism was never mentioned by name. No word of the class struggle or of preparation for conducting it fell from the lips of any of these delegates and "leaders" of America's labor movement.

Did Nothing Useful.

The conference failed to accomplish a single useful task. True, it made of the W. E. B. a section of the A. F. L., with control completely in the hands of the central A. F. of L. machine and the international unions. It showed the socialists creeping and crawling before the reactionaries, giving up without the slightest pretense of a fight even that meager lip service which they had formerly given to the class struggle. The struggle for a live and militant policy of workers' education must be made, but spineless "radicals" and liberal professors will never be the leaders of this movement. That task, among so many others, must fall upon the shoulders of the American Communists.

FORD IS TARGET FOR LIBEL SUIT BY WEALTHY JEW

Flivver King, Notorious Hebrew Hater

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, April 23.—A suppressed suit for $1,000,000 charging libel, has been filed in federal court against the Dearborn Independent and Henry Ford, by attorneys representing Aaron Shapiro, of Chicago, it became known today.

William Henry Gallagher, attorney for the Chicago man, stated that the suit is the result of libelous articles printed in the Dearborn Independent, Ford's newspaper. The articles stated, Gallagher says, that Shapiro was the head of a Jewish combine bent on getting control of American agriculture.

Announcement was made sometime ago from Chicago that such a suit would be filed. Court records show that it went on file here yesterday.

A summons has been issued, but no service has been made on Ford.

Bishop Brown Speaks.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Bishop William Montgomery Brown, who has twice been condemned by episcopal church courts as a "heretic," spoke before the Community church here, and read his "confession of faith," which refuses to accept the bible literally.

Warming Up In Chicago.

With the thermometer registering 80 degrees at 10 a. m. here today and still climbing indications were that a new high point of all time for this season of the year would be reached before night. The high point for April, Chicago weather bureau records show, was 84.6 reached on April 19, 1915.

WANTED IN DETROIT

ONE HUNDRED Detroit Communists to participate in the biggest propaganda event of the year. Twenty thousand May 1st DAILY WORKERS are to be distributed before the factory gates.

Twenty automobiles must be at the disposal of the committee to take the papers and distributers to the various factories.

Men, women and automobiles shall present themselves at the House of the Masses, 2646 St. Aubin, corner of Gratiot, not later than 12 o'clock noon, Friday, May 1. Volunteers will please notify comrades Goetz or Owens at the district office beforehand so that all arrangements can be completed in time for this biggest event of the year.

Communists! On to the factory gates on May Day!

'FREE HAWAIIAN RED SOLDIERS', LABOR DEMANDS

Cleveland to Hold Big Demonstration

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 23.—The Cleveland local of the Young Workers League is energetically preparing for a mass demonstration against American militarism which will take place on the public square at 2:30 p. m., Saturday, April 25.

The young workers of Cleveland will voice their protest against the imprisonment of Comrades Crouch and Trumbull who were sentenced to 40 and 26 years respectively as a result of their Communist activities by an American court martial in Hawaii.

Soldiers Belong to Working Class.

The meeting will demand the immediate and unconditional release of the two soldier-Communists and the recognition by the government of the right of soldiers to belong to working class political organisations, thru resolutions which will be presented at the demonstration.

The audience will be addressed by Comrades Phillip Shatz and Carl Weissberg, members of the local executive committee of the Y. W. L. and J. A. Hamilton, local organizer of the Workers Party. The speakers will point out the true needs for military forces by capitalist governments and the necessity of a bitter and unceasing struggle against all capitalist militarism.

All Members Attend.

The local executive committee of the Y. W. L. feels that it is the duty of every league member to be present and help swell the attendance at the meeting and to assist in the distribution of literature in order that this meeting may have the maximum of success it deserves.

Sand Hogs on Tunnel Job in New York on Strike Against Cut

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 23.—Two hundred tunnel workers employed by Booth & Flynn, contractors for the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel, are on strike against a wage cut. They are members of the Compressed Air and Foundation Workers' Union, Local 63. They have been cut to the wages of laborers from the union scale for skilled men working under air pressure.

CAPTAIN MADE NO EFFORT TO SAVE SAILORS

Japanese Crew Sank as Homeric Stood Near

NEW YORK April 23.—The captain of the White Star liner Homeric allowed the Japanese sailors belonging to the crew of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru to drown without making a gesture to save them, passengers on the Homeric charged as the liner made port here. The liner stood by while the freighter sank, and Captain John Roberts gave no orders to lower lifeboats to go to the struggling sailors' aid.

Failure to try to cast off the life rafts attached to the Homeric by ropes, so that the waves would carry them to the Japanese sailors struggling in the mountainous seas, was the main contention of Captain Roberts' critics.

Amos R. E. Pinchot, brother of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, was one of the group of passengers who said they saw Japanese sailors struggling in the water after the Raifuku Maru had disappeared.

"The captain's statement," he said, "was extremely inaccurate when he said there was no life in water after the freighter capsized.

"I personally saw several men being carried toward the Homeric."

Liston L. Lewis, a New York attorney, one of the passengers, said: "I was not impressed that the Homeric upheld the traditions of English sailors. I saw several men struggling in the water after the Japanese ship capsized."

lend their moral aid to Bulgaria, great good will be done and the props which support Bolshevism will gradually fall."

The object of this appeal by the yellow socialist was to induce the governments of England, France and Italy to accede to the request of the Zankov government for permission to increase the standing army. The British minister in Sofia succeeded in having the Jugo-Slav government drop its hostility to this proposition and Roumania and Greece protested in vain. As a concession to the two latter countries, Bulgaria will not be allowed to increase her artillery supply. It should not be forgotten that there are approximately 30,000 of Wrangel's army still in Bulgaria, who are at the disposal of the fascist leader Zankov.

May Slit King's Windpipe

It is rumoured that King Boris wanted to call a halt on the reign of terror and is imprisoned in his palace. Zankov is just as liable to cut the royal throat as not. The Berlin bureau of the New York World declares that Bulgaria is trembling on the verge of revolution.

The European capitalist powers are making a united front with the Zankov government. This alliance is led and dominated by the British who are the original supporters of Zankov.

One report puts the killed in the fighting at 50,000, but this is probably an exagerration. While it is almost impossible to believe any news that comes officially out of Bulgaria, there is reason to believe that the peasants have risen in several sections and are holding their own against the Zankov troops.

Wood, Philippine Dictator, to Raise Funds in America

MANILA, P. I., April 23.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, dictator over the Philippine Islands on behalf of American imperialism, will soon launch a drive in the United States to collect a million dollar fund.

The fund is to be used, according to Wood, to purchase chaulmoogra oil, which is said to be a new cure for leprosy.

Sentence Soldier to Hang

MANILA, April 23.—Private William Johnson, United States army, was sentenced to hang here today for the murder of Private William Willoughby. Johnson shot Willoughby after they quarreled as to the correct procedure on the rifle range.

Give Up Fight on Ship Monopoly

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—The Pacific Mail Steamship company today abandoned its suit against the United States shipping board to prevent sale of five "president" type liners to the Robert Dollar Line.

"Sacred" Government Again Applies the Lash To Its Postal Slaves

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the U. S. Post Office Department, that very recently opposed unsuccessfully a wage increase for the postal workers, shows that it possesses all the qualities of a blood-sucking capitalist taskmaster. Because the workers won a few more pennies in wages, the first increase in years, the post office autocracy, is demanding at least five per cent more of work. Such an order has been issued officially by John H. Bartlett, the first assistant postmaster general.

The worst exploitation in the whole government exists in the postal service. The wonder is that there has not been an open rebellion. The postal workers have been content, however, with congressional investigations, that resulted in little but the recording of the terrible conditions under which the slaves of the government toil.

The most unbelievable and deplorable sanitary conditions have been exposed. The use of stop watches, speed-up methods and "time studies," specifically forbidden in other governmental departments where the workers are better organized, have been revealed. One worker has been pitted against another, with the understanding that spying activities are the basis of promotions and wage allowances.

• • • •

The workers in the postal department are kept at their tasks at break neck speed. In the railway mail service it has been shown that the work required has gradually increased during the last 11 years.

This is vividly brought forth by the fact that while there has been a 200 per cent increase in the volume of mail handled, there are actually a fewer number of railway postal clerks in the service now than in 1914.

• • • •

These conditions, if continued, as they will be, must find their sequel in greater struggles on the part of the postal workers, forcing them to build militant unions in place of the loose and bootlicking organizations they have at the present time.

They will be forced, on occasions, to resort to the strike to win their most meager demands, just like the coal miners, the railroad workers, and labor in other industries.

Then the whole capitalist press will howl with horror, that the employes of the sacred government should cease to work; that the carrying of the mails should be crippled. This press will urge legislation, if such has not already been put on the statute books, forbidding these "public employes" to strike. Heated propaganda, as is the case in every railroad strike, will be poured forth, arguing that the carrying of the mails must not be interfered with. The government has the power to force its postal slaves into the army, and under threat of martial law and trial for treason, force these workers to break their own strike. This oppression is one of the functions of the capitalist state, carrying out the wishes of the great capitalists.

• • • •

The great masses of postal workers and other public employes do not understand this at the present time. But they will learn thru the misery forced upon them in their daily work, a misery that they must carry home to their families, into all the phases of their lives.

The demand of the taskmasters at the head of the post office department for an increase of five per cent in work turned out, should meet with an immediate response. A lessening of effort on the part of the postal workers should be the reply. Labor must demand increased wages for the shorter workday; in the postal service as everywhere else. But labor will never realize its goal until this slave system, that calls for the last ounce of effort from its wage workers, is swept away; until Communism comes to supersede capitalism. The postal workers will learn that, too.

For two hours the board of education met behind closed doors in an effort to get the McAndrew new salary schedule O. K.'d by a majority of the members before it went before the regular open board meeting. But it failed in its efforts. Trustees Hart Hanson, Mrs. David Gregg, J. Lewis Coath and James Mullenbach voted against it.

When it came before the regular meeting for consideration, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan once more rose to the superintendent's call and moved for a deferment until the special meeting Monday morning. The motion was passed. On Monday Trustee Julius F. Smietanka, chairman of the finance committee, will have returned from out of town and his vote is expected to make the necessary majority.

The new school budget for 1925 of $66,000,000 passed by the board contains appropriations for educational purposes amounting to $41,202,000; for building purposes, $22,701,000; for text books, $351,000; f0or playgrounds, $636,000, and for teachers' pension fund, $610,000.

This hectic rush to get action on the recommendation is an effort to ward off its being held over for the new board which will be named by Mayor Dever on Monday afternoon.

Negro Freight Handlers Strike.

One of the first revolts against Fairfax Harrison's new policy of squeezing further profits out of the employes has broken out in the city of Birmingham. Colored men employed as freight handlers have struck. Their complaint is that the company has placed sideboards on the freight trucks which they drag about the terminal, so that they are called upon to pull loads twice as heavy as before. Protests did no good. They decided that they had reached a status higher than mules. They quit.

No appeal has been made to the railroad labor board. They will fight it out. Whether the strike will spread to other cities will depend upon whether Harrison directs that similar overloading be attempted elsewhere. Negro labor on railroads in the South is not so docile as before the world war.

Living in Washington, Strikers Know Tricks of U. S. "Arbitration"

WASHINGTON, April 22—(FP)—Proposal by John B. Colpoys, federal mediator, that they meet the "fair wage" committee created by the speculative builders, real estate men, bankers and certain contractors to fight all wage increases in the building industry, has been rejected by the striking painters. They refuse to deal with any other organization than the master painters.

Newspaper advertisements for strikebreakers resulted in between 40 and 50 applications for this work, at the bosses' headquarters. Union plumbers and steamfitters continue to quit jobs where strikebreakers attempt to do the painting.

[illegible]CE

[illegible]n of

([illegible] Worker.)

[illegible] 23.—Emanuel [illegible] the Obrana, who [illegible] two months ago [illegible] Island, is to be de- [illegible] to a decision of [illegible] rendered Monday, Judge [illegible] that Vajtauer must [illegible] tell him, the court, every- [illegible] the court demands or suffer [illegible]y. The government did not [illegible] prove him guilty, he had to prove his innocence.

Emanuel Vajtauer is a revolutionist of long standing. He is a writer and speaker and has never failed to present the full Communist position. Vajtauer, like all Communists, does not regard the home of his birth as the only field of his activity. On the contrary, wherever Vajtauer has come he has carried on propaganda among the workers to enlighten them on the state of their exploitation. This is a crime in the United States—as it is a crime in France, Great Britain and every other capitalist country.

Deport Only Radical Workers.

Especially the foreign-born worker is supposed to keep his mouth shut—particularly the revolutionist. Italian fascisti, Russian counter-revolutionists—grand dukes and social-democrats like Abramovich—patriotic Croatian writers and their ilk may tour the country, may write whatever they please as long as it is in the interest of the capitalist class and their capitalist government.

But the moment a worker who works in the interest of the working class raises his voice he faces the capitalist court. This has been the fate of Comrade Vajtauer as of hundreds of other revolutionaries in this country.

Aid Asked at Once.

The Labor Defense Council, which is conducting the defense of Vajtauer, is appealing the matter to the supreme court of the United States. Comrade Vajtauer is in very bad health owing to the long "sojourn" on Ellis Island, where the vile conditions have broken down his health. He must be removed from that pesthole. The Labor Defense Council hopes to get him out on bail.

To fight the case in the highest court of the country demands funds, and the class-conscious and revolutionary workers are urgently requested to contribute as generously as possible. Send all contributions to the Labor Defense Council, New York Section, 108 E. 14th St., New York City.

CHEATING ALIENS OF CITIZENSHIP IS NEW WRINKLE IN WAR OF THE GOVERNMENT AGAINST FOREIGN-BORN

(By The Federated Press)

PITTSBURGH, April 23.—The workers in the Eclipse plant of the United to further reduce the total of immigration and to make the newcomers feel the authority of the federal governmental machine, is being steadily developed into a system under the present regime in the department of labor.

A circular (No. 106, issued Feb. 14, 1925) by Raymond F. Crist, commissioner of naturalization, instructs all naturalization agents thruout the country to oppose the granting of all petitions for naturalization "where the family is not residing in this country."

Crist claims that this ruling is based on a declaration of Assistant Secretary of Labor Henning, dated Jan. 31, 1925, in which Henning says: "An alien whose family is in Europe has never lived in the United States, no matter how many years he may have been here. He cannot be naturalised because he has not complied with the requirement of the statute that he must have resided here five years. It is the common law of the United States, and the common law of the world, and sound doctrine and decent philosophy, that a man resides where he has his family and maintains his family."

When the Federated Press correspondent asked permission to be admitted into the presence of Henning, to learn where he discovered this law, Henning sent out word that he would not be seen on that subject. Finally Mr. Cook, private secretary to Secretary Davis, was seen. Cook declared that "a majority of the courts of this country" have held that an immigrant does not establish his residence here until he has his family here—no matter if he has spent many years clearing a farm, building a house and sending part of his earnings back to Europe to maintain his family and buy their tickets for the trip to America.

"We want to keep the families unified," said Cook. "We don't want an alien to come in here and get citizenship and then send for his wife who has alien citizenship, unless she comes in under the quota. If she can get in under the quota, that's a different matter, but we are not going to fail to ask the courts to refuse naturalisation to men whose wives might by that fact be added to the quota."

This game is understood to be connected with Davis' scheme for establishing a system of industrial espionage, called "alien registration," which he has presented to congress each year since 1921.

'B. & O.' JOHNSTON FEARING DEFEAT EXPOSES MACHINE

"Use Your Own Method But Get the Vote"

That the machine of "B. & O." Johnston is feeling a bit groggy at the early election returns of the International Association of Machinists, and is ordering its tools to get the vote by fair means or foul, is shown by the following letter sent to his creatures all over the country by Charles Taylor, Johnston's campaign manager, a copy of which has come into the hands of the Trade Union Educational League:

"Use Your Own Method, But Get the Vote."

It is noticed that in this letter Johnston contradicts the boasts about having a "walkaway" which he is making publicly, and orders his tools to "use your own method, but get the vote." Nor is there any buncombe in this letter about "saving old glory" from the "reds." It is a plain case of "Save the Johnston machine its jobs."

The letter, dated from 423 Irving street, N. W., Washington, D. C., on April 11th is, in full as follows:

"Important.

"Dear Sir and Brother: A careful and searching analysis of the known results of the voting in the local lodges thus far reveals the following:

"a—That the Anderson group are working early and late to turn the tide in their favor especially in our strong points.

"b—The results to date indicate that the Johnson men are not working as hard as the Anderson men; in other words, the Anderson men have the 'jump' on us in general.

"c—There is danger in this because it is necessary to overcome the 'rally' the Anderson men are making now.

"d—The 'voting' so far is not encouraging, speaking generally, altho some of our points are making good reports.

"It is necessary that you get after your key men in person or by personal letter. See that they are well supplied with our slates. The Anderson group have flooded the country with theirs.

"We can win if you get the 'vote' out of the lodge and into headquarters. Use your own method, but get the vote out. Nothing else will count.

"We, here, appreciate the hard work you have done, but we also must stress the fact that the other fellow is apparently working harder than we are, and they are absolutely unscrupulous in their methods. 'Intimidation' is their main weapon.

"In some sections we have cause to be optimistic; in others, the reverse is true. We expect the 'good' sections to outvote the 'poor' sections; so, don't any of you men in the 'good' sections stop until every member has voted for 'Bill' Johnston and the real progressive ticket.

"We said 'Let's go' on January 1st. We went. Now keep going till April 30, as we need the votes. Let me hear from you.

Regards,
"Chas. Taylor, F."

Warden Says That We Are "Getting More And More Radical!"

The following letter from the warden of San Quentin prison in California is offered for the readers of the DAILY WORKER, and speaks for itself:

"CALIFORNIA STATE PRISON AT SAN QUENTIN, April 13, 1925.

"Walt Carmon, Circulation Manager,
The Daily Worker, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

"Dear Sir: Responsive to yours of the 10th instant, please be advised that standard magazines and daily newspapers, printed outside the state of California, also good books, are allowed in this prison as long as they are sent direct from the publisher or some reputable dealer. No radical papers or magazines are permitted in prison.

"The DAILY WORKER has been coming into the prison for several of our inmates. However, at this time I am informed by the offiver who is in charge of the distribution of mail that the DAILY WORKER is becoming more and more radical, and in all probability we will be obliged to inform the inmates that because if its nature the DAILY WORKER will not be permitted to be received by them.

IOWA SMALL BIZ BEING SMASHED BY BIG CAPITAL

"Buy Iowa Coal" Drive Doesn't Help Miners

By TOM MATTHEWS.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 23.—Little business is feeling hard blows. Little business is complaining.

On one side of the street you may see the chain shoe store, on the other the local proprietor who exhibits selling-out signs. Even the barber shops are "going scab" and offering 15-cent shaves as an inducement for business.

The independent coal operator is perhaps hit the hardest of all, with the small town banker a close second.

Imperialist "Benefits."

The Iowa workers and farmers, like their brothers in other states, are suffering as a consequence of the imperialistic development of American capitalism.

While practically every newspaper in these parts is appealing for investment and development in local enterprise, no less than $1,268,000,000 of American capital was invested in foreign securities during the year just past. Thus small business in every field is being forced to the wall while America's finance-capitalists are plunging into foreign industry.

The gold piled into the coffers of the capitalists of this country as the result of the war is not creating an inflation of business, which would mean temporary prosperity for the small business man and his petit-bourgeois brother, the skilled craftsman. It is the law of imperialism that the surplus capital of big business must not lie idle, and so the gold exports from the country are taking on ever larger proportions as the purchases of foreign securities mount high above the trade balance.

Exporting of Capital.

Thus in 1924, the excess of foreign securities purchased above the trade balance totaled, in round figures, $290,000,000 in comparison with an excess of approximately $165,000,000 in 1923 and $120,000,000 in 1922.

The gold which was going to bring prosperity to American small business is now being shipped out to buy up foreign industry, while the bourgeois economists are kept busy trying to explain what it's all about, and Iowa newspapers tell their readers that everything is all right, but that they must be loyal to home enterprise.

"Buy Iowa Coal."

The United Mine Workers is trying to buck the capitalist buzz-saw in Iowa by appealing to the people to "buy Iowa coal." In the camps thruout the state the miners have their flivvers adorned with "buy Iowa coal" signs. But the scab coal from Kentucky and West Virginia is being shipped into the state and sold, nevertheless, with the railroad brotherhoods helping in the process.

The railroad unions are experimenting with an "escape" from these conditions in the shape of the "B. & O. co-operation plan."

On the Chicago and Northwestern the men voted this upon the company, even against the advice of the bosses in some instances, and the plan is now being "tried out" in certain shops. The only tangible result seems to be the making of stool pigeons out of some of the men, in that they spy upon each other and report inefficiency to the boss. Refuse-piles and inconvenient locations of machines are solemnly reported for action by the "proper committee."

Thus do the small business men, in both stores and unions, fight for a foothold within the framework of the capitalist system.

The Workers Party points out the nature of the capitalistic system of society which compels the finance-capitalist to export his surplus to foreign lands, and shows the worker and working farmer that his hope lies not in class co-operation but in working class solidarity. While a few groups here and there are allowed a foothold the inevitable pressure upon the great majority is beginning to have its effect.

Thus on the Baltimore and Ohio, it is true, the particular group of workers employed is offered steady work "even to the building of the company's equipment in its own shops."

But as surely as these workers are "protected" in this way, some other group must suffer. The Northwestern for instance, may buy the loyalty of its workers by building its own cars, instead of having hundreds of them built at the Bettendorf steel works, just out of Davenport, Iowa.

So the capitalists are taking advantage of the "craft consciousness" of their slaves and using this narrow, individualistic spirit for their own ends.

The workers must either wake up to the situation, or some fine morning learn, too late, that their organizations have been completely disrupted by this poison of class-collaboration.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

LAUNDRY WORKERS INJURED BY SPEED UP SYSTEM AND USE OF OLD AND DANGEROUS MACHINES

By A LAUNDRY WORKER CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Cheating immigrants of citizenship, in order Laundry Co. of Pittsburgh are beginning to realise that they have to look for relief from their conditions other than whatever is handed to them as a gift from the owners. They are beginning to offer resistance to some degree. They know of the danger constantly facing them of being injured by the old, wornout machinery that the owners are installing.

Saving Money—Wasting Life.

When a washing machine wears out in one of the plants the owners very seldom buy a new one but bring one from another plant which has been out of commission for at least two or three years. Recently one of the doors on an old machine got loose and when the operator told the millwright about it he replied, "Go ahead and use it I ain't got time to fix it now, I have too much work to do." He continued to use it and while in motion it flew open and tore up the machine. It took a week to fix it so it could be used again.

Some one asked the operator why he didn't report to the superintendent when the millwright refused to fix the machine and got the answer, "It won't do no good, they all want us to work like hell to get the work out, but won't take time to keep things in order; if anything happens they blame me while the machinery is not worth a damn. All of the extractors are loose on the foundation, belts always slipping off; the electric switches are liable to shock the operator every time he starts the motors up again."

Heavy Casualty List.

It is quite a usual thing to see the workers in this plant going around with their hands, fingers or head bandaged from getting hurt by the machines on account of neglect on the part of the owners. They have begun, however, to stop using old machines when they get to a point of lessening the output of work.

I asked one operator the other day why won't the bosses have brakes put on the extractors and a new set of belts put all around, now that they are needed. He said, "the bosses don't care how many of the workers get hurt but it costs money to keep things in a safe position to operate, and when anything happens to us they say it is our own carelessness."

Be Careful—But Not of Yourselves.

He pointed to a sign on the wall which read as follows: "Every piece of laundry you handle represents dollars and cents. You wouldn't be careless with money so please don't be careless with the customer's clothes. Carelessness is the cause of all trouble in the laundry business. Try and help us give better service."

In this way they try to cover the crimes on life and limb of the workers caused by their old worn out machinery.

GREEN INDORSES PET SCHEME OF HOOVER TO RAISE BOSSES PROFITS

NEW YORK, April 22.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has indorsed Herbert Hoover's pet scheme, the American Child Health Association. Herbert Hoover made public Green's statement supporting his drive in the public schools.

At the same time Hoover made public a statement by Dwight Davis, acting secretary of war, which declared, "The economic loss resulting from decreased earning capacity, absence from work, doctor's bills, insurance, and from other ills, is staggering."

I. W. W. GENERAL OFFICE TO MOVE TO THE SUBURBS

3333 West Belmont to Replace Old "1001"

After so many years in their old Chicago headquarters that 1001 West Madison street had become almost a stereotype address in radical and labor circles, the Industrial Workers of the World are moving before May 1 to a new home. The expiration of the 1001 lease and a huge jump in rental demanded by the owner impelled the general executive board to move as an economy measure.

The new location is 3333 W. Belmont avenue, a one-story building with over 12,000 square feet of floor space. It is being purchased by the I. W. W. with the financial aid furnished by the Garland fund, and will house the organization's printing plant and equipment, the general executive board offices, Industrial Solidarity, the official weekly and The Industrial Pioneer, the official monthly, as well as 6 foreign-language publications.

Subordinate unions with headquarters there include No. 110 (agricultural workers); 120 (lumber workers,) 310 (general construction workers), and the small industrial unions.

Itinerant wobblies find a good feature of the new home, which is on Chicago's northwest side, to be a railroad right of way adjoining. This, they opine, compensates for the great distances from "the stem," the Madison street job agencies and flophouses.

Gompers Founder of Flag Waving League, Says Report

NEW YORK, April 23—(FP)—The struggle to organize the United States population into more and more leagues, associations, councils, etc., etc., continues with the formation of a junior ku klux klan, a United States Flag Association (with Samuel Gompers, in memoriam, one of the 13 founders supposed to be typical of the 13 original states), and now an Anti-Fanatic League.

The anti-fanatics are against prohibitions of most kinds, including the Volstead attempt, the K. K. K., and other invasions of the individual's "right to the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness."

Police Called in New York Strike.

NEW YORK, April 23.—One hundred and eighty vehicular tunnel workers constructing a tunnel to Jersey City, are on strike here, demanding an increase in pay from $7.50 to $8.00 per day. Police reserves are guarding the few strikebreakers working.

BLIND VICTIMS ARE EXPLOITED IN WISCONSIN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 23.—Industrial organizations of the blind of over 2,000 and penal institutions are producing goods to compete with the industrial workers. The socialist party of the city is doing nothing to curb this evil and it is rumored that the Milwaukee Leader is getting its share by securing advertisements of the concerns handling prison made goods.

Silent on Unemployment.

Mayor Hoan, while pleading for money to help build the workshop for the unfortunate blind is discreetly silent on the question of unemployment. It would seem much more reasonable to give the workers an opportunity to earn their living at union wages rather than put to work the blind and use their products in competition with the organized labor movement.

The unfortunate blind should receive the support of the state instead of being put to work to which they are not adapted and which should be done by healthy people.

SMALLPOX RAGES AMONG CROWDED OLD TENEMENTS

Epidemic Used to Stir Racial Hatred

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 23—A smallpox epidemic of considerable extent holds this city in its grip, spreading thru the working class sections and doing its greatest damage in those neighborhoods where low wages, malnutrition and unsanitary housing conditions prevail.

Hospitals Under Quarantine.

Every day sees new "quarantines" by the local board of health and the epidemic has reached such proportions that several big hospitals have been roped off by the police.

The outlying suburban districts, where the rich exploiters and profiteers live in extravagant luxury, are, so far, free of the pestilence.

In those parts of the city where the plauge's toil is heaviest, hundreds of oldfashioned open "nigh soil" wells abound, poluting the air with a vile and deadly stench and constituting the only sanitary convenience hundreds of working class families have contracted the disease.

Rich Are Free from Peril.

On the other hand the gorgeous mansions of Philadelphia's profit-drunk plutocrats are known to be equipped with as many as four to ten modern bath rooms, toilets, shower baths, etc., scattered thru the premises from cellar to attic.

Since mid-war years Philadelphia has been the "mecca" of a heavy Negro migration from the southern states.

These workers, in blissful ignorance of the real conditions in this city of brotherly love (?), hope to find here a human and secure life denied them by the sunny south. Instead, they find want, and squalor, filthy congestion and human misery awful to behold.

True to type the capitalist class are taking full advantage of the situation.

Inciting Race Riots.

Their various stool-pigeons and "under cover" propagandists are [illegible]tiously spreading the poisonous rumor that the smallpox epidemic, together with the other economic and social evils which make this place a charnel house of poverty, disease, banditry, bootlegging, prostitution, child labor and vile unsanitation, are all due to the increased Negro population.

This pernicious propaganda serves a double purpose for the capitalists.

First—it tends to develop bitter "race" animosities between the white and black wage slaves here, and thus retards the growth of industrial and political solidarity on the basis of the class struggle, among all workers, irrespective of color, creed, language or birthplace.

Second—it helps obscure the fundamental cause of the prevailing smallpox situation—viz., bad housing conditions from which the exploiters and profiteers benefit enormously.

The Facts of Workers' Miseries.

The following excerpts from a recent statement by B. J. Newman, director of the Philadelphia Housing Association (capitalistic) throws a vivid light on the matter. We quote:

"It was found also in this survey that 32 per cent of these tenement families occupy one-room apartments in which all the practices of family life are carried on.

"But of the 263 tenements in operation today only 43 were found to be operating legally . . .

"Bad sanitation was found in more than one-half, 54 per cent to be exact.

"Their faults were, defective plumbing, leaky roofs, flooded cellars. Inadequate sanitary equipment were found to exist in 59 per cent. In these buildings were windowless rooms and there were six cases of living in cellars.

Horrible Overcrowding.

"Overcrowding was noted in many cases. In one house of nine rooms for which $88 rent was paid 32 occupants were found. Five girls slept in a single bedroom in this house and five boys in another; in still another, a man, his wife and four children, making six persons to this room, while each of two other bedrooms was occupied by a man, his wife and three children, making a total of 21 persons sleeping in four rooms.

"The number of families occupying one-room apartments has increased 5 per cent (since 1912) * * * Tenement houses in Philadelphia occupied by industrial workers are not only costly in rent charges, but they represent a grave risk to the community in their assault upon the health and morals of tenants."

DUQUESNE SCAB FIRM EXPLOITS CITIZENS ONLY

Blacklisted Miner Has No Union Protection

By YEAGER, Worker Correspondent.

DUQUESNE, Pa., April 23.—To work for the Duquesne Light company means to live in one of the company owned homes and have the cost of everything used checked off from each pay. One worker, formerly a miner, got a job at the plant, he was charged $25.00 rent for his home and this did not include the cost of water used, for which he had to pay extra.

Water Costs $4 a Month.

His last water bill amounted to about $12.00 for three months. From his last pay was checked off $12.50 for his half month's rent and $6.00 for one-half his water bill.

Previous to working for the light company, he had been a miner until he got fired and blacklisted. He tried several times to get his job back but was given an excuse. This went along for several months when one day he was told by the pit boss to come next morning and work would be given him.

No Union Protection From Mine Blacklist.

He came to the mine the next morning for his promised job, but was refused. His case was then taken up by a board member and he was given what was supposed to be a hearing and then it was found that he was fired for being "a little too progressive to be working in the mines."

The next day five deputies came and notified him to move or they would help him along in case he did not move fast enough. The man being married decided rather than let his family take their abuse, he had better move, and he landed with the Duquesne Light Co.

Beauties of Being a Citizen.

In order to get work in that company, if one has been a union man he better not try, since the company will only turn the worker down. No wonder the Duquesne Light company is very strict when it comes to hiring anyone who has previously been a union man. They do not want anyone working for them who has had anything to do with the union since they may try to organize the men against these rotten conditions.

Only citizens, or those having declared their intention, may apply for a job and enjoy these glorious conditions. And, of course, it is cheaper for the company to show its loyalty to the government on such a basis.

Boston Workers Will Celebrate Labor's Holiday

BOSTON, Mass., April 23—William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will be the principal speaker at the May Day celebration on Friday, May 1 at 7:30 p. m. at Convention Hall, St. Botolph street, near Mechanic Building. The Young Workers' League orchestra and chorus will be the life of the big entertainment. There will be a Young Workers' League speaker and Comrade R. Zelms will speak in Russian.

Every comrade in Boston will give the whole of next week and right up to the day of the meeting to distribution of literature. Comrades wearing May Day buttons will make the rounds of the working class districts and will cover the entrances of shops, factories and mills with May Day leaflets, notices of the meeting and copies of the DAILY WORKER. Every comrade must dispense of four tickets in addition to his own. If he does not sell the tickets he will bring along with him four workers as his guests.

The comrades say they will make this workers' holiday the biggest and best ever held in Boston.

South-Slav Workers Extend Aid to Their Unemployed Comrades

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 23.—Workers of Milwaukee, Wis., extending their comradely assistance to the workers in the mines of Southern Illinois when in response to the call for assistance two societies decided to send contributions.

The South Slavic Milwaukee organization contributed twenty dollars and West Allis organization five dollars.

It is expected that a number of organizations will express their class solidarity with Illinois miners.

The Workers Party in Action

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

Bell and Bedacht to Speak in Milwaukee on Labor's Holiday

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 23.—While the Workers Party of America of this city is planning a gigantic demonstration of open air meetings and an evening mass meeting, the socialist party of Milwaukee is helping the capitalist in advertising the May Day as a healthy day for children.

As an answer to the socialist party it is expected that over one thousand people will attend demonstrations organized by the Workers Party.

May Day meeting this year will be held in Freie Gemeinde Hall. Thomas Bell and Max Bedacht are the principal speakers. The musical program will include Freiheit Singing Society, Russian-Ukrainian choir, German Singing Society and Croatian society "buduchnost." The program will also include the showing of two reels, "The Prisoners of Progress."

A gigantic May Day demonstration under the leadership of the Workers Party will be the best answer to the "Marxians" of the Second International.

Tom Lewis to Speak at Los Angeles May Day Celebration

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 23—Tom Lewis, the new district organizer of the Workers Party, District 13, will speak at big May Day celebration that will be held on Friday evening, May 1 at the Co-operative Center, 2706 Brooklyn Ave. Comrade Lewis is a fine speaker. This will be his first public appearance in Los Angeles. The entertainment is provided by the Young Workers' League and the Junior Groups of Los Angeles. They announce a musical program and — — surprises. Leaflets and DAILY WORKERS are distributed prior to the meeting and every means of propaganda is employed by the comrades to get workers to attend this meeting and make this May Day celebration the biggest and best held in Los Angeles.

POLISH WHITE TERROR MURDERS FOUR UKRAINIANS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WARSAW, Poland, April 23.—The member of parliament of the Communist fraction, Comrade Weltjuk, addressed an urgent request to the sejm on the unheard of maltreatment of 30 Ukrainians in the Polish provincial town Wlodawa. "Wlodawa," reads the request, "is in great excitement on account of an unheardof maltreatment of Ukrainian citizens by the police. According to an order of the chief of police, Shishkevsky, mass searches of the villages took place, for Communist literature. Altho the police found nothing, 30 persons were arrested.

"Three days afterwards the 'examination' of the prisoners took place in the police office. This was done in the following manner: The prisoners were taken into a dark room where they were put on a table, covered with wet sheets (so that the maltreatment might not leave traces) and tortured with whips and sticks. The victims were beaten on their heads and faces and trodden upon.

"The 'examination' lasted from one to three o'clock in the night. How terible this maltreatment was is proved by the following: One of the prisoners, Nicolai Mitshtshenko, was to be 'examined' again next night; when he heard this he committed suicide by stabbing himself with a knife in his stomach. After three days he died from the wound." Three others also died.

wide circulation. It reads as follows:

The Protest.

The Pro-India Committee protests energetically against the expulsion by the French government of Manabendra Nath Roy, Indian nationalist and revolutionary.

It holds that a democratic government should never permit itself to carry out such a measure of persecution on the demand of the British government, against a man who is reproached only for his ardent endeavors to secure the freedom of his country.

Hounded For Opinions.

M. N. Roy, one of the most powerful fighters in the Indian nationalist movement, and who has written several important works on this subject, was on the point of being expelled from Germany owing to the same injunctions of the British government, which forbids him the right to live in its own territory. Were he to return to India, he would be imprisoned, perhaps executed. It is hard to believe that a man, against whom, we repeat, no charge can be brot save that of lifting his voice against the exploitation of his fellow-countrymen, a mere offense of opinion, it is hard to believe that such a man can be thus pursued across the world, from one country to another, without being able to live in one place.

In any case, if these are the brutal and inexorable arguments that England employers to rid herself of those who denounce her imperialism, should a government such as that of France become a partner to such iniquities?

The Pro-India Committee draws the attention of public opinion to these facts, and lays before it the grave question of the rights of peoples. Let all those who still believe in the ideas of justice, liberty and freedom of the spirit, protest with us against this savage and intolerable strangling of a conscience.

It may perhaps be alleged that the reason for this expulsion lies in the political ideas of M. N. Roy, who is a Communist. But let us not be de-

If You Know Where "Curley" Lee Is, You Get $25 as a Rewar

A comrade of the English Communist Party is trying to locate his brother, who was originally a sea-going donkey-engine man, known around the Brooklyn, New York wharves as "Curley" Lee. His last known address was "Carpenter and Contractor, Under avenue, (or Underdonk avenue), between Dean and Pacific streets, Brooklyn, N. Y." Anyone knowing "Curley" Lee's whereabouts should notify P. Lee, 25 David street, [illegible] Central, South Wales, England, who offers five pounds (about $25) reward.

EVER BUY ANYTHING?

Judging by the dull look in the eye of the business man when we ask him to advertise in THE DAILY WORKER one would think the readers of our paper never bought anything.

I'LL TELL YOU WHY:

Our readers forget to say, "We want to see your ad in our paper" —or if they say this to their merchant they let the matter drop.

That is only half the job. Tell us—we will go after him.

Railway Workers and Shop Committees

Unskilled labor bears the biggest part of the wage cuts that American capitalists are handing out. If in addition to doing that class of labor called unskilled—altho in many instances it requires a higher degree of special skill than many so-called trades—the workers are unorganized, the wage cuts are merciless.

Railway labor, below that of the brotherhoods—engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen, key occupations that the railroads try to keep satisfied—is notoriously underpaid. Yet since 1920 the railroads with the advice, consent and co-operation of the government railway labor board, have been deliberately and steadily reducing wages of the great majority of the railway workers.

Clerks, telegraphers and signalmen, according to the figures compiled by Leland Olds, statistician for the Federated Press, have suffered reductions of approximately 8 per cent. These occupations are fairly well organised and can be included in the lower strata of the labor aristocracy.

But loaders, baggage handlers, freight handlers, building mechanics (who on the railroads do not occupy the favored position they do in outside building trades) section foremen, section laborers and crossing flagmen have received cuts averaging a little over 20 per cent and ranging from 39.2 per cent for crossing flagmen to 14 per cent for section foremen.

Maintenance of way men now average $2.79 for an eight-hour day. This is getting back to "normalcy" with a vengeance as it is almost as low as pre-war wages in many occupations.

The important thing to remember in connection with this wholesale wage-slashing is that it is conducted by a government agency—an agency which, when it was set up during the war by the Wilson administration, was hailed as a great victory for labor by the fakers. But government agencies, in America especially, have a way of changing and extending their functions, of perpetuating themselves in line with the pronounced increase of government centralisation beginning during the war and continuing since that time.

Government ownership is not looked upon favorable by the railway magnates, but government ownership and control of living standards of railway workers is quite all right.

The majority of the railway workers, by these figures, are shown to have been beaten down to the standard of common labor. Their organizations are very feeble where they exist at all, but the railway labor board has created the necessary atmosphere for organization to flourish.

The first step in the transportation industry must be the creation of shop committees and their extension into a national network. These shop committees, in addition to handling the daily grievances of the workers, must be used to bring pressure on the existing unions and as the nucleus of an organization campaign. It is ridiculous to assert, as the labor fakers do, that the railway workers must be left to the tender mercies of the company unions.

Low wages, long hours, lack of job control, capitalist and government tyranny, together spell response to a militant organization drive.

All the necessary conditions for renewed activity of the railway workers are now present in the industry, but whatever is done will have to be in spite of the labor union bureaucrats and the labor aristocracy like the brotherhoods who have received a 5 per cent raise while the great mass of workers were getting wage cuts.

Morgan's Slave Agents

"Lackeys" is a term we often use in describing the socialists and it is a word that seems to arouse their most violent indignation.

But what other word describes so well the servile attitude of the Second International towards capitalism?

In Germany the socialist coalition is appealing to the masses for support against the monarchist candidate on the ground that it will be able to get more consideration from the House of Morgan.

By "better consideration" the socialists mean that the House of Morgan will be more liberal in the matter of loans. In other words, finance-capitalists will condescend to allow the German workers to be exploited in larger numbers and more efficiently.

If this is not lackeyism and bootlicking of the most abject kind, what is it?

The program of the German Communist Party is to turn out, neck and crop, the whole evil-smelling and bloody gang of monarchists, capitalists—foreign and domestic—and their retainers, to set up a workers' and farmers' government, in place of the dictatorship of capital, the dictatorship of the working class.

Compared to this program that of the so-called socialists shows itself to be nothing but an outright sale of the German masses to the international band of slave-drivers. It is no wonder that confronted with a parliamentary opposition whose actions are directed by a desire to barter off the German masses unconditionally, the monarchists, who propose to sell at retail rather than wholesale, should have acquired a large following.

The German social-democracy is today nothing but a slave agency for the House of Morgan.

They may be able to sell but delivery is something else again.

Equality Before the Law—Two Cases

There are two news items in our issue of yesterday that call for comment.

One tells of the lynching of a Negro in North Carolina, merely suspected of an attack on a woman.

The other is the story of the legal machine set in motion in Indianapolis to free on bail Stephenson, high official of the ku klux klan, charged with ravishing a young girl in a particularly atrocious manner, resulting in her committing suicide by poisoning.

This ?$!&æ|%?4æ† (the stupid prohibition of many good old English words by the postoffice authorities is a great handicap in such cases as this) has been denouncing the Negroes, foreign-born workers and reds in the best 100 per cent American style. He has been wrapping himself in a mantle of purity, posing as a protector of American womanhood and the sanctity of the home, and like all the rest of the leprous-minded brotherhood to which he belonged, has stirred up hatred and suspicion among the nationalities and races that form American society. There seems to be little doubt of the guilt of this typical patriot, but he is given all the consideration to which he is entitled under the law.

But the Negro in Carthage, North Carolina?

This 18-year-old boy is not given the semblance of a trial. He is taken by a mob composed of Stephensons, tortured and killed.

Equality before the law? It is the sheerest hypocricy to say so. Neither will there be any semblance of equality until the Negro workers and farmers are organized to stop these and other barbarities inflicted upon their fellows as a matter of course. The white ruling class, spreading its poison of racial prejudice and setting white worker against black, will cease its activities in this direction when both black and white workers treat the breed of Stephenson and their supporters the same as they would a rattlesnake, backing up their actions by powerful organizations formed for the fight against the common enemy—American capitalism.

Hawaiian Heroes

Hawaii is on a war footing and the officers, naval and military, are happy.

The warfare is of the mimic variety, no one will be killed with the possible exception of enlisted men by accidents in the land or naval batteries, and the officer caste is having a hell of a good time.

In the military prison of Hawaii are two private soldiers who saw thru the sham of "national defense," "national honor," "protection of our democratic institutions" and other phrases with which the masses are stupified and led to slaughter for the profit of those who rob them in time of peace.

They understood the imperialist nature of capitalist military preparedness and said so.

According to the capitalist press the heroes are the officers who are strutting around the Hawaiian islands bedizened with all the panoply of warfare. But the real heroes of the Pacific are these two soldiers and their comrades who dared to challenge the whole might of American imperialism in one of its most important outposts. They are paying the penalty that capitalism, like all other slave systems, exacts from the slaves who rebel.

But these two Communist soldiers have caused hundreds of thousands of workers to stop and think of what all this mobilization of death-dealing machinery is about.

Of just as much importance to the colonial workers and those of continental America as the naval maneuvers is the fact that right within the heart of American imperialism working class revolt has made itself heard and felt.

Crouch and Trumbull will be remembered long after the rusted navies of imperialism are the plaything of the tides, as the two workers who struck the first blow at the war-making machinery of American imperialism in the colonies.

They and their fellows in the Hawaiian Communist League wanted affiliation with the Communist International—the only enemy of world capitalism. This is their crime and their glory.

The "Stay Away" notices sent out by the central labor unions are becoming plentiful—sure signs that the period of great industrial activity is nearing an end.

The tour of the prince of Wales is featured by the killing of native rebels in South Africa. The world has not changed much since the time of Alexander the Great when they used to slaughter a few captives in honor of his visit.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the Bucharin Speaks on Russian Question.

MOSCOW, April 3—(By Mail)—Session of the enlarged executive of the Comintern. At today's morning session Comrade Bucharin spoke on the Russian question:

It is not a question of persons, but one of political policy. There are in the Comintern, right social-democratic dangers on the one hand, and ultra-left tendencies on the other. There also is a grouping of right elements—as was demonstrated by Kreibich's speech, and grouping of left elements—as demonstrated by Bordiga's support of Trotskyism. We thus see an attempt at a concentration of forces against the official policy of the Comintern. The problem of the Russian revolution has thus become an international problem. The internal occurrences in the Communist Party of Russia are at once taken advantage of by our enemies and half-enemies. The opportunists within the Comintern are supported by the renegades; this is of course the objective effect of the mechanism of social forces. There is, besides, a category of sentimental Communists, who judge things not from a political point of view, but according to their sentiments.

OUR task is to examine thoroly the correctness of the policy pursued by the central committee of the Communist Party of Russia, and the incorrectness of the opposition policy. The main characteristics of Trotskyism are: its underestimation of the peasantry, and its overestimation of the state apparatus. In the phase of war Communism these errors were not dangerous.

The NEP requires other methods, a finer capacity for differentiating, a change in our relations to the peasantry, and the emphasis of the economic element in peasant economy.

IN the opinion of many comrades, Trotskyism is simply menshevism. This view is too simple and therefore false. It is necessary to regard Trotskyism as a structure peculiar to itself, this is possible only thru an analysis of the concrete problems.

It is not by chance that the last discussion coincided in point of time with the Russian party's change of policy in the peasant question. We are in the midst of a new economic situation and new social conditions; hence the need for a new policy.

TROTSKYISM made its appearance; firstly, in the question of the dictatorship of industry; secondly, in the question of plan economy (i. e., in the question of the extent of the rational element in our economy); thirdly, in the question of the price policy of the state trusts; fourthly, in the question of currency reform; fifthly, in the question of socialist accumulation and the struggle against private capital.

Some comrades ask whether it is not possible to have differences of opinion in these questions without resorting to organizational measures. The answer is NO—since these questions are not a matter of literary discussion, but constitute the most vital questions of the dictatorship.

Due to the growth of the economic life of the Soviet Union, there was lately a certain tension in the relations of workers and peasants. The conflict of interests between the working class as buyer and the peasantry as seller of products, has given rise to a certain discord in the peasantry.

THE productive forces of the country are growing rapidly; yet there is greater overpopulation and unemployment. The peasant, who has become mare active and independent, demands participation in the political life. The process of growth carries with it the danger of creating a gulf between the working class and the peasantry.

Hence the need of new methods in two spheres of our policy; in the first place, our state industries must furnish the peasant with cheaper goods than he is able to get from the capitalist industry; in the second place, what is necessary is not the dictatorship of two classes, but the strengthening of the dictatorship of the proletariat—by means of a peaceful policy and with methods which correspond to the new class relations.

THE discussion began at a time when we had a great stagnation of trade, and badly depreciated currency; at a time when there was a real danger of a complete break between city and land.

The solution of this problem was the most vital problem of the dictatorship. Trotsky ascribed our plight to the irrationality of our economy, and proposed as the only remedy, to increase the rational elements in our economy; he considered the problem of price policy and currency reform as secondary. The central committee of the party viewed the matter from a different angle, and considered the currency reform and the lowering of prices as the two most important questions.

THE plan consists primarily in establishing a correct proportion between industry and agriculture. The demand for a dictatorship of industry over finances meant the failure to understand that industry is dependent upon its market—agriculture.

Trotsky and the opposition have not grasped the importance of the peasantry. The most important part of Trotsky's foreword to his "Lessons of October" is his statement that his estimate of the motive forces of the October revolution has proved to be correct. The underestimation of the peasantry is intimately bound up with the theory of "permanent revolution."

The speaker elaborates on the theory of "permanent revolution" and shows that the revolution has not developed according to Trotsky's tactics and slogans.

The party must overcome Trotsky's deviations. The central committee is pursuing the real Leninist policy, adapted to the given situation, but the fundamentals of Leninism as the party applies them are attacked by Trotsky's opposition.

THE fight conducted against the old guard, and the attempt to shift the center of gravity to the party youth was really an attempt to oppose the youth which was infected with Tritskyism, to the old guard.

Trotsky's demand for greater factional liberty also pursued a strategic aim. Another fundamental error of Trotskyism is the underestimation of the leading role of the party, and the overestimation of the state apparatus. The party had to declare ruthless war against these errors.

Those foreign comrades who had not analyzed the problems of Trotskyism but merely indulging in gossip, have themselves demonstrated the bankruptcy of Trotskyism.

IN the Comintern the Trotskyists are wholly isolated. The Communist Party of Russia has carried out an ideological campaign against Trotskyism. The party has acquired many new elements, and today the party has but few Trotskyists. The party won a splendid Bolshevist victory first, and only then did it resort to organizational measures. The central committee considers it its duty to continue the fight. The party is laboring under no illusions; it realizes that in spite of recognition and "peace" new contradictions will arise. The growth of the Soviet Union increases the Bolshevist danger, which in turn makes for new conflicts with the bourgeoisie. Hence the necessity for absolute unity and discipline in the entire leadership of the party. The speaker asks the plenum to give full support to the measures taken by the Communist Party of Russia against Trotsky. (Stormy applause.)

Bordiga Defends Trotskyism.

EVENING SESSION, Comrade SCOCCIMARCO (Italy): In the Italian party, Bordiga defends Trotskyism, which is not surprising, since Bordiga's views on the role of the party and the peasantry, on the role of the leaders, and on the theory of spontaneity, have much resemblance with Trotskyism.

Bordiga has supported Trotsky in the question of the October events, in the discussion of the Commuist Party of Russia, and in the question of the tactics of the Comintern executive. Bordiga demands the revision of the Comintern tactics in the question of the united front, in that of trade union unity, in the question of a workers' and peasants' government, and in the organizational questions. He refuses to admit his own mistakes.

Trotsky's attitude is not wholly identical with that of Bordiga, but the resemblance is great. Trotskyism is dangerous for the Comintern because it offers a point of crystallization for right tendencies.

TREINT (France): In France the right wing was opposed to the formation of trade union committees, and trade union fractions; in these questions the right wing wanted to retreat before the anarchists; it opposed the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei, it opposed the creation of a party apparatus, it supported the right wing in the German Communist Party, it succumbed to the illusions created by the MacDonald government, propagated the freedom of factions, and underestimated the role of the party. The right wing agrees with Trotsky. It attempted to establish international connections. The French delegation officially asks whether Trotsky has any connections with Souvarine, Rosmer and Monatte, and it expects an unequivocal answer. The Communist Party of France has combatted and liquidated Trotskyism which is particularly dangerous in petty bourgeois France.

BELL (England): The British party is in full accord with the central committee of the Communist Party of Russia and with the executive of the Comintern. During a stabilization period like the present one in central Europe, the party must not yield, but doubly intensify its activities. The right tendencies in the Comintern are based on the failure to grasp the essence of Bolshevism.

It is not at all surprising to hear the bourgeoisie praise the renegades Newbold, Price, Hoeglund, Balabanova, etc.; it is somewhat more difficult to explain their praise of Trotsky. The British party is aware that Trotskyism is an old problem.

Discipline and self-criticism are necessary to overcome our own errors. The central committee of the Communist Party of Russia has acted correctly.

NEUMANN (Germany): The speaker analyzes Trotskyism as an international phenomenon, and points out that in Germany Trotskyism occurs in the question of the relation of the party to the class, in the questions relating to the inner structure and leadership, in the question of the allies of the proletariat, and in the view that a bloc-revolution is possible.

The right wing is striv freedom of factionalism.

The lessons derived fr sky discussion must be ized. Every party should lessons.

SANBORN (America): In States Trotskyism is rep by Loreism. Lore has not Trotskyism theoretically. The er confirms the view of Buch all enemies of the Comintern Trotskyism. Lore is a typical of the Comintern. He supported rati and Levi against the Comi and wrote in 1923, that it w duty of the German Communist to prevent the German revol Lore's attitude towards the pea is Trotskyist, in spite of the fac the farmer question in America great importance. Lore is also posed to a centralised discipl party. The American party must Trotskyism on the ideological and or ganizational fields. The majority of the central committee of the Ameri can party at first vacillated on the Trotsky question, but under pressure from the minority, it accepted the resolution against Trotsky. Lore is an enemy of the party; we must fight him unitedly.

SCHAFARSCH (Czecho-Slovakia): The former central committee vacillated in the question of Trotskyism and criticized the methods and forms used in combatting Trotskyism. The new central committee of the Czech Party gave its full support to the central committee of the Communist Party of Russia in the second discussion. The defeat of Trotskyism was the defeat of opportunism on an international scale. The Czecho-Slovakian party is in full accord with the Communist Party of Russia in the Trotsky question.

DORSY (America) considers the Lore tendency not as dangerous as does Sanborn, if it is fought unitedly. The party has published the most important material on Trotskyism for the membership. Sanborn is right in demanding a campaign against Loreism, but such a campaign must be conducted in loyalty to the central committee. The American party is 100 per cent against Trotskyism. There is the danger of an artificial organisational interference without a previous ideological campaign. Bucharin has shown the right way to combat Trotskyism first ideologically, and then organisationally. The speaker hopes that the opposition will be liquidated, thereby making a unified fight against Loreism possible.

BUCHARIN, in his closing speech calls attention to the fact that the Trotskyists have not participated in this discussion. He moves that the political commission be instructed to formulate the resolution on the Trotsky question.

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty tract a stick of type in the lost and found columns, unless accompanied by a first class murder. But it must be said that the capitalist journalists whose business it is to think up new variations of these forgeries are sometimes capable of pulling off a first class fake. There is originality in the instructions attributed to Zinoviev, contained in his alleged letter to the Bulgarian Communists, advising the assassination of a fascist general, in order to provide an excuse for a funeral, which in turn would present a fine opportunity for a bomb to do its dirty work.

IT was quite obvious from the inception of the latest reaction in Bulgaria to the acts of the terrorist regime, that a new anti-Soviet conspiracy was on foot among the capitalist powers. Sofia dispatches to the New York Times inform us that the Bulgarian government has placed information in the hands of the governments of France, England and Italy, purporting to show that the Communist International had given the instructions which led up to the cathedral explosion. This may serve the purpose of the moment and enable the capitalist powers to break the Neuilly treaty and give Bulgaria permission to recruit a larger army.

FURTHER proof of the perfidy of the socialists is contained in a public statement made by the socialist leader, Passoukoff, who said: "Last week's events were the forerunner of the creation of a Soviet Republic in Bulgaria." This traitor goes on to say that he criticized the Zankov government in the past and would continue to do so in the future, but—. This means that he was put up to show the world that freedom of speech really existed in Bulgaria for the Zankov opposition, and that terror was used only on bomb throwers and desperadoes. What a despicable sinner!

ONE of the few labor weeklies that reach our exchange desk, that is worth reading is the Great Falls Town Topics. This particular paper is as refreshing as a hot dog with mustard at 2 o'clock on a sharp morning in February. It must be said that the Montana weekly has something to get excited about. That thing is Paul Smith, disorganizer extraordinary for the American Federation of Labor. He went into Great Falls, lit a fat cigar, stuck his thumbs into his vest after the fashion of the movie bawdy house keeper, and ordered the radicals to run for cover. The great open spaces resounded to the loud guffaw of laughter that the ukase of this fat chunk of protoplasm called forth. The militants are laughing yet, and fighting.

THE DAILY WORKER carried several stories on the situation in Great Falls. Suffice it to say that Smith tried to do there what he did in Minneapolis, when he ousted the Communists from the central labor body. But he did not kill the Communist movement in the Twin Cities; neither did he kill it in Great Falls. That he succeeded in doing some harm we will admit. And that the employers appreciate his disruptive work, is also admitted. It does not appear, however, that the militants in Great Falls are lying down and taking their punishment calmly. They are fighting back vigorously and they are to be congratulated on having a paper like Town Topics to throw the hooks into the fakers and give the labor movement the right lead. More power to them!

I'M tired of listening to sun-shine talk,
This pie-in-the-sky stuff,
This travesty on patient toil;
Let the Jesus-screamers,
The open shop artists,
And their ilk. . . .
Hook their fat necks over a flying emery wheel
For . . . . eight . . . . long . . . . hours;
And to the beat and whir of machinery,
Chant this:
"I work to get money to buy food to get strong.
So I can work to get money to buy food to get strong." . . .
Then, maybe, they will understand
Why the church pews are empty,
And men die for unionism.

SHOP NUCLEUS ISSUES FIRST FACTORY PAPER

Westinghouse Workers Anxious for More

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 24.—The first shop nucleus bulletin of the Workers (Communist) Party in America has appeared at the Westinghouse works of Pittsburgh. This marks a step in the Bolshevization of the Workers Party and its entry into the lives of American workers at their most vital spot, the point of production.

Many Brief Pointed Articles.

The bulletin, a four-page printed leaflet carries nine brief and pointed articles dealing with the most burning interests of the Westinghouse workers.

It leads off with an article against wage cuts, and says that the corporation is preparing to slash the workers' wages. Then there are articles on piece work, the relationship of capital and labor, an article favoring a real shop committee instead of the fake one now established, and an article opposing slave-driver foremen. Besides, there are write-ups on the films shown by the International Workers' Aid and the DAILY WORKER.

Workers Ask For More.

The Westinghouse Shop Nucleus promises to lead the way in activity for the numerous other shop nuclei of the Workers Party. This first bulletin was distributed at the plant to 1,000 workers who read it eagerly and who displayed great interest in what was to come next.

Canadian Workers Hop from Nova Scotia Fry Pan to U. S. Furnace

MONTREAL, Que., April 25—Residents of Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, continue to leave for the United States at the rate of twenty-five per day. The American consul at Sydney states the majority are from Glace Bay and the surrounding colliery districts. They include railway employes and men of the mechanical trades. The greater proportion will settle in Boston and vicinity.

Since the last of June, 1924, over 2,000 Cape Breton people have moved to the United States. A great number who had been looking forward to a settlement of the coal mine tieup and had their hopes blasted by the failure of the Halifax conference last week are now arranging for departure.

Anti-Semite Speech Creates Excitement at Plute Conference

WASHINGTON, April 24.— The meeting of the American society of international law was thrown into a turmoil today when Professor Philip Marshall Brown of Princeton university, delivered a speech contaning harsh criticism of Jews.

Brown's criticism of the Jews was directed at what he called their "internationalism." They do not, he said, give whole hearted allegiance to any one land.

Arthur K. Kahn promptly took exception to Prof. Brown's remarks. Prof. A. B. Hart of Harvard defended the argument of his Princeton colleague and finally the proceedings were becoming so heated that the chair admonished the convention that it would hear no more remarks on the subject. This offended Prof. Hart and he threatened to resign from the society.

Machinists' Union of Los Angeles Endorses Communist Candidates

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—At its regular meeting, held April 20, 1925, the Machinists' Union Lodge No. 311, of Los Angeles, endorsed the candidacy and program of Emmanuel Levin candidate for the board of education. The body also endorsed the candidacy of Edward Harris, member of the same union, who runs for office as alderman in District 15, San Pedro Harbor.

The meeting was well attended and those present listened very attentively to Comrade Levin who presented the program and important issues of the present campaign. After his talk the endorsement took place.

Turns Down Educational Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 24.—Governor Smith vetoed the Nicoll-Hofstadter bill which called for the establishment of additional colleges in Greater New York. The bill was favored by the educators of the city of New York. It was opposed by Brooklyn business men including Borough President Joseph A. Guider. Smith said he needed another year to decide whether the "people of the city were for the bill."

Jury Gets the Wheeler Case

forced to demand order and settle disputes.

Telephone Records Destroyed

Decision to go ahead with arguments was reached only when Judge Dietrich interposed to break an impasse between rival attorneys that threatened a recess until Monday to await the appearance of new witnesses from the east. The fight was precipitated over the defense's efforts to smash the testimony of George B. Hayes, New York attorney, star witness of the prosecution.

Hayes provided the big sensation of the trial when he testified that Wheeler, in a New York hotel lobby, in March, 1923, urged him to replace the senator in handling Campbell's oil permits and litigations before the interior department. Edwin S. Booth, formerly solicitor of the department, arranged the meeting over long distance telephone, Hayes said. Both Wheeler and Booth denied any knowledge of the meeting or of the alleged offer.

Telephone officials first reported to the defense there was no record of a call from Booth to Hayes. The prosecution told the court that the department of justice had conducted an independent investigation and found no call because telephone records had been destroyed. Neither side would admit the offer's telephonic information into evidence. The court recessed four hours.

Wheeler Faces Second Charge

Finally telephone officials sent another message to the defense, veryfying the government's information that the records had been destroyed. Immediately Walsh rested for the defense. Without offering rebuttal, Slattery anounced the government also closed.

Subpoenas isued for the additional witnesses were revoked.

After this trial Wheeler faces a second indictement in Washington, charging him jointly with Booth and Campbell with conspiracy to obtain Montana oil and gas lands from the government.

Prosecutor's Plea

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 24.—The trial of Senator Wheeler entered its final stage with closing arguments by opposing counsel.

The jury was expected to get the case before nightfall.

Picturing Wheeler as a betrayer of his public trust, John L. Slattery, United States district attorney closed the case for the government with an appeal for a verdict of guilty.

Esperanto Used for Radio.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Esperanto has been adopted as the official language for radio broadcasting by the amateur radio congress in Paris, France, according to a cablegram received by the Esperanto Club here.

2,000 WILLIMANTIC TEXTILE STRIKERS STILL FIGHT CUTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARTFORD, Conn., April 24—(FP)—Strikers at the Willimantic plant of the American Thread Co. are in their seventh week out protesting against the last wage cut proposed by the employers.

Flood of Protests Against Fleet War Reach Washington

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24.—Protests against the maneuvers of the United States Pacific fleet have flooded the offices fo the secretary of the navy here. So many protests have come in that the department is sending out a form letter, signed by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, which attempts to answer them.

Most of the letters protesting the action of the Coolidge government in sending the fleet into Pacific waters for maneuvers declare the action an unfriendly act toward Japan.

Japanese Consul Probes Death of 38 in Sinking of Maru

NEW YORK, April 24.—The Japanese government, thru its consul general, is investigating the circumstances of the sinking of the Raifuku Mary, when 38 Japanese sailors were drowned while the English liner Homeric stood by, but made no effort to lower life boats.

Many of the passengers charged that Captain John Roberts could have saved the crew had he lowered boats.

H. Saito, consul general, said that his office is working on the case, in conjunction with officials of the Kokusai Kisen Kaisha, owners of Raifuku Maru.

Cram Constitution Down Throats.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 23.—The senate today passed a bill making compulsory the teaching of the constitution of the United States in all public schools. The anti-klan bill introduced by Representative King was reported favorably into the house by the judiciary committee. The bill, however, was amended to include all fraternal organizations and not the klan alone.

Blue Laws In Action.

GUILFORD, Conn.—(FP)— Ancient blue laws are being revived by modern New England puritans in Guilford to close two fruit and candy stores of the town on Sundays. Drug stores are to be closed, filling stations and fish and oyster markets in the sluice basin. Fishermen and farmers are likely to be prohibited from working on Sunday.

Vandervelde Promises Cabinet Friday

BRUSSELS—Belgian political circles today predicted that premier-designate, Vandervelde, will announce the formation of his exclusively "socialist" cabinet today. Catholics and liberals refused to co-operate with him.

Briand Goes to See Chamberlain.

PARIS — Aristide Briand, new French foreign minister, was expected today to leave for London soon for conferences with Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, on the proposed security pact.

Actors Organize In Germany.

BERLIN, Germany, April 24.—The leading actors of Germany are solidly organized in opposition to the agreement of theater managers not to pay any singer or actor more than 300 gold marks (about $75.00) a night.

More Laws for Labor All Right; But None to Limit Profits

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 24.—Emphatic protest against the tendency of the American people to demand the enactment of laws "for all sorts of problems better handled without government interference," was voiced before the executive council of the American Bankers' Assn., in annual session here.

The speaker was Merle Thorpe, editor of the official magazine of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. He argued that business was becoming so complex that these new laws create misunderstandings. Sound business, for instance, could not see the logic of asking for lower freight rates and at the same time endorsing higher railroad wages. Government should leave business to run things its own way.

Airplane Carts Off Piano.

MINEOLA, N. Y., April 24.—Carrying two pianos and six men, the Sikorsky bi-plane left Roosevelt field at 8:55 a. m., to day for Bolling Field, Washington, on its pioneer trip. Igor Sikorsky, designer and pilot, was in command. The purpose of the trip was to demonstrate the bi-plane's freight carrying capacity.

Pass Buck on Redistricting

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 24.—Agitated because the senate "had passed the buck" to the house, the lower branch of the general assembly, today for the second time, defeated a senate joint resolution calling for the appointment of a legislative committee to redistrict the state. The vote was 75 to 54.

Butte Digs Out of Snow

BUTTE, Mont., April 24.—Butte this morning was digging itself out of the greatest spring snow storm in the city's history. More than 20 inches of snow fell during yesterday and last night tieing up street car and automobile traffic and seriously impairing telephone and telegraph service.

Two Silk Firms Now One.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—Details of a $1,500,000 transaction were made public here today with the announcement that the Real Silk Hosiery Mills, Indianapolis, had purchased the Theime Brothers Co., Fort Wayne. The latter concern is said to be one of the country's largest silk hosiery manufacturing firms.

Job For Birth Controller.

ANDERSON, S. C., April 24.—The birth of triplets this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clarence Fields of Anderson county, establishes a record of five children born to them in ten months. Twins were born to them June 19, 1924. Mr. and Mrs. Fields are 30 years old each.

CAPITALIST PRESS IS SUSPECTED OF MAKING READY FOR OPEN SHOP

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK CITY, April 24.—The American Newspaper Publishers' association, at its 39th annual convention here, put thru a resolution which took away the power of the convention itself to negotiate contracts with organized labor, and placed that power in the hands of the board of directors.

While the actual ratification of the contracts is supposed to remain in the hands of the membership of the association as before, the move is looked upon by workers on newspapers as a step to concentrate power in the hands of the reactionary directors preparatory to an open shop drive on the unions engaged in newspaper production.

PRISONS JAMMED TWICE CAPACITY, FEAR EPIDEMIC

Government Gives No Relief to Inmates

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., April 24.—The federal prison here is becoming so crowded that special relief has been asked from the department of justice.

It was also admitted by prison officials that other federal penitentiaries were just as crowded.

Three thousand one hundred and thirty-one prisoners is the population of the institution, with two carloads on the way from California and Indiana.

Danger of Epidemic.

There are only 1,400 one-man cells here and it has become necessary to double up and put cots in basements to take care of the overflow. No ground remains within the prison walls to construct a new cell house.

The huge dining hall accommodates 1,240 and three breakfasts, dinners and suppers are necessary to serve all.

With the danger of epidemic present, some relief must be obtained quickly, for McNeil Island, in the west, has discontinued receiving prisoners and Atlanta, Georgia, is reported to have at least 200 more than capacity.

All Prisons Overcrowded.

Six hundred more convicts are expected to "dress in" at Leavenworth by July 1.

All state institutions are reported taxed to the utmost, and no state at present can take over any prisoners, as is sometimes done.

Two years at least would be required for the construction of a new penitentiary due to congressional enabling acts and red tape.

Dever and Small Fight to Become Bankers' Servants

The city council is acting on a resolution calling on the state legislature to exempt Chicago from the state commerce commission, and place a committee appointed by the mayor in charge of the Chicago traction franchise.

The state senate is now considering a bill introduced by Richard Barr, which would allow the state commerce commission to issue permanent franchises to Chicago's traction companies.

Mayor Dever and Governor Small are now engaged in a fight as to which political group will turn the traction lines over to the bankers, and receive favors from them in return. The Barr bill was framed by Samuel Insull and his fellow traction magnates, Senator Barr admitted.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, April 24.—Great Britain, pound sterling, demand 480¾; cable 480¾. France, franc, demand 5.20; cable 5.20½. Belgium, franc, demand 5.05½; cable 5.06. Italy, lira, demand 4.10½; cable 4.11. Keep Up War on Home Brews.

WASHINGTON, April 24—Federal prohibition authorities will continue their campaign against home brewers in spite of the decision of Chief Justice McCoy of the district supreme court that homes cannot be searched for liquor law violations unless previous sales of liquor can be proved.

Death or the Movies.

Early Neilson, 12, was near death today from a self-inflicted gunshot wound because his parents had refused his permission to go to the movies. The boy shot himself with a small calibre hunting rifle given him a few weeks ago on his twelfth birthday.

Battle Blaze In Berlin.

BERLIN.—Millions of dollars damage was done by a fire which started last night and burned out only today in the General Electric company. The entire Berlin fire department battled the blaze all night. One fireman was seriously injured.

Baby Airplane Ready.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 24.—A tiny airplane weighing only 338 pounds, driven by a 22½ horsepower motor will make a non-stop flight from Dayton to New York and return within ten days or two weeks.

France Has Money for War

PARIS, April 24.—The second half of the naval program calling for an appropriation of 3,194,000,000 francs covering a period from 1925 to 1932 was adopted by the chamber of deputies today, 422 to 29.

"Unknown Soldier" Gets Wreath.

PARIS.—King George and Queen Mary of England placed a wreath on the grave of the unknown soldier at the Arc de Triomphe this morning, following their arrival from the Rivera, and later lunched with President Doumergue.

John D. Jr. Presents to the World the "Model Father" of Capitalism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who competes with Edsel Ford as heir to the greatest pile of riches in the world, relieves himself of another paternalistic sermon to the effect that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is á "model father."

It would certainly be gross ungratefulness on the part of John D. Jr., who has never performed a real day's work in all his life, to argue otherwise. Life has been pretty soft for John D. Jr., outside of the terrific exertion it takes to lecture a bible class in a Fifth Avenue baptist church, in New York City, occasionally.

• • • •

John D. Jr. has kept up the christian end, while John D. Sr., has kept up the killing end of the Rockefeller business. "Jr." may be godly, but "Sr." was the go-getter, and still is, under a capitalist system that demands the subsidizing and corruption of a subservient government, to maintain an oppressive rule over the wage working masses, in order that private property may thrive, and profits flow in unstintingly.

John D. Sr. may be a "model father." He is a "model capitalist" as he is a "successful capitalist." But there are 100,000,000 workers and poor farmers, with their children, in this country who are rapidly learning that the model and successful capitalist is their worst enemy, that John D. Sr. may treat his own children well, but that doesn't lift by the smallest iota the great burden of misery that crushes heavily upon the children of the working class. What labor is looking for are working class "models" of perfection and not capitalist class "models."

• • • •

John D. Jr. says, "I cannot remember hearing my father say a harsh word to any of his children." Why should he? If any were to be spoken he could no doubt hire nurses and governesses to do that.

But the harsh words of the Rockefeller fortune are continually dinned into the ears of workers, the world around, by the lash wielding taskmasters. Whether in the oil refineries of Bayonne, New Jersey, the coal fields of southern Colorado, the oil fields of a dozen countries, or upon the oil ships that sail all the seas, all belonging to the Rockefeller Standard Oil trust, there the curses of the Rockefeller wealth are heard in an unending stream, urging labor at break neck speed to produce more wealth, greater profits, for the Rockefeller family.

• • • •

John D. Jr. adds, "I cannot remember him ever criticizing us." But the working class has heard. Whenever it has sought to better its conditions, on the job, or in legislative halls, there Rockefeller money has been on hand to wield its anti-labor whip.

John D. Sr. may not have criticized his own children, but his thugs and gunmen, in the uniform of the Colorado militia, or otherwise, murdered the women and children, not to mention the men of the Colorado coal fields.

If the lips of the oppressed of Rockefeller oil could speak, their utterances would frame tales of horror that would outmatch those of any oppressed class since history began. It is not the model father that the workers are interested in. Labor struggles for a model social system that sloughs off class oppression forever and makes it possible for all to live happily.

• • • •

Annually, around his birthday anniversary, John D. Sr. goes, of a Sunday, to the church at Tarrytown, N. Y., and delights the children of the neighborhood by dispensing brand new silver dimes among them. That is the price that the czar of oil places upon the affection of the children—a thin dime's worth.

But the children of this generation, in the pulsating working class sections of the nation and the world, are discovering different values. Not in the language of the Highland Park, Illinois, Press, declaring that, "the red workers have numerous agents at work in various ways, trying to teach the youngster that patriotism is something to be ashamed of, that the American government means bondage for the workers and that the only system of government is that which is now in vogue in Red Russia." Capitalism itself, with its oil czar, and heir apparent; with its flivver king and his crown prince; with its whole retinue of money monarchs and industrial kaisers, is even arousing the children to the real nature of the social system under which they live. These children will grow to consider only those fathers, as "model fathers," who organize and struggle for the ending of this Rockefeller-Ford-Morgan capitalist social system; for the Communist victory of the working class. For such "model fathers," John D. Jr., like the ruling oppressors of all capitalist nations, open prisons, gates swinging inward, and call on firing squads to do their murderous work. Yet these are the "model fathers" of the future, the future that belongs to the working class.

Labor Daily Bares Bulgar Plot

Against Individual Terror.

The press of Soviet Russia fiercely attacks the capitalist papers for the new lying campaign against Russia in connection with the latest terror in Bulgaria. The Pravda says: "We Communists are resolutely opposed to individual terror. We call on all supporters of the Comintern not to lend themselves to provocation, and to rely only upon the movement of the masses, organizing them against all government licentiousness. The Comintern never, nowhere, has planned individual terror."

The Soviet press expresses the belief that the bomb in the cathedral is a manifestation of popular wrath against the white terror of the government. Comrade Koralov, an official of the Communist International and a Bulgarian, in an article declares that the attempt on the life of the Bulgarian king was the work of Zankov agents, as the king opposed the terroristic policy of the government and refused to sign the death sentences.

It is reported that the British and American ministers in Sofia have protested against the severity of the white terror. The American said it might cause a widespread revolt of labor in Europe against the capitalist class.

The Handy Professor.

One of the leading fascist sheets in Bulgaria urged the appointment of Prof. Constantine Stephanove, of the Sofia University, as minister to the United States. The professor is Bulgarian correspondent for Hearst's international news service and appears to be a staunch supporter of the Zankov government.

This professor is sending out lurid stories of Soviet plots, of Soviet bombs captured and statements defending the actions of the Zankov regime.

The workers of the United States are warned against accepting as facts the news of events in Bulgaria appearing in the capitalist press, particularly stories with a Sofia dateline. Nothing can get out of Sofia that does not meet with the approval of the government military chiefs. Professor Stephanove's dispatches appear in the Hearst papers.

Lisbon Rebels in Fortress.

LISBON, Portugal, April 24.—Thirty-eight officers who took part in the recent revolt of several army regiments have been transferred from the warship Vasco da Gama, where they were being held, to the fortress of Elvan Hantarem.

FASCISTS PICK FIGHT ON REDS; THREE KILLED

Paris Police Fired on Communists

PARIS, April 24.—Considerable excitement prevails here today over the result of a battle which took place yesterday between young Communists and fascists, in which three of the black-shirts were killed.

The trouble came to a head when a meeting, to which a Communist woman was invited to speak, broke up in disorder. The meeting was addressed by a nationalist or fascist deputy and his followers caused a riot when the Communist tried to speak. When the crowd was leaving the hall the fascisti attacked the Communists, using revolvers. The latter, having secured arms, returned and a regular street battle took place.

The chief of police was routed out of his bed and when he arrived on the scene of battle, he ordered the police to fire on the Communists.

Governor Smith Dumps Ricca Teachers' Salary Bill in Waste Basket

ALBANY, N. Y., April 24.—Governor Smith vetoed the Ricca teachers' salary bill. The New York teachers have put up a hard battle to get an increase in their salary to correspond with the present cost of living. They have been fought viciously by the United Real Estate Owners' association of New York and Mayor Hylan who has lined up with the real estate men against the teachers.

They placed their hopes on Governor Smith. They sent petitions to the governor signed by teachers, by parents and by all those who believed the teachers should get their raise. They went in a body of over 1,000 to Albany to personally convince the governor of the justness of their claim.

But Stewart Brown, president of the real estate owners, confidently boasted that their efforts were all in vain. He is quoted us saying on one occasion that one word from him to the governor would veto the bill. The governor did veto the bill.

French Government Wins Confidence Vote in Chamber of Deputies

PARIS, April 24.—The government under the newly appointed premier, Paul Painleve, won a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies this afternoon, 330 to 204.

A resolution to have the address which Herriot, new president of the chamber, delivered yesterday, posted on all public buildings, was carried by a vote of 318. The minority would not vote.

Stronger Guard on Mexican Border.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24.—President Coolidge took steps to enact a more careful guard for American imperialism on the Mexican border. Representatives of the departments of state, justice, labor and the treasury have been called into a joint conference to take means of strengthening the guard at the border.

Railroad Negro to Prison

An insane Negro who was a patient in the Cook County hospital, was sentenced to thirty years in prison in Chief Justice Hopkin's court for an alleged attack on a woman patient. The jury deliberated only fifteen minutes. The evidence brot out that the Negro, William Smith, had not been normal for some time. There was no thot of sending the Negro to an insane hospital, however, and he was railroaded to prison with scant consideration.

Hunt for "Baby-Farm"

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 24.—Authorities today were investigating the possible existence of a "baby farm" near here following the finding of the body of a murdered day-old girl baby. The infant, its throat cut, had been tossed into a vacant lot in a burlap sack. It was the fifth slain child found here since March.

Truck Holds Its Own

NORWOOD, Mass., April 24.—Two unidentified men were killed and their companion, Joseph King of Newton, was seriously injured today when their automobile crashed into the rear end of a motor truck driven by Wilfred Mahen. The truck driver escaped unhurt.

Urge Long Water Route

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 24.—U. S. Senator Charles Dineen of Chicago, addressing a joint session of the Illinois state legislature today, expressed firm belief that a water transportation route from the St. Lawrence river to the seas and the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, soon would be a reality.

Report Rebels Take Ceiba.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 24.—La Ceiba has been reported captured by Honduran revolutionists.

FEAR MEMBERS MAY REJECT BARBER AWARD

Officials Suppress All Opposition

At the last meeting of Local 548 of the Barbers' Union in Chicago, the members were dumbfounded at the high-handed methods of their officials. The officials showed they would stop at nothing to put thru their policies. Robert's Rules of Order, the international constitution and fair play were shamelessly disregarded and the union czars enforced their rule with an iron hand.

The vice-chairman of the meeting, after raising a point of order against an amendment, upon meeting an appeal from the decision of the chair, absolutely refused to put the question of sustaining the chair to a vote of the members. And he was the one who had made the point of order! He would allow no one else the floor. And why was he so frightened at the amendment?

Fear Membership May Rule.

The amendment simply proposed that the agreement on wages and hours be left up to the rank and file, which was to be called in to a meeting for the ratification or rejection of the award handed down by the arbitrator. The officials evidently thought that was a terrible thing, so they suppressed ruthlessly the streng support given the amendment by the rank and file members present.

Thruout the dispute for better conditions the left wing members of the Progressive Barbers' Group in the union have repeatedly pointed out that arbitration always works for the bosses and against the workers. The bosses now say they are satisfied with the award. The militant rank and filers demand that the membership shall have the final say-so as to accepting or rejecting conditions under which they, and not the officials, shall work. The members shall continue to demand this right until they get it.

Invited to Meetings.

The aim of the Progressive Barbers' Group is to educate the workers in the craft and show them how to win their struggles. The group is giving a series of lectures at a time and place to be announced later in the DAILY WORKER. Every interested barber should write to I. Eitingon, 1323 N. Artesian avenue, for information as to coming meetings and lectures.

"Polikushka" and Other Russian Movies Shown in Pittsburgh Tonight

At the North Side Carnegie Music Hall at Pittsburgh will be the scene of another working class movie triumph when the famous Moscow Art Theater film, "Polikushka," is shown there Saturday, April 25. With it goes a Russian slapstick comedy, "The Miracle of Soldier Ivan," in which a Russian Charley Chaplin makes use of religious superstition to get out of the army and back into his sweetheart's ample arms.

"Lenin Memorial," showing high lights in the life and death of our great working class leader, will fill out the program, since the censors unexpectedly passed it.

Othe showings of the same program include:

MacDonald, Pa.—Orpheum Theater, April 28.
Bentleyville, Pa.—May 1.
Daisytown, Pa.—May 2.
New Kensington—May 6, Columbus Theater.

Arrangements are being made in Cleighton, Pa., for the showing of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" in the near future.

T. U. E. L. General Meet Wed., April 29, 8 P. M.

The regular meting of the Chicago Trade Union Educational League general group will be held Wednesday, April 29, at 8 p. m., at North West Hall, corner North and Western Aves. An interesting series of reports on the progress of the militants in the Chicago trade union movement will be given. All militant and progressive trade unionists are invited to attend this important meeting.

Eat and Dance in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, April 24. — A dance and a supper will be given by the Young Workers League, May 2, at 6 o'clock at 5607 St. Claire Ave. The admission will be ten cents.

Farrington Tool Not Union Member

and started to argue about a motion passed in the local union, trying to make out that the local was "defying the organization." The committee protested that they were not there to discuss the action of the local but to carry out its orders in the particular case of investigation of Walker.

"Now, you shut up," said Nesbit, "You can't talk to me in my office the way you do in your local union. It is up to me to give these facts out if I want to. I can if I want to, and if I don't want to, I don't have to."

Nesbit Threatens to "Get" Committee

Nesbit then told Mike Volkitis, one of the committee, "You fellows be careful or we will get you."

Another committeeman, Joseph Angelo, then told Nesbit: "When we go to make our report to the membership and I tell them that you refused to give us the facts in this case after coming here to see you, that will not look very good, will it?"

Threatens to Revoke Charter.

Nesbit grew angrier than ever and said: "Go back and tell your membership that if they do not pay their tax before the 25th of the month they will be put on the delinquent list and the charter revoked."

Angelo replied: "Isn't it a fact that our local union is in good standing?" And to Nesbit's reply that it was, Angelo added: "Why don't you let us see the records so we can get at the facts?"

A Stall.

Nesbit refused, altho the committee presented their credentials, and stalled them off by saying that if they would get the local to write him a letter he would answer it.

The information the committee sought was additional to that upon which they based their decision on Walker, that decision being founded upon independent evidence clearly shown in the records of the financial secretary of the local union.

From the local secretary it was found that Walker did not pay dues for either October, November or December, and thus became delinquent on December 31. According to the international constitution he is required to carry out its provisions given in Article 14, Section 2, as follows:

What Jackey Must Do.

"Any member becoming three months in arrears for dues and assessments, unless exonerated from the payment of same, shall forfeit his membership and can be reinstated only by paying an initiation fee and such other penalties as may be imposed by the district in which application for membership is made."

Walker, it appears from local union records, tried to sneak back when a Farrington job appointment was being conspired, by paying his back dues during January and attempting by this illegal method to re-establish his membership.

Cites Farington's Words as Precedent.

The local committee, in taking the stand that no back door reinstatement could be had by Walker, cites Farrington's own words in relation to Duncan McDonald, when Farrington said "True, after McDonald's delinquency was exposed, or when he was caught with the goods on him, he paid up the long overdue assessment, but he was too late then."

Miners, in mock extenuation of "Jackey's" failure to pay dues, remark: "Well, how can you expect Jackey to pay dues from the coal he never dug? And then the wife had to invest in a new washtub last winter, and this drained the family exchequer."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

appeared in a recent issue of the Chicago Fur Worker, which is published by Chicago Fur Workers' Union Local No. 45.

THE Chicago Fur Worker says that the workers: "should become thoroly acquainted with their own class problems as such and the new ways that have been opened in the world for the true welfare of mankind." The writer goes on to say that the study of Marx is essential, as this study would supply them with the key for a proper understanding of the relations between capital and labor.

THE writer takes a slam at the American labor leaders who have no sympathy with working class education that stresses the class struggle. "Working class education shall begin first, last and always with Marx, if it shall ever get somewhere." Quite true, but it should not finish with Marx. The study of Marx should be followed by the study of Lenin and Leninism, the Marxism of the final stage of capitalism. The Chicago Fur Worker deserves an approving slap on the back for its words on workers' education. It may consider it slapped.

MORE news from Bulgaria and more correctly about Bulgaria. The DAILY WORKER correspondent in London thinks it quite possible that Zankov may draw a sharp blade across the royal thyroids of King Boris, or hit him in the region of his pituitary gland with a sledge. We are not losing any sleep over the king's fate, but every worker should be concerned over the fate of the Bulgarian workers and peasants. The capitalists are standing solidly behind the murder regime and have allowed Zankov to raise 7,000 more troops. Thousands of workers and peasants are being butchered, yet there is not a squeak of protest from the capitalist press.

JOSIAH WEDGWOOD, labor member of the British parliament declared that Communists are outside the law in Bulgaria. The secret service had a list of Communists and the military authorities took over this list and arrested all who could be found. Over six thousand were taken into custody in Sofia alone inside of a few days and of this number 250 have been executed, said Wedgwood. The prisoners were taken out in lorry loads and murdered outside the city. Before they were executed the prisoners were tortured, bastonati (beating of the feet with sticks) being resorted to. This is what Wewdwood reports. He was in Sofia when the explosion took place. He is a moderate laborite and cannot be accused of being predisposed in favor of the Communists.

• • •

THE eyes of the workers and peasants of the whole world are today turned on Bulgaria. The reactionary labor leaders who dominate the unions in Central Europe could halt the hands of the Zankov murderers within twenty-four hours if they only had the will. As it is, they are in hearty sympathy with the policy of execution and assassination which has made the present Bulgarian regime a thing of horror. Only the section of the labor movement under the influence and leadership of the Communist International is taking steps to put an end to the bloody reign of the Zankov man killers.

DU PONT MONEY BEHIND DOPE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Delaware Teachers Fired Unless They Read Bible

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILMINGTON, Del., April 24.—At a methodist episcopal church conference attended by 240 ministers of the state, Pierre S. DuPont, of the powder trust, was the principal speaker. The ministers praised DuPont and obsequiously alluded to his millions of dollars.

DuPont showed that he and the DuPont Powder company's money are behind the new law which recently passed the state legislature making virtual slaves out of the teachers and forcing the school children of Delaware to undergo religious instruction.

Law Compels Doping.

The law compels the reading of at least five verses of the bible each day in the public schools. For the first failure to comply with this law the teacher is fined $25. For the second "offense" the teacher's certificate is revoked, and she is dismissed. Many of the teachers have objected to this forcible doping of the students.

"The legislature has passed a law compelling teachers to read the bible in the schools," DuPont told the teachers. "It would be better that she would become so imbued that she would want to read it."

The conference of the ministers and the speech of DuPont is but one of a series of maneuvers of the DuPonts to crush all attempts of the workers to act for themselves.

Provide New Armory.

The senate a few days ago passed a bill which had already been passed by the house, appropriating $250,000 from the state treasury for the building of an armory in Wilmington.

The state college at Newark, near here, has been turned into a virtual war training camp, the students being forced to engage in sham battles and extensive war drills and maneuvers for the benefit of officers visiting from the war department at Washington.

Express Slips Into Local

Passengers on two loop bound elevated trains received severe joltings today when a Jackson Park express crashed into the rear of a local train at the Fullerton Ave station. The motorman of the express said the tracks had been made slippery by rain and he was unable to stop his train. The accident tied up express tracks for half an hour.

High Court Turns Down Murderer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 24.—Unless Governor Small reprives further Russell Scott, under sentence to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, he must pay the supreme penalty following the expiration of his present reprieve on July 17. The supreme court today denied his petition for a writ of error and supersedeas.

Industrial Accidents Claim Many

ALBANY, N. Y.—One hundred and forty-three workers died from industrial accidents in New York state in March, a report of the state department of labor shows. Twenty-nine of these are accounted for by construction work. Six died from industrial poisoning.

INDIANA CITY BACKS ACTION AGAINST KLUXER

Accused of Murderous Attack on Girl

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—The city of Indianapolis gave support today to the prosecution of David S. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana ku klux klan, on charges of first degree murder in connection with the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, who swallowed poison after an alleged criminal attack.

Members of the city council, headed by Council President Ben H. Thompson, announced their intention of drafting a ordinance appropriating $500 from the municipal treasury to aid in the prosecution of Stephenson and his co-defendants, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck.

To Pass Ordinance.

Thompson called on the city attorney for an opinion as to the legality of such ordinance, but expressed the belief that the proposed ordinance would be valid. The statute permitting the council to appropriate money for rewards in capturing criminals can be extended to justify the Stephenson prosecution fund in his opinion, Thompson said.

If the city attorney pronounces the proposed ordinance legal, it will be drawn up by John L. Hogue, city comptroller, and submitted to the council at its meeting Monday night.

Attorneys for both sides were silent on what effect the verdict of the coroner, that "Madge Oberholtzer died from mercury poisoning," might have on the state's case against Stephenson, also formerly recognised as one of Indiana's dominant politicians.

Fight Over Bail.

However, the murder indictments admit the direct cause of Miss Oberholtzer's death was bichloride of mercury, but they charge Stephenson and his cohorts with the responsibility for her suicidal attempt, which resulted in the girl's death a month ago.

A spirited court proceeding was anticipated in the hearing Monday on the former klan organizer's petition to be admitted to bail. The defense will be forced to bring out much of its evidence in averring that the charges are sufficient to justify refusal of bail.

Stephenson, Klenck and Gentry have been in jail since their arrest Monday.

Dawes Plan and Union Bureaucrats Kill 8-Hour Law in Europe

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(FP)—In the first issue of the International Metal Workers' Federation Bulletin to be published since the war—a copy reaching the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor from I. M. F. headquarters in Berne—the denial of the eight-hour day by German, Polish and other national groups of metal manufacturers in Europe is described.

Actual working time in the German metal industry has been increased to from 51 to 57 hours per week. Nominal working time is 51 hours. In January, 1925, full time employment was reported for 94.38 per cent of the 2,074,000 workers in the industry.

Reports to the federation from Poland showed that Polish employers use the excuse that German competition forces them to disregard the eight-hour rule.

Trade union leaders, fearing the effect of a struggle at this time, have agreed, for the second time, to a "voluntary" suspension of the eight-hour limit for six months. This surrender was hastened by the closing of many plants and the reduction of hours in most of the remainder.

Worker Killed by Open Shop Firm's Criminal Neglect

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MISHAWAKA, Ind., April 24.—Edward Joyal, a pipe layer on a sewer laying job, was crushed to death here when nine feet of clay gave way and buried him. The case was the result of such carelessness on the part of the contractor, who would not afford the safeguarding of a few boards to hold the ditch sides, that even the coroner is denouncing the contractor for "inexcusable negligence." Joyal leaves nine children and a widow.

Whitcomb & Keller, the contractors, are an open shop firm, and the workers have no hope that they will pay either civilly or criminally for their negligence.

Metal Trades Group Meets Saturday Eve.

The regular monthly meeting of the Metal Trades Group of the T. U. E. L. will be held Saturday, April 25th, at 722 Blue Island avenue. Meeting is called for 7:30 p. m.

The result of the elections in the machinists' locals will be reported and also other reports will be made. This meeting promises to be very interesting and all left wing metal trades workers should be present.

The Workers Party in Action

DISTRIBUTE GREAT QUANTITIES OF LITERATURE TO CALL WORKERS OF CHICAGO TO BIG MAY DAY MEETING

Temple Hall, W. Van Buren St. and Marshfield Ave., has been chosen for the monster May Day gathering of workers to be held in Chicago Friday evening, May 1, at 8 p. m. This meeting which will include an entertainment and concert, will be held under the auspices of the Chicago May Day committee and will be participated in by many labor organizations in Chicago.

The committee reports the distribution of from 35,00 to 40,000 May Day leaflets. Every comrade in every branch in the city of Chicago has been mobilised in the house to house literature distribution campaign prior to the meeting and posters advertising the meeting are on display in all the working class districts. To assure every worker knowing about the meeting, Martin Abern, district organizer, informs us that noonday meetings will be held on May 1, in front of the largest plants and factories in Chicago at which leaflets will be distributed and the workers will be invited to participate in the revolutionary workers' holiday.

Big List of Speakers.

The meeting promises to be the biggest and most inspiring May Day gathering ever held in Chicago. Such nationally known and prominent speakers as Comrades C. E. Ruthenberg and James P. Cannon are on the list of speakers. There will also be a speaker for the Negro workers, Comrade E. L. Doty, who will tell us about the Negro Labor Congress. Martin Abern, district organizer of Chicago will tell about the work in Chicago, and Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker will review the big achievements in the youth movement during the year. Our very active, very lively and very aggressive little comrades known as the Juniors inform us that "They are Ready" to show all the older comrades a good time in addition to reporting on their activities for the year.

Singing Societies in Program.

The Scandinavian Singing Society, the Freiheit Mandolin and Singing Society and the Young Workers League orchestra will liven up the entertainment and concert with revolutionary songs in which the audience will join. And of course there will be the Juniors.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF BOSTON MAY DAY COMMITTEE, APRIL 27

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—On Monday April 27th at 8 p. m. sharp there will be a meeting of the May Day conference committee at Dudley street Opera House, Room 5, 113 Dudley St., Roxbury, Mass. This is a very important meeting as all final arrangements for the May Day celebration will be made at this meeting. Branch secretaries and executive committees must see to it that their delegates attend this meeting.

WHOOPEE! THE FIRST PICNIC IS IN SIGHT

T. U. E. L. Joyfest at Altenheim, May 30

The regular annual picnic of the Trade Union Educational League of Chicago is to be held on Decoration Day, May 30th, at Altenheim grove, and all T. U. E. L. groups and Workers Party organisations are requested to observe the date and to act at once in throwing all possible assistance to this picnic in order that it be a big success.

This is the first big picnic of the 1925 season, and everyone is expected to turn out with bells on to enjoy themselves with the militant unionists and left wingers. All workers are invited, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Altenheim grove is one of the nicest groves in the Chicago suburbs, reached without transfer on the Forest Park "L" or by Madison street car with one change to the suburban line.

Hot Dogs and Good Union Orchestra at Tomorrow's Dance

There's a tough bunch of hard hitting Communists billed for the entertainment and springtime dance to be staged at Workers' Lyceum tomorrow, Sunday evening. But they're going to put over their wallops to music, and union music at that, says Master of Ceremonies Paul Simonson.

There will be excellent waltzes, fox trots, one steps and all on an excellent floor. Refreshments provided include hot dog, cold pop and chicken on the hoof. Get there early and stay late. Take the California avenue surface car to Hirsch boulevard, or the north bound Oakley boulevard bus right to the door at 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

Important Meeting of Jewish Y.W.L. Members This Afternoon at 4

Every Jewish speaking member of the Y. W. L. local Chicago (no matter whether he is a member of the auxiliary branches or not) must without fail attend a very important meeting on Saturday, April 25, 4 p. m. at the Freiheit Hall, 3118 W. Roosevelt Rd., 2nd floor. If you understand Jewish, be there. Jewish local "Propcom" Y. W. L.—J. Weiss, Sec'y.

Wicks Main Speaker at Educational Meet in Wilmington, Del.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 24.—An educational meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party, local Wilmington, was held here, with H. M. Wicks as the principal speaker. Comrade Wicks traced the rise of the Communist movement from the time when Karl Marx wrote the Communist manifesto, to the Russian revolution, and the establishment fo the Communist International.

He also showed how the socialists have betrayed the workers.

Diplomats Extend Condolences

MOSCOW, March 21.—(By Mail)—All the foreign diplomatic representatives at Moscow have officially expressed condolences to the Soviet government at the death of Narimanoff, president of the central executive committee of the Soviet Republic of Trans-Caucasia.

May Day Carnival Harlem Casino on May 2, of T. U. E. L.

The Eastern District, and the Needle Trades Section, T. U. E. L. have arranged a joint May Carnival and dance for Saturday evening, May 2nd, at Harlem Casino, 116th street and Lenox avenue.

This will be a regular get together of all trade union militants. The arrangement committee is doing all in its power to make this final affair of the season a unique event for all rebels. An excellent orchestra has been hired to help liven matters up, and they will too.

However, all militants should realized that this affair is arranged also for the purpose of raising some money to help conduct the T. U. E. L. There is still much to be done, and the question of money is a troublesome problem.

You can, therefore, kill two birds with a half-bone (50c.) help the T.U.E.L. in its work and have a good time yourself.

For tickets get in touch with the T. U. E. L. office, 108 E. 14th S., New York City.

The Struggle in Bulgaria

The capitalist press dispatches from Bulgaria have lost their exultant tone. The sturdy resistance of the workers and peasants to the murder gangs of the Zankov government has aroused the admiration even of their enemies.

The Zankov government has been allowed by the allied commission to add 7,000 troops to its army to aid in crushing the revolution and as this was over the protests of Roumania, Jugo-Slavia and Greece it appears that the Bulgarian revolt is of a mass character, contrary to the inspired dispatches that at first laid all the blame on a little band of terrorists.

Three labor members of the British house of commons, who were in Sofia at the time of the bomb explosion, have made a vigorous protest against the support of the Zankov government and denounce it as a bloody clique to which the workers and peasants owe no allegiance. They have called upon British labor to take action to stop the wholesale murders of workers, peasants, Communists and members of the left parties.

British labor has a way of popping up these days in unexpected places and its utterances become more and more of a menace to the imperialist plans of the rulers. These three members of parliament are a long way from being revolutionists, but the way to aid the workers and peasants of Bulgaria is the way they have suggested—action by workers in the countries whose governments support the Zankov murder regime.

When reformists like these British members of parliament protest war on revolutionists led by Communists, it is evidence that the imperialists are overplaying their hand.

From the Balkan corridor the European revolution may come; even the capitalist press admits it and the rulers seem now to be confronted with the choice of either precipitating great mass outbreaks by continued support of Zankov or of allowing Bulgaria to set up a workers' and peasants' government that will be the nucleus of a Balkan federation hostile to European capitalism and friendly to Soviet Russia.

The route to Asia, the pathway of European imperialism, may be closed again as it was closed in the fifteenth century to the merchant class of Europe.

The Dawes Plan at Home

The dilemma of the capitalists of the allied countries which "won the war," in collecting reparations in goods from Germany by extracting the last drop of blood from German workers under the Dawes plan, without at the same time ruining their own markets and putting their own productive machinery into cold storage, is beginning to have a definite effect upon the lives of American workers.

The president of the Bethlehem Steel company, Eugene G. Grace, in the company's bulletin addresses a message to the steel workers, telling them how the inflow of goods produced by cheap labor in foreign lands makes it necessary for American business, and—of course—American labor, to "use every method to keep down the cost of production." Grace's message says, in part:

> "There is no doubt but that economy thru the elimination of waste is becoming increasingly important. We must obtain the same refinement in the use of time and materials as we have in the use of machines. To meet the inflow of lower-priced goods from overseas and the keen competition which is developing at home, American business will be obliged to use every method at its disposal to keep down the cost of production."

Mr. Grace in his message goes on to say how peculiarly fortunate it is, that in this struggle between great combines of capital, each trying to cut costs lower than the Dawes slave plan can, the Bethlehem Steel corporation can count upon the "economy and co-operation obtained as a result of the company's plan which gives the employes, thru their committee, representation in the operation of plants."

The Communists have always pointed out that such company unions are for the benefit of the company, and are conflicting to the interests of the workers. Some of the trade union officials pretend to oppose the company unions, but their devotion to class collaboration will either force them to surrender to the company union or to turn the existing unions into organizations for class collaboration undistinguishable from company unions.

Pressure from both classes is increasing swiftly with the contradictions involved in international capitalism, and the labor bureaucracy is therefore seen to be busily engaged in making company unions out of what the rank and file looks to as organs of struggle.

Communist Campaign in Minneapolis

Dan Stevens, Communist, for years one of the most active union men in the Twin Cities, at one time or another having held every responsible post within the gift of the labor movement and now president of Painters' Union 186, is a candidate for mayor of Minneapolis.

He is running on the Communist platform after the efforts of the local party organization to form a united front with the reformists on immediate demands had been sabotaged by the reactionary labor element which, in the last year and a half, has become one of the most out and out boss-ridden groups in the American labor movement.

Minneapolis is an important industrial center and the Communist candidate will have the opportunity of putting the party program before thousands of workers.

The Communists have already won a large following in Minneapolis and St. Paul by their work in the trade unions where they and they alone have kept the reactionaries from disrupting it and turning the fragments over to the employers' association.

The issues in the Minneapolis election are clear-cut. It is a question of the workers' candidate against the capitalists and their tools in and out of the labor movement. The campaign will be carried on in the factories, the unions and on the streets and will result in great gains for the Communist Party in Minneapolis—the largest city between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

The Barbers' Agreement

The officialdom of the local barbers' union is trying to force an arbitration agreement on the membership. If the committee of the union and the master barbers cannot agree a third party is to be called in.

The rank and file barbers should remember the deal handed out by State's Attorney Crowe to the coal teamsters and helpers when he was the third man in an agreement of this kind last winter. The teamsters demanded a raise of $1.25 and the abolition of the provision that forced them to unload the coal and carry it wherever the purchaser wanted it, in addition to driving their wagons and trucks. Crowe gave them a sixty cent raise and told them to go to hell with the rest of their demands. His word was final.

The real issue for the barbers is a shorter work day. The proposed agreement gives a nominal raise of $4 per week, but it is no raise at all because most of the barbers are already getting the scale called for in the new agreement. Nothing is said about shorter hours.

International President Shaughnessy and Secretary-Treasurer Fischer are in Chicago, supposedly to take up the union insurance plan, but in reality to help the local officials put over the fake agreement.

The machine element has been making threats of violence against the progressives as part of the plan to prevent any opposition developing at the meeting to be held in Ashland Auditorium Sunday, where Shaughnessy and Fischer will speak.

Whatever is worth having is worth fighting for and the progressives should put their program before Sunday's meeting at all costs. They may be defeated, but they will have shown the membership the difference between a militant program and one of surrender to the bosses.

The Russian Delegation's Record

When the British capitalist press insinuated that the Russian trade union delegation was not working class in makeup the London Daily Herald made a reply that will become historic. Never has the British trade union movement entered into negotiations with a delegation whose record of working class origin, struggle, suffering and sacrifice, compares with that of the Russian delegation.

Not one of the Russian union delegates but began work at an early age, not one of them but spent many years of their lives in the prisons of the czar for revolutionary activity, not one of them but has been in the labor and revolutionary movement all their lives.

None of them has ever accepted a $150,000 bribe from a biscuit manufacturer, none of them have ever connived at the bombing of Hindu peasants and workers, none of them has ever attended a royal function or been dined by the nobility, but all of them bear the scars of the battles of their class in which they have taken a leading part.

It was because they were workers and not fakers that the British capitalist press attacked them. British labor has answered and more than one British labor faker with middle-class leanings has been forced to blush.

The Los Angeles Elections

The Communists in Los Angeles, a city of a million population, the largest on the Pacific coast and the stronghold of California reaction, like their comrades in Minneapolis, have entered the municipal campaign in earnest.

The news from there is of big meetings, organization of, and demands by the unemployed on the city government, an intensive campaign in the unions, agitation against the open shop.

Our party also has a candidate in the school elections and has issued a splendid statement on education.

These activities indicate a steady and healthy party growth and grasp of the issues on which the masses can be reached.

The Los Angeles Times, prize labor-hating sheet, will now have something more to worry about.

Communists Active in Los Angeles Election

RANK AND FILE MUST SUPPORT PARTY OF LABOR

Communist Statement to Trade Unionists Says

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—The election statement of the Workers (Communist) Party of Los Angeles to the members of organized labor follows:

Once again the members of the trade union movement are called upon by the labor leaders of this city to support candidates for political office.

It is well known that the political policy of "rewarding your so-called friends and punishing your enemies" is a policy of attaching the labor movement to the kite of capitalist politicians who are primarily the representatives of the employing class.

Horn and Cryer In Deal.

The Central Labor Council dominated by the Horn-Buzzell machine, Horn being secretary and Buzzell president of the Central Labor Council, have endorsed Mayor Cryer for re-election. It must be remembered that Cryer appointed Horn to the Civil Service Commission. Horn owes Cryer a political debt, not only for being appointed on the Civil Service Commission, but also because Mayor Cryer's administration, thru his police department, aided John Horn in fighting the progressives in the Los Angeles trade union movement.

Horn Ally of Police.

John Horn and his satellites made an alliance with the police who raided a business meeting of the Trade Union Educational League, an organization whose purpose is to strengthen and unite the labor movement. They arrested some thirty-nine members of organized labor and confiscated all papers, letters and documents, copies of which were turned over to Horn's supporters. The names of those arrested were also turned over to the above named group who immediately started a campaign of expelling a number of those arrested from the Central Labor Council, Metal Trade's Council and carpenters' unions, thereby disrupting and weakening the trade union movement.

Political Trading Revealed.

The issue is clear. Horn and his agents united with Mayor Cryer's police force to eliminate their political opponents in the trade union movement. John Horn is repaying Cryer by betraying organized labor.

The object of supporting capitalist politicians by these so-called labor officials is to receive political jobs and patronage for themselves and their friends.

The rank and file have nothing to gain by supporting Mayor Cryer or any other representatives of the employing class.

Lampton Indorses Injunction Judge

Not all of the officials are supporting Cryer. Some officials and particularly E. E. Lampton, secretary of the District Council of Carpenters have endorsed Judge Bledsoe who is a confirmed reactionary. Open-shop-injunction Judge Bledsoe is well known to the workers as an avowed enemy of labor. Any official that will support Bledsoe has more gall than good judgment.

The present labor leaders are consistent in one thing and that is their treachery to the rank and file. They betray the workers on the economic field during strikes by expulsions of progressive members from the trade unions and by fighting the amalgamation of craft unions into industrial unions. On the political field they do likewise by supporting the fifty-seven varieties of capitalist politicians.

Voted For Labor Party.

It is a well known fact that in the last municipal election, held two years ago, the rank and file of organized labor voted to establish a labor party, which was formed at a convention held in the Labor Temple. In spite of the fact that the trade union officials, at a joint executive board meeting which called the convention, agreed to abide by the decision of the convention, they knifed the labor party right after it was formed by endorsing at that time candidates who were supported by the Los Angeles Times.

Only Party of Labor.

It is the duty of the rank and file of organized labor to support the only party of labor, the Workers (Communist) Party and the candidates running in the present municipal election who are endorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party.

The following candidates are endorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party:

For board of education, Emanuel Levin.

For city council, 15th district, Edward Harris, (San Pedro Harbor), member of Machinist Lodge No. 311.

Education for service, not for profit.

The open shop must go.

Fraternally yours,
City Central Committee, Local Los Angeles, Workers (Communist) Party of America, Room 200, 224 S. Spring St.

Communists Fight for the Schools

unions of teachers be permitted, that students' and teachers' committees be given control of the schools, that military training be abolished, and race segregation wiped out.

Open air meetings are being held, and thousands of leaflets have been distributed.

The Communist program, indorsed by Levin, follows:

Education for service—Not for profit!

Let the teachers run the schools!

Program of Emanuel Levin, working class candidate for member of board of education in the May municipal elections, 1925, endorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party.

Since the existing school system is one of the institutions used to perpetuate the capitalist system, I, the working class candidate demand that:

Our school system be changed to train and fit the child and youth to be citizens in a society based upon production for use and not for porfit; in a society in which the means of production and distribution and natural resources are in the hands of the workers and farmers.

The working class has no voice or influence in shaping the educational policies of our school system. The existing educational system antagonizes the school children against organized labor.

The text books used, the military training and so called "Patriotic Observances" are no more than means to mold the child into an instrument for the interest of the capitalists as against the interests of the working class. This was seen in the world war and in every strike for better conditions in which the workers have been engaged.

The teachers are deprived of their rights to express their views on social and political problems out of fear of losing their positions.

The working class districts are the last in which school improvements are made or new school buildings erected, while the wealthy residential sections are given first consideration.

Buildings are constructed and improvements are made under open shop conditions.

The purchase of school equipment and building construction are controlled by those who are financially interested in the contracts either directly or indirectly.

To realize the benefits the workers should derive from the schools and colleges I prepose the following:

Education.

(a) That history text-books used at present in our public schools be thoroly revised and only such text-books that conform with the established scientific and historical facts be used.

(b) That service to society along the lines of arts and sciences be emphasized as the accomplishment to be sought by our future citizens rather than personal gain and the chase for profits.

(c) Keep religious training and influence out of the schools.

(d) No working class publication should be barred from our school libraries.

(e) Strict enforcement of compulsory school attendance laws.

Essential Prerequisites for Teachers.

Courses in working class history and kindred social sciences should be prerequisites for all teachers.

Teachers' Rights.

Teachers must be permitted to organize in labor unions. No teacher should be expelled for holding beliefs inimical to the present capitalistic system.

Administration.

Management of schools should be vested in committees elected by teachers with representaiton from the students in the high schools.

Building Construction and Mintenance.

(a That strictly union labor be employed in all construction of new schools as well as on repairs and maintenance in existing school buildings.

(b) That only union made school equipment and supplies be purchased.

Military Training.

Military training should be abolished as it fosters militarism which is an instrument in the hands of the capitalists to crush the workers in their struggles for emancipation.

Race Segregation.

No segregtion or discrimination because of color, race or creed.

The candidate running on the above platform knows that the ruling class will not permit the realization of his demands under the present system of society and therefore pledges himself when elected to work for the establishment of a Communist society.

(Signed) EMANUEL LEVIN,
Candidate for Board of Eduction,
Los Angeles, Cal.

65,000 Jobless in Los Angeles

which the bankers pay to the city 2 per cent interest. The bankers, on the other hand, re-loan this tremendous sum to private individuals at 7 per cent interest in this maner deriving a tremendous profit on city funds for their private gains.

Brother Murphy suggested that this immense sum be withdrawn from the banks and used for public improvements, thus relieving the unemployment situation. To this suggestion Mr. Mushet, chairman of the finance committee of the city council, replied that this money cannot be used, as that fund was secured thru city bonds, that the city council has no funds at its disposal for the relief of the unemployed.

Sidney Bush, another member of the committee, representing the Workers Party told the gentlemen, the representatives of capitalism of Los Angeles, that the problem of unemployment must not be considered a temporary condition. Unemployment is the result of capitalist exploitation of the working class, the wages system. As long as we will have this system, we will have unemployment. This fact the committee representing the city council must realize. The unemployed are those very workers who have helped to produce and create all wealth. And because they produced much and received little for their labor is the reason why these workers are now in distress. Therefore, the unemployed demand that the city provide them with work, at union scale of wages and under union conditions. The workers want no charity, they are able bodied men and women and want work.

Mr. Mushet, the spokesman for the finance committee replied that the city council has already done a little towards the unemployed situation, and that the money appropriated, ($5,000) was used in employing those out of work. These were paid union wages.

This statement was repudiated by Brother Murphy who showed that the workers were supposed to receive union wages but when pay day came they found that after paying for transportation and other incidentals the workers, the few of them who were employed, had 25 cents left for four hours work.

Goes Under Advisement

Comrade Queen Silver, warned the capitalist representatives that the unemployed will grow so desperate that they will take things into their own hands when they will find out that the city council refuses to do anything for them. When that time comes, there is no telling what will happen.

The final reply that the committee of the unemployed received was that the council will take the unemployment problem under serious advisement. Mr Mushet ending the hearing by stating that "Poverty always was, and I suppose always will be with us."

Sixty-five thousand unemployed in the city of Los Angeles. Yet the capitalist thru the chamber of commerce is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in advertisements all over the country for more workers to come to "sunny California," where the "open shoppers" rule supreme, where jobs are scarce, wages low and the hours long. California is a paradise for the "open shoppers" but a hell for workers.

400 Clothing Workers Strike in Boston

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—Four hundred clothing workers have been called on strike by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union from the Trimount Clothing Co. shops because the company, say union representatives, violated the agreement

KLAN ORGANIZER WHO DESERTED FAMILY OF 5 JAILED FOR ABDUCTION

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., April 24.—Hugh Knowles, ku klux klan organizer of Northville, will be brot here to stand trial for abduction. Knowles was arrested in Buffalo, after a search lasting ten days, during which he had been missing.

With him in the Buffalo rooming house, when arrested, was Cora Reynolds, 15 year old daughter of a neighbor, who fled with the klan organizer. Knowles has a wife and four children, whom he left without support in order to take the girl to Buffalo.

COMMUNISTS WAR ON OPEN SHOP IN LOS ANGELES

Non-Union Wages Paid in San Pedro Harbor

By J. STEVENSON
(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—"The open shop must go." This is the opening slogan on the program of Comrade Ed. Harris, the Workers (Communist) Party candidate for councilman in the municipal campaign in progress at San Pedro.

The Harbor district of Los Angeles—San Pedro—is beginning once again to come to life. When the petty bourgeois elements are congratulating themselves that at least these pesky Com-moon-ists have been stamped out, lo and behold, up they come, fresher than ever!

Open Shop Holds Sway

We are hard at work, holding open air meetings, distributing literature, and taking every possible advantage of the respite (so far) from police interference, to reach the workers of this city with the message of Communism.

Since the strike on the waterfront two years ago, the longshore organizations have been losing ground. The I. L. A. has dwindled in membership and is but a skeleton of its former self.

The I. W. W. is non-existent as an organized force and the open shop holds sway; some of the crafts have a semblance of union conditions, particularly in the building trades and also amongst the culinary workers, but this advantage is overcome by the state of disorganization at the vital point, on the waterfront.

Non-Union Wages

The scale of wages paid to mechanics who are municipal employees, is lower than the union rate, yet this is tolerated we suppose under the argument of not putting too heavy a burden on the taxpayers! The oil companies and the shipyards are in the same category, less wages and non-recognition of the unions.

Doheny the Scab

It is significant that Mr. Doheny of Teapot Dome renown is having his palatial steam yacht "The Casiana" overhauled by the Los Angeles Shipbuilding corporation, one of the scabbiest, lowest paying, labor hating outfits on the Pacific Coast.

These few facts go to show that we have some work ahead, and we feel in good condition for getting in some licks before we are many moons older, hence our slogan "The open shop must go."

Negro Workers Are Drawn Into Campaign of the Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, April 24.— The Workers Party in Los Angeles is swinging into action in the municipal election campaign for May 15. Every available means is being used to get the message of the Communist program over to the workers and to the organized labor movement in this city. Street meetings are held every Tuesday and Saturday nights at Brooklyn and Soto to get behind the candidacy and program of the Workers Party for the city board of education, in the person of Emmanuel Levin, city organizer of the party.

Last Saturday night an enthusiastic parade ended up in a big meeting on this corner, where Comrade Levin told the assembled crowd of the fight that the Communists are waging to organize the exploited workers against the capitalist rule.

The Young Workers' League is actively supporting the campaign with speakers of their own and with Communist literature on the political issues confronting the working class.

Tuesday night, April 21, another street meeting was held at First and Cummings, addressed by Comrades Gorman and Bush, and this meeting was marked by the presence of a delegated body from a Negro workers' organization in the city. Plans are being made to hold other street meetings in the section of the city where large numbers of Negroes live, in an effort to draw the Negro workers to our program and to the struggle against race discrimination especially.

The party is holding open air meetings at Fourth and Beacon streets, at 8 p. m., April 5, 7, 30 and May 2 and 4. These meetings are held in San Pedro, where the Workers Party candidate for District 15 is running. This is a real proletarian district, and to combat the influence of the ku kluxers there, the party is making every effort to reach the workers of San Pedro Harbor.

Saturday night, the Young Workers' League held a street meeting at Fourth and Beacon, San Pedro Harbor, with their own speakers covering the political issues of the campaign. By this ceaseless activity we are getting real contact with the workers.

With the Food Workers' Union in Russia

By ANISE.

JUST across the street from the hotel where I lived in Moscow is the headquarters of the Food Workers' Union. The provision trades are based on the immediate needs of the population; consequently they were the first to revive after the long civil war and famine, and are in a very prosperous condition. And since the wages of workers go up in Russia as fast as an industry revives, the provision trades workers are somewhat better off both in wages and in organization than some of the other trades, such as metal workers, whose industries revive more slowly.

THERE are any number of labor headquarters in Moscow. There is the giant Palace of Labor, where the central trade unions of all the Soviet Federation are housed.

There is also the Hall of the Unions, a sort of Central Labor Temple of the Moscow Unions, with its wonderful Hall of the Columns in marble and crystal, with its library in many languages, and its paintings and statuary ordered from modern Russian artists to decorate the assembly place of the workers with subjects of workers' life.

THE Food Workers' Union is just one of the twenty-two industrial unions. Yet it also has two floors of a downtown building, with financial department, statistical department, executive offices. At one window I saw the sign, "Theater Tickets." Union members get their tickets here, at 50 per cent discount.

ON the floor below was the Central Club of the Food Workers, supplementing the dozens of other clubs at factories and places of work. Here was a good little library, with reading rooms and rest rooms. There were a number of men using it. No women were visible, for this was daytime and the women were working. The men present were those employed on night shifts who were using their days to get some extra culture. But no women work on night shifts; it is against the law.

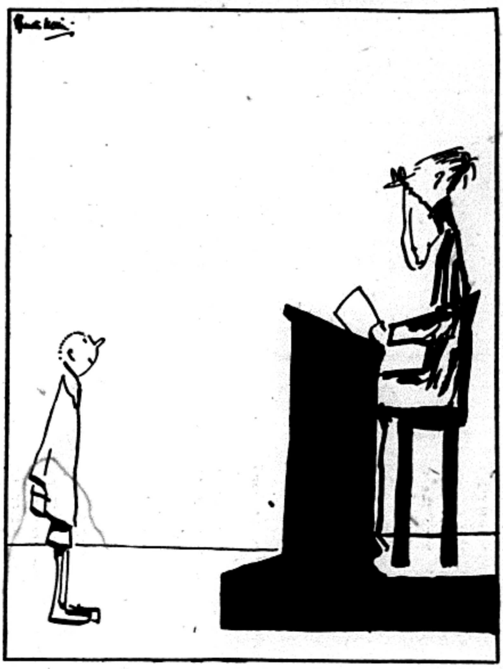
CLEANLINESS and order and enjoyment made up the atmosphere of the place. For the unions are the workers' own organizations, built anew from the ground since the revolution, and not contaminated by any of the left-over civil service workers from the days of czardom, who still clog the government apparatus. There is also much hospitality in all union headquarters. I have never seen any group in any land which seems to have such a good time welcoming folks as the organized workers of Russia. Anyone who knows any foreign language comes out at once and tries cheerfully to practice on the visitors. Anyone who has been in America also appears and gaily begins inquiries about the workers of the United States.

WE got into an automobile with the secretary of the union and were whirled out of town to a macaroni factory. Incidentally, if you want the convenience of an auto in the Soviet Republic, don't come as guests of the departments of education or health or any branch of the government, but come as a guest of the trade unions. For the government is poor, having to live on a budget and acquire a gold currency. I believe the department of health has two automobiles for the higher members of its staff. But every trade union has autos; the trade unions and the Communist Party, being supported by membership dues, are the really flourishing organizations.

WE visited first a macaroni factory, on the outskirts of the city. The day before we had been at the Red October Candy Factory, a modern and flourishing place. The macaroni factory was more ancient; it had a serious housing problem and antiquated buildings. We passed through a corridor in which there were signs about cleanliness and wiping your feet, and came to the directors' office.

"WHAT is your experience as director?" we asked right away. "And how is your factory organized?" No one minds these personal questions in Russia. He told us he had been a mill worker before the war, but had been director of this factory since the new economic policy came into effect. He was a Communist.

History As She Is Taught



(By Hendrik Willem Van Loon in The Survey.)

Johnny! Why did Abraham Lincoln set the slaves free?
I dunno, ma'am! I suppose he done it on orders from Moscow.

"UNDER me comes the production manager, who is not a Communist," he said. "Then we have our marconi specialist, who has worked forty years in this organization; he is also a non-party man, but an expert. We three are the technical heads of the work.

"THERE are 720 workers, of whom 100 are Communists and 85 in the Young Communist League. The workers have their shop committee, five members, three of whom work full time. Then we have our Communist yacheka, consisting of all the Communists in the plant; and now we have also the NOTE, a special committee which is studying the ways of increasing production. These are the various groups in control of our working life."

"HOW is the shop committee chosen?" I asked. "In the general assembly of the workers, held every six months," he answered. "The Communist yacheka holds a preliminary meeting and nominates a slate, but the assembly does not have to elect this slate. It is the aim of the Communists to keep closely in touch with the workers' wishes, so that their slate will be chosen without contest, and this usually happens now in our plant. Back in 1921 there was a maximalist who organized a committee and got himself nominated, but he didn't get far in the assembly."

THE shop committee, we learned, was paid by the factory, an amount equal to 2 per cent of the total wage scale being set aside for this purpose for their wages. The majority of the workers were women.

THE secretary of the Food Workers' Union, who was with us, admitted to getting $75 a month, whereupon the workers began to "guy" him. "See how fat he is," they cried, pointing to his full cheeks. "See how much he eats." "I don't get all the rebates you do," he retorted, and this was true. We later learned the number of things which the workers got free through their factroy organization.

AT 12 o'clock the courtyard filled with women pouring into the basement dining hall. We also partook of the solid meal of soup and meat and macaroni served here for a few cents. We also visited the offices of the Communist yacheka and of the shop committee. On the wall was the factory newspaper, beautifully lettered and illustrated, with colored cartoons and sketches, with letters and complaints and gossip about factory life. Every large factory has one of these wall newspapers, edited by the young people's organizaiton.

BEYOND were two busy class-rooms, where workers from the night shift were spending their afternoons studying reading and writing and politics. The director himself taught an evening class in the same factory school. When the workers finish here, if they wish for more advanced courses, they go down to the regional center.

ACROSS the court was a tall building devoted to club purposes. We saw upstairs the room of the Young Pioneers, children of factory workers, gay with banners and posters. Next to it was the sewing-room of the women's club. Downstairs was a theater, with a forest scene still set. They invited us to come on November 7th to the celebration for which they were preparing.

IT was still lunch hour, so the work rooms were empty. We went to visit a new apartment house under construction for the factory workers, out in the park at Sokolniki, fifteen minutes' walk away. "It is not a model house," said the secretary of the union. "There are not nearly enough bathrooms. It is just a bit of emergency construction to get the workers out of the rain."

FOR the macaroni plant was expanding and there was no room for the workers who were coming in from the country for jobs. Many of them were camping out in an old barn, with carpets hung between the rafters to shut off the quarters of different families. The barn was warm and clean, but it was hardly the place for winter quarters for the women with babies who looked up at our entrance. "You see why we are hurrying to get the house finished," said the secretary.

THEY had taken an old brick warehouse and adapted it for living quarters. Painting and woodwork and plastering were going up rapidly. Two rooms per family was the allowance in this new place. Next spring the brick barn is to be raised to three stories and remodeled into a dwelling to relieve the crowding still more.

WHEN we returned to the factory, its workrooms were humming. We passed from floor to floor, following the elevators which carried the flour to the top of the building, the revolving urns where it was mixed with water, the turning tables where it was greased and cut into great slabs, the giant machines whence it came out as thin streams of macaroni. Then the capacious drying room piled to the ceiling with the product. Enough to supply all of Moscow and to export to Leningrad and Nijni.

We noticed everywhere the cheerful faces of the women. They spoke to us; they laughed at the jokes of the union secretary. Many of them wore red handkerchiefs over their hair. There was no atmosphere of strain anywhere.

A WOMAN whose face showed strong intelligence and personality joined us. She began in this factory as a girl of twelve in the days of the czar. She has worked there seventeen years. Now she is president of the Women's Communist Section of the factory. She went with us back to the director's room, where we all had tea together. What I remember most about that factory was the democratic atmosphere of the director's office, with workers coming in and out, and with all of us, union secretary, Communist secretary, head of the women's section, and director of the plant, all having tea around the table together.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

Moscow, April 4.—(By Mail.)

AT today's session of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International Comrade Gussev read the joint decision of the Central Commission of Control and the International Control Commission in the matters of Brandler, Thalheimer, Radek, Edda Baum, Felix Wolf, Walcher and Moeller. After an enumeration of the facts, the decision reads as follows:

"On the basis of the facts enumerated above, the Central Commission of Control considers the existence of organized factions in the German Communist Party as established. There exists a faction consisting of a few groups within the party as well as of a group of members of the Central Committee of Russia (Brandler, Thalheimer, Radek, and others); these groups conduct factional work on the basis of a political platform as expressed in a series of articles and documents (Brandler, Thalheimer and Radek—the anonymous authors of different circulars).

"In view of the above facts, in view of the difficulties under which the German Communist Party has to work at present, and in view of the extremely hostile attitude manifested by the party membership against Brandler and Thalheimer, the Central Commission of Control is of the opinion that the German Communist Party was justified in its demand that Brandler and Thalheimer be expelled from the Communist Party of Russia. The German Communist Party was also justified in its demand that Comrades Radek, Felix Wolf, Heinz Moeller and Walcher be checked by the party in their factional activities within the German Communist Party.

"BUT, whereas the Central Commission of Control desired to liquidate the factional groups in the Communist Party of Germany in as painless a manner as possible, and in order to give Comrades Brandler, Thalheimer and Radek a chance to prove by deeds that they were really willing to abide by the declarations they made at the session of the entral Commission of Control to the effect that they would carry on no factional work, the Central Commission of Control considers it possible to confine itself to the following decisions:

"1. To censure severely and to warn Comrades Brandler, Thalheimer, Radek, Felix Wolf, Heinz Moeller and Edda Baum, for their systematic factional activities and flagrant breach of party discipline.

"2. To forbid Comrades Brandler, Thalheimer, Radek, Felix Wolf, Heinz Moeller and Edda Baum to interfere in any way with the work of the German Communist Party.

"3. The Central Commission of Control warns these comrades that any further factional activities on their part, or interference with the work of the Communist Party of Germany, will cause their immediate expulsion from the Communist Party of Russia.

"4. The Central Commission of Control considers the participation of Brandler, Thalheimer and Radek in the work of the Comintern as inadmissible.

"5. The Central Commission of Control considers it necessary for the central committee of the Communist Party of Germany to start an extensive campaign within the party, for the purpose of elucidating the political significance of these decisions to all party members."

This decision was greeted with a storm of applause, and was adopted unanimously.

A STATEMENT by Brandler, Thalheimer and Radek was then read, in which they declare that their differences with the executive in the question of a workers' government are now overtaken by history. The idea that the workers' government could be more than an agitational slogan was based on the condition that capitalist society was in a state of acute dissolution, which would rouse the social democratic masses against their leaders, and enable us, thru a temporary coalition with the left social democratic elements, to conquer intermediate positions in the struggle for the dictatorship. The rapid stabilization of capitalism in western Europe strengthens the social democracy, and makes it necessary that the entire front of the Comintern be sharply turned against the social democracy, and turns the slogan for a workers' government into a pure agitational slogan.

UNDER what conditions the new revolutionary wave will rise, and what tactics it will require of the Comintern, cannot at present be foreseen. The undersigned (of this statement) felt, in the year just past, that the mass character of the Communist parties was endangered by the opposition of the German party to partial, transitional demands, and by the organizational policy of the German party, which eliminated many valuable proletarian elements from the party because they wanted to save the party from the fate of a revolutionary sect.

The theses of Comrade Zinoviev show that the executive of the Comintern see threatening dangers. Regardless of the fact that the theses contain unjustified allegations on the policy of the undersigned, the latter declare that the theses correspond to their own views and are therefore accepted by them. They express their satisfaction with the fact that the executive of the Comintern calls attention of the parties that Bolshevization requires a careful adaptation to the concrete conditions existing in each country, and that the Bolshevization of the parties can only be attained thru a free discussion within the limits of the young Communist parties, and thru the policy of inner-party democracy which alone permits of the selection of the leaders from the most reliable and experienced elements. The undersigned declare that they will do everything to attain this goal. They point out that to attain this end it is necessary to reinstate more than fifty expelled workers. This would put an end to all factional activities within the Communist Party of Germany, and would effect the real unity of the party. At no time was the unity of the Comintern as urgent as it is at present. The parties must be developed and a synthesis of the leadership effected—a synthesis of those leaders who matured in the conflicts with and within the social-democracy, with the younger elements who came to Communism during the struggles of 1919, and who represent the sentiments of the young generation which grew up after the war.

COMRADE MANUILSKY then read the answer of the Russian delegation to the above statement. The answer is to the effect that Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer were most responsible for the social democratic tendencies in the tactics of the Communist Party of Germany, which have caused so much damage to the German revolutionary movement in 1923. The Radek-Brandler-Thalheimer group attempted to turn the revolutionary united front tactic into a tactic of coalition with the social democrats. The banal Saxon parliamentary farce revealed the complete political bankruptcy of these three comrades.

The Thirteenth Congress of the Russian Party declared unanimously that Radek's policy had nothing in common with the policy of the Communist Party of Russia. The Frankfort Congress of the German Communist Party condemned the policy of Brandler and Thalheimer with no less emphasis.

THE Fifth Congress of the Comintern condemned most severely the menshevik tendencies of these same three comrades. But instead of admitting their mistakes, they have now made them still more grievous thru their declaration. They proclaim their solidarity with the theses of the executive, but consider their differences with the Comintern in the question of the workers' government as historically finished just because the period of steep decline of capitalism is at an end.

They still hold to their belief that if the revolutionary situation becomes more acute their old tactics will again become necessary. The form of their declaration shows that they still fully defend the tactic of a coalition with the social democrats, and that they are getting farther away from Bolshevism and nearer to menshevism. During the Fifth Congress, Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer persisted in their anti-Communist attitude.

IMMEDIATELY after the Fifth Congress, Thalheimer and Kreibich expressed their anti-Communist attitude still more strongly. The entire activity of these comrades during the interval between the Fifth Congress and the Enlarged Executive was wholly directed against the policy of the Fifth Congress.

The statement of Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer, to the effect that last year they were worried over the mass character of the Communist Parties, cannot be taken seriously. The Comintern which was created under the direct leadership of Lenin, and which has remained loyal to Leninism, has from its very inception, up till now, been guided by the policy of creating and preserving mass parties.

THE difference between the policy of the Comintern and that of Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer is, that the Comintern is always striving to create and preserve real Communist, Bolshevist mass parties, whereas Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer are pursuing a semi-menshevist, "mass-party" policy. Revolutionary words in the mouths of these comrades sound like the similar declaration made by Paul Levi. The position taken up by these comrades in the Trotsky discussion was just as politically insincere as their present one. In Russia, Radek directly supported Trotskyism. By making ambiguous statements on the "rejection" of Trotskyism, Brandler and Thalheimer hoped to get an opportunity of attacking the Communist Party of Germany. Some light is thrown on the declaration of this group, by the fact that their statement was made at the time when the Central Commission of Control of the Communist Party of Russia was investigating the factional, splitting activities of these three comrades, coming to the conclusion that Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer deserved to be expelled from the Communist Party of Russia and from the Comintern. For these reasons the Comintern cannot take their declaration seriously. The plenum looks upon this politically insincere declaration as upon a tactical maneuver peculiar to social democratic leaders, and directed against the policy of the Fifth Congress. Hence the plenum refuses to take this declaration into consideration.

This answer was adopted unanimously with stormy applause.

James Connolly—In Memoriam

By T. A. JACKSON

"The working class can only think and speak in language as hard and definite as its life. We have no room for illusions in our struggle, least of all for illusions about freedom." James Connolly, July 31, 1915.

WHATEVER it may mean elsewhere and otherwise, "Easter Week" in Ireland is fixed and sacred to the memory of James Connolly and the "men of 1916." So much so that there grows a danger—one that Connolly himself would have been the first and fiercest to revolt against—the danger that he himself will be lost in the devotions paid to his corpse.

JAMES CONNOLLY was more than the commandant-general of the forces of the Irish Republic. For the firmness and thoroness of his nationalist faith his end speaks unanswerably. His whole life testifies to the equal force and virility of his internationalism.

He who would explain Connolly must be able to unriddle the paradox—"How came the first and greatest leader of working class internationalism in Ireland to be the last and greatest leader of an Irish nationalist rebellion against the British crown and empire?"

THAT the Irish common people should be passionately nationalist was inevitable from their history.

When the Norman invaders first passed over from England to begin the process of "extirpating vice" and establishing the supremacy of holy mother church—with incidental "pickings" for themselves and their overlords the kings of England—there clashed, not two armies of differing speech and descent, but two distinct and incompatible social systems.

EVERY step in the establishment of British rule in Ireland meant to the conquered, not merely the temporarily physical losses of defeat, conquest and dispossession. It meant the destruction of everything traditional and sacred in Irish social existence.

The Irish clans could only survive as clans in the teeth of perpetual war and ravage. Inevitably to be "Irish" meant to be "poor, miserable, hunted and outcast." The Irish survived as a peasantry tolerated because they were too poor to be worth disturbing—except so far as their very poverty combined with the inaccessibility of the hills and the bogs to which they were driven, had by driving them to live as plunderers of the plunderers provoked reprisals.

TO be born of the poorer peasantry in Ireland at any time between 1600 and 1916 was of necessity to be born into a tradition—they are Connolly's own words—of "stubborn physical resistance to the forces of Britain." And this was intensified thru every generation from the peasants' rising of 1798, thru the Tithe war, the Black famine, and the Fenian days to culminate in the bitterness and fury of the land war of the '80's.

To be so born was to have added to all the other incentives to rebellion incidental to a worker's life, a tradition, not merely of revolt, but of the fact that even defeat could be borne, recovered from and avenged.

James Connolly was born in County Monaghan, in 1870, of peasant ancestry.

BUT it would be folly to attempt to explain James Connolly—one of the least emotional of men—in terms of personal psychology and heredity wholly.

Had he been a nationalist born and nothing more, he would never have returned to Ireland in 1896 with the express and avowed object of founding an Irish socialist movement.

CONNOLLY was above everything a proletarian. His Irish birth and breeding and his knowledge of Irish men and things made it easier for him to organize Irishmen and deal with Irish politics than another. But that he should want to organize the Irish workers, and into an Irish socialist republican party, came from his proletarian instincts and his training in the working class movement.

And both as a socialist theoretician and as a practical Irishman (and hereditary rebel) he saw from the first the need to organise the Irish workers on Irish soil, since they alone could grapple with Irish problems as Irish historical development had forced them forward for solution.

THE natural revulsion of an Englishman—not too far gone in sin—at reading the history of the British empire is one of shame, disgust, and pity for the victims.

The shame is soon shed; since it is that of others. The nausea passes. But the pity abides. And that is possibly the worst that could happen.

Connolly could not have lived ten days in Britain without meeting "pity for Ireland." You or I can walk into the street, now, and find quite a lot of "pity" for the Indians, the Egyptians and so on. And when the industrial development of Britain was in such a stage that British factory lords and financiers had no use for either Ireland, India or Egypt, except as milch kine from which to draw sustenance for their home industries, pity was, possibly, as much as could then be placed upon the order of the day.

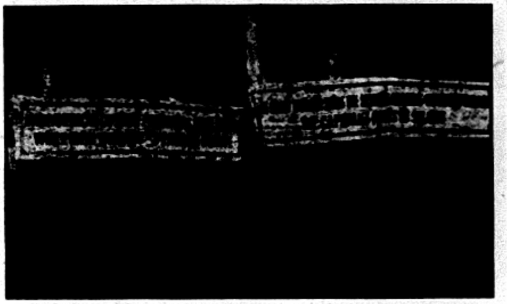
BUT that day has passed and Connolly saw clearly that a new era had come—and seeing it, hated with all his splendid power of hate the Irish politicians who, at Westminster, had no other song to sing than of the woes of their "distressful country."



American Workers Aid Irish Famine Sufferers.

He saw that the very need to get cheaper and ever cheaper raw materials for the expanding manufactures of Britain had done two things—not only in Ireland, but elsewhere.

It had crushed the peasantry down to the level of a proletariat, and it had made possible the development, on their backs, and at their expense, of a native small-capitalist class who in time, with British surplus capital, would grow into a native capitalism even more rapacious (if possible) than the alien capitalism had been.

SEEING that, he saw, too, that while this native small-capitalist class would be (for sound fiscal and other reasons) even more violently nationalist than the common mass—nationalist from ingrained tradition—they would in equal measure be the first to flinch from a fight which entailed arming the common mass against the "common enemy."

For, at long last, whatever his nationality or nationalism, the capitalist is—a capitalist. The native, Irish capitalist was willing enough to be freed from his English exploiter and rival. But when the price of that release was to run the risk of placing himself at the mercy of his proletarian fellow-countrymen he, "with one consent, began to make excuses."

GO over the history of Irish revolts—1798, 1803, 1848, 1867—everywhere there is to be detected, if one reads aright, the same symptom. Always the moral is that of the old piper in Tom Burke—"curses on the gentlemen: they always betrayed us."

Go over the more modern history of India and Egypt—go over the history of Easter week, 1916. The lesson is no different.

WHEN the chance came in 1914 to arm a body of working class volunteers Connolly was glad to seize it. He of all men had "no illusions about freedom"—none about the power and relentlessness of the British empire.

He seized the chance, first, because before him, too plain to be missed, was the chance to put the Dublin workers on something of an equality with the police guards of the strike-smashing Murphys. Secondly, because he saw (as no man else in Ireland) that only the working masses could be trusted to put up a fight even for so limited a thing as a democratic Irish republic—that the strength of the volunteers was in the workers.

And there was yet another motive soon to become actively operative.

WHEN the war came, it is not too much to say that to one of the "old guard" of Marxism, in the English speaking world (as Connolly was) it seemed as though the end of every hope had come. Only slowly did such as he recover from the horror that came with the realization that the world army of social democracy had melted overnight, leaving behind nothing but "leaders" serving their kings and kaisers, and the masses disorganised into mobs drifting everywhither "as sheep having no shepherd."

As the horror of shame and disgust was replaced by the horrors of war, so there grew, even with the sound of the guns and the tales of the slaughter, the sense that the masses were regathering—however blindly: that there was a chance that the right lead at the right time might be the spark to explode their stored-up wrath.

FROM the first day of the war, when he had decorated his headquarters with the legend—all across the front of the building—"We serve neither king nor kaiser; but Ireland!" Connolly had grown fiercer and more impatient.

He pressed ever closer his relations with the more ardent among the republican volunteers. He won his way by the sheer compulsion of his command of the technique of the business, until he stood hign in the inner councils of those ready to risk all upon the chance that "England's difficulty was Ireland's opportunity."

IT it known now that it was he, more than any other, who had urged on the rising; that when at the eleventh hour MacNeil cancelled the order for mobilization, which was the agreed signal for the volunteers of all Ireland, it was he who insisted, backed by Pearse, in going forward whatever betide.

It is told how he said as he marched out—without emotion or display, in his natural matter-of-fact tone, talking to an intimate—that he knew he was going to his death.

Is there any explanation—to those who knew him—other than this: that his whole being was filled with the desire to strike such a blow as might even by a change rouse the revolutionary explosion which would lay capitalism, its wars, subjections and exploitations, conquered beneath the feet of the workers of the world?

AND how far was he wrong?

He had said that with 1,500 men he could take and hold Dublin for long enough for all Ireland to rise, With half that number he held it for a week.

Only twelve months after he had fallen before the firing squad the Russian masses stirred, czardom crashed, and the Russian workers' revolution had begun.

IMPATIENT? perhaps. Duped, in spite of himself, by national conceit?

Neither of these. His heart was with the working mass, and he scorned to live safely while they were passing thru the torments of hell. He took his chance, knowing it was a chance. He fought for Ireland. But he lived, fought and died that the workers of the world might rule.

GOLDEN RULE EMPLOYER GIVES BUSINESS TO HIS EMPLOYES

(A PARABLE)

D. Rocky Vanderfeller, internationally celebrated as the teapot king, and head of Vanderfeller, Inc., a five billion dollar corporation, threw a bombshell into business circles yesterday when he announced that his vast organization would hereafter be run exclusively by his employes.

Beginning July 1, Mr. Vanderfeller will make over his entire business to the men who have been working for him, and they will receive practically all profits.

Has Money Enough.

"I have money enough," said Mr. Vanderfeller last night, at his home in Park avenue, "so I am going to give my loyal employes a chance. After all, it is they who have made the business, so why should they not have an opportunity to share in the profits?

"For many years Vanderfeller, Inc. has been earning four million dollars a year. Under the management of my employes, who will work harder because they will be working for themselves, the profits should be at least ten million.

What Might be Called A" Fair Deal."

"To be conservative, however, and to give my old workers a chance, I am fixing on eight million as a fair figure, and every cent of profit over this amount will be divided among the employes.

"Hereafter the business will be theirs to do with as they wish. A board elected by the men will govern the business, and I will not interfere in any way except to decide things. If the men agree with me on important points, they will have their way about everything.

Must, of Course, Show Loyalty.

"To show their loyalty to America's dead heroes," said Vanderfeller, "the men will be asked to contribute ninety-eight per cent out of all profits over and above the eight million I figure on for myself, to a fund for the benefit of the poor widows and orphans of America's unknown soldier, and in case the widow never makes application for the fund it will, of course, be turned over to my account."

Under the new arrangements, Mr. Vanderfeller said, he would be able to reduce the number of his employes by ten per cent, and produce many more teapots.

Party Functions of Nucleus Members

By OSSIP PIATNITSKY.

6. Several nucleus members should be entrusted with keeping up a connection with the nucleus of the Young Communist League. If there is none in the factory, they should proceed to establish such a nucleus.

Party members appointed for this work should work jointly with the youth nucleus among the young workers according to a plan drawn up by their party committee, paying special attention to the young workers of military age.

This work is of the utmost importance, factories and works are the best ground for work among army recruits as they provide an opportunity to establish close contact with these young men for the time when they will be already in the army.

7. One of the nucleus members should concentrate on the co-operative question which plays a fairly important role in the life of the worker. He should find out to what co-operatives the workers belong, he should collect information concerning these co-operatives and also get into touch with the Communist fractions of the administrative bodies of these co-operatives.

8. One or more comrades should work among workers who have not yet lost touch with their villages. Thru them relations could be established with the agricultural laborers and poorest peasants. They can also be the means of supplying the latter with literature.

Relations established in this manner could be handed over thru the proper party organs to the party organizations working in the district where relations with the agricultural laborers and poorest peasants must be maintained.

9. In many factories foreign workers, not knowing the local language, or workers belonging to the national minorities of that country play an important role. The nucleus bureau should appoint several comrades with a knowledge of the languages of these workers for work among then. The local committee will probably be able to procure literature in the desired language and agitators and propagandists for these workers.

In America, France and Czecho-Slovakia, such workers play a very important role in the labor movement.

10. One nucleus member should keep in touch with former workers of the respective factory now unemployed. He should help them to organize, agitate among them, provide them with literature, etc.

11. One or several nucleus members should be entrusted with work among men and women factory workers belonging to various sporting, choral and musical organizations. The said comrade should collect material concerning these working class organizations and get into touch thru the nucleus bureau and the local leading party organ with the Communist members of the administrative bodies of sporting, choral and musical organizations and societies.

12. One or more comrades should take up the work in connection with the protection of labor and various forms of social insurance.

13. Comrades should be allotted to tasks of distributing literature, collecting correspondence for the party press and for the factory newspaper of the nucleus. Several comrades will also be required for the printing and editing of the paper.

14. The same applies to the organization of political education circles and of circles for the study of Leninism.

15. A couple of nucleus members will also have to be spared for International Red Aid work—collection of information about arrested persons, etc.

It is a matter of course that all nucleus members take part in all agitational campaigns, in the recruiting of new members, etc., but all the same every nucleus member must concentrate his or her attention especially on the work which the bureau assigns to them.

It would be preferable to distribute the work in such a way that every member should have only one kind of work to do. But if circumstances demand, and when it is useful, several kinds of work may be assigned to one person.

MANY more kinds of work could be enumerated which nucleus members could perform. With a rational distribution of party duties all party members will have definite work to do, and this will bring them into contact with the factory workers.

In this way the factory nucleus will not be isolated from the workers, it will be easy to draw the best elements among them into the party and finally it will be possible to agitate systematically in the works and factories against the social democrats and other opportunist "labor" parties.

IN carrying out party duties the party members will be drawn into party life and will became active members. This, of course, will be achieved only if the nucleus bureau itself is active, if it will give instructions and indicate how the work is to be carried out and if it will supervise the execution of the tasks given to the respective members of the nucleus. The nucleus bureau should receive reports from the various comrades on their party work already carried out, or in the course of achievement.

The most important of these reports should be also placed before the general meetings of the party nucleus. The nucleus bureau has to prepare the agenda for the nucleus meetings very carefully. It must secure reporters on the questions on the agenda and must prepare its own proposals in regard to these questions. The nucleus bureau has to carry out promptly all decisions of the nucleus, for if these decisions remain on paper the interest of the members in the nucleus meetings will lag.

ON the other hand, nuclei and those in charge of them (the bureau) will work well and systematically if the district or town leading organ of the party keeps proper control over its work and provides the nuclei bureaus with the necessary information and directions.

Not to give skeptics occasion to say that my statement concerning the possibilities connected with the distribution of work among nucleus members and with making them participators in party work is exaggerated, I will give a few quotations from the central organ of the Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party, Rude Pravo, of February 5, 1925. The letter from the nucleus of a sugar factory in Central Bohemia contains the following statement:

> WHEN the party decided to organize nuclei in the factories, I selected three comrades to whom I gave a general outline of the tasks of the nucleus during dinner. We decided that everyone of us four would have to bring one comrade in the next three days. And thus we were eight. Our factory employs 150 workers, 32 of whom are already members of the nucleus. But this did not satisfy us, and we therefore decided that by the end of January every nucleus member was to secure one new member for whom he would make himself responsible. We have elected a bureau and have elaborated a series of proposals for the general meeting of the factory. We instructed six comrades to pass on our party and trade union papers to workers who belong to other parties and trade unions in order to show them how untruthful their own party papers are.
> "Four comrades are instructed to make up a list by the end of January of all those wishing to subscribe to our press. At present we are engaged in collecting material for the publication of the first number of our factory paper.
> "WORK in the factory nucleus presents some practical difficulties because comrades are accustomed to the old forms of organization. But the importance of factory nuclei consists in the fact that they give an opportunity to bring all comrades into the work. Moreover, the nucleus itself works systematically and everyone of its members does a definite branch of party work under the control of the nucleus."

IN the same number of Rude Pravo we find the following statement in a letter from a tobacco factory: "Nucleus work has the advantage that the entire party work does not devolve as before on one or two comrades, but is distributed among every member of the nucleus, each one of them doing a definite task, which is very valuable from the point of view of party education."

IT cannot be otherwise. As soon as nuclei come into being in the works and factories, their members immediately realize the superiority of this kind of organization over the old form of organization. Once adopted, they will not relinquish it. On the contrary, they do their utmost to make nuclei live organs, capable of attracting and absorbing the best elements of the factory. In order to achieve this, they distribute the party work among all their numbers. Our slogan should be: "No party members without duties or outside party nuclei."

Iowa Culture---Churches and Lodges

By TOM MATTHEWS.

CAPITALISM out here in the sticks has found a pair of invaluable allies, the church and the fraternal order. No better servants are to be found, unless we include the labor bureaucrats, for the work of dividing the workers against each other and turning their attention away from the issues of the class struggle.

Consider, for instance, the recent school board election here in Dubuque. What was the issue?

PROTESTANT versus Catholic! Not republican or democrat, not capital or labor, but a straight-out fight over religious humbug, with the workers of Dubuque fighting each other even inside their organizations.

Then there are lodges. It seems that practically every unionist in these parts is a member of from one to five fraternal orders, such as Elks, Masons, Moose, etc.

WHAT does the worker derive from his lodge affiliations? Uniforms, insignia, degrees, titles, and the right to pay admission to the "blow-outs" of his respective orders.

So it may be said that the Main Street unionist is, first, a member of his church; second, a member of his lodge; third and last, a worker and member of his union.

BEFORE arriving at snap judgments regarding this deep-rooted condition, we must take into consideration that the only cultural expression open to these workers is through the church and fraternal order.

These organizations fill, in some degree, the instinctive yearning of the working class for social and cultural expression.

WE Communists must sooner or later awaken to the fact that mere broadsides of denunciation and truth-telling will not alone suffice to break the hold which the church and fraternal order has succeeded in so artfully fastening upon the brain and imagination of the average American worker.

We must, instead, point out the sham of the "culture" offered by the priests and mystic nobles. We must lead ever larger numbers of these workers toward the vision of the genuine thing—to an appreciation of a proletarian culture based upon working class vision and working class solidarity.

THE fraternal order offers the merest sham, the cheapest imitation of culture. Fancy-colored uniforms, silly headgear, stupid ceremony, barbarian titles. A fancy wrapper, but no loaf.

Communism will replace this stupid, capitalist "culture" with proletarian culture which will give the worker the opportunity for self-expression which he craves but tries to satisfy with blah-blah and tinsel.

The church pretends to offer the worker a "spiritual escape" from the monotony of life, together with social contact with his fellow-man.

USUALLY, the fraternal order wins the loyalty of the slave; the church wins the loyalty of the slave's wife and children. Not even the families of Communists are exempted. Taking advantage of the desire of the human being for some form of social life and culture, the spell of the capitalist system gradually gains its hold.

First the children of the worker succumb to the magic lure, then the wife, finally the worker himself falls into the trap.

IT is interesting, if not nauseating, to listen to the excuses offered by the working class victim, man or woman, for his or her folly. Invariably it is the desire for a "good time; "for relaxation;" "they really do good work," etc.

Communism and the Communist movement will break this hold of capitalism by firing the enthusiasm of the working class with its own sincere, proletarian culture.

For, after all, the culture of capitalism is but a tinseled gaudiness which might as well encase a swill-barrel as a palace of art.

Only Communism offers the workers the hope of a real social life, a genuine culture.

NEW YORK BUILDERS' CORNER

Conducted by KATTERFELD.

COMRADE Leo Kling dropped into the DAILY WORKER New York office yesterday and paid six dollars for his subscription for a year, and then he left the rest of the ten dollar bill to pay for two gift subscriptions for two political prisoners. A mighty good example to follow.

• • • •

THE New York agency has just received the revised mailing list from Chicago, with the names of more than four thousand subscribers secured thru the press pageant at Madison Square Garden, which are now expiring. These must be solicited for renewals. Go to the DAILY WORKER office at 108 East 14th St. and find out how YOU can help.

• • • •

HOW could you celebrate MAY DAY any better than by securing some new subscribers for the DAILY WORKER? Make it at least one.

The Trade Unions and "Labor" Banking

DURING the period since 1920, when wages were being forced down and hours were being lengthened and standards of living were being reduced, the labor movement of the United States had two choices,—to fight or to yield. The American labor movement chose to yield rather than to fight.

Consequently, since 1922 there has been no considerable labor struggle in the United States. Labor has chosen to yield, and this yielding has taken the form of investment and banking activities.

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the A. F. of L., in a speech delivered at Harvard University on March 20, is reported to have said that labor has passed through the fighting period and is now in a period where it must confer.

He said that workers must concede "the right of employers to control, direct and manage industry and to receive a fair return upon invested capital," and that "modern trade unionism is opposed" to the two extremes of "hostile employers" on the one hand and "the workers' revolutionary group" on the other. According to this statement, Green has become an arbiter between capital and labor.

THAT fact suggests the conclusion that craft unionism is in itself a method of collaboration, and that those of us who have looked to craft unionism for revolutionary ideas have been trying to gather figs from thistles.

Wherever one goes in the United States one encounters a lively interest in labor banking. The first of these banks, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers National Bank, started in Cleveland in 1920 with a capital of one million dollars; its deposits, to date, amount to 23.6 million dollars. It has property valued at about 15 million dollars, besides other important assets. There are now thirty labor banks in the United States, all but two of which have sprung up in 1923-1924.

DURING the years of the steel strike of the injunction against the miners, and of the initial stages of the open-shop drive (1919-1920), American labor faced a difficult crisis, and labor leaders had to make a definite decision. One road led toward industrial conflict and the other toward the entrance of labor into business. The labor executives decided that it was better to lead their organizations into the banking business than to fight. "We cannot fight against the government," said Lewis, and so he became the president of the Indianapolis labor bank.

The arguments for labor banking are very obvious and very old. If a labor organization deposits a million dollars in a capitalist bank it deliberately strengthens the hands of its economic enemies.

BUT if it organizes its own bank it not only keeps control of its own million dollars, but it has a loaning power of four or five times that amount, and when labor wants to borrow money in times of need and crisis it can go to its own bank.

But going into the banking business ties up the labor banker with other elements in the community. First, the boards of directors of most of the banking organizations are composed principally of business and professional men; second, the banking officials are not labor men,—they are in the banking business and must understand the banking game; third, the labor banker must conform to the various laws and codes of the banking world. There are 30,000 banks in the United States, thirty of which are labor banks; if these latter do not conform they cannot bank.

"THE LABOR BANKER" contains articles by Warren Stone, president of the largest labor bank in the country; by Daniel Willard, and by Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, in which all agree that labor banking will teach thrift and investment and will therefore bring working people into a more sympathetic relationship with the capitalist class. If this is correct, the labor bank furnishes the economic foundation on which class collaboration can develop.

In a recent controversy between John Lewis and Warren Stone in regard to the Coal River Collieries, Stone uses all of the old stock phrases, such as "professional agitators," workers "living in our houses," "to protect the interests of our stockholders," etc. The moment a magnate gets into the investment business he becomes interested in stockholders, agitators, and the like, and that is what labor banking means—getting into the investment business and running mines, factories, stores and other enterprises, most of which in the United States are necessarily nonunion. Labor banking involves labor investment and investment is a method by which one man takes a part of the product of another man's labor.

WHAT does this mean for the future?

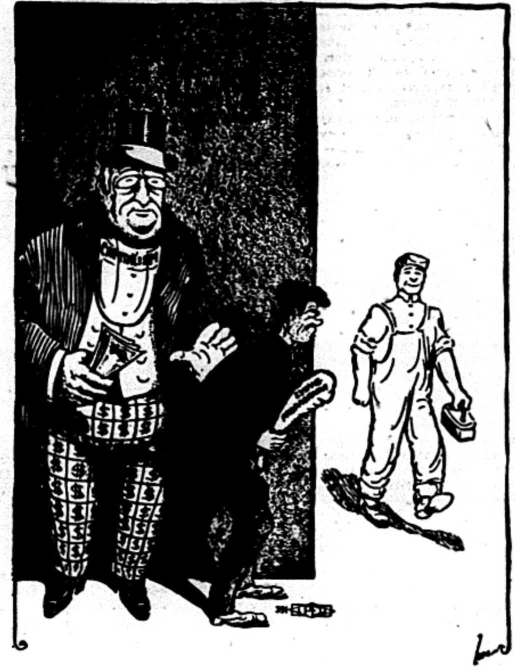
The membership in the American Federation of Labor is steadily declining, while the organized business interests are gaining, particularly in their economic position. Also, the organized employers of the United States have adopted the policy of going out to meet organized labor with welfare work, profit sharing and stock ownership schemes.

Organized labor officialdom is moving definitely into the camp of the organized employers. In the first place, the high salaries paid to the leaders lift them automatically out of the proletarian group; second, through labor banking the leaders are accepting the formulas of business and are making good investments; third, they have gone into co-operative housing.

Labor officials are adopting the employers' psychology and automatically, therefore, are becoming protectors of the established order.

THERE must be a co-operative move—housing, banking, retail, wholesale—but it will be essentially committed to the established order. Perhaps it is not the business of the A. F. of L. to fight; perhaps it is their business to go into labor banking. If that is the case, American workers must build a fighting organization on the economic field. There are two functions here. One is the function of the co-operative—to build around the present order, to get investments and keep them; the other is a definite struggle to take over the machinery of society in the interest of the working class—to destroy the system on which investment is based.

One of Capitalism's Clubs



THE BATTLE OF GLACE BAY

This poem was written in connection with the Besco strike in Nova Scotia by the son of Charles G. D. Roberts, the poet and animal story writer.

"An oppressed people is crying for a deliverer today. Never in the whole course of our history has there been a more wonderful example of patient heroism than is being manifested by the thousands of men, women and children in Cape Breton at the present time."

Ven. Archdeacon Scott.

The battle thickens, the foes ring round,
  Closer and closer, death's in our face.
Steady there, steady, hold your ground,
  Each in his place, lads, each in his place.

Who will say that we have not fought well,
  Armed with pick and shovel and bar,
Blackened and burned in the fires of hell—
  The rank and file of a Holy War?

Courage, then, comrades, lest we forget
  The World's my country, my brother Man;
Though the feos increase we will see it yet—
  The fields grow green where the red blood ran.

The little ones cry, the mothers are still,
  But their crying, their stillness, rings over the Bay;
I can see the red banners like dawn on the hill—
  The hosts of Humanity march our way.

Close up your ranks there, steady your eyes.
  It is better to struggle though the ground runs red
Than falter one step from the ultimate prize
  In the Battle of Bread, lads, the Battle of Bread.

The women are weary but steady, but steady,
  The babies are dying the hot tears blind;
We perish, we perish, but steady, but steady,
  The battle is Man's and the peace Mankind's.

Tomorrow perhaps we will hear the sound
  Of a great Voice ringing across the land;
Today, the fierce foes ring us round—
  Stand to your faith, lads, stand!

—Lloyd Roberts.

Student Solidarity Defeats Reaction Control of College

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 24.—A united front of students and faculty defeated reactionary directors at Toledo university and Stowe was forced to resign as president because of this solidarity.

The three professors whom the board of directors threatened to remove in retaliation, because of the demand by the students for the resignation of Stowe will stay.

The board accused Bradley, Nurse and Jones of being the agitators who caused the removal of Stowe. The board also accused the three named professors of being rebels and anarchists and insited that they go with Stowe.

The students were much incensed when they learned of the action proposed by the board and called a mass meeting protesting against the intended dismissal of the three faculty members.

A petition was circulated by the students on which they secured 540 signatures. When the board of directors saw the solidarity that manifested itself among the students and faculty members they decided to let the three professors stay.

It is well known that an insidious movement has been going on for some time to destroy Toledo University, which is much too democratic to suit the Toledo Commerce Club, and which is attended by some young men and women who are of the working class.

It might be mentioned that this university boasts of two debating teams, one of which has been meeting colleges of neighboring towns and taking the affirmative to limit the power of the supreme court.

Bolivian Astray in Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Diplomatic circles were stirred today by the arrest of Senor Don Jorge Blacud Jofre, attache of the Bolivian embassy following a free for all fight with a policeman.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

Red Aid Fights Terror in Baltic States

The appeal of the International Red Aid against the bestialities of the bourgeoisie in the Baltic countries follows:

"TO the workers of all countries and to all members of the International Red Aid.

"Comrades: Savage and unbridled white terror is raging in the little Baltic countries of Esthonia, Lithuania, Latvia and Finland. The ruling cliques of these countries are filled with fear for their fate: they are faced the whole time with the danger of a revolt of the working mases. And after the events of Reval this fear of the indignation of the workers has exceeded all limits.

"In the last two or three months wholesale domiciliary searches and arrests have been carried out in all the Baltic countries. More than 3,500 workers and peasants have been arrested. In all countries those arrested are subjected to torment and torture.

Five Hundred Shot.

In Esthonia, after the December revolt, 500 workers were shot, over 600 house-searchers carried out and over 2,500 workers and peasants thrown into prison.

In Lithuania, in the course of two months, about 1,000 house-searches have been carried out and over 200 workers, employes and peasants arrested. Over 100 persons have been subjected to torture.

The Latvian and Finnish bourgeoisie is conducting a furious press campaign against the class organizations of the workers and is preparing "public opinion" for a brutal suppression of the labor movement.

Drunken Latvian fascists have thrown bombs into the editorial office of the trade union journal Lajkmets and set fire to the premises of the workers' sick club in Volmar.

Medieval Tortures.

But the heroes of the white terror regard these persecutions as inadequate. Medieval torturings and torments are the means now constantly employed by the bourgeoisie of the Baltic countries against its working class prisoners.

The secret police of the Baltic "democratic" governments require at all costs proofs which will confirm the "Bolshvik danger" needed by them in their fight against the working class. These experienced inquisitors extort the confessions required by them by means of the most frightful troture, and also by means of torture compel the prisoners to sign written declarations that these confessions have been made voluntarily.

In their use of torture the police have had recourse to the most diabolical methods. The "electric bath" is the means of torture most frequently used in Esthonia. Prisoners, when undergoing examination, are compelled to grasp two metal rods thru which an electric current is passed. In Lithuania, torture is likewise employed by means of electricity, but in another form. The electric current is directed into the body, causing violent action of the heart, cripping the brain and tearing the muscles. The current distends all the veins, convulses the whole body and causes muscular cramps which last some days after the torture. In Esthonia and Lithuania the prisoners undergoing examination, before being subjected to the electric bath, are beaten with sticks, rifle butts and barbed-wire knouts.

Flesh Torn With Pincers

In Lithuania, Esthonia and Latvia, new methods of torture have begun to be employed recently. By means of sudden and strong pressure upon the stomach, frightful pains are caused to the interior organs. The victims are kicked in the genital organs while portions off their flesh are torn off with pincers.

In Latvia the old tradition of the chief of the czarist police, in Riga, the infamous Gregus, is being restored. The chief of the Latvian secret police, Martinson, at the beginning of the examination acts very gently and behaves in a friendly manner towards his victim. But then, with a wild cry he seizes the prisoner by the hair, lifts him up and flings him with all his force to the ground. In the local prison of Goldingen (Latvia), as a result of the torture, two political prisoners have committed suicide.

The chief police in Finland, Sarep, makes a practice of giving his victims not less than fifty blows on each ear. The chief of the secret police in Volkovich in Lithuania, Beshis, beats the prisoners brutally and even bites them.

Police Are Degenerates

The bourgeoisie of the Baltic countries have made use of the services of the most degenerate secret police whose cruelty reaches the point of sadism.

The names of the arrested and of the tortured are kept secret. The mutilated victims are hidden away. In order to stifle the cries of the tortured, a rubber sack is placed over the head, and so that no trace of the torture shall remain, the body is wrapped in wet sacks.

The white terror raging in Esthonia has reached a terrible pitch of fury. In Reval there is not a worker's home in which at least one member of the family has not been arrested or shot. Among those arrested or shot are very few who took part in the revolt. The arrests were and still are carried out according to the lists of the subscribers to the legal labor newspaper, which appeared up to the time of the revolt and according to the membership lists of the trade unions, which up till then were legal but have since been prohibited.

The bourgeois governments of the Baltic countries seek to justify the white terror by alleging the preparation of a revolt. But in Lithuania, Finland and Latvia there was no revolt whatever, nor are there any signs of an organised preparation for such. In Esthonia itself, according to the statements of even the bourgeois newspapers, the revolt in Reval was only participated in by 300 people, while in Reval alone more than 500 people have been shot.

The working masses of the unfortunate Baltic countries who are plunged into hopeless misery are seeking—and can do nothing else than seek—a way out of this situation. Have they perchance no right to life and work? Their savage tortures and murders, who are maintained by the subsidies and the constant support of the fascist European capitalists, know no limit in their bloody orgies, in the horrible bestialities with which they torment the advance-guard of the working class in Esthonia, Lituania and Finland.

The international proletariat must no longer tolerate these horrors. It must say to these vilest of the vile fascists:

Hands off the workers of the Baltic countries!

Workers and peasants of all countries, protest against the monstrous bestialities and the white terror of the bourgeois rulers against the workers and peasants in the Baltic countries!

Demand the cessation of the tortures, beating and brutalities!

Do not permit the mutilation and killing of the best sons of the workers in the dungeons of the Baltic inquisitors!

Down with the hangmen! Long live the solidarity of the workers of the whole world! Long live the Red Aid for the fighters for the revolution!

THE ROMANCE OF NEW RUSSIA

by Magdeleine Marx
Author of "Women"

A book aglow with the color, light and life of Russia.

A picture of the many people the writer has met—working men and women, officials—people of all classes.

We have received but a limited new stock from the publishers.

In the Preface the author says:

You arrive in Russia. Though you know that what has been written about it is pure invention, that the truth has deliberately been falsified, besmirched, and bespattered with gore, still you get a sort of shock of surprise.

You find a totally new relationship between man and things, with the majority of people benefiting by the new order. Everywhere not only the signs of resurrection, but resurrection itself. Yet the rest of the world still believes the absurd legends of oppression and disorder that are told about Russia.

Views of Our Readers on Many Subjects

Editor, the DAILY WORKER:—A beautiful spirit of brotherly affection often crops out where least expected. "Having shown their strength" in the late election, says Oneal, the German socialists now unite with the catholic party—a party that has always been extremely antagonistic to every feature of socialism. "When thine enemy kicks thy behind turn it to him again."

Oneal sees in the Communists loss of strength in the late election in Germany a disintegration of Communism. On the same page, in an other connection, he says, labor unions and socialist parties in Europe organized and failed many times before they became permanent institutions. And also on the same page, "That the workers do not vote for their party shows that there is much education needed." Oneal logic, eh?

In criticizing the Soviet regime Roger N. Baldwin says socialists are imprisoned "merely for their opinions" and names Ward as one of his witnesses. Then later in his article he quotes Ward as saying, "Politicals are imprisoned for counter-revolutionary activity." Now which is it, Mr. Baldwin?

Commenting on the smallness of the Communist vote in our last election Oneal dubbed it a miserable fiasco. Hilquitt told the C. P. P. A. at Chicago that the British Labor Party polled only 26,000 votes in its first round.

In the preface of the Unity Bulletin issued by a department of the British labor congress, A. A. Purcell, president of the international labor congress, says the so-called socialist press of Europe cannot be depended upon to give an unbiased view of conditions and developments.

An English writer in the Labor World said the report of the delegates to the Moscow convention was very popular with the workers of England. However, Oneal says, (New Leader March 28, page 12) "Many British trade union leaders" are sapheads ready to substitute emotion for fact as the basis of judgement. Yet, the party led largely by that bunch of sapheads was the Oneal-ideal of what our American labor party ought to be.

The issue between the socialists and Communists seems to be democratic pacifism versus revolutionism. Each claims to have the same end in view. Naturally at the present stage of the class struggle the milder method is the more popular with the proletariat. But the wise forecaster will take into account capitalist developments toward despotism, and the inability and failure of democratic pacifism to check the development. This narrows the question to one point, to-wit: Is revolution the logical product of despotism? If so (which history affirms), then logically the Communists hold the strategic position, and will be the dominant force at the final struggle.

The only possible escape from this conclusion is, will pacifist democratic methods fail? But here the wise forecaster will take into account the magnitude and strength of capitalism in its world-range; its absolute control of the means of subsistence, the tool of production; the utter failure of fifty years of struggle against monopoly domination of every feature of industrial and economic activity; and its oft demonstrated ability, thru industrial or economic pressure, to sandbag any political movement that threatens its supremacy in the government. With very best wishes,

L. D. Ratliff.

Dark Jugo-Slavia.

To the DAILY WORKER: My seclusion from comrades of the United States for almost six months and the inconvenience to connect up with our newspapers has set me far in arrears in understanding world events, especially in the Communist ranks.

I have been in the Balkan's newly formed country, Jugo-Slavia. It is not merely impossible for one to exist there on account of the bread famine. The greatest hardship is to live without newspapers. I mean the working class press.

Skate Straight to Hell.

Jugo-Slavia is in a desperate condition. Its workingmen are oppressed worse that in any other country in the world. Its minister of education does the work of education with guns and by police. Its army appears on the streets like a row of forgotten and ignored beggars. The soldiers wear the cast off shoes, pants and coats of the French colonial soldiers. The African French heroes are large and heavy set and their feet are tremendous in size compared with the small build of the Serbian soldiers. Can you picture to yourself an army of Jugo-Slavian soldiers skating along in their ski-like footwear looking every bit like a row of punished convicts? With their ski they are surely skating to hell!

The soldiers are kept under close surveillance. Not one of them is permitted to go out alone even for a few minutes. It is too dangerous. They may find a leaflet on the street that a Bolshevik may have dropped.

Daily Worker an Inspiration.

Upon my return to Vienna I found a good many copies of the DAILY WORKER and RADNIK which were a real treat. I notice that you have some Abramovich chap with whom you have to fight and I notice you're certainly knocking him off the stage from which he wants to spread anti-Soviet sentiment. He surely must be a very "honest" socialist.

These "Honest" Socialists.

The American working class have not yet had the opportunity to learn what a real "honest" socialist means but the European worker certainly certainly knows them well. The "honset" socialist butchered the proletariat of Europe some years back and keeps the working class of Europe on the brink of starvation and degradation. Nevertheless, the mighty Communists the world over will surely find them wherever they may be and they will recognize them no matter what mask they may hide behind.

Frisco Remembers Sun Yat Sen.

To the DAILY WORKER:—A local paper carried an announcement of a Sun Yat Sen memorial meeting so a friend of mine and I decided to pay our respects to the organizer of the Kuomintang.

Arriving on the scene before the stipulated time, we encountered a tremendous crowd of enthusiasts, whites as well as Orientals. Right there our hopes of getting into the hall went glimmering, but to view the masses of young China—boys and girls—marching to the solemn requiem of their beloved dead, augers well for China's future. One did not have to understand Chinese to comprehend the eloquence of their tribute.

The "Arm of the Lawless" was there in full blast, enough to keep order at a Dempsey-Gibbons go at nothing a seat. They displayed their usual brutal stupidity; why a Caucasian should pay his respects to an Orie- - was so far belond their ideology as to be incomprehensible.

We lament the passing of Sun Yat Sen, but his influence, we trust, will grow more powerful in death than in life, for, after all, it isn't the physical stature that measures the greatness of a man, but his devotion to truth and justice. Dr. Sen stood forth as the illuminator of his people's minds, China's greatest liberator. And so this Easter day, in honoring Sun Yat Sen, we add an increased devotion to those in whom the fire of liberty and truth burns with an undying flame.

Sun Yat Sen, we salute your memory. Comrades, hands across the sea. —Arthur E. Patterson, San Francisco, Cal.

Police Control and Bribes

To the DAILY WORKER:—By an act of the board of alderman the taxi license bureau was taken over by the police department. The bill was sponsored by Mayor Hylan and the reason his honor gave to the board of aldermen for the change was, that there were too many men in this city with criminal records operating taxis and that the taxi license bureau had not the means to cope with the situation. The mayor also stated that the claim of favoritism to the Yellow Taxi corporation was false and admitted that his son-in-law's brother, Carroll Sinnott was employed by the Yellow Taxi corporation, he also admitted that a brother of Carroll Sinnott connected with the firm of Sinnot & Canty carried the insurance for the taxis of the Yellow Taxi corporation. The full text of the mayor's statement issued, is as follows:—

"Of course I have no control over where my son-in law's brother or any one else may work. I presume Mr. Sinnott has a family to support and that he must work some place if he is to make a living. This attack upon the Sinnots is merely a barrage behind which a great deal of sentiment against the police supervision of taxi operation." After a bitter fight put up by the independent taxi owners, who charged that the mayor was pushing thru the law to favor the yellows and who stated that if the law was pased the yellow would be showered with all kinds of favors, the law was passed. The inspectors in the old license bureau were accused of being inefficient and incompetent and that the police department would be able to handle the matter, and they certainly do know how to handle the matter (money).

Yesterday four inspectors of the new license bureau were arrested and charged with selling license plates and accepting bribes. This charge was made by two taxi owners. The new department is still in its infancy and we already have an example of capitalist police efficiency.—A Comrade Taxi Driver.

Demand for Organization.

To the DAILY WORKER: How much does Gimbel Brothers pay their employes?

It is needless for me to inform the comrades that the tailors of New York are having a mighty bad year and I am one of them to be affected. However I know that before the holidays when the boss is making big profits we, the workers, will get a crumb.

On Wednesday, March 8, I bought a Jewish Morning Journal where Gimbel Brothers had a spacious advertisement for alteration men. When I came up to their magnificent department store I had seen everything that the workers of New York are in need of but do not have it. Nevertheless I went up to the fifth floor where the employment office is and after waiting for half an hour the employment officer appeared and asked me if I am able to fill out an application in English, to which I answered in the affirmative. But when I asked him how much does Gimbel Brothers pay an hour, he announced that they pay $30 a week.

Comrades it is not that $30 a week is a starvation wage. But they needed me only for a day or two to help them make a few thousand dollars. And the tragedy is that they did get a few men for this starving wage.

It is about time that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union of America and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union should get busy and organize the tailors in this deartment store in New York and Chicago. The hundreds of boys and girls working in these stores and also the elevator girls should be organized. Long enuf were we working and starving. Which union official would not boast of the accomplishments of the needle trade unions in New York, the stronghold of the unions, so many department stores as well as most of the clothing stores in Division St. and so many shops are unorganized?

Yours for better trade union organization. H. P., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Red Laugh.

To the DAILY WORKER: In the March 21 issue of the Weekly People I read with disgust the socialist labor party appeal to Secretary of Labor Davis for the release of Comrade Voznovik a member of the S. L. P. who is to be deported from this country under charges of being a Communist.

The S. L. P. does not demand its constitutional rights as a class conscious revolutionary organization to have Comrade Voznovik freed, but gives a provocative explanation that it doesn't believe in Communism and the Workers Party which believes in violence.

The appeal states that Vosnovik doesn't believe in Communism. How does the S. L. P. explain that it wanted to join the Communist International? Its delegates went to Russia for observation and practically disagreed only on one point that is advocating direct action in this country.

I, as an S. L. P. member, do not approve the expression in the appeal. After all we are the nearest in thot and action with the W. P. and the future will bring unity among the S. L. P. and the W. P. over the head of the S. L. P. leaders. Our membership will exceed them in practice and logic and realize that the time is rotten ripe for a united front against our mutual enemy and stop fighting each other.

The S. L. P. always compares Lenin to De Leon, but why don't the S. L. P. adhere to Lenin's tactics? When he was convinced he made a mistake he admitted it but the S. L. P. never.

Fraternally yours,
L. PLUTT.

AS WE SEE

By T. J. O'FLAHERT

ONE whole page of last Saturday's issue of the Chicago Tribune was devoted to anti-Communist propaganda, thru the medium of lying dispatches from abroad. The stories came from Paris, Sofia and Rome. The Paris liar gave a report of a debate in the French chamber over the fighting between Communist and fascisti, during which three of the latter were killed. Of course, the Tribune correspondent gave the fascist speakers lots of space and only a bare few lines to the Communist spokesman.

• • •

THE Sofia correspondent of the Tribune is the notorious prevaricator Ramond Fendrick, who wanders around the Balkans seeking what he can twist to suit his paymasters. He represented the Zankov government as defenders of public order and declares that the country is "apparently normal." Perhaps, it's quite normal from his point of view to slaughter Communists at the rate of fifty a day. This has been the record of the Zankov government according to a report of labor members of the British parliament.

OUR old friend George Seldes, who was kicked out of Russia for his chronic lying propensities, is in Rome boosting Mussolini. This is as it should be. The Tribune is a capitalistic paper, it supports the system on which it thrives at the expense of the masses. I overstated the case in writing that a whole page of the Tribune was devoted to anti-Communist propaganda thru the medium of foreign dispatches. I should have said, that all the news on one page was of that type. The rest of the page was filled with ads from the Chicago department stores. The fascist propaganda set off the advertisements nicely and working class women who may want to see how high spring dresses are coming, may look at the anti-Communist leadlines and murmur: "Ain't those reds awful."

THE Irish Free State government has a hard time trying to convince the outside world that there is no famine in Ireland. Yet it is compelled to appropriate money, to buy coal and [illegible]. There is no famine, but the people are dying of hunger and disease brought on by hunger! The Free State government fears that it will be discredited if the real truth concerning the famine leaks out. Editors of Irish papers have been warned by government officials to "lay off on the famine stuff." The poor peasants may starve but the Free State must maintain its prestige with the international money lenders.

WHILE the bourgeois Free State leaders are allowing the people to starve to death without making any genuine effort in the line of relief, the workers of the world are not standing idly by. Under the direction of the Workers' International Relief, a section of that organization has been established in Ireland and is now in touch with the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, with headquarters at 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago.

• • •

THE response to the appeal for aid to the Irish workers and peasants is heartening. Our readers will be glad to learn that the Irish workers, so many of whom have been led astray by the propaganda of the capitalist parties and the dope of the church, are coming to recognize the

TRAGIC DEATH FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF JOBLESS CRISIS IN COAL MINES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MONESSEN, Pa., April 26—Mrs. Peter Fils of this city is dead, and five small childern are left without a mother's care. The children range from one to five years of age.

The mother has been sick for some time and her husband has been out of work, and could not give her proper treatment, and she died enroute to a sanitorium at Mt. Alto.

This family lived in a basement room with hardly any furniture or food. This is only one case that has come to light here. And if the mines around here keep on closing as they have been lately there will be many more cases like this one.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE SENDS GREETINGS TO PHILIPPINE CONGRESS OF LABOR

Francisco Varona,
President Labor Congress,
Care El Debate,
Dela Lama Bldg.,
Manila, Philippine Islands.

Greetings to Labor Congress of Philippines from Trade Union Educational League, Section of the Red International of Labor Unions representing revolutionary trade unionists of America.

The burning need of the workers and oppressed peoples of all lands is unity against the common enemy, imperialism.

Unity of world trade unions proposed by Russian and British unions, amalgamation of Philippine unions into one strong body, a united stand with the workers of America and the world who fight for complete independence of all colonial peoples, will mark a great forward step.

The workers of Russia established their own government which also stands for freedom of all peoples. It has won the affections of workers everywhere.

Join the movement of millions of workers and oppressed peoples who are fighting against capitalist imperialism, for a workers' and farmers' government over the entire world.

YOUTH KILLED IN RIOT OVER TEUT ELECTION

Monarchist and Republic Supporters Clash

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, April 26.—One youth was shot and killed and many persons were severely beaten in rioting over issues of the presidential election today.

The fatal riot occurred in the western part of Berlin. It was a pitched battle beteween republicans and nationalists, and was one of a series of street fights which have brought the campaign to a tense finish.

Germany will come to the cross roads of its political journey when its 38,000,000 voters go to the polls Sunday to choose the man for president of the republic.

It has been one of the most bitterly waged political campaigns in the history of modern Europe.

End of Campaign.

The campaign practically ended last last night when both Marx and Hindenburg utilized the radio in the final appeal to voters. Hindenburg's pledge was: "I declare before the whole world that it shall be my holiest endeavor to keep away new terrors of war and to help the war victims of the past."

Marx said: "In the great decision of the world war, Germany lost. The German people are determined to take account of this fact and accept its consequences up to the limit drawn by the absolute necessities of existence itself."

Vesuvius Wakes Up.

ROME—The volcano Vesuvius, across the bay from Naples, was showing renewed signs of eruption today. Several small explosions occurred.

SOVIET FLAG TO FLY IN MEXICO THIS MAY DAY

Gomez Interviews Red Minister, Pestkovsky

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

On May Day the red flag will fly from the staff of the imposing white stone building at Calle del Rhin 37, in the "Colonial Juarez" of Mexico City, just off the elegant driveway of the Reforma. May Day is a national holiday in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and the Soviet minister to Mexico, Comrade Stanislaus Pestkovsky, is most scrupulous in his adherence to the strict diplomatic tradition providing for the exhibition of the colors on national fete days.

The red flag will fly again on November 7, and on the anniversary of Lenin's death.

Soviet Coat-of-Arms on Door.

I did not see the banner when I called at the legation to interview Comrade Pestkovsky for the DAILY WORKER. But the Soviet coat-of-arms was there, right over the front porch. It was with a decided thrill that I recognized the familiar hammer and sickle. I felt as if I were getting into home territory.

A minute later and the front door was opened for me by Comrade Pestkovsky himself. He clasped my hand warmly in both of his.

"You will stay to dinner?" he asked.

A typically Russian beginning. Interviews go best with dinner. Every Russian knows that. And the first Soviet minister to be received anywhere in America is very much a Russian, even tho he was born a Pole. Anyway, he is like the Russians I know—but that may just be because he is a Communist—an old Bolshevik, with a party card in his pocket dating from 1902.

Meets Staff of Legation.

But I am getting ahead of the story. Naturally, I did not deduce all this from the fact that he asked me to stay to dinner. I saw a good deal of Comrade Pestkovsky during my stay

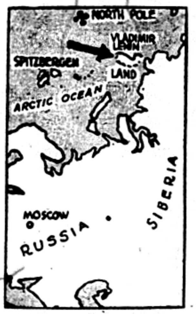
VLADIMIR LENIN LAND WILL BE EXPLORED BY THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT



MOSCOW, April 26.—An expedition will soon be sent to explore the islands in the Artic ocean, which were discovered by the Russian explorer Velketzky, in 1913. These valuable lands were originally named, Nicholas II land, but the Soviet government has changed their name in honor of Lenin.

Officers Brought Hot Stuff from Hot Climate: to Be Courtmartialed

WASHINGTON, April 26— Orders were issued here today convening a general court martial to try Lieut-Commander D. W. Fuller and the other officers of the naval transport Beaufort, accused of laxity and misdemeanors in connection with the discovery of large caches of liquor aboard their vessel upon returning from southern waters.

The court was ordered convened at the Hampton Roads naval base next Monday morning.

PICKETS BLOCK WAGE CUT OF COAL MINERS AT HILLCREST, ALTA.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HILLCREST, Alta, Canada, April 26.—Everything is quiet here now at the Hillcrest Collieries, and all the miners are fully determined to carry on the fight against the wage cut.

Picketing saved the day for us, as we all realize that if it had not been done, we would now have all been working at the company's terms with reduced wages—except those on the blacklist for trying to make the miners hold out.

All the company's extras, such as driver bosses, lamp boss, and so on, have been laid off. The company thought they had us in a hole, but they have another think coming.

Annie Buller of the Canadian Communist Party addressed the miners here on the labor situation in general. She represents the Canadian proletarian films, and is going to show them here. The miners' hall was packed and her talk was highly appreciated.

TRADE UNIONS IN JAPAN AND CHINA GROWING

Report Thousands of New Members

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SHANGHAI, April 26.— The rapid spread of trade unionism in China is reported here. The greatest progress has been made in the province of Kwang-Tung in southern China. In Hong-Kong there are already about 200 trade unions and at Canton about 300 and some of them are very powerful.

In Shanghai it is estimated that out of a total of 120,000 Chinese workers engaged in industry about 80,000 are members of trade unions.

The movement is tending to overstep the bounds of districts and to think in terms of the whole of China.

New Unions in Japan.

TOKIO, Japan, April 26.—During the first five months of the year 1924 there was an increase in Japan of 15 labor unions and 33 union branches, with a total of 40,903 members.

Workers in four big naval arsenals recently organized several unions and fromed a big federation including more than 47,000 members. The General Federation of Japanese Labor has increased its membership and the number of its branches thruout the country, and has entered into friendly relations with other big unions.

Coolidge Intends to Push Case Against Daugherty's Prosecutor

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The acquittal of Senator Burton K. Wheeler by a Montana jury "in no way lessens" the government's intention of proceeding with the senator's trial in Washington on a second indictment charging him with being a co-conspirator in a scheme to defraud the government out of valuable mineral lands, it was announced at the department of justice today.

Attorney-General Sargent and other officials of the department were represented as "not being greatly surprised" by the outcome of the Montana case as there were admittedly serious defects in the government's case against the Montana senator.

Getting Closer to "The League."

WASHINGTON, April 26—Another link in the official and unofficial chain connecting the United States with the league of nations was forged today when the American Society of International Law agreed to join in the league's codification of international law.

PLYMOUTH—Fifty bundles of letters, stamped in St. Louis March 30, found on hands on Cornwall coast.

ZANKOV'S FOES ARE SLAIN IN BULGAR PENS

Reds Die Fighting Rather Than Surrender

VIENNA, April 26—Several prominent leaders of the agrarian party, including former cabinet ministers in the Stamboulisky government have been murdered by Zankov in the past few days. Hundreds of prisoners have been assassinated in prisons. The exact count of the murdered is not yet known but it is reported that it runs into thousands.

The government is making arrests indiscriminately. Italians, French and German workers are seized and thrown into prison on the merest suspicion of being Communists. All the news coming out of Sofia is censured and is pure Zankov propaganda. Tho some of the correspondents might like to send out, the truth a pistol at the temple is liable to cause a modification of the best of intentions.

Fighting To The End

Several Communist leaders have defended themselves in their homes and died bravely rather than surrender to torture and inevitable death. The bravery of the Communists has excited the admiration of even their enemies and the current of public feeling is running strongly against the murder regime. But for the action of the allied governments in allowing Zankov to increase his army by 7,000, his government would have gone down by now.

That there is considerable dissatisfection in the army is proven by the number of military executions that have taken place during the past few days. Officers have been charged with attempting to blow up buildings and get away with airplanes, with the intention of bombing the city.

The king of Bulgaria is reported to be ready to flee into Roumania at the first opportunity but is a prisoner in his own palace.

Made Big Impression

The statement issued by the British labor members of parliament has made a great impression on the continent and has brought down a heavy attack on the heads of the British labor movement by the capitalist and socialist press. The socialists are very angry. They claim that ever since the British trade union delegation visited the Soviet Union, the labor movement of Britain is the tool of Soviet Russia. That the British workers are playing a strong hand on the continent on the side of the best interests of the revolutionary movement is undoubtedly true.

Reports reached here that insurrections have broken out in several parts of Bulgaria and that the government is not able to control the workers and peasants who have been driven to desperation by the reign of terror.

WASHINGTON, April 26—Secretary Kellogg declared himself tonight "heartily in favor" of America's participation in an international tribunal for settlement of international disputes.

BUILDING LABORERS TIE UP WORK ON THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL ROAD

HARRISBURG, Ill., April 26.—A morale building demonstration to encourage 345 striking railroad workers to continue their fight for recognition of the union, will be held near Ozark, Johnson county, Sunday, labor officials announced today.

The strike has tied up construction of the Illinois Central tunnel being built there. The mass meeting which will feature several bands and prominent labor officials, was scheduled for today but postponed in order that labor forces from surrounding counties might join the demonstration. Saline, Gallatin, White, Hamilton, Franklin, Williamson and Jackson counties are expected to send several thousand delegates.

KLAN-FARRINGTON COMBINE AT ZEIGLER, ILLINOIS, BEATEN IN CITY ELECTION BY ANTI-KLAN

ZEIGLER, Ill., April 26.—The ku klux klan forces in Zeigler are blue today. The klan vs. anti-klan which had been the burning issue in local politics here for the past year was fought out in one of the hotest mayoralty elections ever held in Zeigler.

The result was a crushing defeat for the ku klux klan candidate Fred Hall. Murphy Smith who is a staunch opponent of the klan won by a substantial majority. Fred Hall, the klan "klandidate," owns and operates a drug store and it is a well known fact in Zeigler that the said drug store is

STRIKE OF NOVA SCOTIA MINERS IN EIGHTH WEEK

Broadcast Appeal for Aid in Struggle

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, April 26—The officials of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, which has been on strike against a starvation lockout of the British Empire Steel corporation, the firm that has used the most brutal tactics to foce a wage cut on the Cape Breton miners, have issued in the name of the district, the following appeal for relief:

* * *

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, April 26—Tomorrow commences the eighth week of the complete cessation of work in the coal mines of Nova Scotia. The men engaged in the coal industry, together with their families are underfed and merely a step in advance of starvation.

We appeal to labor organizations thruout the world and to the public of the Dominion of Canada promptly to send aid to our hungry people.

Fully one-third of our members were in abject poverty for months before work ceased. In view of this fact it is not humane to suggest lowering the rates of wages paid last year. Te do so would merely place a greater proportion of our men with their families continnuously on the borderline of starvation and impose misery and suffering upon them. We have the moral support of (a) the dominion parliament (b) the provincial legislature (c) public opinion at large thruout Canada and the United States.

Yet the British Empire Steel corporation appears able to defy the two governments and the general public.

The district executive has followed those policies which have appeared best to give free rein to public discussion of the vital issues involved, and at the same time most substantially to further the interest of the helpless people whose welfare is committed to the district in trust.

Yet we earnestly call to your attention and emphasize the fact that the ineffectiveness of public and governmental opinion to produce a settlement of this dispute lends great weight to the conviction that a course of lawfulness and reason toward an outlaw corporation is futile.

We must state that the need amongst helpless people is greater today than it was two months ago and we call upon all who have contributed in the past to renew their efforts to avoid calamity coming upon a peaceful and suffering people. Make all donations payable to A. A. McKay, secretary-treasurer District 26, Glace Bay, Nova Scotia. District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, J. W. McLeod, president, A. A. McKay, secretary-treasurer.

D. A. R. Aids Reds to Create and Develop Class Consciousness

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26.—The Daughters of the American Revolution, that is to say the revolution of 1776, which is far enough back and bourgeois enough to have become sanctified in the minds of the great grand-daughters of the original smugglers who staged the Boston tea party, have decided that any more revolutions should be taboo, perhaps, lest the daughters of another revolution might impair the social standing of ancestor worship.

At their meeting here yesterday they declared by resolution that they would begin an intensive campaign in every state against "red internationalists," foreign-born workers, and "destructive revolution," plans for which the silken dames insist is, "not a myth in the United States, but a proven fact."

The perfumed and bejewelled assembly declared that Communists are intent on "indiscriminate attacks" on government officials and wish to "create and develop class consciousness and hatred." The action of the D. A. R. will aid the Communists considerably to accomplish this purpose.

WIEDTFELD TAKES TOP JOB IN KRUPP WORKS FOR GERMAN CAPITALISM

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, April 26.—Dr. Otto Wiedtfeld, formerly German ambassador to the United States, today became what is virtually chief directing genius of the vast Krupp works in Germany.

In a reorganization of the board of directors and the board of executives, the directors were reduced to three, Oesterlen, Duschfeld and Klotsbach, and the executives to seven, with Wiedfeld as one of the seven as well as financial adviser to the directors.

CALLES PROMISES TO PROTECT WALL ST. IMPERIALISM

U. S. Ambassador Gets Pledge on Jalapa

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, April 26—That the regime of President Calles is fully satisfactohry to the Yankee imperialists is shown by the statement of United States Ambassador Sheffield yesterday that "President Calles is the right man for the right place."

The statement of the imperialist agent was made following a long confidential interview between Sheffield and Calles, in which it is known that the general policy of the Mexican government toward foreign capital, especially Yankee capital, was discussed and in which Calles gave assurances that Wall Street need have no fears but that its imperialist investment would be protected, if need be by Calles' army against any revolt of the Mexican people to foreign exploitation.

The particular occurrence which gave point to the interview was the dispute over the seizure of the Jalapa Light and Power company by the state of Vera Cruz, carried out as a legal procedure for its failure to conform to Mexican labor laws in its relations with its employes.

"Not Many Left," Says Quaker Oats Worker, Cedar Rapids

By TOM MATTHEWS

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa,—"What time do the workers quit." I asked a Quaker Oats, employe with a view toward distributing advertising matter among the men as they were leaving the plant.

"What's left of them quit at 4 o'clock, and that's not very many," he replied.

Further inquiry about the plant revealed the fact that installation of machinery and employment of women labor had practically eliminated the male workers at this large "Quaker" branch.

"Quaker Oats" is one of those peculiar monopolies which have practically made the retailers their salesagents by virtue of advertising campaigns. The grocer has to carry this company's products because his customers have been "educated" to demand them. As is the case with hundreds of other commodities, the average person will pay a higher price for a fancy package of "Quaker" than he will for an equally serviceable product selling for much les.

Thus capitalist monopoly gathers more power.

WAR PROFIT IN STEEL WAS 20 PER CENT, SAYS GOVERNMENT REPORT

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—A complete report with much interesting data on wartime profits and costs of the steel industry was made today to the senate and house by the federal trade commission.

An analysis of the data shows that the average earnings of the steel companies for the four war years, 1915 to 1918, before payment of bond interest or federal taxes on income or excess profits were 7.5 per cent of the investment in 1915, 21.7 per cent in 1916, 28.9 per cent in 1917 and 20.1 per cent in 1918, making a four-year average of 20.2 per cent.

It is stated that since 1920 there have been important reductions in wages in the industry.

WORKERS DIE IN SHAM BATTLE AS IN REAL FIGHTS

But Are Forbidden to Have Any Ideas

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

HONOLULU, April 26.—The sham battle which is supposed to give a reason for the navy department to blackjack the country into furnishing more warships to aid American imperialism, is supposed to be taking place today in the channel between the islands of Molokai and Lanai.

Reds in Jail, Blues and Blacks Fight

The grand fleet is supposed to be making an effort to land forces on the two islands, while the defensive forces are trying to locate the Langley, an airplane carrier, and disable it before the fleet can launch its air attack on Pearl Harbor. The landing force was driven off with most men killed by airplane gun fire.

The "theoretical" foe, which everybody knows is supposed to be representing a Japanese force, is called the "blues" and the defensive forces are termed the "blacks."

Not Supposed to Have Ideas.

Meanwhile the "reds" are accounted for in the person of some private soldiers who are held incommunicado at the military disciplinary barracks under sentence of forty years' imprisonment for daring to have ideas on capitalist imperialism and to express them by forming a Communist group in the Hawaiian garrison.

The common soldiers and sailors who come from the working class only, are invited to participate in their country's welfare in serving as theoretical corpses in this sham battle just as in real warfare they are expected to kill and be killed without having anything to say about the war policy of the country and cannot even vote in the fake "democratic" elections.

POST OFFICE PROBES COLLEGE RIDICULE OF GODDESS OF LIBERTY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 25—The post office department has officially "passed" on alleged indecent pictures in the current issue of the Harvard Lampoon and its decision forwarded to the postmaster at Cambridge, Mass., it was announced today.

The decision, given by acting solicitor, H. J. Donnelly, will determine whether the student executive officers of the magazine shall be prosecuted for violating postal laws. Copies of the issue were seized by Boston police as nonmailable matter.

Under rules of the department, Connelly declined to reveal the nature of his verdict. It was learned 4ture of his verdict. It was learned, however, that it dealt with a pic-which depicted a lady attired in slippers, a ribbon neckband and a bracelet.

TUESDAY TO SEE LABOR MEASURES VOTED ON IN ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 26—The general assembly will take a final vote on Tuesday upon two important labor measures proposed at this session—the so-called "anti-injunction" bill and the bill to limit the hours of women workers to eight hours a day.

The "anti-injunction" bill merely requires that in labor injunctions the right of trial by jury shall be given to those who are haled before a judge for contempt of court, in other words to deprive the judge who issues an injunction from being the one to say whether or not a strike picket has contempt for him as a representative and upholder of capitalism.

CLEVELAND JOB OWNERS OPENED FIRE ON LABOR

Chamber of Commerce Is Leading Attack

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND— (FP)— "Never hit us." Cleveland's union building tradesmen, 25,000 strong, branded by the head of the Chamber of Commerce labor relations committee as murderers and saboteurs in an address before the chamber, offered no other retort than the above.

"Why doesn't he give the gruesome details to the police if he knows so much about alleged violence?" asks the secretary of the Bilding Trades Council.

The chamber speech was reproduced in full under an 8-column headline in the evening paper and is considered the opening gun in the "big push" shortly to be executed against the Cleveland building trades by the open shop crew. No names, dates or places were mentioned in the indictment of union labor.

Foreseeing the possibility of war by the open shop forces officials of the A. F. of L. are trying to amalgamate the two building trades councils. By this measure many jurisdictional disputes may be smoothed out and labor could face a general lockout with united forces.

FRENCH FASCIST GANGSTERS WILL HOLD FUNERAL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 26.—The fascisti organizations are planning an impressive funeral for the black shirts who were killed in the fighting with the Communists on the 22nd. About forty were wounded.

It is now definitely known that the fascisti started the shooting believing that the Communists would nat retaliate. In this belief they were mistaken. The trouble was initiated by an organization of fascists known as the Jeunesses Patriots.

Premier Painleve visited the hospital where the youths were incarcerated, called at the hospital where the wounded combatants were being treated.

JAPANESE HANG ON WORDS OF NEW SOVIET RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Japan, Apr. 26.—M. Kopp, the Soviet Russian ambassador to Japan, declared in interviews here that he anticipates enormous benefits for both Russia and Japan from the Russo-Japanese treaty. Kopp has already become one of the most prominent persons in Japan, the newspapers devoting large portions of their front pages to his arrival.

When the new ambassador arrived the station was closely guarded. He was driven directly to the old Russian embassy, formerly one of the most imposing buildings in the capital, but now in disrepair.

Karakhan Speaks on Imperialism as Foe of Chinese Masses

LONDON, April 26.—At the invitation of the Chinese president, M. Karakhan, Soviet ambassador to China, spoke at the Tsing Dua College, near Peking. Karakhan addressed the students on the relation of foreign imperialism and western capitalism to the masses of China.

The college is maintained from "remitted American indemnity funds," the report states.

Capitalism in Germany Promises to Redeem Paper Marks on June 5

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Germany elects as president, either the capitalist-militarist, von Hindenburg, or the bourgeois-republican-capitalist, Marx. No matter which one is elected there will be little comfort for the German capitalist regime. There will be even less for the holders, everywhere, of the old paper marks, altho this paper is to be redeemed within five weeks, on June 5.

Over the world, there were many who doubted whether the former kaiser would ever come back. In the present election controversy there has been much discussion whether monarchism will return. But in the days immediately following the armistice, believers in the capitalist order, especially sympathizers with Germany, were of the firm conviction that "the reich" could make good on its paper money. That at least was sacred.

Tens and hundreds of thousands, including many workers, "invested" in German paper marks, at two, three and five cents each. The mark would soon return to normal, they argued, and then they would be "well fixed" for the rest of their lives. Their only regret was that they didn't have a few more pennies to "invest."

• • • •

Now that dream is a wrecked hope of the past. The world now knows how the price of the paper mark dropped out of sight. But on June 15, these paper marks are to be "redeemed" not at par, which was around 24 cents, but at the rate of one American dollar for every four trillion marks.

The headquarters of the American chamber of commerce at Berlin is trying to put this thing convincingly before American "investors" in paper marks, for instance, that anyone cashing in four million paper money notes of a million marks value each, he will get $1 in return.

Again, a German trade paper points out, that the American holder of a 5,000 mark note—once worth about $1,250—will be entitled to something less than one-millionth of a cent. Yet there are anxious persons, holding small amounts of these paper marks, who have been writing the chamber of commerce, wondering whether and when their marks are to be redeemed. The notice to the mark holders declares:

> "The possibilities of the German paper mark (once worth 24 cents) ever being redeemed, is as remote as the Russian ruble, the Polish mark or the Austrian crown. There is not gold enough in the world to redeem even a fraction of anyone of these currencies."

• • • •

The Russian ruble went down with czarism. Soviet rule established a new currency, that now enjoys the highest value of any currency in the world. The workers and peasants didn't worry when the paper ruble went down and out. They had Russia—one-sixth of the world's land surface, with its wonderful and varied natural resources. A better life is before them.

But in the remaining five-sixths of the world, the capitalist world, fighting the rising waves of working class discontent, sees its financial structure swaying to destruction. The Herriot cabinet in France has just fallen due to its inability to solve the financial problem. Increased inflation has been legalized. The issue of paper money in France has been raised to $9,000,000,000 face value. This is about equal to all the gold available thruout all the world for money uses. The pledge of capitalist France to "redeem" its paper francs becomes humorous when it is realized that the ten greatest capitalist nations, including Morgan's own America, if they joined in scraping empty all their gold treasure chests, couldn't make good on France's paper money. This shows how far the French franc has gone on the road traversed by the German paper mark. No French capitalist has yet come to the front to point a way out.

• • • •

The only salvation proposed for capitalism is that advanced under the Morgan-Dawes' plan for Germany; an increasing exploitation of the working masses under more brutal conditions. If the French workers and peasants will submit to increased exploitation; if they will continue to pay the mounting costs of French militarism; if they will keep up all the other costs of the French imperialist machine, even to paying for new attacks on the workers' and peasants' Soviet Republics; if they will meekly go into the next war to shed their blood and give their lives for capitalist France, then French capitalism may breathe a little easier.

But there are innumerable signs that the French workers and peasants intend doing none of these things. When the French workers realize more fully, that they are in the same boat with the German workers, in spite of "the victory," then there will be something doing on both sides of the Rhine; not of German and French workers slaughtering each other; but of a united working class against the capitalists of both countries. This solidarity will receive a great impetus when France goes under its Morgan-Dawes plan.

• • • •

For the workers there is nothing worth while redeeming under capitalism, either in Germany, France, or any other country. Capitalism, like the German paper mark, one of its offspring, must go into the discard as something absolutely useless and worthless. All that is worth while in the world is the realization of the Communist era, heralded by the Soviet Star of the proletarian dictatorship. By that sign the oppressed of the world are conquering and advancing toward the new day.

WOMEN'S CLUBS UNITE TO MAKE DRAGON SWING

Ku Klux Leader Raped Indiana Maiden

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, April 26.—The influence of scores of civic and womens' clubs today was thrown behind the movement to raise money with which to prosecute David C. Stephenson, politician and former K. K. K. power, on charges of first degree murder growing out of the death of Miss Madge Oberholtser. The girl swallowed poison after an indecent assault.

An appeal to civic organisations was sent out after city attorney J. A. Ogden characterized as illegal the proposed ordinance appropriating $500 from the municipal treasury to aid in pressing charges against Stephenson and the two co-defendants, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry.

"We earnestly ask all who are interested in seeing the case properly prosecuted to contribute to the fund" said Thomas C. Howe, former president of Butler University who is acting as treasurer.

Howe declined to make public the amount already raised.

With another murder trial holding sway in criminal court it appeared likely that the Stephenson case might be postponed when it comes up next Monday on a plea of defendants to be admitted to bail.

TRUSTIFICATION OF ELECTRICITY SHOWN IN IOWA

By TOM MATTHEWS.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa.—The rapid growth of large-scale operations, tending toward monopoly of the electric power supply of the country is strikingly shown in the development of the United Light and Railways company in this state.

This company sets forth in its publicity matter that it now operates 11 gas plants, 10 electric power stations and six street and interurban railway properties.

In Iowa this company operates at Bettendorf, Cedar Rapids, Clinton, Davenport, Fort Dodge, Iowa City, Marion, Mason City, Muscatine and Ottumwa. This "young trust" also operates in Moline and Rock Island, Illinois; LaPorte, Indiana; Chattanooga, Tennessee; Cadillac, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, Michigan.

Ninety per cent of the company's employes, it is claimed, are stockholders. Gross earnings for 1921 are quoted over eleven millions; net earnings at over three millions.

Wicked Gotham to Have Another Crack at Daylight Saving

NEW YORK, April 26—Daylight saving time will go into effect in New York city and in many other eastern cities at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

At that hour all local clocks will be set ahead one hour.

Railroads, however, will continue to operate, as in the past, on eastern standard time. Local commuters' schedules will be adjusted to conform with daylight saving time.

Banks, business houses and the stock exchange, have made arrangements to meet the situation that will result from the pushing forward of the hands of the clock.

Daylight saving time will continue until the last Sunday in September.

Russ Princess Ends Life to Keep from Working for Wages

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NICE, Italy, April 26.—Rather than go to work in the industries of the Soviet Republic, Princess Marie Ostrogridsky, widow of the finance minister of the former czar, fled from Russia with her jewels along with the other monarchist emigres, and after exhausting herself and her fortune in the high life along the Italian Riviera, she committed suicide here yesterday, by taking poison on the promenade in the presence of rich tourists.

Dry Forces Not So Dry.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Fifteen prohibition agents in New York and northern New Jersey were out of jobs today discharged after an investigation by their superiors in Washington and New York City. All fifteen were members of the staff of prohibition chief R. Q. Merrick of this district. It was one of the most sensational shake-ups in recent months.

Thirteen were let out on orders from Washington; Merrick discharged the other two.

SOVIET FLAG TO FLY IN MEXICO THIS MAY DAY

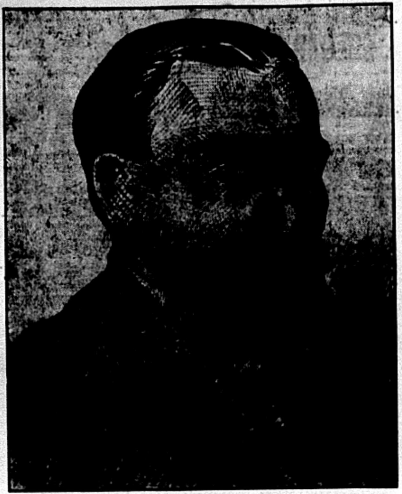
in Mexico and we had many comradely talks together. And I met his wife, Mary—a former cigaret maker whom he married in London during the period of his exile. And Volinsky and Haykiss of the legation staff—and gaunt, bushy-haired, impatient Vidas, whose eyes lighted with joy when I gave him a pipeful of real Prince Albert tobacco from my pouch. All good comrades, who had entered the diplomatic service via the revolutionary movement of the working class. They were as different from every other official diplomatic family in Mexico as Bill Foster is from Col. George Harvey.

Yet Comrade Pestkovsky takes his diplomatic duties seriously. He is proud to be the first minister of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in the western hemisphere.

It has always seemed strange to me that Mexico should have been the first nation of the west to recognise Soviet Russia. Russia and Mexico . . . . how far apart they seem, despite the fact that both are peasant countries and both have suffered thru long years of oppression. American imperialism is the irreconcilable enemy of both. But Soviet Russia is a challenge to American imperialism. Mexico is an object of imperialistic conquest. The workers' and peasants' government of Russia stands guard with fixed bayonets before an accomplished social revolution; it barters and haggles with the bourgeois government of the world, but always with fixed bayonets. The pseudo-laborite government of Mexico is linked by a hundred subtle ties with the very forces of imperialism which are striving to plunder its people. Still there is a fundamental underlying community of interest between Mexico and Soviet Russia. There can be no doubt that the Mexican people know this. In common with all other oppressed and exploited peoples who are menaced by imperialism, they feel instinctively that Russia is their friend. So it came about that, with his feet none too secure amid the shifting sands of Mexican politics, Obregon—ally of American imperialism—found it advisable to yield to the unmistakable pressure of the toiling peon masses and extend the hand of diplomatic welcome to the most dangerous enemy of all imperialisms, Soviet Russia.

Soviet Spokesman in Mexico



COMRADE STANISLAUS PESTKOVSKY, SOVIET MINISTER TO MEXICO.

Drawn especially for the DAILY WORKER, by Xavier Guerrero, Mexico, 1925.

The Bad Boy of Wall St.

Mexico remains the bad boy of Wall Street's own little family of nations of the western world. Right at the back door of the United States, in the very "mittel europa" of American imperial policy, is set up the first Soviet legation to be established on this continent.

Naturally, the Soviet minister did not express these thoughts. I doubt that he would want to see his name connected with them. As an accredited diplomat, he is interested above all else in strengthening the ties between Mexico and Soviet Russia. It is only a question of time, he declares, before the United States too will recognise the Soviet government.

Business Bosses Uncle Sam.

"The United States government is a 'business administration,'" he reminded me. "And business is business. Sooner or later the necessities of business will lead to the establishment of relations with us."

One day, when we were sitting together under the bold bronse plaque of Lenin in the reception room of the legation, I asked Comrade Pestkovsky to tell me something of his career and how he happened to become a diplomatist. He heaved a sigh of relief. At last he could give me something for the DAILY WORKER which definitely established his contact with the revolutionary proletariat.

"It is quite all right for us Soviet diplomatists to talk about our pasts," he said smiling. "What is past is past. Everybody knows about it anyway. We do not pretend that we have lived lives of bourgeois respectability."

A Record to be Proud of.

Bourgeois respectability! Well, hardly. Five terms in prison and active participation in the revolutionary movement in three countries is Comrade Pestkovsky's impeccable record.

The Soviet minister describes his former occupation as that of "revolutionary agitator, propagandist and organizer." He has carried the message of revolution to city workers and peasants. He has conducted systematic work among the miners. For two years he was chief of the Warsaw fighting corps of the social democratic party, an armed auxiliary organization semi-military in character.

Born in 1882, in the Kalish "gubernia" of Poland, of aristocratic parents, Stanislaus Pestkovsky received a careful bringing up, which did not, however, keep him from landing in jail for revolutionary activities before he was twenty-one. This was during the last year of his college days at Lodz. He was a Polish nationalist at that time. Later he became a socialist and an active member of the revolutionary Polish social democracy. It was in 1906 that he formally joined the Bolsheviks, altho his membership card is issued as of 1902.

Active in 1905 Revolution.

Amnestied from prison in 1904, Comrade Pestkovsky took part in the Russian revolution of 1905, going afterwards to Poland, where he was again arrested and tried by court martial. This time he served four years at hard labor in central Russia and was then sent to Siberia, where he was to be exiled for life. After several attempts to escape, followed by repeated terms in prison, he finally made good his escape.

He made his way first to Austria, then to Belgium, then to England. From 1914 to 1917 he was in England, working part of the time as a switchboard operator in the office of the London County Council Electrical Tramways, (where he passed the most tranquil period of his life, sleeping peacefully on the night shift.) While in England, Comrade Pestkovsky was active in the British trade union movement. He also belonged to the British socialist party, besides being in contact with the Russian revolutionary groups in England.

After the overthrow of czarism, he made his way back to Russia and was active in the historic Bolshevik operations from April to November. During the revolution itself, he was assigned the task of capturing the telegraph station, remaining as chief telegraph commissar thruout the famous ten days that shook the world.

Comrade Pestkovsky has held many important posts in the Soviet regime. He was the first director of the Soviet State Bank.

"No, I have never been a real banker," he hastened to reassure me, anticipating my question. "But bankers were scarce in our ranks. I was a Communist and that was the main thing at the time. It was necessary to hold the institution and to cope with systematic sabotage. That was all the banking I ever did. I held the post only for three days."

In 1919 Head of Kirgiz Soviet.

When the Kirgiz Soviet republic was formed, Comrade Pestkovsky was made chairman of the provisional government. This was in 1919, after the territory had been recaptured from the counter-revolutionary forces. The Kirgiz republic is steppe country, with an area as large as Mexico. Comrade Pestkovsky remained there for a year, after which he became chief of the political department of the Soviet armies on the western front.

His first experience as a diplomatist was as chairman of the Russian frontier commission in the negotiations for the fixing of the Russo-Polish border.

Such is Comrade Pestkovsky's career. It is not the career of a professional diplomatist, but it amply fits him to be the first minister of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in the western world.

His reception in Mexico was different from that of any other diplomatic representative in the history of the republic. A delegation of Mexican workers was waiting for him at the dock when his ship landed at Vera Cruz. They gave him a rousing welcome. They ran after his train as it pulled out for Mexico City. In the capital a big demonstration was waiting. Workers crowded the hall at the big meeting of welcome arranged by the Communist Party of Mexico. Comrade Pestkovsky spoke from the platform. Here was indeed an innovation. The cheers of workers rocked the hall.

Red Flag Waves in Mexico.

Comrade Pestkovsky presented his credentials to Obregon on November 7, the anniversary of the Russian revolution.

"You can bet the red flag was flying from the legation staff on that day," put in Mary Pestkovskaya, looking up from her glass of tea. And Haykiss nodded his head, and Vidas. And Volinsky lifted his brandy glass—a propos of nothing—and said: "Let's drink a toast to something!" We filled our glasses from the bottle of good old Mexican "habanero."

"Here's to the establishment of the first Soviet embassy in Washington," proposed Pestkovsky.

And that is something for the readers of the DAILY WORKER to think about.

Klan-Farrington Combine Beaten

the headquarters and arsenal of the klan.

Klan-Farrington Combine Loses.

The defeat of the K. K. K. in the mayorality election is also a defeat for Frank Farrington, district president of the U. M. W. of A., as it means that the klan group in Local No. 992 (one of the largest locals in the district) will no longer have the support of the local authorities in the dirty work they are continually up to.

The K. K. K. group in Local No. 992 always have fought for Frank Farrington and his disruptive policies. This group (altho an insignificant minority in the local union) has resorted to every method from cheap trickery to gunmanism to control the affairs of Local No. 992. In this they were always ably supported by the klan, which have been more or less in control of local politics here. They came to union meetings wearing guns but were never molested by the local authorities.

Klan Aids Farrington in Union.

Last year when the regular annual election for officers of Local No. 992 had taken place in the regular authorized manner, it was found that the progressive candiates had carried the local. When the announcement was made, the K. K. K. group started a rough house and the meeting was adjourned by the chairman to prevent a fight.

After the meeting was adjourned and most of the membership had gone home, the klan group took things into their own hands and called a special meeting where they proceeded to hold an illegal election and elected their own candidate for chairman and secretary.

A protest was made but Farrington's henchmen, sent to adjust the trouble (as usual) ruled in favor of the K. K. K. "klandidates."

That this was part of a well-thought-out plan was realized later on when the national, district and sub-district election took place. In this election Local No. 992 carried heavy for the progressives, but the reactionary secretary purposely failed to sign the return sheet which caused the entire vote of the local to be thrown out.

Had the vote of this local been counted, it would have given Frank Johnson, progressive candidate for sub-district secretary enough votes to defeat his reactionary opponent, in spite of the fake ballots and other fraudulent methods used elsewhere in the sub-district.

Murphy Smith the new mayor of Zeigler is not a radical, but he has guaranteed full protection against gunman methods of the klan in union meetings and elsewhere. He also promises full protection and freedom of speech to all speakers who wish to speak in Zeigler, regardless of creed, color or nationality.

Trick Didn't Work.

Just before the election, a clever move, designed to split the anti-klan vote was made when one Polovnia, a Serbian, backed by ex-Mayor Hogan, was put in the field as a third candidate.

Hogan was supposed to be against the klan, but in one of the meetings held for his candidate, Polovina, Hogan unwittingly remarked that he had nothing against the klan and that he got out and worked for the klan candidate for township constable and was not ashamed of it.

Bob Sullivan Avenged.

This is the same Hogan who several years ago, while mayor of Zeigler, caused the Workers Party organizer, Comrade Sullivan to be beaten up and run out of town. This time his little scheme failed to work. The foreign element did not fall for the bait, and his candidate, Polovina, received but 15 votes.

The Workers Party did not kid itself about elections of this kind, but no progressive in Zeigler was sorry to see the klan meet defeat. That the klan both in union and city politics has the support of the coal mine operators there is little doubt. Past events all tend to show the connection and in their dirty work they have always been ably assisted by the Farrington machine.

IDAHO MINERS ESCAPE DEATH BY FEW SECONDS AS AIR LINE BREAKS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BURKE, Idaho, April 26— The fourteen miners rescued late from the 2,000 foot level of the Hecla Mining company mine escaped death only by a few seconds, investigation by mine inspectors revealed today. Just after the last of the entombed men were brot to the surface there was a cavein, and a break in the air line meaning certain death in the mine.

All of the miners were rescued uninjured after 24 hours of furious fighting against fire and gas.

American Capitalist Government Appointing Business Ambassadors

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 26. — The Coolidge administration is contemplating the appointment of commercial "ambassadors" thruout the world to aid American busines in developing its foreign trade, it was learned today.

Under this program, the government would establish its official commercial representatives on the same basis as the diplomatic corps and in such numbers as to blanket the industrial world. The ylan was proposed with a view to helping American business retain and improve the commercial advantages in the post-war construction period.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover is now seeking the services of a business man of recognized ability, it was learned, to send him to London as the first of these commercial "ambassadors." If the plan works out successfully there, business men of similar prominence will be sent to Paris, Berlin, Tokyo, Pekin and other important trade centers of Europe, the far east and South Africa.

T. U. E. L. General Meet Wed., April 29, 8 P. M.

The regular meting of the Chicago Trade Union Educational League general group will be held Wednesday, April 29, at 8 p. m., at North West Hall, corner North and Western Aves. An interesting series of reports on the progress of the militants in the Chicago trade union movement will be given. All militant and progressive trade unionists are invited to attend this important meeting.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

NEW KLAN HAS OLD KLAN'S HABIT OF GRABBING THE DOUGH

NEW ORLEANS, Apr. 26, Despite the fact that practically one million dollars was raised in this city the early part of the year to care for the poor and unfortunates—and a distinct pledge given by the sponsors of the movement that no more appeals for charity were to be made during the coming twelve months, the American Legion is preparing for a mammoth drive to build the endowment fund of the rehabilitation and child welfare work. The reorganized klan here is behind the movement.

More Wage Workers and Fewer Business Men, Say Statistic

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—American business was controlled by fewe individuals in the sense that fewer American citizens and residents were in business on their own acount—in the year 1924 than in any year back to 1908, according to statistics presented by the National Bureau of Economic Research, Inc.

There were only 9,657,000 persons in business on their own account in the United States last year, by the preliminary estimate of the bureau as compared with 33,568,000 persons working for wages or salaries.

In 1909 there were 9,833,00 independently in business of all kinds, and 24,422,000 working for wages or salaries. The number working for wages or salaries has steadily increased, but the number in business on their own account has fluctuated—rising above 10,000,000 only in the years 1916, [illegible] 1921 and 1922. It was 9,685,000 in 1923.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

The average man in business doesn't give a tinkers damn what political party you belong to or the color of your ideas—he wants to see the color of your money, and if you can make him feel the need of advertising in THE DAILY WORKER he will do so. It's up to you. Talk to your dealer first and then the Advertising Department will get him.

TEAM WORK

It is a lack of respect for your buying power that makes advertising so scarce in THE DAILY WORKER.

If the average business man felt that he could get any business by advertising in our paper you couldn't keep him out. It is up to you to make him feel that way.

If you can't land him for an ad, let us know and we wlil follow up the good work you have started.

HUGE GASOLINE-AUTO TRUST IS BASED ON DEATH

Rockefeller, Morgan & Du Pont Sell Poison

NEW YORK, April 26.—A scourge worse than tuberculosis will be loosed on the peoples of the cities and automobile highways of the United States by the Ethyl Gas corporation if its plans are not blocked, Yandell Henderson, professor of applied psychology at Yale university, told the American Society of Safety Engineers and International Safety Council at the American Engineers Societies Building.

Not only will the general use of tetraethyl lead treated gasoline or "looney gas" in automobile motors imperil the health of the general public, but it will tighten the monopolized control of the gasoline and automobile industries by a single group of interests, he declared. This poisonous gas actually does reduce knocking in motors and increases the general efficiency of the automobile to such an extent that the motors designed to its peculiar use are those that will sell and the financiers behind the gas and the automobiles designed for its use are those that will gain power.

Morgan and Rockefeller Money Combined.

The Ethyl Gas corporation comes from a marriage of Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Rockefeller trust, and General Motors corporation, the Morgan auto trust, and it is closely linked with the DuPont powder trust interests. As Professor Henderson's report was his expose of the bureau of mines (federal) for its report giving a clean bill of health to the use of "looney gas." The investigation that led to this report, was financed by the Ethyl Gas corporation, said Professor Henderson.

Will Inhale Poison.

Pollution of the atmosphere from general us of this lead treated gas will lead to the gradual absorbing of lead poison by those living and working along automobile highways. The poisoning will come from the inhalation of the lead dust. If he had to choose between tuberculosis and lead poisoning, said the physiological expert, he would take tuberculosis as the lesser evil.

"This is probably the greatest single question in the field of public health that has ever faced the American public," said Dr. Henderson. "It is the question whether scientific experts are to be consulted, and the action of the government guilded on their advice; or whether, on the contrary, commercial interests are to be allowed to subordinate every other consideration to that of profit. The size of the financial interests involved is stupenduous. It is not a matter of millions, or even hundreds of millions, but literally of billions.

Will Control Auto Industry.

"Except in New York and its immediate neighborhood, this leaded gasoline is being introduced everywhere thruout the country as fast as it can be supplied. It is sold now at little or no profit. The profit is in the future and will consist in control of the gasoline business and control of the automobile industry. The power of combination of powers that holds the patents on tetraethyl lead will be the only one that will be able to make the cars that we all want to buy; the improved cars for which we will discard those we now have. The power will also control the only fuel on which those new cars will run. The financial stake is almost inconceivably great."

Eleven Workers Killed.

Dr. Henderson emphasized the additional peril garage workers, especially, will run, in addition to that of carbon monoxide poisoning. He pointed out how just as the subject of legislation against lead poisoning in other fields was becoming an acute issue these gigantic plans for wholesale lead poisoning were getting under way. In opposition tq the bureau of mines report, financed by the great private corporation, Professor Henderson set up the opinions of Dr. David Edsel, dean of Harvard medical school and Professor C. K. Drinker of the Harvard school of public health.

Tetraethyl lead treated gasoline is becoming more general in use in the middle west, but it is prohibited by law in New York City as yet. Eleven workers in laboratories at Bayway, N. J., Wilmington, Delaware and Dayton, Ohio, have already bee slain, but this is as nothing to the lead poisoning hazards of the general population.

Catholic to Displace Socialist

PARIS, April 26.—King Albert of Belgium will ask a catholic to form a cabinet, following the refusal of Emile Vandervelde, socialist leader and former minister of justice, to accept the premiership because of catholic and liberal opposition, according to a dispatch today from Brussels to l'Information.

The Workers Party in Action

WITH ALL ITS MEMBERS PRESENT AND VOTING, THE D. E. C. OF NEW YORK GOES ON RECORD

At its meeting on April 22nd the Executive Committee of District Two with all of its thirteen members present and voting, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

THE District Executive Committee of the New York District recognizes the necessity of building a larger circulation for the official organ of the Workers Party, the Daily Worker, and the duty of EVERY member to help in this work, and calls upon every member to do his best in the present annual subscription drive of the Daily Worker.

The District Executive Committee resolves that:

1. Every member of the Workers Party who can read English should subscribe for the Daily Worker within a month.

2. Every member should try to get at least one non-member to subscribe.

3. Every member that sold subscriptions for the Press Pageant should try to get the same people to renew their subscriptions at once.

4. All party officials and language bureaus are instructed to further this work as they have opportunity. Language papers are invited to co-operate with publicity.

5. Competent speakers shall be sent by the District office and the bureaus to the next meeting of every branch to help mobilize their working force in this campaign.

6. Every member of the District Executive Committee shall give at least one evening to this work before May 15th.

7. Until the completion of the subscription drive June 15th the Daily Worker shall be first order of business at all branch and party meetings. Branches and committees are instructed to allow Daily Worker agents reasonable time to report.

8. Branches and shop nuclei that have not yet elected active Daily Worker Agents are instructed to elect same at once, and to have the agent report to L. E. Katterfeld.

9. One of the principal speakers at each May Day meeting, and at every mass meeting arranged during this drive, shall make the Daily Worker a prominent part of his address.

10. Special distribution of free sample copies amounting to at least five copies per member shall be arranged by every unit of the party for the last week in May, to be followed by canvass for subscriptions.

DEPORTATION OF ZINICH WILL BE A BLOW AGAINST ENTIRE AMERICAN LABOR MOVEMENT

A Joint Statement by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, the Bureau of the South Slavic Section, and responsible Workers in the South Slavic Labor Movement.

The arrest and threatened deportation of S. Zinich, editor of Radnik, is a blow against every foreign-born worker in America. The capitalist government intends, by thus striking at the most militant, workers to make all foreign-born workers afraid to organize and struggle against capitalist exploitation. Deportation and threats of deportation is thus used as a means to drive down the wages of the foreign-born workers and to destroy labor organizations.

At the same time this case is another blow against the native-born American workers. By repressing, and by inspiring fear in the hearts of foreign-born workers, the capitalists drive down their wages; and then these low wages are used as a weapon to break up the unions and drive down the wages of ALL WORKERS. Deportation is a capitalist class measure, directed against the entire working class.

The case of Zinich is particularly dastardly attempt of the same kind that has been repeated again and again by the U. S. government. The reactionary elements of the South Slav population, the servants of capitalism, evidently inspired the immigration authorities to arrest Zinich, hoping thereby to remove a man who was energetically participating in the struggle to organize the South Slav workers and unite them with all the workers of America and the world. Such a denunciation made secretly and without Zinich having an opportunity to confront his accusers, demonstrated not only the treacherous nature of the reactionary elements among: the South Slavs, but shows in a bright light the role of the government as a dictatorship of the capitalist class.

We call the attention of the South Slavic workers particularly, to the vicious participation in this assault against the working class, on the part of a certain paper which makes pretence of being a "workers" paper—the Novy Swijet. Not content with rejoicing that Comrade Zinich has been seized by the capitalist government, it makes clumsy efforts to whitewash itself for its participation in urging the government to its action, by insinuating that Comrade Zinich was denounced by his own comrades. This brazen and damnable lie contained in its issue No. 38, April 23, is circulated for the double purpose of covering the reactionary and fascist nature of Novy Swijet and at the same time creating suspicion in the minds of workers about their own comrades.

But the workers see the capitalist governmental machinery in its true light as the agent of the capitalist class. They are not fooled by the sham democracy which oppresses them. And they see clearly also the intentions of the slanderous lies of such masked agents of capitalism as the Novy Swijet and they are not fooled thereby. They unite their forces more solidly than ever before, as members and sympathizers of the Workers Party, and as fighters in the class struggle.

The case of Zinich is the case of every worker in America. It is the case of every foreign-born worker. It is the case of the entire Workers Party, and of every member of the South Slav section. We declare that the arrest of Zinich shall be made the occasion of greater solidarity than ever before, of greater energy in building our labor organizations and our party, of greater confidence and trust in our comrades, and great hatred and disgust against those enemies of the working class, those agents of capitalism, who get pleasure from the imprisonment of our comrade.

Workers of all races and nationalities: Unite to fight against the deportation of Zinich!

Unite to fight against the laws against foreign-born workers!

Unite to struggle for better living conditions!

Unite to abolish capitalist exploitation!

Unite to build the power of the working class that will overthrow the capitalist system and all its agents, and install the rule of the workers in the factories, and on the land—the workers' and farmers' government!

Signed: Workers (Communist) Party of America. Central Executive Committee, Earl R. Browder, acting secretary.

Green Queried on Muscle Shoals.

WASHINGTON—(FP)— President Green of the American Federation of Labor is among the list of persons, including many corporation executives, who have been asked by the administration's hand-picked commission on disposal of the Muscle Shoals power plant, to express their views. No advocate of public ownership was included in the commission, and no conspicuous advocate of that solution has been asked to give advice.

Brooklyn Workers Demand Freedom for Polish Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 26.—A mass meeting to protest against the actions taken by the white guard movement of Grabski that is now ruling Poland suppressing and terrorizing the workers and peasants, particularly the Communists, was held at the White Eagle Hall, Brooklyn. It was arranged by Local New York, of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Comrade S. Betryni, acting as chairman, opened the meeting and after a few preliminary remarks introduced Sylvan A. Pollack as the first speaker of the evening.

"We are gathered here tonight to raise our voices in protest against the fascist regime of Grabski that is carrying out a reign of terror against the Polish workers and peasants, especially their vanguard, the members of the Communist Party," Comrade Pollack said.

"We proclaim our solidarity with Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky, and we protest against the Polish government trying to railroad him to prison on another charge, now that he has been acquitted on the first one."

"The fight of the Polish proletariat is a part of an international one, and we in America, dedicate ourselves to do our part."

He was followed by Tadeusz Radwanski, editor of Tribuna Robotniczy, organ of the Polish section of the Workers (Communist) Party, who addressed the meeting in Polish.

Bronx Comrades' Attention.

Class in the principles and tactics of the Third International will be continued Tuesday, April 28. The topic of discussion will be Bolshevization.

The class will convene at 8:30 at Bronx headquarters, 1347 Boston Road.

Jack Johnstone Will Speak at the Detroit May Day Celebration

DETROIT, Mich., April 26—Comrade Jack Johnstone, acting national secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, will be the principal speaker at the Detroit May Day celebration to be held on Friday evening, May 1, at 8 o'clock, in the House of Masses.

Detroit comrades are busily engaged in spreading publicity of their May Day gathering to all the workers in the city thru the distribution of leaflets and thru personal talks with workers in the factories and shops. A large and enthusiastic crowd is assured for this meeting.

Cleveland Notice.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 26.—In accordance with with the decision at the last meeting of the East Side English branch regular business meetings will be held every second Thursday and fourth Sunday in each month. Sunday meetings will start at 10:00 a. m. sharp. The above decision was made to enable those who are employed nights and those who work overtime to attend at least one meeting a month. The English branch has also adopted the rule that any member who fails to attend three meeting in succession without good reason, be dropped from the membership list. Our next meeting will be held Sunday April 26, 10 a. m. at party headquarters, 927 Euclid.—Elmer P. Boich, Branch Organizer.

New Orleans Jobless Look For Work While Unionists Are Barred

NEW ORLEANS—(FP)— Unemployment in New Orleans is becoming acute. A conservative estimate places the number out of employment at over 50,000, while at least 10,000 are walking the streets to "sell something" on a commission basis.

Two months ago in order to relieve distress the levee board, controlled by the state of Louisiana, put a force to work repairing the levee along the Mississippi river at the upper end of the city. It developed that a majority of these men were members of organized labor or sympathizers. The opposition from a portion of the daily press was so great that the levee board withdrew the workmen, and the levee today is a menace to the lives of the citizens.

BOSTON NOTES

Picnic Committee.

The picnic committee for the three picnics to be given by Local Boston, May 30, July 4, and Labor Day, is being organized. Branches must send two delegates each to serve on this committee. Names and addresses of delegates elected to act on the picnic committee should be sent to the C. C. C. secretary at once.

NEW YORK LABOR FIGHT AGAINST BULGAR TERROR

Mass Meeting Tuesday at Manhattan Lyceum

NEW YORK, April 26—The Zankov government of Bulgaria has been terrorizing the mass of workers and peasants since 1923, when Stambulisky, the leader of the peasants' party, was assassinated by the same bloody Zankov government.

Three members of the British parliament were in Bulgaria at the time of the cathedral explosion and the reprisals against the revolutionary workers. They protested—as did even the American and British ministers. This did not stay the murderous hand of Zankov. A wave of the hand of a police official and hundreds and thousands of workers were sent to death.

The social-democrats voted unanimously with the government for action against the revolutionists. Nevertheless a leader of the social-democrats declares that the masses were provoked to the madness and had no other means of redress against the white terror of the Zankov government. The military league is in power in Bulgaria and the "Bulgarian people, tired of looking toward the West, now turn toward the big Slav brother in Moscow." This "rabid anti-Communist" admits that a proletarian revolution is the only hope for the Bulgarian workers and peasants.

The workers of the United States must show their solidarity with the workers and peasants who are bleeding for a third time. At Manhattan Lyceum, 66 E. 4th St., the workers of New York will protest against the brutal slaughter of the Bulgarian workers. On Tuesday, April 28, at 8 p. m., a mass protest demonstration called by the Workers Party, the Young Workers League and the International Workers Aid will take place. All class conscious and revolutionary workers of New York must attend and voice their protests.

Bible and Beating For Children of Workers in Ohio

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLVELAND, Ohio, April 26.— A fine example of the "education" that is thrust down the throats of working class children and the manner of enforcing it upon the pupils is seen in the victory of the ku klux klan in putting over its bill in the state legislature for compulsory bible reading in the public schools.

It requires that ten verses of the bible be read daily and that all pupils in the fourth and all higher grades memorize the "golden rule and the ten commandments."

Combined with this compulsory opiate for workers' children is the ruling of Superintendent Vernon M. Reigel of the state department of education in a circular letter to all Ohio superintendents of schools saying that physical punishment may be given to pupils by teachers "altho the punishment is unnecessarily excessive without being liable civilly or criminally."

The teachers of the state are thus given carte blanche to go as far as they like in beating pupils who may resist the religious hokum being thrust upon them. The ruling says that teachers have the same "right" to beat up the children as parents have, another revealing quality of capitalist "civilization."

Rubles of Czar and Kerensky Valueless, Speculators Told

PEKIN, April 26.—The Rosta correspondent learns in the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics that enquiries have been coming in lately about the so-called czarist rubles, a certain amount of which has been kept by some Chinese merchants, and that, at the same time, it has come to the knowledge of the embassy that there are unscrupulous people who are misleading Chinese commercial circles in this matter and are speculating in those quite valueless scraps of paper.

It was declared at the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics that, as the embassy had stated on many previous occasions, the paper money issued under the czarist regime, as well as that issued by Kerensky's government, has now lost all value and are no longer in circulation in the Union of Soviet Republics.

The question of those bills will not be discussed at the pending Soviet-Chinese conference, so that no speculation in that paper money could possibly bring any profits to those engaged in same.

Hatters' Strike.

NORWALK, Conn.—(FP)— Thirty-five workers in the hat-sizing department of the American Hat Co. plant are striking for improved working conditions. This strike, tho small, may prelude others in Connecticut. Since the Berg Co. moved to Danbury recently and went on an open shop basis conditions have gotten worse in other Connecticut hat plants.

"FIGHT DAWES PLAN, WAGE CUTS AND WHITE TERROR," IS SLOGAN FOR CHICAGO MAY DAY MEET

To the Workers of Chicago and Vicinity:

Dear Comrades—White terror rages fiercely against the Bulgarian Communists and workers and peasants. The bloody Zankov, premier of reactionary Bulgaria, uses bomb explosions, obviously an act of individual terror, as a pretext for attempting to destroy the revolutionary movement of Bulgairia, especially the Communist Party of Bulgaria. Thousands of our comrades are being shot and imprisoned. Despite all, however, there are signs of revolt of the peasantry, workers and soldiers of Bulgaria against the Bulgarian monarchist and capitalist regime. A Soviet Bulgaria looms in the offing; despite terror and reaction, the united struggle for socialist republic of the balkans brings hope and strength to the exploited masses. Meanwhile, workers everywhere, the American masses, must protest against the Bulgarian white terror and bring pressure to bear to end it. Capitalism is the United States gloats at the massacre of the Communists. We must thrust that laugh down their throats thru working class action.

Freedom for Grouch and Trumbull

Hawaii is the outpost of American imperialism and militarism. Communist soldiers, Grouch and Trumbull have been sentenced to 40 and 26 years imprisonment for daring to be loyal to the Soviet republic of Russia and the world working class. They have been true soldiers of the revolution. We must demand their release from prison and their right to hold Communist views in the army.

The workers of America, with the American Communists leading the campaign, have turned back the counter-revolutionary tool and scoundrel, Raphael Abramovich. His filth and he is now on the way back to Europe, where no doubt the workers will greet him with curses and jeers.

Fight White Terror

American workers, together with workers all thru the world, protested the attempt of the Polish capitalist government to execute Lanzutsky, Communist member of parliament, Lanzutsky has thru workers demonstrations, been torn away from the shadows of the gallows.

Political and other class war prisoners fill the prisons of America. Stronger efforts must be made to secure their release.

American capitalism, framer of the infamous Dawes plan to enslave the workers of Europe, continues its organized campaign to impoverish the American masses. Wage cuts, increase of working hours, poorer job conditions, smash-up of the unions, extension of the imperialist domains of Wall Street, continue unabated. Child labor increases manifold, as American manufacturers have their jaws with pleasure at the thought of the ground-out profits.

Comrades and workers of Chicago! We must protect and demonstrate against white terror wherever its fangs appear. We must unite against capitalism.

A New Beginning

May Day, 1925, must be the starting point for redoubled effort and struggle against militarism and imperialism. In Chicago, on Friday, May 1st, 1925 8 p. m. at Temple Hall, Marshfield Ave. and Van Buren St., May Day international workers' day will be celebrated. Among the speakers will be James P. Cannon, C. E. Ruthenberg, Martin Abern, Alexander Bittleman, Max Shachtman. There will be present also the Young Workers' League Orchestra, Scandinavian Singing society and Freiheit Singing and Mandolin orchestra. Every worker must make an effort to be present at the May Day celebration.

Hail May Day, international workers' day!

Celebrate May Day at Temple Hall! Down tools on May Day!

Down with the Bulgarian white terror!

Hail the Communist Party of Bulgaria!

Hail the United Socialist Republics of the Bankans!

Strike against wage cuts!

Free the red Hawaian soldiers and all class war prisoners!

Up with the workers' and farmers' government in the United States!

Hail the Russian Soviet Republic and Communist International!

May Day Movies in Many Cities

APPROPRIATELY enough many cities and towns are celebrating May Day this year with a working class movie show. In Pittsburgh, in addition to the films, phonograph records of speeches by Lenin and other Russian Communists, will be played.

Five cities and towns in Pennsylvania are running the Lenin reel as part of their May Day movie program.

Denver, Colo. has three dates, April 28 and 29 in the Palm Theater at W. Colfax and Grove, and April 30, in the Barnes School Auditorium. The pictures here include "Beauty and Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls."

The same program will be run on April 30, in Toledo, Ohio, and for two days, April 29 and 30, in Utica, N. Y., under the auspices of a group of Italian radicals.

"Prisoners for Progress," the newest two-reel feature which drew the wrath of the censors, police chief and mayor of Chicago, will be shown as the feature of the May Day celebration in Freie Gemeinde Hall, 8th and Walnut streets, on May 1, at 8 p. m.

Gleason and Bloomville, Wis., will compare, via the films, the working class conditions of Bolshevik Russia and social-democratic Germany, when they look at "Russia and Germany—A Tale of Two Republics."

Los Angeles is running a five-day program of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" from May 3 to 8, in neighborhood theaters. This is the answer to the auditorium manager who cancelled one date.

Sheboygan, Wis., will look at "Russia and Germany" on May 20, while Milwaukee will stage a repeat performance of "Beauty and Bolshevik" on May 30, under the auspices of the South Slav and Slovak comrades, perhaps for two days.

California Rulers Will Hang Victim of Industrial System

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(FP)—State Senator Roy Fellom has given up hope of getting his anti-hanging bill thru the California legislature this session. California's next official murder will be that of "Tuffy" Reed, a bay of 20, who became a dope addict in the effort to support his mother and sister. A man convicted with him and sentenced to life for the shooting of a Los Angeles dope peddler has sworn that he committed the crime and that Reed was innocent, the governor refuses a reprieve.

Bath Beach Y. W. L. Has Celebration on Its First Anniversary

BATH BEACH, N. Y., April 26—Saturday, May 16, marks the first anniversary of the Bath Beach branch of the Young Workers League, District 2, New York.

Our anniversary jubilee will be held at the Buena Vista hall, Crepsey and 20th Aves., Brooklyn, on Saturday, May 16, at 8 p. m. A splendid musical program will be rendered by Feldman's Union Band and in addition there will be a two-act play arranged by the Junior Section, entitled, School Life, as well as a tableau.

The dramatic section of the Young Workers League will entertain with several recitations and songs as well as with a one-act play.

Admission will be 50 cents.

NEW YORK BUILDERS' CORNER

Conducted by KATTERFELD.

Help! Help! S. O. S. Help! Help!

EVERY DAILY WORKER Builder in New York is asked to heed this call and to put on "full steam ahead" toward the DAILY WORKER office, 108 East 14th street, at once. There's so much to be done in connection with the present DAILY WORKER subscription campaign that it has the New York agent swamped.

The matter of building up a decent circulation for the party's official organ is this town of seven millions isn't any one-man job. About all the agent can do is to show the Builders where and how they can build most effectively, get the best results for their energy. The notion of "Let the Agent do it; he gets paid for it," would be fatal. So we call for volunteers, the more the better.

There's such a variety of work to be done that most every kind of ability will be helpful: Subscription solicitors, advertising solicitors, news stand inspectors, speakers to visit branches, office workers to help typewriting, filing, circularizing, etc.

The New York manager is always in the office at 108 East 14th street from 12 to 2 and from 6 to 8 p. m. and can also be seen at other times by appointment. Telephone Stuyvesant 8100.

PROFITS GO UP WHILE A MILLION WORKERS STARVE

England Puts Scews on Labor

LONDON—(FP—Fodder wages and unemployment go hand in hand in England while investors are drawing dividends comparable with those before the war. While 1,279,000 workers composing with their families about 1-10 of the population are subsisting on scant unemployment doles, 87,704 supertax payers report incomes of more than $9,500. This marks a gain of 2,700 over the number of large incomes the previous year.

Walter Runciman boasts in parliament that there are 15,000,000 small capitalists in England owning $3,700,000,000. But Henry Clay, Manchester University economist, punctures this pretense at economic democracy. "What Mr. Runciman calls the stupendous total of $3,700,000,000," he says, "is not more than 5 per cent of the national capital. On the other hand it is probably safe to say that over 3-3 of the national capital is held by less than 2 per cent of the people."

The 85,000 British supertax payers in 1923 received over $2,350,000,000 in income, more than half the entire capital owned by the 15,000,000 so-called capitalists. The supertax payers are about 1-56th of the direct tax payers, but got more than 1-5 of the income.

British employers argue for longer hours and lower wages to give good employment. But in spite of unemployment and part-time, returns from 1,411 industrial companies for 1924 show a net increase of $41,000,000 in profits or 6.6 per cent over 1923. This means total profits of more than $660,000,000.

The ratio of profits to capital in 1924 was 10.3 per cent compared with 9.8 per cent in 1923 and 7 per cent in 1922. Common stockholders got average dividends of 9.8 per cent in 1924 compared with 10 per cent in 1914, 10.3 per cent in 1913 and 8.5 per cent in 1912. Total common and preferred dividends paid by the 1,411 firms amounted to $524,000,000 and in the course of the year the stockholders were enriched by an increase of more than $400,000,000 in the value of their holdings. Unemployment does not bother the investing class.

Instructions from the conservative Baldwin ministry increasing the rejections of claims for unemployment relief reveal the government trying to force applicants to take any job however low the wages or unacceptable the conditions. With the unions pressing for wage increases the government is putting the screws on to increase the competition for jobs and weaken labor's position.

Meanwhile this same government holds out the olive branch of industrial peace and urges a 5-year truce.

Promise of a "Square Deal" Turns Out to Be an Election Trick

CLEVELAND.—Confronted by the Republican convention last June, Cleveland city fathers halted a street railway strike on the promise of a square deal. An arbitration board later awarded the union men a 12c an hour increase. The Cleveland Railway Co. appealed, and has so far been sustained in refusing to apply the award. Now nearly a year after the city's promise, the car men are formulating a new demand for the 12c raise. The company offers 5c.

ALL SOVIET RUSSIA HAS EYES ON CHINA AS LIFE OF SUN YAT SEN IS TOLD BY PEN AND WORD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, April 26.—The following telegram was sent to Pekin by the volunteer air fleet society of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics on the occasion of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's death:

"In the name of the two million members of the society for the promotion of the air fleet, the presidium of the society expresses its sincere condolences at the passing away of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the founder of the Kuomintang Party and the national revolutionary leader of China.

"The society, whose task it is to strengthen the defense of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics against eventual imperialistic attacks, feels confidently that Sun Yat Sen's will shall ever be a guiding star for the toiling masses of China.

"In alliance with the Union of Soviet Republics, and in alliance with the world proletariat, China will execute the main will of Sun Yat Sen—the national liberation of China from the yoke of imperialism."

Large Meetings Held.

The biggest of all the mass meetings arranged at Moscow in commemoration of Dr. Sun Yat Sen was held in the Trades Union Hall. The meeting was arranged by the Moscow Council of Trade Unions and was attended by several thousand people who filled the huge hall to full capacity.

A detailed report was made by Radek on Sun Yat Sen as the greatest leader of the East struggling for national emancipation. In conclusion, the speaker emphasized his firm belief that, even with Dr. Sun's death, the liberative movement in China, directed by the Kuomintang, will keep the positions it has won already.

A number of foreign Communists delivered speeches on the historical role of Sun Yat Sen, among the orators there being Mr. Cachin, for France; Mr. Roy, for India; Mr. Gallagher, for England; Mr. Smith, for America, and others.

In the resolution, which was adopted without a dissenting vote, "the working men and women of Moscow voice their unflinching will to do all in their power to promote the cause of national unification and liberation of China" and they declare that they will forever honor the memory of Sun Yat Sen.

The central committee of the Russian Communist Party has circularized all the local branches of the party, enjoining them to carry thru a broad campaign among the workers and peasants to explain the role of Sun Yat Sen in the activities of the Kuomintang Party and the present situation in China.

Zinoviev Writes on Sun.

In a leading article in the Pravda, Zinoviev, president of the executive committee of the Communist International, calls Sun Yat Sen the greatest historical figure in the national liberative movements of the East in our century. The author points out that especially during the last years of his life, Sun had come to understand ever more clearly that only in close alliance with the world proletariat can the oppressed peoples win their national freedom and secure the conditions of a new life.

The Russian revolution, the writer continues, may well be proud of the strong influence it has had on the national liberative movement of the East. Indeed, all the life and deeds of such men as Sun Yat Sen are a striking illustration of the correctness of the views embodied in "Leninism" on the significance of the national revolutionary movement of the oppressed peoples.

In conclusion. Zinoviev recalls Lenin's words written thirteen years ago: "To replace the bourgeoisie, which is being decomposed, there come the proletariat of the European countries and the young democracy, full of confidence in its own forces and faith in the masses, of the countries of Asia."

Fight Open Shop in the National Capital

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26.—War upon open shoppers in the national capital has been declared by the Central Labor Union, in retaliation for the war on building trades wage increases and the union shop which big business interests have been making for the past month. Seventy-four local unions affiliated with the central body will be called upon to join in a campaign to make Washington a "good union town."

Stores will be put under pressure to employ union clerks displaying union buttons, and to handle union label goods. Union men will be questioned as to their purchases, both in household supplies and in amusements and even in houses, to insure that union wages are spent for union products. A "silent boycott" of nonunion firms is proposed.

LONDON.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt and their companions on the trip to Turkestan, left for Paris today. They will sail from Marseilles April 28.

Greek Aviator Reaches Rome.

ROME—Di Penedo, the aviator, arrived at Leros, the Greek archapelego, on his trip from Rome to Melbourne, Australia, by way of Tokio.
